THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER, BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I. COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT
Chapter II. PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III. INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV. MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V. INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Published at "The Era" Offices, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright, and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

Mr A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 2d, 1901

THE LATE WILSON BARRETT.

One of the main points of the creed of the "advanced" school of dramatic essayism is the extermination of the actor-manager. Like Carthage, in the ancient Roman ideas, he is to be destroyed. Get rid of the actor-manager, we are told, and immediately, like a balloon relieved of its ballast, the English drama will rise, even to the empyrean. It is only the actor-manager which prevents IBSEN being commercially profitable — as Mr BERNARD SHAW prophesied years ago that he would be. It is—so we are assured—the existence of the actor-manager which stands in the way of social and scientific questions being dealt with in plays upon our stage. If—so we are taught—we could only pass a Bill through Parliament ordering that no actor should be the manager of a theatre there would be no need of a national playhouse. That is the doctrine which is preached to us by the "ideologues."

The career of the late WILSON BARRETT was a sustained protest against the literary and hyper-subtle views of the drama. Mr WILLIAM ARCHER, in a notice rather abusive than critical, described The Sign of the Cross after its production at the Lyric Theatre, in 1896, as a "farrago of crudities and ineptitudes; a Salvationist orgie, a combination of the penny dreadful with the Sunday school picture-book; a series of tawdry tableaux with their crude appeal to the shallowest sentiments and lowest instincts of the mob." He also said, "There ought really to be a harlequinade, with Marcus Superbus as Clown." That the piece was one of the greatest successes of modern times was perhaps only the natural corollary of this verdict.

As we pointed out in a recent article, the advanced criticism of the day is destructive. It is evident that the policy of which the above "elegant extracts" are a significant sign had for its aim the suppression of a large and important department of dramatic effort, the idea being that the public, being deprived of the commoner fare which they naturally enjoy, would turn with relish to translations of MAETERLINCK, or adaptations of D'ANNUNZIO. In La Fille de Madame Angot there is a song sung by the heroine which, comparing pre-revolutionary with revolutionary morals, concludes, "C'n'était pas la peine, assurément, De changer le gouvernement." We can all remember the days when the Princess's Theatre was an important factor of the year's theatrical interest, and when Mr WILSON BARRETT'S name was one to conjure with in London. No doubt, from a certain elevated point of view, the fare provided at the Princess's was beneath contempt. It is a far cry—say from M. HERVIEU to Mr GEORGE SIMS; from La Loi de l'Homme to The Lights of London. A question unsettled is whether the dog should wag the tail or the tail wag the dog; whether the drama is to appeal to the bulk of the population or to a literary minority.

Long before Mr BARRETT'S life ended, his vogue with West-end first-nighters had departed. London audiences had been educated up to the point of laughter at, rather than tears over, the sorrows of melodramatic heroes and heroines. Cockney cleverness was in the ascendant. The Government had been changed; but, as Clairette used to inquire, "Are we much better off than before?" The mass of modern playgoers are rushing in their thousands to witness musical plays; and, though we regard those entertainments as both harmless and agreeable, it seems that it was, after all, hardly worth while to "change the Government."

Ordinary individuals are tempted to inquire what non-acting manager ever did half as much in the production of clean, strong, and honest plays as did the late WILSON BARRETT. He gave Mr H. A. JONES his first chance; and by accepting The Silver King he sustained that gentleman in the transition state from a melodramatic to a social satirist. He opened his theatre at Leeds with a revival of SHAKESPEARE; and at the Court he produced versions of La Dame aux Camellias. He was an excellent Mercutio, and if his Hamlet was not one of his most successful experiments, it was, at least, an earnest and original reading of the rôle, which was useful in putting a plausible theory to the test of practical performance. Until we can elevate the general population to the level of the dramatic epicure, it is folly to attempt to alter its provender. If you drive out nature with the pitchfork of ridicule, it will return; and if it has been "put off" melodrama and drama, it will simply fall back upon frivolity. It was "the thing" at one time, with a certain clique, to "run down" WILSON BARRETT. Doubtless as an artist he had his limitations; but his merits were real, and his personality and character were noble, honourable, and beneficial to the stage. There is no doubt that more artistic plays have been produced by actor-managers than by rich City speculators; and the alternative to actor-management appears to be theatres run as purely commercial investments.

So far from deploring the fact that the mass of the English people enjoyed and admired melodrama, we should have done all in our power to maintain them in that condition of mind. The mission of the Anglo-Saxon race is Hebraic, not Hellenic. Character without intellect will always, in the long run, beat intellect without character; and we need not hurry on to the declining age of nations so accurately described by BACON. WILSON BARRETT represented all that was best in the British nature. He was a son of the soil, broad-shouldered, deep-voiced, uncrafty, and emotional. He bore misfortune bravely; hurt nobody by word or deed; and was true and just in all his dealing. The heaviest financial losses only steeled him to more earnest and energetic effort. The work that he got through in playwriting, acting, and organising was tremendous. He endured distress without complaint, and prosperity did not make him proud. His considerate kindness, in small things as well as great, endeared him to all with whom he came in contact. As an artist, he had the defects of his qualities; as a man, he was essentially Anglo-Saxon; and every play-going Englishman must deeply feel his loss.

MR. F. R BENSON ON DRAMATIC ART.

Mr F. R. Benson filled the difficult rôle of honorary examiner at the twentieth annual examination recitals of the Polytechnic School of Elocution, held on the evening of the 22nd inst. in the Large Hall in Regent-street. Twelve lady pupils from Mr and Mrs Hasluck's admirably conducted classes were aspirants for the Polytechnic silver medal, six first-class certificates, and six second-class certificates. Honours fell to Miss Imogen Surrey, who gave a powerful recital of "Sands of Egypt;" Miss Daisy Browne ably depicted the varied moods of the young bride in Rooke's "The Telegram;" Miss Laura Godfree's "Sydney Carton's Last Supplication" reached a high standard of excellence; Mrs Sweasey's cheerful abandon in "The Rehearsal" created hearty laughter; Miss Rita Gallally supplied a selection from Henry V., and her bright vivacity won high favour. Miss Bessie Wemnoth, in Savile Clark's "A Venetian Revenge," brought out with force and expression all the passion of the poem; Miss Alice Mellish gave two extracts from "Bleak House;" Miss Fanny Barrington's chattering society woman, in Doyle's "A Browning Society," was clever; Miss Ethel Chandler, with a scene from Macbeth, was intense and sincere; Miss Lillian Church gave the duologue between Hubert and Arthur, in King John, admirably; Miss Nancy Tripp reciting "Queen Katherine and the Cardinals;" and Miss Evelyn Keepe choosing "The Death of Minnehaha."

Mr F. R. BENSON, after making the awards, in addressing the students, said—It has been a great treat to me to listen to such a splendid series of recitals, all of a high standard of excellence, and it may be consolation for those who had not been placed in the first six to know that I have had a hard task to separate them. The greatest credit is due to Mr and Mrs Hasluck, who have informed me that the twelve pupils we have just had the pleasure of hearing had to be chosen from two hundred students who were attending their classes. There is "no art that takes more pains to learn; no art that takes more pains to teach," than elocution. Art, in whatever branch it may be studied, tends to elevate and purify. I had this most forcibly brought home to me when on a recent visit to Paris I paid a visit to the Louvre to see Milo's masterpiece, Venus. All classes of society came to see this beautiful work, some out of curiosity, some out of love for all that is beautiful, and others because it was the correct thing to do. For two hours I sat and watched the faces of all those who came to worship at this marvellous statue's shrine. As they gazed on it all that was coarse, vulgar, and indelicate in their natures seemed to leave them, and they lingered to admire only the work of an artist.

In a humorous speech Mr S. HASLUCK moved a vote of thanks to Mr F. R. Benson, which was seconded by Miss IMOGEN SURREY, the silver medallist, in a few well-chosen and appropriate words. The admirable work of the stage-manager shou'd not be forgotten, while the beautiful floral tributes to Mrs Hasluck was an evidence of the deep affection her pupils have for her.

BIRTHDAYS OF THE WEEK.

Most heartily we wish many, many happy returns of the day to the following ladies and gentlemen:—

Janet Marsden—Saturday, July 30.
Clare Manifield, actress—Saturday, July 30.
Sydney Fairbrother, music hall artiste, July 31.
Flora Hastings—Sunday, July 31.
Marie Thornton—Sunday, July 31.
E. Story-Gofton, actor—Sunday, July 31.
Wilson Howard—Sunday, July 31.
Winifred Emery, actress—Monday, Aug. 1.
Sarah Brooke, actress—Monday, Aug. 1.
Frank R. Robertson—Monday, Aug. 1.
Alfred F. Robbins—Monday, Aug. 1.
Gladys Whyte—Tuesday, Aug. 2.
Sydney Brough, actor—Tuesday, Aug. 2.
Madame Christine Nilsson, prima donna—Aug 3.
A'gernon Syms, actor—Wednesday, Aug. 3
Alleyn M. Hylton, business-manager—Aug. 4.
Charles Coborn, music hall artiste—Aug. 4.

MR OSWALD BRAND, the manager of the Grand Theatre, Islington, will start upon a fortnight's holiday at the end of next week. Mr Brand has been extremely busy with new productions, playwriting, and the work of management ever since Mr George Davey took over the theatre, and he needs the rest which, we hope, his vacation at the seaside will supply.

AT the Royalty Theatre, Barrow, on Monday, Mrs Henry Mayhew and Charles Herrick commenced their second tour of the successful drama, The Triumph of Truth. In the cast are all the original members of the company.

NEW FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for adaptation, we shall publish from time to time synopses of notable Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purposes. All particulars respecting "rights," &c., can be obtained of the International Copyright Bureau, 4, Eastcheap, London.

"L'ETOILE FILANTE"
A Play, in Three Acts and a Prologue, by Countess Lydie Rostoptchene and Ernest Mayer.

The Countess Rostoptchene truly unfolds a pitiful story. The heroine, Maroussya, doubtless has her frailties, but as we realise her noble, forgiving spirit we hear the echo of those words of Charles Dickens, "Oh woman! God-beloved of old Jewry, the best among us may deal lightly with thy faults, if only for the punishment thy gentle nature shall one day suffer in bearing testimony against us." Maroussya, an enthusiastic artist, comes to Paris to become an actress. A certain Bondarenko (who truly loves her, but whom she cannot love, for her heart, as she declares, can feel only passion for the work she has chosen) accompanies her as an elder brother. Maroussya is summoned to the Théâtre de la Renaissance, where the manager is desirous of testing her capacity.

The first act opens in the manager's, Vial's, office. Tombarel, a critic, is with him, and in satirical fashion discusses Vial's liking for actresses. They are called away on business with the architect, and in their absence Maroussya and her cousin, Marina, arrive. Maroussya, in her simplicity, remarks on the manager's pictures, "There are only women here, you'd fancy this a convent school." The worldly Marina thinks "What holy, stupid nonsense," but she replies "Yes, it is so. Mind you become the best pupil."

On the manager's return with his friend the critic poor Maroussya is speedily and rudely awakened from her idealistic dreams of theatrical art—at least, as practised here. Vial is of a coarse fibre, fat, ugly, grotesque, and a very satyr. With him, as he tells her, the only thing that counts in his theatre regarding a new actress, is, has she a pretty face, a fine figure, and a bold temperament. To test her he gives her lurid pages from poets. She bravely attempts, but the shock of reading such lines aloud proves too much, and, sobbing, she breaks down. The manager, however, will accept her, as he says, for her beauty alone. He sends her out with her cousin, Marina, for a walk, and she is to return to sign the contract afterwards.

Violette, a "star," enters and wants to know who these two are. Hearing Maroussya is a new star, Violette storms, and Salome and Rosalie also entering, the manager has a bad time with three jealous women. Actors stroll in and join in the back-biting against Maroussya. Presently her cousin returns with her to sign the contract. The attention of the actresses, however, is quickly taken by the Duc De Luneville, who comes to see the manager. The Duc, while pretending to be engaged with the others, is all the time admiring the grace and beauty of Maroussya. Tombarel notes to himself that the Duc has marked Maroussya for a victim when she joins the theatre. Old Vial in a paternal manner tells Maroussya that with her pure ideals she had better not sign the contract to go on their stage. This fills her with doubts, but in the end she decides to sign. She is mainly brought to this decision by the words of the Duc; he believes in her success. He does not tell her why; but afterwards admits to Tombarel, it is because she has a beauty men will desire.

The drop falls on Maroussya declaring "I am an artiste; my dream is realised."

The second act, which takes place partly in Maroussya's dressing-room, partly in corridor, shows us Maroussya on the night of her début, six months later. The scene opens in Maroussya's dressing-room. Justina, her cousin's maid, is helping her. The faithful Bondarenko comes to cheer and encourage her, bidding her remember she made a splendid success in the dress rehearsal the previous day. Vial enters and drives away Bondarenko, lest he distract the debutante. The manager tells her she was a revelation in the rehearsal. Maroussya cries joyfully "Ah, then, I have some talent." Vial artistically replies "To the deuce talent; I speak of your beauty." And, thinking she has already submitted to the Duc's advances, he now himself makes degrading conditions a necessity, if she wishes him to give her "star" parts. As he leaves her, he declares "With your beauty, talent is not wanted. You have only to show yourself as you are, and all Paris, all the clubs, will be at your feet."

Poor Maroussya, left alone, cries, "My end; is that my end? The clubs at my feet, Ha, ha, ha. They see nothing in me, save one thing. And for six months I have lived for my art alone. The Duc loves me. He cannot marry me; I know it, and yet" (the call-boy summons her) "it is time——that Vial worried me." She runs out then to—fall.

The stage next represents the green room—afterwards Maroussya's dressing-room.

The Vicomte De Freze and Marquis De Salbris were standing in the side scene (green room) as Maroussya hurried along to the stage. She saw them not, they knew it; she had eyes for nothing save her art. Violette, fired with jealousy, entered and was enraged to find the Vicomte and Marquis awaiting, as she felt the entry of the beautiful Maroussya.

The first scene passes off well, though Maroussya herself was not satisfied. The Roi du Petrole, Patrikeyeff, came behind the scenes with an immense bouquet for Maroussya. At once Violette seizes upon it; Patrikeyeff is her own possession. To humiliate Maroussya she engages an actor, Luyz, to trap her rival in the next scene and so make her break down. Her base design is only too successful, and Maroussya is utterly crushed by her failure. Violette's coarse millionaire hopes to snare her now as his easy prey, but meets only with contempt from the pure—though defeated—artist.

A greater trial was before her. The Duc speciously comes to her room to congratulate her. His feigned sincerity is charming to her simple mind. She loves him, and her heart prompts her to give herself to one who vows ideal love to her as the artist, not only as a woman. And the act ends by poor Maroussya falling a willing victim to this sleek leopard, although the clumsy bear she had so easily repulsed.

The third act takes place in a cabinet in the Duc De Luneville's house, in Paris. Maroussya has now lived under the "protection" of the Duc some time. He is tired of her, and has gone to Poland, intent on marriage. For two months she lived a life of isolation at Biarritz; suddenly she returns to Paris, and calls at the Duc's house.

The Duc enters, tired and bad-tempered, in travelling-dress. He is greatly surprised to see Maroussya, as he thinks that she is still at Biarritz. He treats her coldly, and with scant respect reprimands a servant in her presence for serving coffee in his room. His manner quickly makes her feel she has not the slightest place in his heart, and consequently her own heart is torn by his every word and action. He quietly suggests she should now go to the Vicomte or Marquis. She can make her choice, both being in love with her beauty. He confesses his love was a sham always, even in the beginning. Her cup of bitterness is full indeed. Her ideal of art gone, her idol of love shattered.

When he leaves the room a moment to see to her luggage, she finds his revolver. Bondarenko rushes in to find the girl he had loved so long dying by her own act.

There is a quick scene between him and the Duc, but noble Maroussya declares all is her own fault, and to comfort Bondarenko stretches out her hand to clasp an honest man's hand as she enters the dark.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

SPECIAL TO THE ERA.

MR EDWARD TERRY presided at the meeting of the Dramatic and Musical Fund, held on the 22nd inst., at Terry's Theatre. The chairman dealt at length with the position of affairs and the proposals for the distribution of the funds available, estimated to be about £3,000. The first proposal was that all the members of the Fund should receive £5 for each year of membership. It was duly proposed and seconded, when opposition was raised by Mr Huckett, one of the new members, who proposed that the new members should receive £10 per year. This affected only those who had joined during the past five years. Ultimately, Mr Huckett withdrew his opposition, and the proposal was agreed to.

THE chairman then suggested that the balance of the funds available, after satisfying the claims of the members on the basis of £5 for each year of membership, should be divided between the Actors' Benevolent Fund, the Actors' Orphanage Fund, the Theatrical Ladies' Guild, and the Theatrical Operatives' Sick and Benevolent Fund.

MR C. T. CORY, master carpenter, the Vaudeville Theatre, moved an amendment that the Heads of Departments Association (No. 5 Branch of the National Union) and the No. 1 Branch of the National Union Theatrical Stage Employees' Sick and Benevolent Funds should be included among the other societies named by Mr Terry. Mr Cory explained that his proposal had been considered at a committee meeting at which Mr Beveridge, Mr Leitch (hon. secretary), Mr M. Hall, and Mr H. Kelly were present, when his amendment was approved, and it was arranged that he should submit it to that meeting. He also stated that the societies referred to in his amendment would take over any member of the working staff belonging to the Fund, and give him a "clear card" to all benefits. Mr John Haley (Adelphi Theatre) seconded the amendment.

The chairman then proposed to put the amendment to the vote, and it was agreed to. The result is that the following societies (sick and benevolent funds) will share the balance available after the members' claims have been satisfied:—The Actors' Benevolent Fund, the Actors' Orphanage, the Theatrical Ladies' Guild, the General Theatrical Operatives' Sick and Benevolent Society, the Heads of Departments Association (No. 5 Branch, N.U.T.S.E.), and the London Branch No. 1 of the National Union Theatrical Stage Employees. Assuming that there will be £1,500, or more, to divide, each society's sick and benevolent fund would receive, approximately, £250.

THE meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to Mr Terry for presiding, and for kindly lending the use of his theatre for the meeting.

ARRANGEMENTS are being made to authorise the sale of stock, and, in view of the decision of the meeting and the unanimity with which the agreement was arrived at, no opposition is likely to come from the Registrar.

THE branches of the National Society of Stage Employees are balloting the members of their sick and benevolent funds to sanction the offer made that any member of the Dramatic and Musical Fund eligible to join and wishing to transfer be accepted, irrespective of age, and placed in full benefit from the date of transfer. If this is agreed to, as is most likely, the stage employees who are members of the Fund will, in addition to their share of the funds, have guaranteed to them similar benefits for about the same contributions, and, in view of the fact that many of them may be over the age at which they could obtain admission to any other society, the arrangement is much to their advantage.

THE front of the house staff at the New Theatre held their annual outing on Sunday last, when a merry party proceeded to Portsmouth by train. Boat trips to Ryde and waggonette runs to Brading were indulged in. Toasts to the health of Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore were heartily honoured, and altogether a very delightful holiday was spent. The catering department was under the supervision of Mr Fred Pidgeon, manager of the New Theatre refreshment department. Mr Mills, of the box-office, had charge of the party.

THE annual staff outing of Mr Francis H. Bull's employees takes place to-day, when Kingswood, Surrey, will be visited.

THE Theatrical Carpenters' Society held their half-yearly meeting on Sunday last, when a financial statement was submitted showing a balance in hand of £107.

THE tenth annual theatrical regatta took place last Sunday at Putney in splendid weather, and was witnessed by a large gathering. The chief events were the pair-oared race for the Haymarket Challenge Cup, presented by Mr Cyril Maude, and the new shield for the four-oared championship of the theatres, presented by Sir Thomas Dewar. The crew of the Grand Theatre, Fulham, won both events. In the pairs the Gaiety crew had only to win this time to obtain final possession of the cup, as they had won it on the two previous occasions.

RESULTS: Rum-tum Handicap, Half-mile.—Heat 1: W. Walker, 18sec., first; C. Callaghan, 25sec., second; A. Butcher, 14sec., third. Heat 2: A. Whittaker, 18sec., first; C. Richards, 12sec., second; W. Branch, 12sec., third. Heat 3: W. G. Farrell, 16sec., first; J. Robinson, scratch, second; G. Eastwood, scratch, absent. Heat 4: W. White, 26sec., first; F. Hudson, 10sec., second; A. Lenton, scratch, third. Heat 5: J. Knott, 15sec., r.o.; F. Royston, 10sec., absent. Second Round.—Heat 1: Walker, first; Farrell, second; Whittaker, third. Final: W. Farrell, Shaftesbury, first; W. Walker, Duke of York's, second; W. White, Shaftesbury, third. W. Farrell caught White at half distance, and won easily by one and a-half lengths from Walker. Challenge Pairs, One Mile.—Heat 1: The Grand Theatre, Fulham, crew, beat the Gaiety Theatre crew, who were the holders of the cup, by a length, after a hard and exciting race. Heat 2: Covent-garden, first; Duke of York's, second; Kennington, third. Won, after a good race, by a length; one length between second and third. Final: Grand Theatre, first; Covent garden, second; Duke of York's, third. Won by a length; same distance between second and third. Challenge Fours, One Mile.—Heat 1: Grand Theatre, first; Daly's, second; Imperial, third. Won by one and a-half lengths. Heat 3: Duke of York's, first; Gaiety, second; Shaftesbury, third. A fine race, won by a bare length. Final: Grand, Fulham, first; Duke of York's, second. A most determined struggle, won by half a length. The Grand, Fulham, are therefore the first holders of Sir Thomas Dewar's Shield. Open Fours, One Mile.—Messrs C. Callaghan, J. Knott, A. Hadfield, W. Farrell (stroke), W. White (cox.), first; A. Whittaker, S. Leyton, A. Nash, W. Branch (stroke), C. Hutton (cox.), second; E. Fraser, C. Richards, C. Ray, G. Montgomery (stroke), C. Douglas (cox.), third; H. Kelly, G. Lowe, W. Mills, F. Hudson (stroke), A. Fraser (cox.), fourth. A good race, won by a length; half a length between second and third, the others close up. The prizes will be presented to the successful crews on Aug. 7 at the headquarters, the Red Lion, Windmill-street, W. Mr J. Langham is the hon. secretary; Mr. W. G. Farrell, assistant secretary; Mr H. Kelly, Daly's, chairman; and Mr G. P. Applebee, Gaiety Theatre, treasurer.

MR C. T. CORY, who has been appointed master carpenter to the Vaudeville Theatre, is a Devonshire man, and commenced his theatrical career twenty-four years ago in Plymouth. In 1880, when only just out of his apprenticeship, he was placed in charge, under Mr Debenham, of 200 men to build the first torpedo-boat slip laid in the West. Mr Debenham is now Admiralty Engineer in charge of the Government new docks and works at Devonport. He was in the employ of Mr S. Clarke, of that town, when he built the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, of which theatre Mr W. Kessell, late master carpenter at the Duke of York's, London, was appointed master carpenter. Twenty years ago Mr Cory left Plymouth to come to London, and for three years he was in the employ of Messrs Holt, Wilmot, and Roche, scenery manufacturers. He worked on all productions at the Lyceum for seven years, leaving that theatre in 1892. He has worked at many of the West-end theatres, including the Alhambra, the old Her Majesty's Theatre in the Haymarket, Adelphi, Shaftesbury, Astley's (Sanger's old house), &c. For the past eight years he has been the leading carpenter at the Vaudeville Theatre under Mr Tomkins. Mr Cory toured the United States in '87 and '88, and has been on several provincial tours with Mr (now Sir) Henry Irving. He visited Sandringham with Sir Henry Irving, and has been there with the Vaudeville company. He has passed the Government examinations at the South Kensington School of Science and Arts, and holds certificates in geometry, free-hand, and building construction.

MR J. ALGER, for upwards of ten years the fireman at Collins's, sails for Australia on Tuesday, having been ordered to that country by medical men. Mr Alger, who many years ago worked on the first railway constructed at the Antipodes, leaves the "hall on the Green" much to the regret of the staff, who subscribed to present him with a testimonial on Friday evening.

MR LESTER COLLINGWOOD "personally conducted" a large party of friends and dependents to Tewkesbury last Sunday, comprising the members of his staff from the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, as well as numerous others. The journey was taken by train to Worcester, and thence per steamer. A capital dinner was served on arrival at the Bell Hotel, and here the toast of Mr Collingwood's health was proposed in felicitous terms by Mr A. W. Matcham, who remarked upon the goodly fellowship that obtained amongst the managers of the Birmingham establishments. Mr Collingwood responded in dignified and flowing terms, and was acclaimed with enthusiasm and evident sincerity. Likewise Mr Albert Bushell (Gaiety), Mr Edward Foster (Bordesley Palace), the Deputy Chief-Constable (Mr M'Manus), and others testified to the occasion, the success of which nothing could exceed. Tea was also provided, and the arrangements generally were like the weather, which was excellent. In addition to those above-mentioned, there were present Mr Fred Bernardo (who was responsible for and had the arrangements well in hand), Mrs Bernardo, Miss Jephcott, Mrs M'Manus, Mr Bert Wilson, &c.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

QUEEN'S THEATRE, LIVERPOOL.

Although standing on old theatrical ground the Queen's Theatre, Paradise-street, Liverpool, which is to open on Monday with, for the first time in that city, Messrs Fred Moule's company in the four-act play Bigamy, is an absolutely new building. For generations the particular spot has been visited by Liverpool playgoers, and although former speculators experienced vicissitudes, a deal of money has also been made. As the Colosseum the place was run for many years by a dramatic stock company on the two-houses-a-night principle, and did well; subsequently the tone of the place was raised and it became the Grand Opera House, and after being closed for some time has now been acquired by Messrs Carson and Granville, of the Queen's, Keighley. Beyond the outside walls, which are substantial, nothing remains of the old building. The place has been entirely gutted, the floor and stage lowered eight feet, a vast new gallery and circle erected, and the most perfect entrances and exits provided. Ventilation on the latest principle, fourteen new dressing rooms, which are placed outside and separate from the theatre; powerful electric lights, sanitary arrangements in every part, heating apparatus, new fireproof scenery and curtain—in fact, no expense has been spared in the endeavour to make the Queen's equal to any place in the country. The lines of sight are admirable, and not one of the 2,000 people who can be comfortably seated will have the slightest reason to complain about having a clear view of the stage, which is of great proportions, and capable of carrying a big Drury-lane production. The slope of the pit, circle, and gallery are such that auditors can easily see straight on to the stage, whilst at the back of each is plenty of promenade space. Should standing be permitted another 500 persons can, without inconvenience, be accommodated in the theatre. A first-class orchestra is to be provided, and the prices will be popular. The whole of the interior is charmingly finished, being in rich crimson with gold draperies; and every credit is due to Mr Havelock Sutton, the architect, and Messrs Holme and Green, the builders, of Renshaw-street, Liverpool, for the completeness of the work done. The lessees, who are resolved to provide the best of dramatic fare, are to be congratulated upon their enterprise, which is deserving of success.

THE LATE ARTHUR LLOYD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—With reference to your article about my father's death, you say it is a pity his last days were "chilled by poverty." This is quite wrong, as he had everything that was necessary in his last illness to make him as comfortable as possible. The benefit that was being organised by Mr H. E. Moss and others was meant as a testimonial and in appreciation of his long services to the public.

Yours faithfully, HY. KING-LLOYD.

MR G. DUBUIS, of Paris and Hugh-street, Belgravia, has been winning distinction in both cities by his "Riapure," which has many advantages, rendering it superior to nearly all the present modes of domestic ventilation. This invention is much used in theatres, music halls, offices, hotels, and private homes. It is a simple, portable and handsome machine. On a burning day a temperature of nearly 90 deg. makes London a furnace. On entering a room where Dubuis's "Riapure" is quietly doing its work, the pedestrian finds that 85 deg. in the oppressive street has sunk to 65 deg. in the apartment. On lifting the mahogany top of the machine a metallic well is seen filled with ice. Air is sent into the room cooled, purified, and with its powers to refresh, delight, and reinvigorate restored to it. Mr Dubuis has been delighting some of our principal performers by taking the "Riapure" into their dressing-rooms, where the air at night has been almost stifling. The change brought about has been instantaneously evident. An exhibition of the machine will be given at Anderton's Hotel on Tuesday, Aug. 16, at 8.15, when hundreds of persons connected with art, literature, and the drama will be present.

MR AND MRS NEIL LITCHFIELD, who have just arrived from the States on the steamer Baltic, opened on the Stoll tour on Monday at Newcastle-on-Tyne in their rural comedy sketch, Down at Brook Farm, with special scenery.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

WITH the advent of August Bank Holiday the vacation season will be full upon us, and the halls, which this year have had to fight against a hot summer, go through the process of marking time, reserving novelties until the longer evenings herald the approach of the fall of the leaf. It has therefore been decided that the new Empire ballet divertissement founded on the Fourth of June celebrations at Eton, the scenario of which was given in these columns a few weeks ago, will not be produced until October. As a matter of fact, High Jinks has still a most vigorous constitution, and should easily run until Michaelmas. The Oxford announces a long list of favourites, and precisely the same may be said of the scheme of amusement at the Tivoli, where, however, Miss Winifred Hare is to make her first appearance on the variety stage.

IN speaking of the Tivoli we have to announce that Mr Arthur Yates, manager of the Grand, Clapham, and the Granville, Walham-green, will take up his position as joint acting-manager with Mr James Howell. Up to the present Mr Albert Gilmer has been officiating as manager, and in relieving him of his added responsibilities the Tivoli directors have highly complimented him on his devotion to the interests of the shareholders and his energy. The new arrangement will commence on Aug. 15.

AS briefly stated last week in our columns, it is proposed, with the sanction of the shareholders, to amalgamate the Walthamstow Palace with the Euston, Limited, the New South London, Limited, and the Chelsea Palace Syndicate, Limited, under the title of "The Variety Theatres Consolidated, Limited," with a nominal share capital of £250,000 in £1 shares, of which £130,000 are to be issued to the shareholders of the respective companies. With a view to the continued co-operation of the old directorate the articles will provide for the appointment of the following gentlemen as directors of the new company:—Mr Joseph Davis, Mr Henri Gros, Mr George Adney Payne, and Mr Henry Tozer, who have expressed their willingness to serve for a period of ten years. Mr Tozer will be the chairman, and Messrs Gros and Payne the joint managing-directors.

MR WALTER STEPHENS is arranging to secure a ten years' lease of the Surrey Theatre, with a view to converting it into a music hall, with two performances a night, a system that was adopted by Mr George Belmont a year or two since, but without success. Mr Stephens states that a great deal depends upon the requirements of the London County Council, which, if formidable and exacting, will leave the house still untenanted.

MR CARL HERTZ, the famous illusionist and conjuror, has been secured by Mr H. E. Moss as one of the chief attractions of the Bank Holiday bill at the Hippodrome. Mr Hertz, as the Yanks would say, will be specially featured in startling surprises, bewildering illusions, and apparent miracles, and will be assisted by Mdlle. D'Alton and a large force of supernumeraries.

THE late Mr Herbert Campbell's reputation for punctuality was only once seriously endangered when he turned up late at a pantomime rehearsal at Old Drury, then directed by the late Sir Augustus Harris. Then the consternation was so great at his non-appearance that at the end of half an hour it was seriously suggested that telegrams of inquiry should be sent to two or three of the principal London hospitals. Herbert, however, hurried in before the wires could be despatched, and explained his absence by stating that he had met a man who owed him a sovereign, and that there had been some difficulty in getting change for a fiver. "You could have got him to post you on the money," grumbled Sir Augustus. "A quid in hand is worth two in the post! The man was your brother, dear boy!" was the prompt reply.

MR ALBERT LE FRE has been specially engaged to play the part of François, in The Prince of Pilsen on tour, and has been kindly released for that purpose by Messrs George Adney Payne and Frank Glenister. Mr Le Fre is no stranger to French parts in musical comedy, and it will be remembered that he made a hit as M. Pompier in that immensely successful production A Gay Parisienne, on tour.

MR DENNIS HARVEY, of the Harvey Boys, has taken unto himself a wife, and was married on Tuesday by special licence at Brixton to Alexandrina Nicolson High, of the Northern Troupe of dancers. Thirty guests sat down to a recherché breakfast at Frascati's, where the revels were accompanied by Mr George Le Brun, and led by Mr Frank Falloy, who has acted as stage godfather to the bridegroom. Dennis made his first appearance on the London stage as one of the boxing youngsters in that funny production, M'Guinness's Kitchen. The presents were numerous.

MR GEORGE DANCE, who will run the Richmond Theatre as a variety house on the two performances nightly plan at the end of the year, has selected Mr P. A. Lennon, of the Bradford Empire, for the post of manager. Mr Lennon has occupied a similar position at the Bradford house since its opening five years since, and is very highly thought of by Mr H. E. Moss and Mr Frank Allen. The Richmond variety venture will be run in association with the Moss Empires circuit.

MISS RACHEL LOWE has been achieving a remarkable success in Birmingham and Sheffield with her original rendition of the novelty song "Any Rags." In Birmingham the thinking part of the "mysterious rag-man" was played by that prince of character actors Mr Bransby Williams. It is needless to say that the effect on the audience was startling and lent additional weirdness to the peculiar song. The good fellowship evinced by such a star as Mr Williams to a sister artist is worthy of comment. Miss Lowe appears at the Hippodrome, Brighton, the coming week, when she will again introduce her "Lucky Duck."

WE regret to have to announce the death of Mr Fred Lacey, aged thirty-nine. The deceased was seized with a slight attack of sunstroke, together with syncope, on Sunday morning at Euston Station, where he was seeing some friends away to Blackpool. He was taken to the London Temperance Hospital, Hampstead-road, where he died at 12 30 on Thursday afternoon. The arrangements for the funeral are in the hands of his old friend, Mr Douglas Stuart; and the deceased gentleman will be buried on Tuesday at Tooting Cemetery, the cortège leaving Mr T. Dunkley's, 88, Westminster-bridge-road, at 12 30.

MR FRED LACEY had been connected with the music hall profession for upwards of fifteen years, and was for some time assistant to Mr Tom Costello, playing a part in that artiste's successful "Spoof" song at the Trocadero. The deceased also assisted Miss Marie Lloyd and others in similar productions, his last appearance being only a few weeks ago at the Palace, Hammersmith, with Miss Rosie May. Mr Lacey was one of the founders of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association, and acted as co-hon. secretary for six months, and was on the committee ever since its foundation. Of late years the deceased was also connected as advertisement manager for several professional journals, and for some months has been an assistant to Mr Stuart in the offices of the M.H.A.R.A. Mr Lacey had very many friends in the variety profession, who will much regret his death, but no one more than Mr Douglas Stuart, with whom he had been associated in various enterprises for over twelve years.

AN interim dividend on the ordinary shares of Moss' Empires is announced at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

A MARRIAGE has been arranged between Edward Downes Martin, Esq., J.P., of Killoskeham Castle, Co. Tipperary, and Drumragh, Co. Tyrone, of which county he was High Sheriff in 1900, and Miss Lelia Roze, of Shrigley Hall, Co. Down. Miss Roze will not retire from the stage after her marriage owing to her long list of engagements. Miss Roze is a favourite on both the variety and theatrical stages, and made a conspicuous success in the part of Kitty Grey.

MR ARTHUR BROGDEN, so well-known in connection with Brogden's Swiss Choir, has been appointed by Mr Oswald Stoll as assistant-manager at the Leicester Palace Theatre. Mr Brogden entered upon his duties this week.

THE application for the regranting of a music hall licence for the Empire Theatre of Varieties, Wharf-street, Leicester, was mentioned for the fourth week in succession at the Leicester Borough Police-court on Monday morning last. The application was made on behalf of Mr Restall by Mr Harding, solicitor. At last week's hearing an adjournment was made for the purpose of a meeting of the magistrates to consider the application, which has been held, the result being that there was an equal division of opinion, Sir Thomas Wright, the chairman, saying that they did not refuse it nor did they grant it. Mr Harding, on this announcement, asked that an adjournment might be granted with a view to the matter being further considered by the magistrates. The bench acceded to this suggestion, and adjourned the matter till Thursday morning, when the Mayor said that the magistrates, by a large majority, had decided not to grant the licence.

MISS DAPHNE DE ROHAN will commence a series of musical and dramatic entertainments at the Granville Hall, Ramsgate, on Monday. The visitors to Ramsgate are to be congratulated on having this clever actress and musician to amuse them during their seaside holiday.

THE Brothers Webb have just spent a few days in Berlin with their sister, Mrs Hermann Weigelt (wife of Abdel Kader, quick painter), who has just recovered from a very serious illness. She speaks highly of the kind treatment shown her in the Berlin Hospital.

THE Birmingham Hippodrome annual party was held at Twyning Fleet, near Tewkesbury, on Sunday last, under the presidency of Mr A. E. Edwardes, the genial and popular resident manager. The party mustered sixty-seven strong, and was voted a big success on all hands. The toasts at dinner included "Success to the Barrasford Tour," which was received and honoured with enthusiasm; and everything, including the dinner, went off lovely. The journey there and back, by boat and rail, was heartily enjoyed, and the party ended in perfect order and without a single hitch.

ADVANTAGE has been taken of a five weeks' vacation to thoroughly overhaul the new Hippodrome, Dewsbury, and by the addition of several private boxes, an enlarged stage, a new vestibule and cloak room, the management evidently believes in catering for the comfort of their patrons. The various works have been under the direct superintendence of Mr George Weldon.

COLLINS'S HIPPODROME, Stoke-on-Trent, which opened on Whit Monday, has grown into a most successful undertaking. It is under the able management of the experienced Mr Frank Egerton and the very best of programmes are offered weekly to the large, refined, and gratified audiences.

BARNUM AND BAILEY, with the greatest show on earth, will open their season at Madison-square Garden, New York, next spring, when they will present everything on the top of the earth that may prove interesting, surprising, daring, hazardous, dainty, crisp, or charming. Arenic attractions may apply to J. A. Bailey, Barnum and Bailey Offices, 25-27, West Thirty-fourth-street, New York City.

CHEVALIER T. H. CROWTHER, the well-known skater, was last Monday at Bradford practising a new intricate feat on loose skates—viz, leaping over a table from and on to the skates again, when he came a nasty cropper on the back of his neck, ricking it somewhat, and dislocating something internally. Under the skilful treatment of Dr. White he is progressing favourably.

A RESIDENT of Morecambe having made a wager with Koyoshi Zannetto, of the renowned Zannetto Troupe, that the latter could not catch a turnip thrown from the top outside balcony of the Winter Gardens, Mr William Holland announced that Zannetto would endeavour to win the wager on Wednesday evening, July 13, when he was quite successful. The wonderful feat was witnessed by several thousand persons.

AT Barnard's, Greenwich, the Dorringtons, a new variety combination, made their initial bow as a body before the footlights on Monday last. They produced a new sketch entitled When the Cats Away the Mice do Play, which can certainly claim to be humorous, original, and refined. There are four young ladies and one gentleman in the troupe, and they have created an extremely favourable impression on their different appearances. Miss Flo Dorrington is a charming and clever cake-walk dancer, and Miss Rose Dorrington knows well how to play a violin solo. Towards the end of their turn the four girls come together on the stage and give a stirring selection with the post-horns, finishing up with the cavalry trumpets.

THE alterations to the stage of the Islington Empire foreshadowed in our columns last week will be quite finished by Monday. The lowering of the stage by twelve inches will vastly improve the line of sight for occupants of the orchestra stalls and the front seats. A complete set of new cloths has been painted by Mr Francis H. Bull, and some charming tableau curtains are to be hung. Throughout the present week no variety artists have appeared on the boards of the house, the entertainment having consisted entirely of cinématograph pictures of the Russo-Japanese War.

MISS ETHEL WALKER, the successful lady humourist at the piano, has during the present week had most gratifying receptions at the Keith Prowse concerts on the Victoria Pier, Folkestone, her refined humorous songs being applauded to the echo by large and fashionable audiences. On Monday this promising young artist opens at the Palace, Southampton. Mr J. L. Graydon has already booked her for next July at Manchester Palace of Varieties, Brighton Alhambra, and Southampton Palace.

A YOUTH named Frederick Montague, aged eighteen, who was assistant to Herr Wingard, the well-known conjuror, was drowned on the 22nd inst. in the river Ouse, in the Clifton district of the City of York. The deceased entered the river to bathe. He swam across successfully, and made a start on the return journey after a short rest. On reaching mid-stream, however, he became exhausted and shouted for help. A boy named Arthur Lawton, who is only thirteen years of age, and who had also been in the water, dashed in to his assistance, but on getting within a foot or two of Montague the latter sank and did not again rise to the surface. Lawton waited about for same minutes in the hope of his coming up, but in vain.

MISS VESTA TILLEY AND MR WALTER DE FRECE are enjoying the rest and quiet of their pretty bungalow at Bray, near Maidenhead, where they dispense delightful hospitality to week-end visitors.

WHEN Miss Minni Letta and her sporting girls have concluded their engagement at the London Pavilion, "Tracking the Track," as her pedestrian novelty is called, will be taken to the Continent, making its first appearance out of England at the Folies-Bergère, Paris, and afterwards enlarging the sphere of its popularity at Berlin. Mr F. Carruthers Gould has lately used the idea of the track for a political cartoon.

MR TOM SHAW, who is one of the busiest men in London, has found time to snatch a few days' holiday, and is enjoying himself at his favourite hostelry in Douglas, Isle of Man, where he passes the happy hours away yachting and fishing.

MR AND MRS C. BLYTH-PRATT are taking a much-needed holiday in the by-ways of Normandy, wherein the primitive life of the peasantry and the beautiful pastoral scenery are a great attraction to English tourists. Mr Blyth-Pratt returns to his duties at the Oxford on Monday next.

MR E. H. DOBSON, manager of the Shepherd's-bush Empire, is taking a holiday at Harrogate, but will return in time for the celebration of the first anniversary of the house named, which is fixed for Wednesday, Aug. 17. The function will be marked by a staff supper, at which Mr Dobson will preside.

MISS ETHEL NEWMAN, who has been playing most successfully in My Lady Molly on tour, gave a trial turn at the Oxford on Saturday afternoon last, and was immediately secured by Mr Albert Gilmer.

MR ERNEST REES, who is one of the leading comedians in the holiday bill at the Granville, Walham-green, has been engaged by Mr Fred Mouillot to play dame in his Christmas production at the Broadway, New-cross. This is Mr Rees's third engagement under the same management. His latest song is "Poor old Robinson Crusoe!"

THE engagement is announced of Miss Frances Witmark, daughter of Mr M. Witmark, of M. Witmark and Sons, London, New York, San Francisco, and Chicago, to Mr Joseph A. Klein, formerly of Keokuk, Iowa, but lately of New York, where he is very popular as an amateur entertainer. Miss Witmark is also a clever amateur, and it was during the production of a musical comedy entitled Arverne-by-the-Sea, written for the Columbia Club by Mr Isidore Witmark last spring, that the young people met and began, during rehearsals, an acquaintance of which the engagement announcement is the climax. The date of the wedding has not yet been decided upon.

MISS ANNIE PURCELL, one of the latest recruits to the variety stage, made here first appearance thereon at Mr Tom Barrasford's house—the Empire, Bristol—on Monday, and was accorded a hearty reception. Since her first appearance in musical comedy at the now defunct Globe Theatre—the production, if we remember rightly, was The Gay Pretenders, with Grossmith, père et fils, in the cast—Miss Purcell has been a favourite actress in that frivolous, irresponsible type of piece. She is endowed with an excellent voice, which enables her to do complete justice to some capital songs, and her costumes suit her admirably. She goes to Glasgow for pantomime, and will for the first time play the rôle of principal boy.

OUR congratulations to Mr J. G. Grahame, jun., and Miss Zerlina Harrington (daughter of Charles Harrington, of Uncle Tom's Cabin fame), who were married on Saturday, 23d inst., at St. Matthew's Church, Oakley-square, N.W. This talented young couple, well known in the theatres, who produced their sketch, A Daughter of Pleasure, with such marked success at the Bedford and Britannia, a fortnight ago, are this week commencing the Barrasford tour at the Pavilion, Glasgow.

THE Empress, Brixton, staff will have their annual outing to-morrow. They will leave Brixton by brakes at nine o'clock for Walton-on-Thames, and will dine together at the Swan Hotel.

MR EDGAR HYMAN, who with his wife has just returned from America after a very enjoyable trip, has been suffering for some years from ear trouble. Until very recently he had thought only lightly of the matter, but on the advice of his family and friends, he consulted an aurist. The medical opinion was very emphatic. The patient was told that the sooner the ear was operated upon the better; and on Tuesday he went into a nursing home, where the necessary operation was performed very skilfully. "Most satisfactory progress in every way" is the latest bulletin concerning the invalid, and his friends will be rejoiced to hear that Mr Hyman will soon be about again.

MR GERALD GRIFFEN, the well-known American character actor, who has been making his annual tour of the Continent, has arrived in London, and is enjoying the hospitality of his many friends here. Mr Griffen returns to America on Wednesday next.

MR LEO DRYDEN produced at the Standard, Pimlico, on Monday, a new and original song-poem entitled "Sleep, Comrade, Sleep." Judging from the initial reception, the song bids fair to create a precedent in variety theatre songs. The words are from the philosophical brain of the variety agent, H. Burrows-Smith, G. D. Wheeler being the composer.

THE 365th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Pat Carey presiding. The secretary reported that twelve new members had joined during the past week, making the total number enrolled since the commencement of 10,384. Several matters of business connected with the provincial agents were discussed, after which the meeting was adjourned.

MEMBERS of the M.H.A.R.A. are particularly requested to note that Mr Ernest Moyce, of the Mitre Hotel, Chatham, has been appointed as agent of the Association in that town.

THE deputation from the committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association who attended the funeral of the late Mr Herbert Campbell took with them a handsome wreath, the inscription on which was "With deepest sympathy from the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association." Mr Fred Millis also handed in another wreath from himself and wife.

MR HENRY TOZER, presiding at the annual general meeting of the New Tivoli, Limited, on Wednesday, moved the adoption of the report and the payment of a dividend of 6 per cent. for the half-year ended June 30 (making, with the interim dividend of 4 per cent. in January, 10 per cent. for the year). He said this was a handsome return in these days, but the directors hoped that improved trade and general business activity would bring the few pounds extra per night which would produce large dividends. In referring to the sketch prosecutions, he said that the directors had reason to hope that sweet reasonableness would prevail sufficiently before long to bring about a settlement by legislation. The possibility of a portion of the theatre being required in connection with the widening of the Strand was not at all remote, but meanwhile the directors hoped to maintain the prosperity of the existing building. The report was adopted.

MISS MARIE LLOYD, who has returned from a most enjoyable holiday on the Continent, will make her reappearance in town at the Granville, Walham-green, on Monday next.

AT the monthly meeting of members of the Music Hall Sick Fund to be held next Tuesday at the York Hotel the principal business will be the election of a president in the place of the late Mr Herbert Campbell, whose loss is deeply deplored.

A CRICKET match was decided at Denmark-hill on Thursday between Sam Mayo's Eleven versus The Oxford. In the end Sam Mayo's team was beaten by fifty-three runs. The most notable events of the match were the smart catches by F. Napoli, who managed to hold some very hot ones.

MRS GILBERT WELLS, wife of the well-known song-writer, was buried at Tooting on Thursday. Wreaths were sent by Miss Gracie Grahame, Mr and Mrs Alf Chester, Fred Clements, Mr and Mrs Burrows Smith, G. A. Stevens, Mr and Mrs Jamieson, and others, all of whom were present at the interment. Mr Wells desires to thank many kind sympathisers who were unable to be present.

MR ARTHUR ROBERTS will not be absent from the Palace programme for long, for he will be again seen at that house in October, with entirely fresh business.

MR JOHN SMITH, the manager of Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter, to whose keen business acumen the success of the firm's "Sixpenny Pops'" branch is not a little due, has just returned from Blackpool, at which popular resort he has been the guest of Mr Everett, of North Shore. He has been specially commissioned to report on all the new dances introduced this season, and, besides officiating as judge at a swimming match, was an important factor at the recent exhibition of prize dances in the Empress Ballroom.

FOUR inventions were shown:—the Rothmar, a round dance, by Mr J. B. M'Ewen, of Glasgow; the Skating Valse, a round dance, by Mr A. H. Brown, of Bradford; the Carlina, a square dance, and the Majestic, a round dance, both by Mr J. Finnigan, the M.C. of the Empress Ballroom. The last-named is the prospective barn dance for next year.

MR SMITH, whilst on a flying visit from Blackpool to Douglas per s.s. Greyhound, was induced on board to sing the new song-craze "Blue-Bell," which Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter have published. So enthusiastic were the immense concourse of listeners that the singer had to twice repeat the song, which was joined in by full-throated Lancastrians with heart and soul, and the vocalist has now earned for himself the sobriquet of "Blue-Bell" Smith.

A COMIC song from the pen of Mr F. V. St. Clair is now a rarity. He has just written and composed one for Mr Tom Foy, entitled "I wonder if they'll let me in if I went?" The enthusiasm evoked nightly at the Oxford by Mr St. Clair's rendering of his own now famous song, "Little Jap Horner; or, The Bear and the Chinaware," has been remarkable, and the talented singer has been doing two songs and a humorous recitation each evening.

LA TORTAJADA, whose engagement at the Palace Theatre terminates on Saturday next, will go on to Hanover and Milan. Mr Morton has booked her to reappear at the Shaftesbury-avenue hall next June.

MR BILLY HENDERSON has been fortunate enough to secure for his clever daughter May contracts which amount in the aggregate to £2,000. The growing popularity of the "dusky queen" is a source of continual delight to papa, and provides some consolation to him for an attack of the gout, which has lately been confining him to his garret near the sky. A good remedy might be found in attic salt.

BRIEN M'CULLOUGH has been very busy with his pen lately, having written four sketches, two dramatic and two comedy, within the past month. On Aug. 8 he produces, at the Grand, Clapham, Two Runaway Girls, with scenery by Francis Bull and uniforms by John Hyman. In this sketch Brien meets the retired middle-weight champion, and as he was the winner of the 9st. 10lb. amateur championship some years ago there is every promise of both a scientific and comic display.

MISS GRACE DANE, who plays a Mephistophelian part, a Dutch soubrette, and novel Ophelia, in Messrs Fraser and Athol's new comedy illusion, Zam, and is making a great success therein, is the pretty "rustic serio" and dancer formerly known as Sydney Downs.

MR GEO. MOZART concludes to-night another most successful London season, and goes on tour for eight weeks, commencing at the Palace, Plymouth, on Monday. He has in study two more items—a song entitled "Callers" and another one-man drama, both from the pen of Mr Chris. Davis. Pantomime comedians in want of a good song should note Mr Mozart's advertisement on the back page.

AT the Marlborough-street Police-court, on Wednesday, Mr Percy Robinson, solicitor, on behalf of Mr Trussell, of the Hippodrome, applied for a licence to permit a boy to take part in the acrobatic performance of the Kellinos at that place of entertainment for eight weeks from next Monday. Mr Robinson pointed out that the lad was in good health and he had been examined by a medical man. Sub-Divisional Inspector Smith mentioned that, though the performance was acrobatic, the boy's feet did not leave the boards of the stage. Mr Robinson—That is so; he takes the comic part—breaking plates, &c. He has been licensed in the provinces. Mr Denman granted the licence.

IN addition to the list of wreaths, &c., from the friends of the late Mr Herbert Campbell which we gave last week, floral tokens of regard were also received from Mr and Mrs F. Brown, Mr and Mrs Albert Graddage and children, Jack and Lottie Rich, Mr and Mrs W. G. Selman, Louisa Janet Lowe, Mr and Mrs Richard Dunn, Bruce Smith and daughter, Mrs Fisher and son, Albert; Mr and Mrs C. Hector, Mr A. Holder, West London Licensed Victuallers Association, Mr and Mrs Albert Chevalier, Mr and Mrs H. De Frece, Carl Brenner, Fred and Jessie Miller, Mr H. Lazarus and Sons, Mr and Mrs Darnley, Robert Jay, Mr and Mrs Lambert Perry, Mr Harry Jennings, Mr and Mrs T. Tiel, Mr J. E. Taylor, Mrs Moore, Mr G. J. Roberts, Mr and Mrs Edward De Celle, Charlie and Laura Hales, Mr and Mrs Toone, Minnie, Percy, and Will, Mr and Mrs Boeking and family, Mr and Mrs Hewitt and family, Dr. and Mrs Robinson, Mr and Mrs J. Mills, Mr Harry Nicholls, Mr and Mrs Gething, Mr Campbell's coachman, W. Collins, Mr and Mrs Chalfont, Mr and Mrs Henri Clarke, Mrs Fowler and family, manager and staff, New Grand, Clapham-junction, Mr and Mrs Coleman, Mr and Mrs T. Bland, Mr and Mrs Ferris and Maude, Mr William Harris, Mr C. Cutbush, Robert and Miss Dove, Mr and Mrs Hales, Mr and Mrs Eustace Jay, Mr Anderson, Mr and Mrs Henry Comfort, Mrs Boyton and family, Mr H. E. Moss, Mr H. Frost Smith, Mr and Mrs Grant and family, Mr Henry Pether, Mr and Mrs J. H. Jutt, Mr and Mrs J. Bernard Dickson, Mr and Mrs Wiltshire, Mr and Mrs Dearing and family, Mr and Mrs Boft and family, An Old Servant, Edith, and Jessie and Lizzie Rutter. The wreath from Chelsea Palace was sent by Edward Swanborough and Harry Bawn.

MR CHARLES MORTON, when we met him the other morning in the neighbourhood of Regent's-park, informed us that he will take another fortnight's holiday in the middle of August; but will most probably keep his birthday—Aug. 15—in London.

AS we have already announced, Miss Winifred Hare is the latest deserter from the theatrical to the variety stage. Unable to resist the flattering overtures which have been made to her, she has decided to accept an engagement, opening at the Tivoli on August Bank Holiday, but though she changes her locale she will still rely upon the attraction that has established her popularity in London—the refined singing of dainty ballads and chansonnettes. At Christmas she will return to the theatre to play principal boy in the pantomime at Stoke Newington.

THE third annual outing of the Bedford staff has been arranged for to-morrow, when a journey from Windsor to Marlow will be taken on the steam launch My Queen. A special train will leave Waterloo at 9 30, and the party will embark at 11 0 o'clock, returning from Windsor at 8 40, and arriving at Waterloo at 10 4. Mr A. F. Lovesy, the manager of the Bedford, who will take the chair at the luncheon, has lately undergone an operation at the skilful hands of Sir William J. Collins, from which he has made an excellent recovery.

THE annual outing of the staff of the New Grand Music Hall, Clapham-junction, took place last Sunday, when fifty-three members spent a delightful day at Portsmouth. The party left Clapham-junction Station at 9 0 o'clock and travelled down in two saloon carriages. Dinner was served at the Central Hotel, with a menu calculated to excite the appetite of the most fastidious. The toast list included "H. M. the King, Queen, and Royal Family," "the New Grand Hall," "The Directors," "The Chairman," and "The Visitors."

IN proposing the health of the chairman (Mr Arthur Yates, manager of the hall), Mr James Sale (musical director) paid a striking tribute to the chairman's able management. Prosperity, he said, had been their lot all along, and it was with the deepest feelings of regret that he had to state Mr Yates' severance from the hall. "There would" he added, "always be a feeling existent among the staff that they had lost a dear friend and they could only wish him the best of success in his future undertakings."

IN replying, Mr Yates thanked Mr Sale for his very kind eulogy of his services, and said that he should always look back at the time he had spent with the New Grand with the greatest pleasure. He sincerely thanked both the staff in front and behind for the manner in which they had co-operated with him in his work as manager, and it pained him greatly to sever a connection which he would ever hold dear. Mr Yates also made passing reference to the late Mr Herbert Campbell (chairman of the New Grand Hall), who had in every sense been a true friend to the hall. Dinner over, the party dispersed, some taking the boat to Cowes and Ryde, others enjoying a ten-mile tram ride among the beautiful scenery of Hampshire, all returning home about eleven, after a most enjoyable day's outing.

THE members of the staff at the Queen's, Poplar, took a trip to Southend-on-Sea on Sunday last, and dined at the Hotel Victoria, where they were well catered for by Mr G. A. Broadhurst. Mr Joe Haynes acted as chairman, and Mr Fred Richards filled the vice-chair. After the loyal toasts, Mr Haynes eloquently testified to the virtues of the proprietors, Messrs Maltby and Wickes. Mr G. Hatley, director of the orchestra, also spoke, and Mr E. J. Garrett, who acted as secretary and treasurer, also had a few words to say. Mr Maltby was detained at Rye, and Mr Wickes, who was entertaining at Southend, looked in to say a cheery word to the assembled guests. The time between dinner and tea was spent in boating, and altogether a most enjoyable day is to be chronicled.

"A SOLDIER OF JAPAN," a dramatic episode of the Russo-Japanese War," written by William P. Sheen, was produced with great success at the South London last week by the Vennimore and Preston company, under the direction of the author. The music is by Ben Barrow, of the Borough Theatre, Stratford.

THE extraordinary popularity of Marceline with the kiddies and grown-ups at the Hippodrome is testified by the droll clown's record engagement there. He has been for four years and a half one of the greatest favourites with the public.

MR GEORGE ASHTON has engaged Hercat and Miss Florrie Fairfax with their new sketch, A Chinee Hullaballoomoon, for La Scala Theatre, Earl's-court, next week.

MR GEORGE BROOKS has just published with Mr David Day a clever comic song, by Harry Castling and Charles Collins, entitled "My Father's Jokes."—Lauri Linden's Pierrots have scored a great success with the beautiful song, "The Land of the Make Believe."—Hicks's Clerks, after a successful provincial tour of twelve weeks, return to London on Monday.

THE City article of a London daily on Tuesday contained the following:—"It is quite an unusual occurrence for the directors of the Empire Palace, Limited, to omit the payment of an interim dividend; but the secretary has intimated that for the current year this course will be adopted, as, until a certain unnamed action at law against the company is decided one way or the other, the directors prefer to retain their funds in hand. The action thus referred to is doubtless that which opens up the great 'sketch' question. In the case of the Empire, however, it would hardly appear that the matter is one calculated to affect the future revenue of the company to any important extent.'

MR WILLIAM BOOSEY, as chairman of the Musi Publishers' Association has issued "a final summing-up of the present position of musical copyright," dedicated to Mr Caldwell, which may be commended to the perusal of that gentleman and his supporters, as well as to all who feel tempted to buy pirate music. He begins by pointing out that Mr Caldwell amended the Bill of 1902 so that it became useless, and that he proposed to withdraw opposition to the Bill of 1903 if its promoters would agree to grant complete immunity to pirates for nine months after the passing of the Act. What he has done to the Bill of the present Session need not be repeated.

"MR CALDWELL," the document continues, "is apparently a very wealthy man, who could never have become wealthy had the same principles he applies to the musical art been applied to his business. Why it should be wicked to endeavour to make money by printing music on paper, and not wicked to make money by printing patterns on calico does not, upon first sight, appear very obvious.

MR BOOSEY goes on to argue that there is plenty of cheap music for the people—cheap publications as well as cheap concerts—and that it is only the professional musician who is expected to give the fruits of his work for nothing. The final argument that the present system, or want of system, makes us the laughing-stock of countries with whom we have copyright treaties is also one not lightly to be brushed aside.

THE LONDON MUSIC-HALLS.

THE OXFORD.

Mr Albert Gilmer, who will henceforward devote his energies to the management of the Oxford, introduced into his excellent programme on Wednesday a complete novelty in the shape of a monodrama, entitled The Pathetic Symphony, which has been invented and written by Charles Vidal Diehl, with musical themes from Tschaïkowsky, arranged by Louis Diehl. The theme of the monodrama is intensely tragic. Dora, belonging to the smart set, is extravagant and reckless, and while her husband, Frank, a Stock Exchange man, is hard at work in the City, and is full of anxiety concerning her welfare, she frivols away her time and spends his money. At the rising of the curtain she actually owes some £1,200. She makes light of such obligations, and considers how the various creditors may be put off. Sleepiness overcomes her, and she dozes in her chair. Half awakening from a hideous dream, she conjures up the form of Frank in the chair opposite, and sees blood on his shirt, and—horror of horrors! his throat is cut. Finding a letter that she had apparently overlooked, she learns from it that Frank has taken a last farewell. The distraught girl at once knows that the fabric of her dream is a terrible reality, and she falls fainting to the floor. Miss Theodora Diehl, the monologuist, acted with considerable power, and held her audience in thrall. She was warmly recalled at the conclusion. A monologuist of a very different type is Mr George Mozart, who finds an excellent medium for the display of his abilities in A Day at the Races, in which the deceptions and frauds of the turf are partly described in song and partly in speech. Mr Mozart plays the part of a "jay"—to use a sporting euphemism—and is generally funny throughout. Mr Tom Foy and his company rejoice in the favour of the audience, the members of which are moved to laughter by very simple expedients. "The Yorkshire Lad in London" is that favourite character the stage rustic, who is not such a fool as he looks. He is not exactly a phenomenon in a smock-frock; but he has an eye to business and a rooted objection to exertion of any sort. In his busolic way he is exceedingly droll, and Sowerby Bridge may be quite proud of him. Mr Tom Foy, who plays the part, has an extensive and complete acquaintance with the Yorkshire dialect, and his antics and clowning are highly entertaining. Mr Toney Haskell, a new importation from America, gives some information concerning gags. It does not matter how old they are, he says, it is the way they are told. This is just exactly our opinion, and we formed it while listening to Mr Dutch Daly, the most successful recounter of "chestnuts" that we have ever met. Mr Haskell is just a little too conscious of his own cleverness to tell a story well. He might take a hint from his own countryman whose speech is "Golden." A very earnest and hard-working reciter is Mr F. V. St. Clair, and he fairly took our breath away on the night of our visit with his story—in rhyme—of a poultice that was put on the wrong man. He also is heard to the very greatest advantage in his famous song "Little Jap Horner." Mr Walter Stockwell early in the evening displays a cheery and jovial style that quite exhilarates one. He looks a genial and healthy optimist, and rouses the audience from their languor by the vigour of his voice and the clearness of his utterance. His most successful item is "Noah," in which he represents an archaic countryman of some seventy odd winters. Pretty Amy Clevere has a delightful song in "Milkmaid Milly," whose daintiness and charm inspire the love of a millionaire. Another most tuneful item in her répertoire is "Lily, I am longing, love, for you," which she follows with a neat step-dance. Clark and Hamilton repeat the success of their famous and well-known musical comedy sketch, which also found immense favour in Australia recently; Binns and Binns exploit a good mixture of comedy and music; and Mr Sam Mayo's imperturbable drollery finds its best excuse in the incontrollable laughter of his hearers. The spindle side of the cast includes Miss Lola Dalby, a charming blonde; Miss Ella Lane, who sings "Why do the boys run after the girls?" the Sisters Devona, pretty and graceful gymnasts; Miss Eileen Douglas, one of the daintiest of dancers; the Sisters Edwardes, who put plenty of go into their turn; the Twin Andersons, in a lively skipping-rope dance; and the pretty Sisters Winterton, who assist the Three Delevines in their refined comedy act Flirtation, and add much to its attractiveness.

THE PALACE.

We can quite comprehend the reasons which induced Mr Charles Morton, who is no great admirer of the appearances of trained animals on the music hall stage, to make an exception in favour of Miss Ella and her performing lions, which are an immense attraction at the Palace Theatre this week. We have rarely seen a more remarkable example of what may be done in the way of establishing amicable relations between woman and beast. Miss Ella's lions do not appear to be in the least cowed. They seem to go through their performance from sheer good nature. Possibly this is the result of the "art which conceals art;" if so, the more credit is due to the fair artist. A cage is built up on the boards; and in this are soon seen Miss Ella, a big black boarhound, and a pair of young lions, who gallop round in circus fashion. Then some half-dozen magnificently-maned animals are introduced, and leap over gates and lie down at a gesture from their mistress. One lion, in sign of his affection for her, licks her face; and, in return, she shows her confidence by placing her head within his massive jaws. She also lies down with her lions, who let her pull them about by the tail with the greatest indifference. The whole half-dozen then sit up at table, and Miss Ella tantalises them with pieces of meat held on a steel fork. Finally, she takes one of the biggest of her troupe on her shoulders, and carries him about easily. Miss Ella has a pleasing style and appearance, and her exhibition is certainly one of the most agreeable of its kind, the spectators having perfect faith in the continuation of the entente cordiale between her and her pupils. Since our last visit to the Palace the company has been strengthened by the addition of Miss Vera Patey, a vocalist who is the essence of gaiety and jollity, her droll delivery of the ditty "You learn a lot in London" being heartily applauded. She also sings a laughing song with irresistible spontaneousness and quaint imitative power. The Jalvans are coloured people who do a number of juggling tricks with evident enjoyment of their work; and Madame Kaffra's burlesque ostrich is certainly a novelty. The lady, smartly attired rides in on a big "property" bird, and sings some appropriate verses. The ostrich turning restive, she alights and shoots at it with a revolver. It collapses on the stage, the lady lying disconsolately upon the "body." Suddenly a faint clucking is heard; the ostrich has laid an egg, which, with another, is hatched out before the eyes of the audience. Miss Celia Galley's imitations of Sarah Bernhardt, Rejane, Yvette Guilbert, and Otero are excellent. The mimicry of Sarah Bernhardt is capital; and, in passing, it may be remarked that the "patter" in French with which Mdlle. Galley embellishes her imitations is quite smartly put together. Tom Hearn's turn always evokes screams of laughter at the Palace, where he is a firm favourite; and his poplarity shows not the slightest sign of abatement. There is no need for him to change the smallest detail of his business, which "goes" with an accompaniment of rapturous merriment. Mr Robert Michaelis repeats his very agreeable French and English vocalism; and the names of La Tortajada, Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, and Ryley and Taylor—all recently noticed by us—remain on the Palace programme. Mr Morton has crowned his attractive bill by adding to it the name of that universally admired "star," Miss Vesta Victoria; and Miss May Gurney's singing is intensely enjoyed and warmly applauded. Amongst the fine views shown by the Bioscope are representations of their Majesties the King and Queen at Eton, on June 13; a review of sharpshooters by H.I.M. the Czar at Tsarkoe-Selo, including open-air Mass, in which the Czar takes the Sacrament, and benediction of the flags; and the Czar and his staff passing down the lines and drinking the health of his troops.

THE EUSTON.

A bright and attractive duologue is being presented nightly at the Euston, where Manager M'Avoy has a capital list of turns. It is entitled The Broken Honeymoon, and is played by Miss Florence Tench and Mr Charles Freeman. A happy couple have just arrived at their hotel, and are both of them making excellent resolutions for their future conduct. They will have no secrets from each other; each will read the other's letters; and obedience to the motto, "bear and forbear," is, of course, a foregone conclusion. But Bertie has not revealed the fact that he possesses a motor-car called Juliet and a racehorse named Molly Jones, and of the existence of Dolly's pet monkey, Jack, and her favourite poodle, Billee, the bridegroom has no idea. Telegrams concerning Juliet and Molly Jones naturally rouse feelings of resentment in the bride; and Bertie becomes very angry when he reads of Jack's climbing up the waterspout to Dolly's bedroom, and of her romps on the rug with Billee. Heated controversy reigns for a few minutes between the newly-married pair; but the necessary explanations bring about a reconciliation; and at the fall of the curtain the domestic barometer points to "set calm." The trifle is amusingly written, and capitally played both by Miss Tench and Mr Freeman. Miss Edna Cragge, with a capital voice and a figure that looks extremely well in a pretty grey tunic and tights, sings "Love levels all," a descriptive song that appeals to the widest sympathies, and, therefore, which meets with instantaneous success. Miss Odeyne Spark, who has developed into a bonny girl, has a chic and fascinating manner, and dances in excellent style. Fyne and Harley, who also make an early appearance, present a trifling sketch, which accentuates humorously the contrast between a dude and a coster. The patter is smart and original, and the boxing lesson between the coster bruiser and the timid masher pupil is heartily laughed at. Espinosa and Neilson give a number of excellent burlesques of the different styles of dancing, which include the danse acrobatique from "gay Paree," the everlasting cake-walk, and the Slavonic dances of the Russian dancers from the Whitechapel-road—a very clever parody this. The pair put an immense amount of vim into their business, and have some difficulty in escaping an encore for their last dance. Mr Alf. Chester as "The Duke of the Thames Embankment" takes a most amusing and philosophical view of life, his lyrical arguments going to show that the wastrel enjoys many things in common with the Rothschilds. The song is well written and humorous, and is exceedingly well sung. Mr Dan Conroy revels in the opportunities for forcing the fun in his song "It was glorious;" and Mr Harry Champion has one of his characteristic songs in "Sit upon 'em and keep 'em warm." Miss Vesta Victoria, who returns to the Euston time after time, is renewing her popularity in her song of the country wench who asserts that London is a lovely place. In her favourite number, "It's all right in the summer time," the burden of the complaint is from an artist's model who sits to her own husband for a statue of Venus. Miss Victoria is well acclaimed, and her comedy manifestations give much pleasure to the Eustonians. Binns and Binns, the original musical tramps, complete the entertainment with some excellent instrumental selections and some droll business. The orchestra here is very capably led by Mr Victor Opferman; and the stage is under the management of Mr A. Jackson.

GRAND, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

Coolness and comfort are sought not in vain at the palatial hall at Clapham-junction, where the atmosphere is rendered well-nigh perfect, and the entertainment provided by Mr Arthur Yates, the admirable general manager, is of the light and bright character which befits the season. Quite of this gossamer pattern is the scena called Flirtation, presented by the Five Delevines, who, in the course of the serenading of lovely damsels, go through a succession of merry pranks that keep the audience constantly on the titter. The dancing of the talented quintet, each one armed with the guitar, has also many features of interest, while the legmania business with which the act is concluded hits the popular taste to a nicety. The desire for the higher forms of music is fostered by Miss Clorinda Thurtell, who gives in English the tuneful "Il bacio," singing with all the resource of a cultivated vocalist. Her next appearance is made as a beauteous Spanish maiden, who sings of the doughty deeds of her toreador lover in the bull-ring. Miss Thurtell renders the ballad with a full appreciation of its dramatic qualities, adding a touch of that spontaneous gaiety which the character of the song demands. The costume is a picturesque one, and the singer pleases by her appearance as well as by her mellifluous voice, which is capable of giving the most exacting phrases with ease and flexibility. The accomplished vocalist is high in favour, and wins the most enthusiastic demonstrations of approval. Messrs Conan and Doyle deal in personalities of an original nature, and their smart exchanges are the cause of hearty mirth. Dancing forms an interesting pendant to their turn, which is well appreciated throughout. An entertainment apart from the ordinary is provided by Tony and Flo Vernon, who give a duologue in which a ghost plays a thinking part. The eccentric Tony is a comedian of droll resource, and proves very diverting. A somewhat abrupt change is made to a paper-tearing display, in which each artiste evolves a pretty pattern from a blank sheet of paper identical to that on which a Sunday newspaper is printed, the lady being blind-folded and her partner singing a pathetic ballad meanwhile. The entertainment is clever, and has novelty to recommend, it. Mr Fred Keeton is heard in "Down below," but finds an item more worthy of his talent in a parody on "The Blind Boy," in which he impersonates a confirmed boozer, whose "blindness" is chronic and whose besetting sin is humorously depicted in every lineament. A burst of merriment awaits the concluding line of each verse, and the clever impersonation is lavishly applauded. Every kind of dancing, from the chacuca to the cake-walk, is done by Susie and Protti, whose terpsichorean evolutions give evidence of long and assiduous practice. The gentleman's whirling and twisting is astonishing, while the neatness of the lady's steps is also remarkable. Absentees from the programme on Monday included J. G. Aitken, the breach being filled by Mr Alf Hales, who put artistic expression into an effective song called "Life, love, and death," also stirring the audience with a ballad of the troopship Birkenhead, in which the heroism of the gallant battalions who went down with the ill-fated vessel is acclaimed. Mr Hales, who makes a good appearance, sang the song with dramatic fervour, and his efforts were warmly applauded. Another turn that failed to appear was the Paul Kramer Troupe of cyclists, whose place was taken by Mr Pat Rafferty, with an old woman impersonation and a song with the refrain "What do we want with conscription?" The Three Sisters Leigh, the Four Magnets, Avon and Crest, Miss Bessie Norrie, Mr Jack Mansfield, and Mr and Mrs Paul Knox are also conspicuous in an admirably diversified bill. The orchestra under the bâton of Mr James Sale is kept well in hand, and performs selections of music that include Mendelssohn's "Pilgrims' March."

A CHAT WITH MR ALFRED BUTT.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER).

Mr Alfred Butt, the business and assistant-manager of the Palace Theatre, is a gentleman who has had a first-class commercial training, and possesses first-class commercial instincts. It was almost by an accident that his connection with the theatrical profession began. After leaving school he took up accountancy, and some six years ago, while engaged in the liquidation of a big company in Huntingdonshire, he met one of the directors of the Palace Company, who happened to hear of the kind of work with which he was associated, and asked him if he would accept the secretaryship of the Shaftesbury-avenue hall. Going before the board of directors, Mr Butt made them quite a sporting offer. They judged by his appearance that he was really younger than he actually was, and thought this might be a barrier in the way of appointing him. However, Mr Butt offered to take up the position for three months, no question of salary to be considered until the end of that period, and if they then came to the conclusion that he was unsuitable for the post he would not even ask for the quarter's remuneration. The result was eminently satisfactory to both parties, and Mr Butt was retained. At that time Mr Philip Yorke was the assistant manager, and when he resigned Mr Morton placed the vacancy at the disposal of Mr Butt, who was, however, still to remain secretary and treasurer. A little later he was made business manager, and a few months ago, Mr Butt combined his existing duties with the work involved in assistant-managership, helping Mr Morton very materially in what is known as the theatrical department, which includes the booking of turns.

Mr Butt has something to say about the details connected with the management of a great theatre. "All matters concerned with the organisation in its many different phases," he remarks, "have to be attended to during the daytime. Outsiders have no idea of the time and trouble which must be expended in this direction if a place of entertainment is to be properly conducted. Even the most insignificant number on our programme is not allowed to be presented to the public until we have been assured it is all that it should be. Mr Morton is, indeed, very mindful of the interests of his patrons, and he will, if he feels there is the slightest necessity for it, have an act or a turn rehearsed every day for a week rather than run the risk of allowing an item which has but one slight fault to go uncorrected before the footlights. A big feature of our entertainment is the animated pictures. We spare no pains or expense to procure the latest topical subjects."

Mr Butt is enthusiastic in his appreciation of the veteran manager of the Palace. "Mr Morton is always very precise and conscientious in his work," he tells us, "and he is always so ready to help and give suggestions to members of the staff that it is nothing but a constant pleasure to work under his banner. In fact, I cannot help thinking that, provided a man exhibits a sufficient amount of energy and enterprise, he is bound to progress under Mr Morton."

Not unnaturally, Mr Butt is proud of his connection with the premier theatre of variety in London, and, although he has received some tempting offers since he has been there, has no desire to sever his connection with such "a charming board of directors and managers as the Palace possesses." "I think we are in a unique position," he goes on to say, "inasmuch as, in the first instance, a large proportion of our patrons will not visit the ordinary music halls, and, secondly, we are able to engage so many high-class artists who could not advantageously be seen elsewhere. I am a great believer, however, in music halls working together. There is undoubtedly a sufficient number of the variety loving public to enable all the vaudeville houses to do good business. If my belief were more generally adopted by other music hall managers the excessive terms which artists now demand could be strongly discouraged, and certainly they would not have an opportunity to increase their prices as they are doing."

The subject of this interview, whilst holding decided views upon the sketch question, feels that as it only affects the Palace in a very small degree—sketches rarely being an important item of the programme—it would be unfair to say anything beyond the fact that he thinks the ideal system is that in vogue in America, where managers and proprietors pay £100 a-year for an entertainment licence which permits of all kinds of performances being given providing the public safety is assured.

Mr Butt, who has the advantage—unfortunately we believe he does not quite appreciate it—of possessing a very youthful exterior, relates how on one occasion a gentleman who was shown up to his office, and who saw him for the first time, exclaimed, "No, no; I want to see your father." On receiving from Mr Butt an assurance that his father was not associated with the profession, the stranger remarked, "Well, then, it must be your elder brother that I want to see."

Mr Butt is married, and, when business permits, nothing pleases him more than to get away for a week-end and enjoy country pursuits.

Among his professional mementoes Mr Butt treasures a large photograph of the fine oil painting of Mr Morton, executed by Mr J. Mordecai, which bears the date of Aug. 15, 1893, and is inscribed in the famous Palace manager's handwriting with the words, "To his friend, Alfred Butt."

AT the Alhambra Palace, Morecambe, this week, the successful combination has included the Seven Savonas; Mons. De Lil, conjuror and card expert; Coma, juggler; Lord Tom Doddy and the Gaiety Belle; Haig and Novel, acrobatic comedy act; Three Condos, Japanese foot equilibrists; Misses Lytton, duettists; Hulbert, ventriloquist; and the Six Cycling Elliotts.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

From the Yorkshire Round we have news of four interesting feasts at Haworth. James Mander's menagerie and R. Layland's Cinématograph were the principal shows, and the gondolas of W. H. Marshall headed the machine list. Swings by Mrs Riley, Williams, Hales, and Scott, rifle saloons by E. Thompson and Williams, and a score of other lesser lights of fairground novelties completed the bill.

At Minston they had H. Ashington's Cinématograph, Powell and Holdsworth's fine arts, Wm. Murphy's gondolas, swings by C. Burkes and Alf Morley, and rifle saloons by C. Barker, who also supplied bottle smashers. The usual number of ever-popular fairground amusements helped to maintain the traditions of this Yorkshire feast.

Bramley was on a larger scale. Two Cinématograph shows were present, H. Testo's and J. W. Waddington's, E. Farrar's fine arts, Ingram's dog and monkey show, and novelty booths by Farrar (a mirror show) and Rhodes (a theatre). J. Waddington's gondolas, and Claude Hamilton's gallopers ran side by side, and steam yachts by J. W. Waddington and steam swings by Alf Morley were flanked by swings by M. A. Hughes, A. Morley, &c. Rifle saloons and bottle-smashers, by the last named, and half-a-hundred Emma sheets and games of skill and chance helped to maintain the carnival.

The Wakes at Burnley were well sustained this year. Capt. Payne's Cinématograph, Wright's fine arts, Lawrence's marionettes, and Longman's fat woman were the shows on view. The machines included Collins's gondolas, Williams's bicycles, Making's gallopers, John Howarth's steam horses, Mrs Holden's ostriches, Wm. Mitchell's ostriches, steam yachts, by the same two enterprising caterers, steam swings by Shaw, and swings by Howarth and Sharpe. The Winchester ranges were supplied by Messrs Cornwell, Bland, Burrows, Sharp, and Starkie, saloons, &c., by Messrs Jewell, Williams, and Humphreys, Emma sheets, cokers, and roll-ups by Forshaw, Jennings, Taylor, Shorrock, Ingham, Humphreys, Clegg, and Holt.

The Highland Games at Pathhead, Thornton, and Kinross were well attended, and excellent business resulted. The following concerns were on this run:—Mrs Johnson and Son's circus of varieties, Messrs Chipperfield's French menagerie, Mrs Harris and Son's Cinématograph, Sahib Leo's Egyptian hall, Prof. W. Wood's assault-at-arms, Cyclops and May's athletic prodigies, James Lanan's fistiana artists, Alf Haydn's esoteric wonders, Horatio's giant horse, and palmistry by the renowned Boswell Families, the magnificent overhead gallopers of Mrs John Wilmott, Mr Wattie Wilmot's racing cockerells, Mr John White's poultry farm, Mr John Freeman's three-abreast ponies, Palmer and Freeman's manual swings, and Messrs Veith and Redpeth's aerial flights concluded the machine list. The photographic concerns of Mr Frank Walton and Kelly Brothers, the first-class shooting saloons of Messrs S. J. Rostron, W. Harris, H. Dawson, T. Wright, C. Horne, and A. Horne. Coker shies, bogies, roulette, and all the fun of the fair were supplied by Messrs Dawson, Smith, Carroll, Freemann, M'Indoe, Dumont, Reid, Matchett, Baker, Knight, Salvoni, Clarke, Slater, and Strand. It may be interesting to showmen in England to know that the whole of these concerns will be at Cupar-Fife for Saturday and Sunday, July 30 and 31, and Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 1 and 2.

At Badsey we have had Mr H. Ayer's steam ostriches, park swings, African jungle, bottle shooters, Mollies, &c; Kemp's toy bazaars, and other attractions.

At Eckington, Strickland's steam gallopers, swing boats, shooting saloons, bottle shooters, cokernut sheets have been doing well.

(FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Although the theatres are all closing or closed, Mr Thos. Barrasford still continues his successful policy at the Paris Alhambra. The good people of the Place de la République have had the pleasantest surprise of their lives in the adventurous enterprise of the great music hall manager. To have a theatre, circus, or music hall open in the summer, and such a magnificent theatre as the Alhambra, is sufficiently astonishing, for the inhabitants of the quarter have been accustomed to travel far afield to procure any theatrical entertainment during the dog days. But in spite of the tropical heat the Alhambra has been crowded nightly—stalls, boxes, and galleries—and, not content with keeping open, the management, with unheard-of liberality, have even given us better fare than during the season. The theatre will close Sunday, July 31, for one month, in order that certain alterations may be made to enhance the beauty and comfort of the handsomest house in Paris. Mr Barrasford has gathered together an excellent company to entertain his Parisian audiences. The Sands give an entirely novel and extremely clever acrobatic and equilibristic number. The scene is on a racecourse. The lady, attired in a neat riding-habit, balances marvellously. On her partner's head, poised on one leg, she plays on a variety of wind instruments; then she balances herself on one leg on a walking-stick, raising and lowering herself in the most extraordinary manner. Her partner supports a ladder on his knees in the "Risley act" position. She climbs up the ladder, stands on the top rung on one leg, and shoots at a target. Her heavy riding-habit does not apparently inconvenience her in the least, for when on terra firma she turns somersaults and cartwheels with easy grace. Flem and Brok are two amusing performers with a good knockabout turn on a horizontal bar. They are accompanied all through by the tantalising strains of the "Mosquito Parade" At the finish they start a fight, and by means of ropes they are swung out into the stalls over the heads of the laughing audience, still desperately striving to settle their little differences. Launceston Elliott is indeed a "strong man." He opens his turn with a set of poses, as Sandow used to do. He has great control over his marvellously developed muscles, and his illustrations of the Roman and Grecian games are as instructive as they are beautiful. He balances twelve men on a yoke round his neck; he whirls two full-grown men on bicycles from a yoke till they are parallel with the floor, besides a number of other tricks with several men balanced on a ladder, which he supports on his knees, ending with a portly person garbed as the Statue of Liberty enlightening the world, by Bartoldi, supported high in the air, one foot resting in the palm of his hand. This naturally drew shouts of applause from the enthusiastic Americans who crowded the house. Seymour and Depré are a clever couple of American comedians. The little lady strongly resembles Happy Fanny Fields in her methods. Her Dutch songs and dances were highly appreciated, but her partner, as a Chinaman with a propensity for leaping over pianos and tables with lighted lamps, created a profound sensation. Not only is he a jumper of great excellence, but he gives a thoroughly well-thought-out study of a Chinaman. He proves himself to be as clever a musician as he is an acrobat. He gave some amusing imitations of bagpipes, &c., on a queer little instrument which looked like the neck of a violin. Jan Rudenyi is a virtuoso on the violin. He played the Austrian National Anthem with variations cleverly and some well-known German airs. He was admirably accompanied by his brother, who plays beautifully. Les Fedoras are good Italian duettists, and their harmonious efforts were cordially received.

The hit of the evening was undoubtedly made by those popular artists Johnson and Dean with a rendition of "Under the Bamboo Tree." The lady is extremely handsome and graceful. She wears her handsome gowns with distinction, and has a most winning smile, whilst her partner was cheered to the echo for his share in the singing and his capital dancing. His efforts are so spontaneous, his gestures so natural, so comical, and yet so graceful, that it was no wonder the audience shouted for them repeatedly and called them out again and again. Mdlle. Du Perret sang two French songs pleasantly. The Judgés are good acrobats, and when they get their number working a bit closer and quicker they will be an agreeable addition to any programme.

We were all interested in the excellent Biograph of the Gordon-Bennett Cup race, and everyone cheered when we saw the winner, No 5, pass the stand. This gave an opportunity to those delightful comedians, the "Harmony Quatuor," to give a burlesque of the same by means of a handbarrow As they are all classed together I can only describe them in general terms, but a full meed of praise is due to the really musicianly performance of the gentleman made up as a German in the style of Louis Webber, so famous in New York. The acrobat was amusing, and introduced his tricks without detriment to the sweet singing of another member of the company, though the violinist was a trifle hampered in his rendering of the intermezzo from Cavalleria. They scored an instantaneous and genuine success, and I hope this will not be their last visit to Mr Barrasford's popular house. Nina Barkis made her Parisian début in a series of picturesque poses, accompanied by a few gestures illustrative of the topic or person she represented. Her most successful effort was as "Winter" and "Spring," which was poetic and beautifully considered and reproduced.

SOUTH LONDON OUTING.

It's good to forget oneself sometimes, and the staff of the South London Palace didn't forget—in a holiday fashion—to forget themselves on the first day of this week, when a goodly party of them journeyed to Herne Bay, there to celebrate their 1904 outing. The trippers were in charge of Mr Frank Weeks, who looked immensely improved in health since his recent serious illness; in fact, he was the subject of general congratulations on that account. Mrs Weeks also accompanied the party, and by her charming manner and graceful tact made the visitors and others thoroughly at home. Herne Bay was reached shortly after 10·0 a.m., and a little later the South Londoners betook themselves by brake and motor-car to view the ancient church and Roman castrum at Reculver. On the return journey to Herne Bay, a halt was made at the picturesque country house of Alderman R. W. Bowers who very kindly threw open his grounds to them and entertained them during their brief visit to his villa.

An excellent dinner over which Mr Weeks presided was served at the Tower Hotel, the company being favoured with the presence of Alderman Bowers. After the usual loyal toasts had been duly honoured,

The VICE-PRESIDENT (Mr C. E. Howells) proposed "The Directors and Management of the South London Palace." He referred in eulogistic terms to the board of directors and to the excellent manager that board had in Mr Frank Weeks.

Mr HARRY B. WINCOTT, the secretary and treasurer to the outing committee, gave the toast of "Success to the South London Palace." Everyone, he remarked, was delighted to see Mr Weeks looking so well after his recent illness, and they hoped he would continue to enjoy good health.

The CHAIRMAN, in acknowledging the two previous speeches, said he was desired by the directors to convey their good wishes for a pleasant day's holiday. Mr George Adney Payne had invited them up to his house, and that was a good indication of the interest taken by Mr Payne in the staff of the South London. This was the fourth time he (the chairman) had presided over their annual festival, and it had been a source of great satisfaction to him to note how few changes had been made in the personnel of the staff. When he first went to the South London the place bore a bad name, and the audience had to be taken in hand. Alderman Bowers told him that at one time he used to shudder as he passed the hall, but now the worthy alderman came in frequently and brought his family.

Alderman R. W. BOWERS (of Southwark) said that Mr Weeks had stated a fact in regard to the change of feeling generally held in the borough of Southwark towards the music hall in London-road. There was not the slightest doubt that an immense improvement had taken place, and, thanks largely to Mr Weeks' splendid management, the tact he displayed, and the interest he showed in all matters appertaining to the conduct of the establishment, chairman of the company, Mr Councillor Coveney.

At the conclusion of the sports a substantial luncheon was partaken of at the Railway Hotel, at which the usual loyal and other toasts were duly proposed, seconded, and carried.

MR KENDRICK, the manager, in proposing "The Cambridge Variety Theatre, Limited," thanked the staff for the kindly and able assistance which they had rendered to him during the short time he had had control of the affairs, and expressed the wish that the same faces would be present on the next occasion of their annual festival.

Mr Councillor COVENEY, in responding, stated the pleasure he felt at being present, and said that two of his co-directors, Mr J. L. Graydon and Major-General Wortham, were not there owing to other engagements, Mr J. L. Graydon having accompanied his staff of the Middlesex to Dover.

Mr HARRIS, the other director present, proposed the health of the musical conductor, to which Mr ZERBINI responded in an able little speech.

All arrangements were admirably carried out by the stewards, Messrs Garrad and Evans. A more pleasant day could not have been spent, and on the return of the excursionists to Paddington they had great cause for congratulation on the conditions of the weather and the success of the outing generally.

THE CAMBRIDGE OUTING (1904).

THE CAMBRIDGE OUTING.

The staff of the Cambridge Music Hall held their annual outing this year on the Upper Thames on Sunday last. They proceeded to Great Marlow by train from Paddington, and on their arrival sports were held, the results being as follows:—60 Yards Ladies' Race.—Mrs Evans (silver-plated teapot, presented by Mr Simmonds), 1; Miss Hood (handbag, presented by Mr Raikes), 2; Mrs Zerbini (twelve cabinet photos., presented by Mr Andrews), 3 100 Yards Gents.' ROYAL ALBERT ANNUAL OUTING.

This year's outing of the staff and visitors of the above popular music hall at Canning-town was a success from start to finish. The trippers were in charge of Mr Frank Weeks, who looked immensely improved in health since his recent serious illness; in fact, he was the subject of general congratulations on that account. He (the speaker) had induced three or four mayors to visit the hall on occasions of charity performances, and they had given speeches from the stage.

The CHAIRMAN proposed "The Press," to which a response was made by Mr DOUGLAS CRICHTON and Mr HENRY B. COHEN.

Dinner over, the merrymakers proceeded to St. Malo, Mr George Adney Payne's beautiful residence commanding a splendid view of the sea. It was a thoughtful and kindly act on Mr Payne's part to invite the staff of the South London to his house, where they were received by him and Mrs Payne. Mr and Mrs William Grimes, of Brixton, who are staying at St. Malo, were present, as was also the Rev. Mr Buchanan, vicar of Herne Bay. The entire company was entertained in the handsome billiard room which forms an erection by itself in Mr Payne's grounds, and here they had the pleasure of listening to no less charming and talented a vocalist than Mrs Payne, who sang in fine style "The Holy City," "Sweet Heart," the whole audience rising at the end to join with her in the rendering of the National Anthem. Reassembling on the lawn, a couple of group photographs were taken by Mr L. F. Dowdall, of Messrs Angel and Company, 40, Walworth-road, S.E., one of which we reproduce.

Trooping back to the Tower Hotel, tea was indulged in, after which, until train time, little

ROYAL ACADEMY PRIZES.

The 22nd was an important day at the Royal Academy of Music, for not only did sixty more students than usual win prizes, but the prizes were distributed by no less a personage than Madame Melba, who besides awarding the prizes generously offered one herself to encourage the sopranos and contraltos in singing English ballads. The proceedings commenced with the singing by the choir of two canons for female voices, composed by that esteemed musician, Mr F. Corder, whose compositions were accompanied by seven harps. The canons were beautifully written, and the choir did justice to them. Mr Corder's arrangement of Weber's "Invitation à la Valse," for two pianofortes, was then performed by Miss Scharrer and Miss Hess brilliantly, and was followed by Bach's Sonata in C major for two violins and Figured Bass. This was played by sixty violinists with organ accompaniment by Mr Dale, Sir A. C. Mackenzie conducting. The popular principal of the Royal Academy then gave his annual address, mentioning first that he had not hesitated to lay one more burden on the prima donna in addition to her many operatic woes. He said he had no sensational record to present as to the last academic year. It was simply a record of work done. Death had robbed the Academy of old and valued friends, whose places had been filled by the appointment of nine new professors. The changes needed in the Academy premises had been accomplished, and would be to the advantage of professors and students. He could not help remarking the great changes that had taken place, and the encouragement given to beginners in our musical institutions at the present day. He hoped in the future the mature artists would share in these advantages. Sir Alexander referred to the many gifts and prizes now bestowed on young people, and contrasted them with the scanty encouragement offered in his earlier days. Having concluded his address, Madame Melba came forward amidst hearty demonstrations, and gracefully handed to the successful students the various awards. The distribution over, Mr Threlfall proposed a vote of thanks, and, being unanimously carried, Sir A. C. Mackenzie read a short speech on behalf of the prima donna, who expressed in cordial terms the pleasure she had derived from officiating at the Royal Academy that day. The attendance was very large, and the enthusiasm was in proportion to the numbers present.

MR T. S. DICKIE signalises the holiday season by the production of a dramatic sketch, for which his management is famous. Mr Fred Maxwell and company will be responsible for the presentation, which will have the advantage of that excellent actor's supervision. The title chosen is The Girl I Love.

SOME experiments in testing the temperature of the London Pavilion when the thermometer has registered a condition of burning heat outside have shown that at matinées the temperature of the auditorium has never risen above 65 degrees—a difference nearly of 20 degrees as compared with the outside registration. At night, with the roof off, the difference has been nearly as great.

THE BEDFORD.

The dramatic sketch still flourishes at the Bedford in spite of prosecutions, and it is always an item that immensely interests audiences at the popular Camden-town establishment. For this week's tabloid of melodrama Mr Frank Hardie and company are responsible, and in The Cornish Wreckers is found a sensational episode that stirs the pulses and touches the heartstrings. The scene is a village hostelry on the coast near Land's End, and a storm is raging. The rugged seamen and fishermen are discussing the murder of a wrecked passenger, who, after his rescue by one of their number, was murdered by a villain for the money he had about him. The rescuer was also badly injured by the assassin, and, though he has recovered at the time of the opening of the story he has lost his memory, and has become half-witted. The murderer has not been caught, but there is a scar on his chin by which he can be recognised. The customers are disturbed by the entrance of the landlord, a surly brute, who bullies all and sundry, and commences to strike Danny, the half-witted one. The landlady protects him; but all her entreaties do not prevent her husband turning Danny out into the pitiless tempest. The landlord is the murderer of whom we have spoken, and he has just settled a revenue officer, and is fleeing from justice. He demands all the money in the house, and departs, as he says, for New York. Returning again, he finds that the inn has a visitor, who wishes to put up for the night. As he carries £10 000 about with him in a belt round his waist, the followers of drama know that he will be attacked by the villain. Their instincts do not play them false. There is a sensational fight in which the dual murderer hurls lamps and bottles at his opponent, who is just about getting the worst of the encounter when the half-witted Danny pops in at the window, and settles matters by shooting the scoundrel who has caused all the pother. There is plenty of sentiment of the ad captandum kind which is highly relished by the Bedfordians, who become duly excited during the terrific fight. An important interlude in the programme is supplied by the Three Zaracs, who present a comedy sketch known as Mashing the Barmaid The "lady" happens to be a very agile male performer on the horizontal bars, the feats on which are interspersed with spells of refreshment and courting. There is a deal of practical fooling at the bar and on the bar, and considerable skill is shown by the trio in their flights and leaps and somersaults. Mr Dan Filmer, one of the comedians, has a droll song in "We all did a bunk from father," and he will advance rapidly in the profession when he gets rid of an unfortunate nasal twang which now mars the delivery of his songs. Mr W. H. Nott, a coloured vocalist, sings with good intonation and has a nice voice. He should infuse a little more light and shade into his songs, which are very much applauded. The Ladderites, as their title signifies, perform a series of attractive feats on a couple of ladders, which are kept upright by a stalwart athlete. The remaining two are seen to very much advantage in picturesque poses, and a balancing feat in which the one poises on the form of the other—himself stretched out on the summit—is very much applauded. The programme is opened by Miss Lydia Verne, an acrobatic and step dancer, whose efforts give the audience much pleasure. Mal and Merrie, society entertainers, have some good patter and a capital song in "The smile that won't come off;" and Gracie Grahame, who meets with a most enthusiastic reception, sings "Charlie, there you are," to a couple of gentlemen seated in different parts of the house and to an accompaniment of laughter. Marie Blythe, comedienne, and Victor Travers, eccentric comedian, are also announced. Miss Kate O'Brien, an extra turn on the night of our visit, sang a descriptive scena sympathetically. Mr A. F. Lovesy, who has recovered from his illness, is devoting much energy to the promotion of the prosperity of the hall, of which Mr B. Pearce Lucas is the popular managing director.

MR. W. W. KELLY'S BENEFIT.

Mr W. W. Kelly, lessee and manager of the Metropole Theatre and the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, had a benefit at the former house on the 22nd inst. It was promoted by a committee, of which Mr Lewis Peake was chairman; Mr Jno. Gaffney, vice-chairman; Mr Thos. Bush, hon. treasurer; and Mr H. C. Arnold, hon. secretary. The hon. acting-managers were Messrs T. A. Cook, H. Fineberg, Walter Hassan, S. Bolingbroke Cooper, Arthur Lawrence, Fred Coles, Albert Bulmer, George Mallett, James Kiernan, Sidney Beltram, Edwin W. Smith, and W. G Sutton. An address, presented to Mr Kelly in an interval, read as follows:—

To W. W. Kelly, Esq. Dear Sir,—A few of your friends and admirers in the United Kingdom being desirous of testifying their great appreciation of your uprightness, large-heartedness, strict integrity, and honourable conduct, both in your private and public life, have availed themselves of the opportunity afforded them by the first benefit you are taking at your admirably appointed Metropole Theatre, Birkenhead, to ask your acceptance of this address and the accompanying cheque as a memento of the occasion. We, the undersigned members of the committee and subscribers, desire to express the hope that the clouds of persecution have rolled by for ever, and that the glorious sun of prosperity has now arisen to be with you and yours while life lasts.

The address was beautifully illuminated. Fitted on an easel, the front was comprised of two closing panels, the inside of one containing a photograph, inlaid in watered satin, of Mr Kelly, and the inside of the other that of Mrs Kelly (née Miss Edith Cole); while on the outside of the panels were the monogram of Mr Kelly in gold letters. Mr Kelly was very happy in his thanks for the presentation, which also included a cheque for 125 guineas.

Amongst those who offered their services were artists from the Argyle, Birkenhead; Empire, Hippodrome, Lyric, Haymarket, Pavilion, Park Palace, and Paddington Palace, Liverpool; Tower, New Brighton; Palace Theatre, St. Helens; Theatre Royal, Warrington; and Olympian Gardens, Rock Ferry. Items were also contributed by Percy Curry, Milner Verren, Alexandra Royal, Radford and Valentine, Josh Dixon, Dixon's Nippers, Solari Duo, Lanos and Montes, R. G. Knowles, Harry Ford, H. O. Wills, the Waldrons, Dooley, Hooley, and Dooley, Sisters Brenton, Dan Kennedy, J. H. Hawtrey, Mdlle. De Rose, Selby and Myers, Boston Twins, Sheila Deans, Lillian Gormon, Violet Macfarlane, W. J. Churchill, Tray and Rich, Geo. Adams, Ferrara Duo, Mill May, Wilkie Bard, Malcolm Scott, Edith Cole, Flitz and Florence, Winifred Victor, Billy Richardson, Ada Fawn, Phil Herman, Edie Endon, the Steens, and Cullen and Carthy. The band of the 1st V.B. the King's (Liverpool) Regiment, under the conductorship of Mr J. Heron, gave selections, and during the evening the orchestra played a march entitled "The Wallace," composed by Mr A. F. Cotton (Messrs Cotton and Holden) especially for the benefit performance and dedicated to Mr Kelly. The stage management was in the capable hands of Mr D. J. Clarke (of the Argyle Theatre) and Mr Fred Willmot (of Liverpool).

AT Dewsbury we have had Mrs Baker's circus, Biddel's circus, Relph and Pedley Cinématograph, a similar show by the Monte Brothers, and Gibson's black art show formed, indeed, a noble array of some of the highest talent on the road. Relph was also showing a mirror money-maker and giant rat midget horse. The machine list is also formidable, it includes Aspland's, G. Marshall's and Mrs G. Waddington's gondolas, W. H. Marshall's gallopers, Baker and Sons steam yachts, and Walter Shaw and Joe Carrigan's steam swings. Other novelties were Winchester rangs, &c., by John Seed, J. Holdsworth, and C. Burgess.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

ROTHERHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—Messrs Haddon and Loader's company is here this week with The King of Thieves. Mr Jack Haddon is seen to advantage in the title-rôle; Mr John Cecil is a manly Harry Travers; Mr Norman Overton gives a lifelike rendition of the part of Sir Gilbert Redville; Mr Walter Domoney scores as Arthur Redville; Mr Harry Liddle is amusing as Joe Ricketts; and Mr R. Wilton Bedford is deserving of mention as Jean Vitelli. Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam is pleasing as Mary Galston, and Miss Marie Rayner gives a clever representation of the rôle of Maud Desmond. Miss Marguerite Thorne is a typical Mrs O'Brien, and Miss Lottie Pearce is very chic as Polly Puff.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—Messrs H. Armitage and Percy Buxton on Monday presented Wilson Barrett's new version of East Lynne. As Lady Isabel Miss Bessie Rignold is excellent. Mr Wm. F. Grant is very good as Archibald Carlyle, the possession of a sonorous and agreeable voice being of great assistance to him. Mr Percy Foster is a clever Francis Levison. Miss H. Stainer as Barbara Hare is well placed. Mr Paul Belmore's Justice Hare is a good study. Mr Edward Rochelle as Police-Constable Bullock, Mr W. F. Clitherow as Lawyer Dill, and Miss F. Olive as Cornelia are responsible for much laughter. The other members give good support and contribute to a most enjoyable presentation of Mrs Henry Wood's story.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Matweef Hugoston's Troupe of Russian singers and dancers and marvellous acrobats head this week's bill, and receive many expressions of approval. The Meers, in their funny wire act, also bring down the house. Among the other excellent turns are Jenny Reeves, comedienne; Edna Mastin, siffleuse; Les Belles Americaines, acrobatic speciality artistes; Polk and Kollins, banjoists; A. G. Spry, quaint comedian; and Dale and Vale, comedy acrobats.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—General Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-General-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—This week's programme is again a good attraction. It includes the following:—Lockhart's elephants, introduced by Capt. Taylor; Billy Bint, comedian; Balsamos, funny bar performers; Florrie Cooper, a promising vocalist; Olmars, acrobats and tumblers; Bell Pearl and company in a musical comedy sketch, A Bit of String; Will Lytton, comedian; Harry Glynn and his clever sketch company; Harry Zetter, comedian and grotesque dancer; and Fanny Robina, comedienne.

L. AND N.W. PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietress, Mrs S A. Higham; Manager, Mr Sam Higham.—The Sisters Gordon, coon singers and dancers, are again here. Mr Arthur Melrose, descriptive vocalist; Mr George Fairley, comedian; and Mr Sam Higham, comedian, are also included in the bill.

SCARBOROUGH.

SPA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Fras. Goodricke.—Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr M. V. Leveaux's company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday with Joseph Entangled. Mr Horace Lane is well suited as Harry Travender; Mr Lawrence Grant plays Jermyn Pyecroft with the requisite amount of cynicism; Mr Stanley Ashworth is good as Hardolph Mayne; Mr and Mrs Knapman are given a realistic impersonation by Mr Everard Digby and Miss Claire Cavendish respectively; Mr H. B. Warner as Sir Joseph Lacy is most successful in every way; in the exacting character of Lady Verona Mayne Miss Mona K. Oram acquits herself well; and Lady Joyce Fanmere finds a pleasing exponent in Miss Rosamund Bury.

LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Waddington and Sons; Acting-Manager, Mr J. T. Carpenter.—Mr George Musgrove's company in The Belle of New York holds the stage here, and, notwithstanding its many previous visits, the piece has lost none of its vigour. Mr Harry A. Meymott is still as amusing as ever as Ichabod Bronson; Mr Philip Leslie sings and acts well as Harry Bronson; Mr Frank Lawton is as popular as ever as Blinky Bill; Fifi has a charming representative in Miss Lillian Diggs; Miss Winnie Brown puts plenty of verve into her Cora Angelique; and Miss Noel Neville is a refined little Violet Grey. New costumes, songs, and dances have been introduced.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Hy. Mayhew; Business Manager, Mr F. P. Morgan.—Mr Harry Esden's company is fulfilling a six nights' engagement here with Rogues and Vagabonds. The play has succeeded in drawing good audiences. As Harry Stamford Mr John C. Carlyle wins favour with the audience. Mr William Brandon is a good Fernand Delair; as the good-natured constable, P.C. Clegg, Mr Frank Denis is thoroughly well suited; Miss Billie Doyle is admirable as the adventuress, Vera Laverne; and Miss Lizzie Webb is also very successful as Hilda Jeffries.

PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing Director, Mr W Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr William Kitchingman.—This popular place of amusement has been crowded this week. The Cairo Orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Adolf Voorzanger, has been augmented for the season. Mr Arthur Weber is the vocalist for the week. A clever display of talent is exercised by Barton and Franklin, musicians; Wisper, comedy juggler; Charles Rodin, comedian; the Mezzettis, gymnasts; the Sylvester Brothers, acrobats; the Weimars, wire walkers; Mr H. K. Bradshaw, vocalist; and Miss Beattie Bloom, comedienne. The troupe of lady swimmers and Prof. Dickinson receive a good share of patronage.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and General Manager, Mr George Zalva.—On Monday this popular place opened for the season, the performance being under the patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress of Scarborough (Mr and Mrs W. Morgan) A very large audience assembled to give Mr Zalva a hearty welcome. A capital programme was presented, and included a clever turn by the Frantz Troupe of society acrobats; some smart work by Messrs Vernietto and Dionne; Rappo, equilibrist; the Mozondos, barrel jumpers; Miss Beattie Trixie, coon vocalist and dancer; Criss Florence, sword and lance exercises; the Five Floradors, eccentric musicians; Mystery Gauze, Canadian-Indian artiste; Tonino, illusionist, and Barker's animal circus. Doodles, who was such a favourite last year, is again the clown.

PROMENADE PIER AND PAVILION.—Director, Mr Quinton Gibson.—Entertainments are given twice daily here. The Great Welsh Singers include Miss Maggie Davis, Miss Mary John, Mr Llewellyn Jones, Mr Will Davis, and Mr John Evans. The Rhondda Glee Singers also appear, and an exhibition of high diving and swimming is given by the Perkins Troupe of swimmers.

SHEERNESS.

TRANSFIELD'S HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr T. G. Transfield; Secretary and Manager, Mr Chas. Melvin.—The capital programme submitted here for this week comprises an excellent acrobatic display by the Three Ferganas; Learto, the musical clown, is a highly amusing turn; M'Cann's performing dogs are also much appreciated; Mr John Yelding still upholds his reputation as a capital jockey act rider; and the antics of Little Bishop banish all dull moments. Mr Geo. Scott, comedian; Miss Minnie D'Aubyn, coon impersonator; and Miss Rose Waller, comedienne, prove themselves capable artistes. The genial proprietor, with characteristic generosity, announced a benefit on Friday in aid of the widow and orphans of a local tradesman.

SALTCOATS.

SALTCOATS, that popular watering-place on the Ayrshire coast, is being well providbd with healthy amusements by the Seaside Serenaders (Licensee, Mr Fred Locke), who began their season on the 11th ult, and have met with exceptional success. The performers are Messrs Fred Wade, tenor; J. M'Donald, tenor; P. B. Hughes, bass; A. J. Patrick, bass; T. H. Donaldson, Scotch character impersonator; Fred Emslie, comic vocalist; and Miss Minnie Barr, pianist. The entertainments are superior in tone and quality to anything given on Saltcoats beach previously. On Monday a competition was held for the best boy and girl singers of "Daft Jean"—an impersonation of Mr T. Donaldson's—the prizes being, for the girl, a gold bracelet, presented by Mrs Mary Watson, proprietress, Theatre Royal, Coatbridge; and for the boy, a silver watch, given by Mr C. Fountain, manager, Theatre Royal, Coatbridge. The donors have been residing in Saltcoats for two months.

SHEFFIELD.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—That favourite drama, No Man's Land, was again played to a good house on Monday by Miss Ida Millais's popular company. The piece was well staged, with "real water" effects, and the acting was good all round. Mr Henry Herne made a gallant hero as Harry Oaklands, and the character of Mary Bathurst again afforded that delightful artist, Miss Millais, every opportunity of distinguishing herself, and winning the cordial approbation of her many admirers. Mr Fred Conyers was excellent, and all the other members of the company deserve credit for meritorious and careful impersonations.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—The bright particular star this week is that funny and original comedian, Mark Sheridan, who is always sure of a big reception here. Carl Hertz gives a marvellous demonstration of his powers as a master of the mystic art, and other clever artistes are Rachel Lowe, comedienne; W. C. Fields, American tramp juggler; James Grant, comedian; Amelia La Graze, vocalist; Steve M'Carthy, vocal comedian; Trentanovi Sisters, graceful gymnasts; the Comedy Four; Wilson Hallett, mimic; and that piquant singer of lively songs, Marie Kendall.

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr W. C. Burns.—Engaged this week are the Three Royal Temples, variety entertainers; Les Boulangers; Alice Parkin, vocalist; Frank Cass, comic vocalist; Arthur James, comedian; Connie Milton, comedienne; and Harry Conlin, a diverting vocal comedian.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—Miss Louie Freear met on Monday with a most enthusiastic welcome when she appeared as Boy Bob in the military play of that name. Her songs were redemanded, whilst her numerous jokes, so ingeniously rendered, amused the crowded house again and again, and the first visit of the famous little actress will be remembered by local playgoers with the pleasantest of recollections. Colonel Vincent was played by Mr Slaine Mills in true military style; Mr Stephen Bond as Captain Winton was a fine example of a soldier and a man; the deeply-wronged Sergeant Daniels was faithfully represented by Mr B. Soane Roby; and the scheming adventuress, Lottie Brenton, was effectively played by Miss Marie Rignold, a fine commanding actress of undoubted histrionic ability. Miss Dora Rignold as Edith Vincent and Miss Constance Raymond as Nurse Draycott were respectively also remarkably good.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—On Monday Mr Harry Starr's company commenced a three days' engagement with the popular musical comedy-drama entitled Carl the Clockmaker. The play is admirably rendered, and meets with a hearty reception. Mr Harry Starr undertakes the rôle of Carl Conrad, and a most talented actor is found, whose aliases as the Continental Jew, the Swiss girl, and Nurse Martha with a mysterious baby are so excellently impersonated, and his songs and dances also are cleverly given; Mr Richard Harris gives a capital portrayal of Maurice Helmore, and his alias of Phillip Adderley displays a clever actor; Mr William Miller makes a humorous Arthur Attwood; Narkey Nabbs is well represented by Mr Conrad Clerke; Miss Edma Lester is good as Jerusha Jane Picklefinch; Madge Ryder is effectively portrayed by Miss Rita Rosslyn; and Miss Ethel Danbury well embodies Lena Harrigan. For the remaining three nights Otto the Outcast is being presented by the same company.

KURSAAL. — General-Manager, Colonel Blair Staples.—A capital variety programme is being presented here this week, and each turn is received very enthusiastically. Miss Peggy Primrose is a dainty song and dance artist; the Italian stars, the Robertis, make two good operatic and comedy artistes; Eugene and Willie are great favourites as the musical and acrobatic clowns; two clever comedians and dancers are found in Condor and Preston; while the Two Falcons also score well in their comedy acrobatic tricks. Ruffel's Imperial Bioscope and H. E. Brammall's Cirque continue to draw large audiences.

STALYBRIDGE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr H. L. Rooke.—Mr J. Gar Kiddie's A Little Coquette company is here. Mr J. W. Groves in the character of Ann Teeke is as popular as ever; Miss Lizzie Payne and Miss Flo Warner as Celia and Robin Adair are very clever and sing prettily; while Mr Forsyth Bruce as Gabriel Grabbe, the rascally lawyer and money-lender, presents a character which gives scope for the exhibition of much histrionic ability. Miss Nellie Butt, Mr L. J. Headlam, Mr George Hestor, Mr E. H. Bertram, Mr Joe Beel, and Mr J. Clarence have much to do, and they do it successfully. The specialities introduced are all that can be desired.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—There is much that is sensational in the drama, Greed of Gold, which has been presented here this week by Mr T. Morton Powell's company. Mr Murray York impersonates the villain, Harry Hood, very effectively, and Mr Wilson Summers acts most pleasingly as Arthur Erroll, whilst as Conn Creamer Mr H. Shea makes an amusing Irishman. Mr B. Fox gives a clever impersonation of Tom Wolstead, the dumb man, and Mr T. G. Warry fills the part of Mr Brighteon, K.C, with ability, whilst Mr Walter M. Cameron as Culy Sing is genuinely funny. Miss Edith Wallis acts impressively as Dora.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—Mr Henry Eglington's company in When the Lights are Low is the dramatic fare for the week. As Guy Goldsworthy Mr Horace Booth does well, and his assumption of several disguises is successful. Mr Fred W. Mussett's Roland Goldsworthy is a good picture of villainy. The comic element is capitally upheld by Mr Henry Eglington as Willie Wilkins, Mr Fred Carlton as Tim Wilkins, Mr William Gardiner's Donal Macpherson, and Mr Tom R. Seymour's Ikey Isaacson. Miss Grace Barny's Nancie Christie is cleverly done, and Miss Alicia Raleigh's Violet Christie is quite successful. Miss Cissie Williams as Stella, a child, is good, and Miss Madeline Duval as Kathleen Kerry is both dashing and charming.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—A capital attraction is provided by Messrs E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company in The Traitor, a sensational drama, which is being appreciated by exceedingly large audiences nightly. Mr Wellesley Draper, who possesses a handsome stage presence, looks every inch a prince as Rudolph. The part of the Traitor is invested with craftiness by Mr Stephen E. Scanlan; Mr Edwin Jenner acquits himself creditably as the cool-headed Captain Ross, R.N.; and his rival, General Hertz, is funnily hit off by Mr Bernard Lieli. Mr Frank Sutherland evokes roars of laughter by his acceptable delineation of Jack Boult; Miss Anena Walton, a vivacious Cen-Cen, lends valuable assistance; Mr Edward Lowrie as Zoff helps considerably in the comic relief; Miss Hettie Senior's Elsie Duprey creates an excellent impression; and the Countess Zicka of Miss Lily Roselle is strong and forceful. Miss Georgette Thierry admirably and gracefully represents Zula; and another praiseworthy impersonation is by Miss Isabel Hunt as Lieut. Nicholas.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—The Jackson Family are an admirable principal turn, their versatile musical entertainment being vociferously applauded. A new medley sketch by the M'Connells is an enjoyable item; Fred Poplar hits the popular taste by his cleverly drawn character sketches; Gilbert Gerard scores with his capable imitations of different animals and instruments; success awards the well-directed efforts of the Marconis, electric wonders; Kitty Wager, Eily Adair, and Annie Reid are favourite comediennes and dancers; and Phil Roxby, comedian and one-legged dancer, completes an altogether good programme.

ROYAL ASSEMBLY HALL.—A good audience congregated to witness Mr Arthur Roberts and his company on Tuesday night, when the programme consisted of a sketch from the Palace Theatre entitled Where's the Count? written by Arthur Roberts, and performed by Mr Roberts and company in an amusing manner. Mr Roberts and Miss Ruby Celeste appeared in Packing Up, a highly successful duologue. Mr Ainslie Burton's imitations of well-known artistes were much appreciated, and some finished character sketches were submitted by Mr Charles Pond.

SEASIDE PAVILION. — Proprietors, the South Shields Corporation.—Mr W. Catlin's Pierrots are still here, and since the season began large and appreciative audiences have daily gathered to witness their afternoon and evening performances.

ST. HELENS.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs T. Barrasford, F. Willmot, and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—Seeley and West, comedians and instrumentalists, head the bill here this week and are well received. The Brothers Attilla, men of muscle, give a clever performance. Denby and Dent, in their comedy act "The Singing Barber," create plenty of laughter. Other good turns in the programme include Oswald, equilibrist; Miss Rose Alexander, serio; Mr Tom Walker, vocalist; Duncan, club manipulator; and the Sisters Terry, duettists.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—A capital programme is provided here this week. Miss Millie Hylton stars, and meets with a hearty reception. Johnny Danvers has good songs and sings them admirably. The Fitzroys are much above the average aerial gymnasts, their turn being both smart and clever. Wright and Elton are seen to advantage in a skipping-rope dance. Lillian Neville sings her songs in a pleasing manner. Ernie Leech is a ventriloquist of high standing. Ginnett's steeds prove interesting, the animals having been cleverly trained. On Friday the performance was for the benefit of the Fenton Nursing Institution and Convalescent Home.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—The attraction provided here during the week has been the domestic moral drama The Sin of Her Childhood, by Mr J. A. Campbell, and played by him and his company. The play was received with much favour by a well-filled house on Monday. The principal characters are well played, especially by Mr Austen Milroy, Stephen Haysel and afterwards Dr. Henry Grainger; Mr J. A. Campbell, Capt. John Thornton; and Miss Mary Fulton, Mary Haysel. Little Jennie as Little Mary, and afterwards Erick Dugdale, played nicely; and Little Dott Moss as Hannah Spry, with song and dance, won great applause. The other parts also were all in good hands. The play is admirably staged. A complimentary benefit to Little Dott Moss was announced for Friday night.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—For this week Mr Edward Neville and his company are reviving the well-known drama After Dark.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—The programme here includes Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins in their amusing comedy oddity Mashing the Missus; the Langdons, picture singers, in illustrated songs; Alix Lukos, in dramatic reminiscences entitled "The Pictures in the Fire;" the Smythsons in their capitally played sketch Our Suite; the American Bioscope; Rousby's "In Paris," an electric review in four tableaux; the Three Missouris, a clever trio of acrobats; Geo. A. Booker and Mabel Narbis, and their sketch Inventions; Madame Emmy's cleverly trained fox-terriers; and Brown, Le Clerq, and Co. in their comical sketch A Dark Night Before Us.

TYNEMOUTH.

PALACE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Graham; Acting-Manager and Musical-Director, Herr Arnold Blomé.—Mr Arthur Roberts and company, who paid a visit here on Monday, achieved a tremendous success. The chief features of the programme were Packed Up, a duologue by Harry Grattan; and Where's the Count? written by Mr Roberts himself. The eminent comedian was in excellent form, and valuable assistance was rendered by Miss Ruby Celeste, Mr Charles Pond, Miss Barry Eldon, Mr Ainslie Burton, Mr Stanley Damerell, and Miss Annie Dale. The Royal Court Orchestra, under the bâton of Herr Wilhelm Webber, still remains under engagement, and pleases with its various selections. Williams and Brown, cross-talk comedians, obtain a flattering reception; Helene and Emilon, novelty gymnasts, perform some clever feats; Clarence Seaton, entertainer, scores with his various items; and Lilian Harvey, contralto; and the American Bioscope also contribute to the programme.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Payne. — The Anglo-Viennese Band commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, when the capital selections rendered were much appreciated by a large and enthusiastic audience. The conductor, Mr Fredolph Wineaott, is a native of Weston, and was loudly applauded for his excellent violin solo "Bolero." Miss Eleanor Vane is a gifted vocalist and sang delightfully "Under the Deodar" and "An old garden."

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The Strolling Players have been appearing here this week. On Monday an excellent programme was submitted. Miss Grace Swinburne sang very pleasingly "Sammy;" Mr Charles Penrose caused much laughter with his singing of "He'd a funny little way;" Mr R. Taylor was praiseworthy in his mimetic sketch; and Mr Alfred Wootten was heard to advantage in "My sweetheart when a boy." Miss Ella Primrose must be commended for an efficient pianoforte solo.

WALSALL.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED. — General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood. — Messrs George Harris and Fred S. Jennings's company is occupying the boards here this week in the drama Why Woman Sins. Mr Fred Terriss is admirably suited in the part of Capt. Herbert Carlton; Mr Roy Fortescue is well placed as Lieut. Harry Maxwell; as Cecil Spencer Mr George Harris is capital; Miss Winifred Preece gives an excellent portrayal of Lily De Vere. Miss Hilda Merilese as Nell Desmond is very satisfactory, and Miss Mildred Cottell gives a praiseworthy rendering of Ida Valette.

WALTHAMSTOW.

PALACE. — Managing Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—Among the many attractive features in a carefully selected programme, the foremost position must be accorded to Mr G. H. Chirgwin, who, making his bow to a Walthamstow audience, achieved an instantaneous success. The popular white eyed musical kaffir was in capital form on Monday evening, and kept a crowded house in a state of perpetual hilarity. Miss Lily Sharplin gives some clever imitations of well-known stars; Mr Dave Toole is a quaintly funny comedian; some pretty work is executed by Mdlle. Ongar on the trapeze; Mr Charles Deane proves himself as popular as ever; the Paragon Trio warble sweetly; a very droll comedian is found in Mr Ernest Rees, whose comicalities are highly appreciated; laughter and applause are evoked by the wildly funny doings of the aerial comedians, Frobel and Ruge; the Sisters Laurie are attractive comediennes; and the concluding item is Mr Joe Peterman's musical comedy scena, The Factory Girl, supported with much spirit by Miss Nellie Lewis.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmot.—A crowded house gave an encouraging welcome to a capital list of artistes on Monday evening. Atlas and Miss Vulcana are excellent athletes, and Silvo supplies a capital musical turn. Fred Curran is an eccentric comedian, and Sheila Deans charms all with her singing and dancing. The Waffatangs score in a musical act, and Mabel Thorne delights all with her round of songs.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND. — General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Fred Conneaux.—A Traitor Prince is being presented this week by Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company to houses that appreciate the sensational situations to the full. Mr C. M. Montanini gives a realistic representation of the Hindoo Prince, Rao Dalmeirez; Mr V. Carter does well as Lieut. Frank Derrick; Mr E. Carter Livesey as Billy Bright and Mr T. G. Vane as Hon. Bobby are responsible for some genuine and unobtrusive comedy; Lolo Vane is played in pleasing manner by Miss Lilian Rosebery; Miss Beatrice Western exhibits exceptional dramatic ability in her delineation of the character of Vashti; and Miss Maudie Grayson contributes greatly to the lighter portions of the piece as the lively Pansy Blossom.

WINDSOR.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Governing Director, Mr Samuel Jones; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry E. Rickitt.—After a fortnight's interval this theatre was reopened on Monday by Miss Daisy De Roy and Mdlle. Lucretia's company with the nautical comedy-burlesque, An English Belle, the book of which is written by Mr Bert Albert Rutley, the music being arranged and composed by Mr Fred Eplett. As an all-round show this production is most entertaining and attractive, and of just the variety order that should, and does, attract the general public. The cast numbers something like thirty members, and the leading rôles are assumed with high artistic and histrionic ability by Miss Daisy De Roy as Alice Oatfield, the English belle; Mdlle. Lucretia as Jack Trenant "Jolly Jack;" Miss Gerty Maynard as Tom Trunion; Miss Gerty Wasley, Mr Bert Albert Rutley, Mr Victor Lawlon, Miss Hilda De Grey, Mrs William Letters as Sunny Jim; and Miss Clara Vincent. The play is thoroughly well acted all through, and is well staged, Mr Carl Ostend and Mr Townesend rendering valuable service in the general management. The dancers are clever and well cultured, and the same may be said of the whole company.

WORCESTER.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr Arthur Carlton; General Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—That popular musical pantomimical farce entitled His Majesty's Guests is on a return visit this week, Mr Fred Karno's clever company giving representations to large and appreciative audiences. The performances are very good indeed and the piece is finely mounted. Except that Mr Hooper succeeds Mr Craig as Miffin, the universal provider, the company is the same that has appeared recently on tour. Miss Marie Campbell is still the lady shop-lifter, whilst Miss Madge Campbell appears as Miffin's daughter, and Miss Katie Brunton is the New Woman. Both the Misses Campbell sing and dance in fine style. Of course, the central figure in the play is Sergt. Lightning (Mr Wm. Rokeby), who is inimitable in the many rôles he assumes, particularly as the shopman, whose troubles and trials he exaggerates with much real humour. The knock-about business is well sustained by Messrs Victor Thomas (Bunker), Tom Manardo (Solina), Charles Cardon (Fritz), and others, and the whole piece goes merrily.

WORTHING.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. B. Dixon.—Mr Harry B. Stanford and Miss Laura Burt were here on Monday in Why William Lied. As Wm. Jackson Mr Harry Stanford was excellent, as was Mr Thomas Reynolds as Charlie Smythe. Mr Chris Walker as Colonel Wm. Jackson was effective; Miss Laura Burt as Mabel Dean was undoubtedly good; and the remaining characters were excellently placed. On Thursday Mr Chas. Macdona's company appeared in The Three Little Maids.

WREXHAM.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr Herbert Nicholls.—This week the following are appearing:—Mr A. S. Leslie's electric animated tableaux; Mr Eric Graham, coster comedian; Miss Millie Harris, descriptive vocalist; Mr Charles Dixon, eccentric comedian and dancer; Mr Francis Souple, contortionist; and Miss Kate Lynd, comedienne.

YORK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—The Island of Pharos, played Mr Glynn Osborne's company, drew a fairly large audience on Monday, and was well received. The music is for the most part tuneful and pretty, and the mounting of the opera is most tasteful. Mr Daley Cooper makes the most of Wm. Sykes, and when more familiar with the rôle should be a great success. Mr Maitland Dicker causes some amusement as Henry Sykes, and the excellent vocalisation of Mr Leonard Russell is highly appreciated. Miss Cissie Vaughan looks particularly sweet, and sings tastefully as Lady Gladys Lovering, and Miss May Clifton as Antigone is specially effective.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—This week the Phillipi Brothers are a source of great attraction, and are well received. Percy Curry is a clever comedian, and the eccentricities of the Brothers Lang never fail to evoke applause. Terry and Bentley present a neat comedy act, and the Harlem Brothers in their particular business are first rate. Flo Challis, R. W. Foster, and Beatrice Renee are all well received.

Code-word for Telegrams, "Miser."

MITCHELL and KENYON, 22, Clayton-street, Blackburn.

NEW FILMS.

7,358. FEEDING SEAGULLS FROM A REFUSE HOPPER, WHITEHAVEN, CUMBERLAND.

A beautiful marine picture taken from a tug in a heavy sea towing a refuse hopper out into deep water to discharge her cargo, followed by myriads of seagulls, who are hovering over the boat and making dives at the refuse.

Apart from the interest attached to the birds, a very fine sea picture is shown of the hopper diving heavily into the waves as she is towed along.

50ft. Price, £1 1s.

7,359. THE KIDDIES AND THE BLACK DIAMONDS.

A most amusing study of two children amusing themselves with the contents of a coal-scuttle. The expressions of the little children's faces is most interesting, and their condition at the finish, when they have carefully inspected the coal, is most ludicrous.

125ft. Price, £2 12s. 6d.

7,360. FERRYING A COACH-AND-FOUR ACROSS LAKE WINDERMERE.

A very pretty scene of excellent photographic quality, taking in the most picturesque country in England.

75ft. Price, £1 11s. 6d.

1,650. GARROTTING OF A MOTOR CAR.

A HIGHLY SENSATIONAL PICTURE—THRILLING IN THE EXTREME.

SCENE 1: A COUNTRY LANE.—Two tramps are seen making their nefarious preparations for an attack on a motor, by means of the "garrotting" method. The rope being fixed across the road at a height which they think will "hold" the occupants of the car to the best advantage, the tramps sit down to a frugal meal. A motor-horn is soon heard, and the tramps, after placing the rope in position, conceal themselves. The car, which has three occupants, rapidly approaches. On reaching the rope the occupants of the front seat, a lady and the chauffeur, steer clear, but the lady's husband, on the back seat, is "caught," and hurled violently into the roadway. The car is stopped, and the lady and chauffeur come to the rescue of the injured man. They are assailed violently by the ruffians, but, owing in no small measure to the pluck of the lady, they get the worst of it—one being felled to the ground and the other bound to a tree with the rope which was intended for his victims. The chauffeur rides off for the police. When they arrive on the scene the ruffians are handcuffed after a desperate struggle, and when the injured man has been tenderly handed into the car the party drive off, the handcuffed ruffians being obliged to make the best of the journey on foot, being held by the policeman and literally dragged after the car when they get up speed. Length, 290ft. Price, £7 5s.

185. A RAID ON A COINERS' DEN.

BRIMFUL OF THRILLING SITUATIONS.

The Coiners at Work. The Secret Sign of Admittance to the Den Discovered by the Detective. The detective gains admittance to the den, but is overpowered and left gagged and bound. The coiners make their escape, but, after a desperate struggle, are captured and led into prison in view of the audience. Length, 460ft. Price, £11 10s.

177. A SMART CAPTURE

Of a Burglar by a Country Policeman. Funny from start to finish. Length, 190ft. Price, £4 15s.

194. MILITARY TACTICS.

The trooper outwits his lieutenant, and the servant girl hoodwinks them both. This is a really clever comic, and the ludicrous situations with which it abounds are simply side-splitting.

Length, 201ft. Price, £5.

CLARENDON FILMS.—Exclusive London Agents.

101. A RAILWAY TRAGEDY. 225ft.

102. OFF FOR THE HOLIDAY. 375ft.
Dangerous to those with any sense of humour. Side-splitting.

LOCAL WORK.—Operators with loaded Chrono Cameras sent out at an hour's notice. Developing and Printing at Lowest Prices, and all work of first-rate quality. A Local Picture is ALWAYS a Great Attraction.

THE "PROFESSIONAL" CHRONO, the King of Bioscopes, sustains its popularity—and the reason is not far to seek. Its construction and all-round reliability and durability have made it a HOUSEHOLD WORD in the Cinématograph world. Wherever you go you will find a "CHRONO," and its owner is always a happy man. Come and see it at work if you are not satisfied with your present machine, or if you require another for the coming season.

A DAY IN THE HAY FIELDS.

Haymaking is one of the country industries which has always appealed to artists on account of the many picturesque and beautiful scenes which it presents. In this photograph all the various phases are beautifully shown, from the cutting of the grass until the hay is piled high on the stack. First we see a field of long grass with the reaping machine at work, and it is very pretty to see the grass go down before the machine drawn by the two fine horses. Next the field is "shaken," or, in other words, the cut grass is tossed high in the bright sun by an ingenious machine and left spread out on the ground. Later on another clever device is drawn over the field and the hay is left raked up into long ridges ready for carting. This is the stage at which the children love to get into it, and we have a very pretty view of a number of small kiddies indulging in a delightful romp in the sweet-scented hay. Lastly, the carts come along and gather it all up, huge masses at a time, and carry it off to the farm where willing hands stack it high upon a rick ready for winter food.

Length, 200ft. Price, £4 3s. 4d.

THE PRESS — ILLUSTRATED.

This is a film of an altogether new description, presenting, as it does, an illustration or a parody of the titles of a number of well-known periodicals. It opens with a photograph of the title-page of the magazine called "Our Dogs," which dissolves into three beautiful tableaux of some fine pedigree animals. These life-size animated portraits of prize dogs are very beautiful examples of Cinématography, and are received with great enthusiasm. Next we see the cover of "The Lady" newspaper, which folds back, and on the title-page is a portrait of a typical lady of fashion. This dissolves into a very dirty servant girl, who makes grimaces at the camera in a very unladylike manner. "The People" is the next newspaper to be treated, and its front page gives way, by a change quite new to animated photography, to a marvellous photograph of a swaying, surging crowd. Next comes "Pick-Me-Up," whose title is punningly illustrated by a rascally policeman "picking up" a drunken swell who has fallen to the ground after mistaking a lamp post for a friendly acquaintance. The policeman also picks up the gentleman's watch and forgets to return it to him. In the following tableau "Home Chat" is wittily parodied by an old married couple, whose married life would appear to be not one of unalloyed bliss. The title-page of "The Rapid Review" is folded back to show a march past of soldiers, whose review is rapid with a vengeance, for, by a trick of Cinématography, the quick march of the men is quicker than any regiment has ever attempted before or since. The front page of "Answers" dissolves away to reveal a mistress reprimanding a maid. The latter "answers back" in a way which is evidently extremely tantalising to the former, who loses her temper and falls upon the erring servant, and a lively hair-pulling contest brings that scene to a close. The "Sunday Companion" is read in a sense which its proprietors did not intend. On the Sunday in question, the companion is a young man, his companion a lady, and the companionship is evidently pleasing to both. But a third companion, in the shape of a small boy, lurks beneath the sofa. The discovery leads to upheavals in the companionship. Lastly, the front page of "The King" newspaper folds back to reveal a beautiful and hitherto unpublished portrait of his most gracious Majesty.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

AUTUMN TOURS.

WE ARE NOW VERY BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR AUTUMN TOURS,
but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist,
WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are also very busy Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We still hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional Work takes Precedence over all other orders.

By Special Arrangement,

TOURING MANAGERS

can have their Wardrobes Cleaned between Shows, when in or near London.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
The veteran J. L. Toole has a good story in "The Era" Annual (49, Wellington-street, Strand) a publication which is highly valued by all who have anything to do with the stage. He says:—I was once playing in "Dearer than Life" with Irving and Billington at Leeds. After the performance several gentlemen were in the general room of the hotel where we were staying, and among them a certain Mr Jones, who professed to have a large acquaintance in the profession, and who appeared to have a local reputation as a judge of ages.
"Well, how old," said someone, "would you take Mr Toole to be?'
"Well," said he, "sixty-five, if he's a day."
"Do you know him?" I asked.
"Oh, yes; I know him very well indeed."
"Ah! and how old should you take me to be?"
"Well, I should take you to be forty, if you're a day."
Irving asked Mr Jones if he didn't think Mr Toole was nearer seventy-five than sixty-five. "No," he said; "sixty-five, if he's a day," and the company present seemed to put it down that that would be my age. They had most of them been to the theatre and seen me—for the first time probably—playing an old man; and as it was my first visit to the town, and we were going on by the mail train that night, I had a fancy not to go away and leave them under the impression that I was this very old gentleman. I found that Jones was a decent sort of fellow, and I said to Irving that before I went I should just give him my card and let him know what a mistake he had made. By and bye, when our cab arrived, we said good-night to our casual acquaintances, and, taking Mr Jones aside, I handed him my card, whereupon he said "Oh, indeed!" in a very offensive manner, turned upon his heel, and walked away.
"Well," I said to my friends as we drove away, "that's the most impertinent fellow I think I ever met." Whereupon Billington and Irving went into fits of laughter, and confessed that they had warned Mr Jones that I was continually passing myself off as Toole, and he was to be quite prepared for my handing him a card and trying the imposition upon him.—Leeds and Yorkshire Mercury, Friday, Jan. 22d, 1904.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual for the current year preserves all the features which have made it popular among actors and actresses in the past—short stories, some of them very good and some of them not so good, by well-known entertainers, countless photographs, and a list of plays produced during the year which should make it useful to students of stage history. It is a sign of the times that Omar Khayyam should be quoted on the first page of the almanack.—Morning Post, Jan. 23d.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.

New Theatre.—Manager, Mr Z. Andrews.—A strong racing drama entitled Fiends of London is being played here this week by Mr Herbert Fuller's capable company. Mr E. St. Clair-Forbes embodies the hero in good style, and Mr F. C. Biron presents a fine character study of Captain Crawley. Mr Herbert Fuller is excellent as Bob Archer; Mr H. Evan Gibbon is amusing as Peter Shark; Mr R. Nelme Grasswell plays very ably as Mad Joe; and Mr James Caversham as Mat Christie acts with feeling. Mr James M'Allister is good as Sandy Macduff. Miss Emilie Lewis is charming as Flossie Spring; Little Alice is deserving of great praise for her acting as Tim and Sally Frost; and Miss Nellie Waddington gives a powerful impersonation of Laurie Christie. The specialities in act one are well received.

ALDERSHOT.

Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr George E. Williams.—His Majesty's Guests—one of those pantomimical farces in which ludicrosity in an advanced form is the predominant feature—is proving a mirth-creating holiday attraction at Aldershot, and Mr Fred Karno's company works hard to bring the performance to a successful issue. Clever acrobatic business is introduced, and many tuneful musical numbers are rendered, the quintet of part singers being capital. In the same line of vocal efforts Miss Hettie Gale is loudly encored for an original topical song, and Messrs Frank Morton and Harry Roxbury and Miss Jessimine Newcombe are also well received. A versatile comedian is Mr Roxbury as Sergeant Lightning, a large amount of work falling to his share. Mr Frank Morton does well as Lord Easem; Mr E. De Vere as Miffin is acceptable; Mr Victor Knight is a good Minks; and a capital Fritz comes from Mr H. Richter. Messrs L Sterling, Chas. Griffiths, and Sydney Russell leave little to be wished for. Miss Jessimine Newcombe as Lady Maud helps the success; whilst as Miss Manley Miss Jennie Bolton is a typical new woman. A winsome looking Dolly is Miss Hettie Gate. Last, but not least for special mention, is Mr Tom Manardo, whose clever make-up as Selina is capital. Several others in the minor rôles also add a share to the success. The piece is excellently staged.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—Mr Walter Melville's latest play, A Girl's Cross Roads, is being presented by Mr Douglas Bruce's company at this theatre this week. There is plenty of light and shade in the story of a girl's downfall through drink. The character of the female dipsomaniac, played by Miss Agnes Halton, and said to be a picture from real life, is certainly well conceived and admirably portrayed. It calls for the display of a dramatic force and intensity, and a severe physical strain which tries the actress's powers of endurance, especially in the paroxysms of wild delirium induced by overdoses of brandy. Miss Ethel Bracewell presents a lovable portrayal of the young schoolmistress, Constance Cornell. Miss Kate Walfred emphasises the worst side of a heartless, frivolous creature, revengeful and morally despicable; Miss Gladys Newcombe makes a lively maid and is responsible, together with her sweetheart—Mr Will Corrie as Toby—for the vein of humour which runs through the piece. Important male characters are strongly outlined by Mr Geo. Galsford as the hero; Mr E Eardley Howard as Dr Weston, his friend; Mr W. E. Griffiths as Meadows, an old farmer; Mr W. Fraser-Brunner as the villain, Mr Jno. Rogers as the man from Australia, and others in minor parts The play is admirably mounted, the scenes and the stage properties being rich, new, and untarnished.

New Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot. —The two main features of the programme at this pleasure resort for the week are the star artistes, Lord, Murray, and Lord, in their comedy athletic act, "The Intruders," in which the artists show their athletic skill and their ability as comedians. The other combination are the Arleys, cyclists, acrobats, and knockabouts. As a comedian T. B. Fayne is well to the fore; then there are the charming comedienne, Lily Sharp; Geo. Barclay, descriptive vocalist; and Miss Reina and her piccaninnies in a singing and dancing act. The Hippo. Bioscope projects some interesting pictures.

ATTERCLIFFE.

Palace (late Alhambra)—Proprietor, Mr T. Allan Edwards; General Manager, Mr H. F. Millar. —This place of amusement reopened on Bank Holiday under the proprietorship of Mr T. Allan Edwards. The building has been thoroughly overhauled, new electric and hot water apparatus being installed. The decorations have been carried out by Messrs Sparrow and Co., of Nottingham, in a most lavish manner. The following well-known artistes are appearing twice nightly to crowded houses:—Lotto, Lillo, and Otto, trick and comedy cyclists; Sisters Hall, descriptive vocalists; Charles Somers, comedian; Jean Seul, "the Indian Mystery;" Harry Grey, comedian; Francis and Melli, in the musical novelty act entitled Brigands; Drum and Major, duettists, dancers, &c; and Matt Wilkinson and company in the humorous sketch entitled The Registry Office.

BARNSLEY.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell. —Mr Henry Johnston's company in The Bank of England made its first bow to the public at the above place on Monday. The Sherlock Holmes of Mr George Henry is portrayed in a like-life manner; Mr Edwin Walton is excellent as Sir Sidney Barraclough; Mr Juan De Alberti deserves praise as Stephen Hartley; and Gordon Isaacs is in the capable hands of Mr Charles Ninian. Miss Marie Loreth makes a pleasing Aminta Bean, an American widow; Sylvia is charmingly played by Miss K Gough; Lucy Lockett has a clever exponent in Miss Dorothy Normandale; and Margaret Dane is well played by Miss Amy Ellam.

Public Hall.—Manager, Mr G. E. Hoey.—Mr Jasper Redfern's animated photographs still continue successfully, and this week as extra attractions we have Les Barrs, gymnasts; J. E. Linstead, baritone; the Radium Girls, vocalists and dancers; and Charlton Howarth, song illustrator.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr George Stone. — Mrs Lewis Waller's company with Zaza is here this week. Miss Ethel Warwick in the title-rôle presents a fine study of the wayward Zaza, full of pathos and true to nature. Mr Eric Mayne as Bernard Dufresne gives an admirable portrayal of the part. Mr Edmund Lea as Cascart submits a clever impersonation. Miss K Kearney as Zaza's aunt provides excellent comedy in a most acceptable manner. All the remainder of the characters are sustained in a capital manner.

Tivoli —Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr Tom Whiting.—The star turn, the American Comedy Four, was a great success They are truly eccentric vocalists, the rich humour introduced into their catchy ditties causing roars of laughter. The Goldena Trio give a novel turn, their hand balancing and other feats being particularly clever. Baroux and Bion, eccentric acrobats, amuse in their sketch, Navvies in the Navy. Arthur Gill, with his humorous anecdotes, is well received. Cassie Walmer, the dusky princess, sings well and is an especially good sand dancer. Tom C. Carroll, comedian and dancer, is also a good turn.

BACUP.

New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr Richard Nightingale.—After being closed for some considerable period, the New Court Theatre reopened to a record house on Saturday. During the time the theatre has been closed most extensive alterations and decorations have been carried out by the lessee, Mr Frank Denman-Wood, the audience, by their enthusiasm and attendance, showing their appreciation of the efforts made on their behalf in a most marked manner, which must have been very gratifying to the lessee, who has spared no effort or cost to make both audience and artistes comfortable alike. Mr Charles March's historical classical drama, The Priest of the Temple, is the attraction chosen. The play is well acted throughout. Mr Chas. March was seen in his happiest vein as Valerius, and his sound acting and scholarly handling of a difficult part was greatly appreciated. As Decus Fronto Mr Ronald Bayne was very successful, playing with a manly force that carried all before him. Mr Henry Moxon was well placed as Appius Herdonius. The same may be said of Mr Stanley May as Hermanus. In Mr W. Clarke and Mr W. Fitzroy Temple we have two excellent studies as Priests of the Temple. Special mention must be made of the acting of Miss Marie North as Prestantia and Miss Evelyn Hope as Polita. Amongst others deserving mention were Mr Whit Rogerson, Mr Wilton Cross, Mr R. Tyson, Mr Henry Oakley, and Mr Alf Lockhart. Special mention is due to the admirable manner in which the play is mounted. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr Joseph Collins, the resident-conductor, played between acts three and four the "March of the Priests of the Temple," specially composed for this occasion by Mr Charles March, in a spirited manner, and met with a cordial reception. Amongst other attractions a powerful choir and selections by the local change prize band were introduced during the action of the play and in the intervals respectively.

BATH.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long. —After the usual summer recess, during which time the theatre has been cleaned, the corridors and saloon redecorated, new heating apparatus fixed in the circles, and several other improvements carried out, the autumn season commenced here on Bank Holiday, when one of Mr Walter Melville's combinations began a tour with this gentleman's thrilling melodrama A Girl's Cross Roads, which, notwithstanding the brilliant weather, succeeded in drawing a crowded audience in the more popular parts of the house, who received the piece and players alike with enthusiasm. Miss Beatrice Homer presents a graphic sketch of the drink-craving woman, Barbara Wade, her big scenes in the last two acts being watched with rapt attention, in which her power and ability as an actress are fully tested and finely brought out. Miss Hewetson makes a pleasing contrast as the quiet, but strong-minded Constance Cornell. The unattractive part of Nellie Meadows is vividly acted by Miss Mary Rose, who does not spare herself in the least in presenting the worst side of a woman's character. Amongst the male rôles, that of the old farmer, John Meadows, impersonated by that experienced actor, Mr Edwin J. Wilde, deserves first honours. Mr Wingold Lawrence makes a manly hero as Jack Livingstone, his friend, Dr. Weston, having a sound representative in Mr Charles Terry. Villainy is unblushingly delineated by Mr H. K. Ayliff and Mr John Brooks as the rogues, Cuthbert Lumley and Luke Ramsden; while the humorous element is well to the fore in the creations of Toby Turver and Tilly Vayne, comically rendered by Mr John Hitchins and Miss Emily Custance. The scenery of Mr George Tweddell deserves more than passing notice.

Sydney Gardens.—In consequence of the alterations at the Palace Theatre not being completed, Mr Frank Macnaghten is continuing his vaudeville entertainments at these charming gardens. In addition to the orchestra, whose selections are well received, come Slippère, the marvellous blind pianist and vocalist, and Mr H. A. Moore, a capital mimic, both of whom meet with much appreciation. Mr G. T. Marriner, a local baritone vocalist, also sings with acceptance.

BATLEY.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, Mr and Mrs J. Edward Whitty; Resident-Manager, Mr G. M. Hurst.—The above theatre was reopened on Monday, and a good audience assembled to witness the performance of The Scarlet Woman, which is being performed by Miss Rosalind Scott Watson's company. The title-rôle was undertaken in a capital manner by Miss Watson; Mr Ernest J. Fare made a good Richard Marchant; and Mr Wolston Foster made Will Raymond sufficiently villainous. Mr Reginald Fox gave a capital portrayal of Philip Gordon; Mr H. Lauderdale was well placed as Jacob Isaacson; and the comedy element was well sustained by Mr Mat Melrose (Samuel Hopkins), Miss Ruby Hamilton (Charlotte Simpkins), and Miss Lalla Cowell (Fanchette), some good songs and dances being given by them. Miss Muriel Alleyne was responsible for a pretty rendering of Margery Honor, and Miss Gracie Walker did well as Jeannie.

BEDFORD.

Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter R. Wilson.—This theatre was opened on Monday, after being closed for renovation and structural alterations, which have added materially to the comfort and safety of those attending. It was opened on Monday afternoon and evening as a hippodrome, and the good houses which attended had an excellent variety programme put before them. For the first three nights this week there are some excellent turns. Lieutenant Albini, the modern Houdin, performs his new and startling illusion "The Sailor and his Lass." This is a wonderfully clever box trick. Lieutenant Albini defies detection, having three members of the audience on the stage to see that all is fair and square and above board. Miss Marie Gautier as the sailor's lass performed her difficult rôle with marked ability, Miss Alice Majeska submitting a clever impersonation of the sailor. The Villion Troupe of cyclists, which includes a lady who can accomplish twenty-five pirouette somersaults in succession, also present a fine entertainment. They have a large variety of tricks, and can do almost anything on wheels, including steeplechasing and obstacle jumping. The Debreans give a clever exhibition of juggling and some very funny shadowgraphs; Harry Phydora, comedian, who proved a great favourite on his last appearance in Bedford in All at Sea, fairly takes the house by storm; Sisters Belrose give a good exhibition of dancing; and the Orown Trio, character vocalists, are well received. Miss Florence Trevellion proves a sweet-voiced singer. The programme concludes with a Bioscope entertainment.

BELFAST.

Theatre Royal—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr J. M. M'Cann.—This popular theatre reopened for the season on Saturday with the attractive drama The Octoroon, presented by Mr J. F. Elliston's company. Mr Stephen Ewart's acting as Salem Scudder calls for more than ordinary praise; Mr Eric Hudson was sufficiently realistic as the villainous Jacob M'Closky; Miss Ada Elliston must be commended for her clever acting in the rôle of Zoe; Mr Lonnen Meadows gave an excellent interpretation of the difficult rôle of Wah-No-Tee, the Indian chief; Mr Frank Strickland appeared successfully as George Peyton; and Mr Harry Leander was simply inimitable as Pete. Miss Ada Tilley was delightful as Paul, and Miss Beatrice Shirley was charming as Dora Sunnyside. Mr Alf Bankes was a capital Colonel Pointdexter, and other roles were well sustained by Miss Edith Halford, Miss L. Harris, and Messrs Gerald Herbert, C. Clemson, and Hugh Brady. Specialities were introduced during the course of the piece by Miss Alice Smith and Miss Nellie Shannon, who engaged with some members of the company (the Dahomian Cake-walk Champions) in a very clever cake-walk, and Mr Jimmy James also claimed much attention with his finely executed bone solos and banjo performance.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden.—The great Goldin heads the bill here, and, assisted by Miss Jean Fransiola and company, he performs some marvellous illusions. Mr Daniel Gillen is a smart ventriloquist, and a successful appearance is made by the Adonis Trio (Stewart, Stevens, and Scanlon), burlesque Protean artistes. The dancing of the Maples calls for special mention, and Mr Eric Graham is a character comedian of decided merit. Messrs Muir and Bartlett appear in their original duologue, A Clerical Complication, which is very funny, and Miss Clarice Netta, balladist, sings very sweetly. Mr Billy Williams, comic vocalist, supplies a novelty with his "little people," and his song relating to such wins much favour. Others here are Rose Waller, refined vocalist, and Millie Harris, comedienne, who sings remarkably well.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—The Hartley Wonders top the bill, and astonish all with their clever jumping, many of their feats being marvellous. Miss Maggie Walsh, the original singing mill girl, renders several songs with expression; and Geraldo is one of the best jugglers seen here for some time. Foreman and Fannan repeat last week's success with their smart songs and patter; Miss Mabel La Blanche is an attractive and clever comedienne to listen to; Miss Alexandra Edwin is a delightful balladist; and the bill is completed by Messrs Frank Seeley and Mr Bert Brantford, eccentric comedians.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs. —The Norton Trio, comedians, occupy the premier position on the bill here, and at once achieve an instantaneous success with their performance. The Five Clevelands make a hit in their attractive act as jugglers and dancers, and a successful appearance has been made by Mdlle. Kloët in her novel spectacle, the electrical effects being extremely beautiful. The Athlones, Herculean athletes, create quite a sensation, and Miss Millie Denham is a charming and talented comedienne. The Sevilles appear to great advantage in their musical speciality "Gems of Melody," and the new views exhibited by Weisker Bros.'s successful Bioscope are undoubtedly a feature of the programme. Mr Herbert Rule, quaint comedian, and Mr M. Montgomery, a local comedian, complete the programme.

BILSTON.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—This house was reopened on Saturday last with The Plucky Nipper, played by Miss Bonwin Carlton's company. Miss Carlton is very good in the title-part. She also portrays another character, that of Polly Hilliard, a slavey, and in this she is very amusing. Mr Edward Surrey works hard all through the drama, and makes Bill Burgess an important character. Mr E. Fryer as Richard Vanbruh is indeed excellent. Mr C. W. Coleman is manly as Captain Frank Leslie, and Mr Douglas Campbell's Tommy Atkins was a capital embodiment. Miss Fanny Morse as Ina Fenwick, the heroine, plays carefully. The part of the blind girl, Daisy Paget, is well acted by Miss Esther Lamonte.

BIRKENHEAD.

Theatre Metropole. — Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—This house reopened its doors after the summer recess on Bank Holiday with a spirited rendering of the comedy Facing the Music, admirably performed by Mr Gerald Alexander's company. Mr Tim Riley scores heavily as John Smith, the Rev. John Smith is well impersonated by Mr Coningsby Brierley, and Mr Cecil Newton is an excellent exponent of the rôle of Colonel Duncan Smith. Miss Mavis Hope is an admirable Mabel, Miss Bertha Graham is an efficient Norah, and Miss Ethel Hope, Miss Rose Carew, Mr Patrick Evans, and Mr George N. Wallace are conspicuous in the cast. A little play entitled Barbara serves as a curtain-raiser.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell. — Mr Henry Eglington's company in an interesting play, entitled When the Lights are Low, are here this week. Admiral Goldsworthy is skilfully played by Mr Tom Roberts, Ikey Isaacson is ably enacted by Mr Tom R. Seymour, and Miss Madelaine Duval is well suited as Kathleen Kerry. Other principal parts are capably sustained by Mr Horace Booth, Mr Fred W. Mussett, Mr Henry Eglington, and Mr Fred Carlton. The piece is liberally staged.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties. — Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—A capital holiday company includes several pronounced favourites, including Mr Will Hebden, a genuinely amusing low comedian; Williams and Brown, excellent patterers; the Ernestine Trio, in The Yorkshire Lad in London, and the Five Foys, pantomimists of undeniable ability; Burns and Evans, American comedians; and Boyd and Gilfain, entertaining comedians, are deservedly leading turns. Mr Harry Weldon's comic effusions are well received, Miss Vera Mayne is an accomplished comedienne, and Miss Katie Le Blanche, serio, and Messrs Harrigan and Holt, comedians, complete the company.

BLYTH.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr George E. Good.—The Bank Holiday attraction here consisted of Miss Dorothy Oswald's excellent company in a musical version of East Lynne In the rôle of Lady Isabel Miss Oswald plays throughout with great feeling, and had a most enthusiastic reception. As Archibald Carlyle Mr Herbert Barrs gave a finished and well-studied performance, whilst the Levison of Mr Pascoe Bioletti was a typical exposition of the stage villain. The other parts were in good hands. A special item was introduced by the Bricklayer Conjuror (Mr Alex. Gay), of Cullercoats, who also presents his marvellous box trick, an invention of his own, and truly mystifies his audiences.

BOLTON.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Hermann.—After a closure of eight weeks, during which time it has undergone a thorough cleaning, the doors of the Royal were reopened on Bank Holiday with The New Housemaid to a good audience. The company presenting it is Mr E. Oswald Brooks's. The author, Mr Charles Windermere, appears in the principal character of the Hon. Bertie Rashleigh, and his impersonation of the new housemaid is extremely funny. He is well supported by Mr Somers Bellamy, Mr Arnold Austin, Mr Charles Calvert, Mr Pan E. Draco, Mr John H. Costello, and Misses Madge Haines, Ethel L Caryllon, Pattie Elliott, and Mrs Mallalieu. The comedy is preceded by a comedietta entitled Clause No. Six.

Grand Theatre, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Kenyon. — After a run of dramas variety again occupies the stage here, and the following are the company appearing:—Charlene and Charlene, in a drawing-room entertainment of clever juggling, &c.; the Sisters Charnley, duettists and speciality dancers; A. G. Spry, comedian; the Olmars, acrobats and pirouette tumblers; Alexander, in his wonderful original safety trick-riding performance on a table; the Danbys, eccentric comedians and dancing experts; Alex. M'Nulty, juvenile vocalist; Bob Hamilton, concertinist and instrumentalist; the Ramlos in a comedy triple-bar act; John Terry and Mabel Lambert, comedy couple, in a character study of New York life, entitled Mamie M'Lone; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston. — The Toreador was announced "by general desire," and there was no doubting its welcome, for, despite that the weather on Monday took a turn prejudicial to all indoor amusements, the season thus commenced opened with a full attendance, which encored everything. All this was deserved, for the production proved excellent in every detail, and Miss Alice Oppitz, who played Donna Teresa with a verve and intensity delightful to behold, created a furore. Miss Nelly Bouverie made a success as Mrs Malton Hoppings, and the Misses Nancy Langtyre, Daisie Wallace, and Daisy Stratton were popular in the other parts. Mr W. H. Powell as Pettifer was recalled repeatedly, and Mr T. W. Volt (who scores in a congenial rôle), Mr Fred Allandale, Mr Jno. Donald, and Mr Lionel Victor were all acclaimed.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr V. Turner.—Why William Lied has set the audiences here perspiring with laughter, not that the Grand is "stuffy," but that the provocation for mirth is so incessant. Mr Harry B. Stanford as the William Jackson who lies so glibly invests the part with a breezy effrontery that carries the audience to the end, and Mr Thomas Reynolds as the friend who "fixes things so nicely," is most successful. Mr Chris. Walker as Colonel William Jackson elicits rounds of applause, and Mr Philip Clifford as Dr. Jack Gordon and Mr Reg. van T. Ranney as Dick Norris do well. Miss Laura Burt proves a charming widow, Miss Marie Byron acquits herself as Mrs Colonel Jackson, Miss Frances Davies is the rich and luscious American girl typified, and Miss May Holland as Miss Dean is all that an English girl need be. The Cardinal's Edict has been put on in front, and in this Messrs Harry B Stanford, Reg. van T. Ranney, and Miss Laura Burt also have good parts.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—The drama, From Scotland Yard, has met with a big reception here, and Mr C. Finch-Hatton, who plays the responsible and protean rôle of Detective Jack Dale with aplomb, has been cordially greeted. Miss Carrie Ellis as Mad Marie also deserves the highest praise, and Miss Gertrude Bardsley as the daughter, Mabel, and Miss Marion Forrester as Sybil invest their rôles with true pathos. Mr C. H. Matthews as the prince of swindlers, Dean Fordyce, and Mr Jack Armitage as Richard Drake are both successful. Mr Bert Atherton scores as a comic reporter, and the comedy is further contributed to by Messrs J. E. Firth Dan Agar, and Miss Annie Agar.

Metropole Theatre. — Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr Tom H. Taylor.—The King of Crime opened up the season auspiciously on Monday, a crowded house attending the efforts of Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company. Mr William Clayton acted ably as Ronjarre; Mr A. D. Anderson depicted the miser cleverly; Mr W. Porter as the miser's son was successful; Mr Herbert Evelyn was esteemed as Louis Mascarot; and Mr Harry Liddle acted humorously as Maloney. Miss Marion Turner played the blind wife with much effect; Miss Elizabeth Turner-Elliott won great sympathy as Matilde; and Miss Kitty Russell shone as Clarisse.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—Two Little Vagabonds received a most substantial and sympathetic welcome here on Bank Holiday, Mr Hardie and Miss Von Leer's company playing to a crowded audience. The two little vagabonds were in good hands, Miss Violet Carr as Wally drawing genuine tears of sympathy, while Miss Lilian Francis was also admired as Dick. Mr Talbot Homewood as Thornton, Mr H. Hesslegrave as Mullins, Miss Elene Lonsdale as Marion, Miss Eleanor Papera as Biddy, and Mr Douglas Cecil as Darville also acted in a finished style, and the play otherwise was well produced.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard. — Messrs Paumier and Howard's company appear here in Under the Russian Flag. The play has been followed as usual with avidity, and Mr Walter Howard as Captain Demetrius, Mr Geo. Arthur as Michael, Mr F. W. Freeman as Ivan, Mr Alfred Bennett as Skopolopski, and Mr Hal Forde as Peter have well deserved their honours. Miss Ellen Snow has delighted her admirers as Luka Marischla; Miss Agnes Howard, the opera dancer, has won her way to favour; and Miss Ada Champion appears as Vera Vassiloff.

BLACKPOOL.

His Majesty's Opera House.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone. — Florodora, very admirably enacted by Mr T. B. Davis's company, is the attraction here. Lady Holyrood has a capital exponent in Miss Isabel Dillon, whose singing gives the greatest delight; Mr Edward Lewis repeats his clever and humorous performance of Anthony Tweedlepunch; while Messrs Fred Winn and Leslie Gaze are seen to advantage as Cyrus Gilfain and Frank Abercoed respectively. A very charming Dolores is Miss Lena Maitland, and Miss Lylla Lewis does well as Valleda. Mr J. Paul Callan (Captain Donegal) and Mr William Rousell (Leandro) also merit commendation. The chorus is strong and tuneful, and the staging and dresses are superb. Mr F. Martin Morris assiduously attends to the front of the house.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr T. Sergenson.—Mr George Dance's company, in A Chinese Honeymoon, takes the place of poor Wilson Barrett, who was booked to appear here this week. An exceedingly humorous piece of acting is contributed by Miss Vere Vere, who plays the part of Fi-Fi. She is funny without the slightest effort, and has established herself a warm favourite. Mr Martin Adeson has a part that suits him in Mr Pineapple, whilst Mrs Pineapple is in the able hands of Miss Eva Bevington. Miss Madge Temple, who plays Soo-Soo, sings delightfully; Mr H. Le Maistre is a dignified Hang-Chow; and Mr F. Payne makes a very droll Hi-Lung. Chippee-Chop is creditably sustained by Mr Ernest Laws, and Mr Frank Crimp makes a satisfactory Tom Atherton. Miss Holford Beringer plays Mrs Brown, the official mother-in-law, with due decorum.

Hippodrome.—Lessees, Signor Pepi and Co.; Manager, Mr T. P. Duignan.—Two performances are now given here daily, and the programme submitted this week has won great popularity. Chung Ling Soo, the wonderful Chinese conjuror, mystifies all beholders. Barnard's Marionettes is also a pleasing turn; Barney Vox gives a good ventriloquial show; and F. V. St. Clair is a vocal comedian who is always well received in Blackpool. The Sisters Redfern, banjoists, vocalists, and dancers; Ferriss and Farnley; Alf Gibson; Ryan and Hill, comedians; and Sadie Simpson, vocal comedienne, are also in the bill.

Palace.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller.—Nellie Wallace tops the bill here this week, and complete success attends her efforts to please the numerous holiday-makers who assemble within the walls every afternoon and evening. Melot Hermann gives a very clever conjuring turn, and good support is rendered by Souplessi, the contortionist and ring artist; Ada Victor, comedienne; the Bros. Egbert (the "Happy Dustmen"), comedians; the Elliotts, cyclists; Claude Ginnett, in an equestrian sketch; the Seven Savonas, very aptly described as "musical marvels"; Percy Farrimond, the singing collier; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

Winter Gardens Pavilion.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Messrs Huddlestone and Tiller's grand spectacular ballet From Kerry Fair to the Gorgeous East has now been running a month, and seems to increase in popularity at every performance. The Gardens of the Palace of Nawab and the Durbar procession are marvellous conceptions of exquisite design and colour, and the glories of the East are represented in every conceivable shape and form. The principal parts are excellently represented by Misses Gracie Moore, Clara Davine, Minnie Holland, Minnie Wade, Maude Wright, and Messrs Will Bishop, Fred Russell, Charles Clements, Walter Watson, and Griene Taylor. Prior to the ballet there is a fine variety show, contributed to by the Price Troupe of acrobats, the Lislyn Glee Singers; Charles Leb, with his performing animals, the Kremo Troupe of acrobats; and Tiny Clements, with her horse and dogs.

Tower Circus —General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop.—"House full" is the notice usually found at the entrance both afternoon and evening. The latest acquisition to an already admirable programme is Charles Matthews, the champion jumper of the world, who has many admirers. Herr Munsted's Lilliputian circus, introducing the celebrated Colibris, midgets, is a very pleasing performance. The Imperial Boys' orchestra, under the conductorship of Herr Wilhelm Linde, supply a clever musical turn, and the Novellos give a decidedly new and original equilibristic act. The Moulier Sisters and Madame Therese Renz are still retained.

BOSCOMBE.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart. — This theatre reopened after the usual recess on Monday, when Mr Charles Frohman's company presented Sherlock Holmes to an appreciative audience. Mr H. A. Saintsbury's 642d performance of the title-rôle was a capital exposition of the marvellous coolness and resource of the great detective, while Mr Leslie Carter's impersonation satisfactorily contrasted the baffled bluster of James Larabee. Mr Lawrence Leyton was excellent as Dr. Watson, and Mr Legal Robinson was a distinct success as Sidney Prince, and Mr W. F. Stirling was a thoroughly capable exponent of Professor Moriarty. Mention should also be made of Mr J. Poole Kirkwood as Alf Bassick, Mr Douglas Munro as Jim Craigin, and Master Cedric Walter, whose impersonation of Billy won much applause. Miss Vera Longden was an admirable Alice Faulkner, and Miss Maud Linden played Madge Larabee with considerable ability. The minor rôles were all in good hands, and the production reflects credit on all concerned.

BOURNEMOUTH.

Theatre Royal and Opera House. — Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee, Mr Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—The Geisha, as interpreted by Mr Mouillot's company, is proving very attractive to holiday audiences. Miss Aimee De Leska possesses a powerful, musical, and well-trained voice, and charms by her acting as O Mimosa San. Miss Violet Kenyon is delightfully piquant as O Juliette Diamante; Miss Florrie Saunders plays with archness and spirit as Molly Seymour, and her songs are very favourably received. Miss Aubrey Ashton has a fine presence, and acts with distinction as Lady Constance. Reginald Fairfax has a manly and breezy representative in Mr Arthur Cartwright; the other officers of H.M.S. Turtle having excellent exponents in Mr Edward, Mr P. Wilford, and Mr H. Ellis. Mr Edward Carleton is, as usual, responsible for spontaneous and hearty laughter in his thoroughly amusing impersonation of Wun-Hi; Mr Lionel Brahms' noble proportions and assumption of haughty superciliousness are seen to advantage in the character of the Marquis Imari. Mr J. Hornby enacts with military impressiveness the rôle of Captain Katana. Other characters are well placed. The well-trained chorus and the orchestra give a good account of themselves. On the 5th inst. A Greek Slave was presented.

Shaftesbury Hall — Mr T. J. West has inaugurated a good holiday programme, new films representing recent events and comic scenes having been introduced. Mr Mattie Cheshire, who was so successful here last year, has returned, and his humorous sketches at the piano are much appreciated.

BRIDLINGTON.

Royal Victoria Theatre —Manager, Mr Chas. Palmer.—That charming comedy, Joseph Entangled, is being played here this week by Messrs S. Dauncey and M. H. Levaux's company. Mr H. B. Warner as Sir Joseph gives a careful study of the part; Mr Lawrence Grant acts Jermyn Pycroft in a calmly cynical way; Mr Horace Lane is good as Harry Travender; and so also is Mr Stanley Ashworth as Hardolph Mayne. Mr Edward Digby as Knapman is capitally suited, and Miss Claire Cavendish is a first-rate Mrs Knapman. Miss Mona K. Oram shines in her rendering of Verona, and the Lady Fanmore of Miss Rosamund Bury is very pleasing. Altogether the piece goes well from start to finish.

Royal Prince's Parade.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—Crowded to its utmost capacity this week, the promenade concerts, under Herr Sigmund Winternitz, have been thoroughly enjoyed on this favourite resort, and the various vocalists whose assistance Mr Palmer had secured have been of first-class order, including Miss Annie Bartle, a charming soprano; Mr Fred Fallas, tenor; and Mr Barry Lindon, basso.

New Spa and Gardens.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr Henry Hague. — The extensive grounds of the company were specially illuminated on Monday, when the first gala of the season was given, the pyrotechnists being Messrs Pain and Sons. Mr Churchill Sibley's orchestra are performing some excellent programmes, and other attractions include a first-class party of glee singers —the Sheffield Æolians; Mr Charles Knowles, baritone; and the London Pierrot Team, as well as the interesting Biograph pictures.

People's Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr William Morgan. — The Princess Orchestra contributes some excellent selections. The variety company for the holidays includes the Mezzettis, in a good triple bar performance; Rodin, a comical cyclist; Wisper, comedy juggler; Pastor Bros., musical comiques; Miss Beatie Bloom, comedienne; H. Bradshaw, tenor vocalist; and the Sylvester Brothers, in their acrobatic staircase act. Henderson's Bio-Scena exhibits some good living pictures. The large ball-room is well patronised, and, with other attractions, a really enjoyable day can now be spent at the Palace.

Summer Gardens.—Lessees, Messrs Beanland, Bath, and Denton.—Good holiday programmes are provided here, one evening being devoted to an old-fashioned Ethiopian entertainment, in which those old-time favourites Joanna, Sammy, and Charlie, of the pierrot team, were admirably amusing.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

New Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr John Waller. —The theatre was reopened on Monday by Mr Alfred B. Cross's company, in The Manxman. Miss Minnie Watersford gave a pathetic and pleasing portrayal of Kate Cregeen; Miss Muriel Clay (Miss Christian) and Miss Rosie Kearns (Nancy) ably sustain the rôles allotted to them; Pete is powerfully impersonated by Mr Alfred B. Cross; Mr Richd. Vane is an admirable Philip Christian; and the smug hypocrite Cæsar Cregeen finds an excellent exponent in Mr Sidney Rennef.

BUXTON.

New Opera House.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Arthur Willoughby. — The attraction for Bank Holiday week is The Darling of the Gods, played by Mr Tree's company. A really strong company has been sent out including Mr G. W. Anson, who acts with much judgment and ability in Mr Tree's character of Zakkuri. As Kara Mr Gerald Kay-Souper is admirably placed. The part suited this talented actor to a nicety. Mr A. P. Kaye contributes a sound piece of acting as Sigon; and Mr P. R. Goodyer is an able Tanda-Tanji. Mr Cecil Tresilian makes a capital Imi (Yo-San's dumb servant); Miss Imra Foldi is pleasing as Rosy-Sky; and Miss Norah Kerin displays talent as Yo-San.

BRADFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Richardson.—The D'Oyly Carte opera company opened the autumn season on Monday with The Mikado. There are a few changes in the company since the last visit; Mr Pacie Ripple is the Nanki-Poo, and his impersonation is in every respect an excellent effort. Yum-Yum is charmingly played by Miss Nora Maguire, and she has excellent support from Miss Jessie Rose as Pitti-Sing and Miss Mabel Burnege as Peep-Bo. Pooh-Bah is in the capable hands of the old favourite, Mr Fred Billington; the Lord High Executioner Mr C. H. Workman represents with his usual quaintness and drollery; and Mr Albert Kavanagh as the Mikado; Mr Fred Drawater as Pish-Tush; and Miss Theresa Rassam as Katisha share liberally in the honours. The songs and choruses are rendered with much excellence, and the staging of the opera is beyond reproach. The Yeomen of the Guard, The Gondoliers, Iolanthe, and Patience are the other operas billed for representation during the present visit of the company.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—We are having here a return visit from Messrs Chas. Draycott and H. B. Peppin's company in the stirring drama The Stolen Birthright, which is represented with the customary all-round excellence, and thoroughly appreciated by the audience. As the hero and Prince Mr C. Quinton Fulford is most effective, and Miss Lydia Donovan as his betrothed shares liberally in the honours. In Mr Robert Watson's hands the villain has an able representative, and the strong interest in the drama is sustained by Mr Peppin as Prince Antonio, Miss Alma Henson as Fidelia Silvati, and by Messrs E. K. Burke and Draycott in other important rôles, the comedy element being well supplied by Mr W. E. Brandon and Miss Celestine Brandon.

EMPIRE. — Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr P. A. Lennon.—Miss Julie Mackay, the American vocalist, is paying a return visit, and in her rendering of her well-known songs she is very popular with the audience. Charles Lilburn, Tatten Hall, and Arthur Reece are all excellent exponents of their respective styles of vocal comedy, and Amy Sullivan is a capable comedienne. In a capital "song scena" Jerry Hart and Beatrice Leo, Yankee entertainers, are amusing; and Gallando supplies a clever turn as a "lightning sculptor." The Olive Trio are excellent characteristic comedians; Will Cornish as a handbell player, &c., supplies a pleasing musical turn; and Lee, Bentley, and company, in their smart and lively sketch A Tooth for a Tooth, provide humour and novelty.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr F. Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr E. Harrison.—A clever quartet of acrobats, Les François, are much applauded for a smart entertainment here this week. Harry Conlin's versatile humour and patter divert the audience, and the Sisters Wingrove are entertaining duettists and dancers. Paul Courtney and company are diverting in their absurd sketch A New Doctor; Harry Drew sings finely bass songs; Musical Silvo's chimes and musical bells are cleverly manipulated; Ada Whitton gives some good male and burlesque impersonations; and Barney Stuart, in his novel turn "Impersonalia," is artistic and entertaining.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Manager, Mr S. H. Carter.—The New Century Animated Pictures Company are supplying an excellent entertainment of up-to-date subjects here.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr George Edwardes's company is here this week with The Cingalee. Mr Frank Danby achieves conspicuous success in his clever and amusing impersonation of Chambhuddy Kam; Mr Harold Thorley makes an excellent Harry Vereker; Mr Leedham Bantock is a droll Boobhamba; and Mr Fred Kaye is admirably suited as Sir Peter Loftus. Miss Florence Smithson gives a charming portrayal of Nanoya; Miss Lydia Nervil is a handsome Lady Patricia Vane; and Miss Eva Sandford is a bright and winsome Peggy Sabine. Able support is given by Mr Willie Warde, jun., Mr Jack Cannot, and Mr Edgar Ward. A special word of praise is due to the chorus. The augmented orchestra acquit themselves very effectively, and the duties of conductor are in the experienced hands of Mr Harold Vickers.

AQUARIUM.—Manager, Mr W. J. Hardy; Secretary, Mr S. H. Andrews.—The following are specially engaged here this week:—Mr Walter Sutton, the Lancashire comedian; Monte Santos, coon juggler and balancing artiste; and Mr C. Lebert, Court conjuror and hand-shadow entertainer. The Aquarium orchestra, under the direction of Mr J. W. Slatter, and the American Bioscope also add to the attractions.

GRAND THEATRE.—Under the control of Mr Ernest Carpenter.—Messrs Hollister and Dew's company opened here on Monday with The Lights o' London. Mr Cecil G. Calvert gave an admirable representation of Harold Armytage, whose wife, Bess, had a charming exponent in Miss Jeanne Burgoyne. The villainous Clifford Armytage was powerfully impersonated by Mr Herbert Hollister. Mr Alfred Lister's Seth Freene, Miss Kate Randolph's Hetty, and Mr Harrold Wallan's Philosopher Jack were well played. Very entertaining were Mr Percy Compton as Jarvis, Miss Emilie Dawson as Mrs Jarvis, and Miss Gladys Murray as Shakespeare Jarvis. The remaining characters were efficiently sustained, and the drama was admirably staged.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr Ernest Lepard.—The following are here this week:—Joe Elvin and company, in the racing success, The Bookie; Marie Dainton, in her impersonation of popular artistes; Ada Martine, comedienne and dancer; W. H. Downs, Australian coloured vocalist; Walton and Lester, "the world's worst wizards," in their burlesque, Li Jim Chink and His Interrupter; Mdlle. Viviana, the dancing girl; Mdlle. Eldee, in her beautiful entertainment, Pose Plastique; Mr and Mrs Paul Knox, society entertainers; Rosie Lloyd, comedienne; the Gibson Girls (Gladys and Jane), duettists and dancers; Will Harvey, character comedian; and the Alhambra pictures.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—The Brothers Donar, in their acrobatic equilibrist act; Annie Purcell, charming vocalist; the Three Brothers Huxter, acrobats, leapers, and tumblers; Gipsy Woolf and her Apollo Picaninnies; Miss Rosina Casselli, with her cleverly trained Chihuahua dogs, whose performances are marvellous; Miss Rachel Lowe, in her latest successes, "Any Rags" and "The Lucky Duck;" Paul Vandy, juggler and trickster; the Jurgens Trio of acrobats, on the rolling globes; the Creo Brothers ("the Gipsies"), original acrobatic comedy artistes; George Leyton, actor-vocalist, in his latest success, the military scena, Waterloo; and animated pictures.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr C. Thompson Ford; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh. — Mr Charles Maodona's company is here this week with The Gay Parisienne. Miss Jennie Richards makes a very winsome Julie Bon-Bon; Mr Tom May is very amusing as Ebenezer Honeycombe; Miss Gwen Clifford is effective as Mrs Honeycombe; Mr Arthur Watts is an excellent Major Fossdyke; Mr Charles Maynard is a lively M. Pompier, and Mr Tom Kennard is well suited as Eversleigh. The remaining characters are satisfactorily sustained, and the Imperial Glee Singers merit warm praise.

WEST PIER PAVILION.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company is here this week with Under Two Flags, which is admirably staged. Mr Mark Blow is highly successful as Bertie Cecil Royellieu; Miss Constance Elgin makes a delightful Cigarette; Mr Will Hook as Rake, Mr R. Harley-West as Barkile Royellieu, and Miss Bertha Kingston as Lady Beatrice also merit praise; and admirable support is given by Miss May Pardoe and Miss Joan Sloan.

BRISTOL.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—The farcical comedy The New Clown is the holiday attraction here, and it is capitally played by Mr Stanley Cooke and company, under the direction of Mr Herbert Greville. Mr Stanley Cooke acts well and is highly amusing as Lord Cyril Garston; Mr Herbert Greville presents a good study of Dixon; Mr Fred Lake is equally successful as Tom Baker; Mr Fred Paul is capitally placed as Jack Trent; and Mr James Benwell is sufficiently sombre as Billy, the strong man. Miss Amy Francis is pleasing as Rosie Platt; and Maud and Winnie Chesterton have good exponents in Miss Evelyn Maxwell and Miss Violet Greville. The antics of Ping Pong, a little donkey, cause much amusement. The performance commences with The Test, in which parts are sustained by Mr Fred Lake, Mr James Benwell, Miss Leila Russell, and Miss Violet Greville.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—The Sin of Her Childhood, an interesting domestic drama, is well staged here, and nicely played by Mr J. A. Campbell's company. Miss Mary Fulton gives an excellent performance of Mary Haysel; Miss Jennie Hicks makes a good character study of Maria Haysel; Mr Charles Fancourt plays with distinction as the Rev. Alan Grey; Mr Austin Milroy is decidedly good as the unpopular Stephen Haysel; Mr J. A. Campbell is cool and effective as Captain John Thornton; and the comic parts of Barney O'Reilly and Eliza Muggins are rendered with much animation by Mr Fred Elvin and Miss May Pratt. Mary Haysel in the prologue and Eric Lugdale in the play are nicely taken by Little Jennie; and Hannah Spry is capitally impersonated by Little Dot Moss, who also contributes specialities of song, dance, and banjo in good style.

PALACE.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr Welchman.—Considerable redecoration has been done here, and the attendants have new uniforms. The holiday company includes the Harry Rambler Troupe, who are smart jugglers, &c.; Otto Schumann's capital exhibition of horsemanship, &c.; Regan and Ryan, in an amusing comedy act; Renson and Waite, smart comedy artists; Lavater, in a good turn with his carefully trained dog; Miss Dora Lyric, a pleasing and refined comedienne, with nice songs; Payne's Little Vagabonds, who sing decidedly well and crack jokes in style; R. W. Bentley, an amusing comedian; Four Musical Avolos, experts on the xylophone; and Miss Cora Casselli, a pleasing comedienne and legmania artist. The performance concludes with Vernon's animated pictures, a new and attractive series. Matinées will now be held at the Palace every Thursday.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Here the popular entertainment is given by Miss Lottie Lennox, a comedienne who pleases all parts of the house; George D'Albert, a versatile comedian with good songs; the Three Sisters Anderson, expert feet equilibrists; the Boccaccio Minstrels, pleasing singers and instrumentalists; Miss Jenny Lynn, a clever low comedy and patter comedienne; Harry Allister, character impersonator; the Judges, comedy acrobats; and Cribb and Cribb, patter comedians. The performance concludes with animated pictures.

ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS.—Superintendent, Captain Villiers.—The variety show here for the holidays, provided by Mr Tom Wood, has proved attractive. The engagements included the Dunlops, in a good knockabout bicycle and skating act; the Saletos, expert acrobats and equilibrists; Elly and Edgar, in a good tight wire act; Mdlle. Lillian Dorie, in a clever trapeze act; Little Ernesto, comedian; Miss Florence Llewelyn, serio and dancer; France and Francis, knockabout comedians; and Angola and Sorado, acrobats, &c. As an extra turn Ernesto and a young lady scored in a pleasing cake-walk song and dance. The variety entertainments have now been provided here by Mr Tom Wood for ten years, and they continue to increase in popularity. There was the usual country fair, fireworks by Messrs Wilder, of Birmingham, and Mr Tom Weymouth's band for selections and dancing.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes; Musical Director, Mr H. M. Summers.—Monday was the grand opening night of this theatre as a variety house, and the Leslie Quartette of Glee Singers sang "God Save the King" with due honours, and the packed house heartily joined in the chorus. Marquerite Cornille, chanteuse eccentrique, made a good impression. The other turns for the week include Albert Darnley, comedian; May Fallowfield, versatile comedienne; Gus Barra, comic musical motorist; Ena Richards, Canadian comedienne and dancer; Lambert and Glover, in a farcical duologue; Sisters Vincent (Elsie and Lottie), speciality step dancers; Little Thomas, Negro comedian; and Louie Lynton with her troupe of pierrots in the song and cake walk, "Dolly Varden at Covent-garden." Extra turns on Monday included Miss Lydia Yeamans; Henry Anthony, illusionist; Jenny Valmore, comedienne; Maude Beaumont, burlesque actress; Ada Twibell, burlesque artiste; the Arthur Lloyd Trio; Marion Grahame; Ted Young; Nellie and Nora, instrumentalists; Walker and Lake; Ethel Ross Selwicke, comedienne; and Ike Scott and Son, comedians, whose efforts were enthusiastically received.

CARLISLE.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of Mr R. Stuart M'Kim; Manager, Mr Stanley Rogers.—After having been closed for nine weeks, during which time many important alterations have been made, this house reopened on Monday night with the sensational melodrama Because I Love You. The alterations are of a very complete and extensive character. A brick wall has been built across the stage, and a fire-proof curtain fitted, made on the latest principle by Messrs Oldroyd and Co., of Leeds. New and well-fitted dressing-rooms have been provided, also a fire-proof band room, and fire-proof automatic closing doors have been constructed on the stage. A most important alteration is the raising of the roof of the stage, which will now allow the largest productions touring to be satisfactorily and easily staged. A striking feature is the new proscenium, designed by Mr Boekbinder, whose elegant and artistic work is greatly admired. A capital audience assembled on the opening night, and Mr Soudamore's drama appeared to give intense satisfaction and delight. Mr Frank Stephens, who is responsible for the production, is the central figure in the play, and as the "Human Vulture" makes a decided hit. Mr Richard A. Greene creates a good impression as the hero; the heroine, Nellie Bly, has a capable representative in Miss Madge North; and Miss Florence makes an imposing Lady Ursula. Mr Herbert Boyld supplies the comedy relief, and he is well supported by Miss Annie Mejeon. The other characters are in good hands.

CHESTER.

ROYALTY.—Proprietor, Mr Milton Bode; Resident-Manager, Mr H. Burgess Harries.—The theatre reopened after the summer vacation with Mr J. M. Barrie's Little Mary. The house has been filled with appreciative audiences during the week. The piece itself is well presented. Miss Christina Silva makes a delightful Moira Looney, and Mr A. Holmes Gore is droll as the Earl of Charlton.

CARDIFF.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Redford.—At the popular Royal Mr Louis Calvert's principal company presented on Monday the successful play Sunday. The appearance of Miss Nita Faydon in the title-rôle formed a great attraction. Miss Faydon has an extremely difficult part to portray, but her impersonation was everything that could be desired. Unstinted praise must be awarded Mr J. Edward Pearce for his masterly representation of Colonel Brinthorpe; to Mr Chas. B. Vaughan for his clever study of Arthur Brinthorpe; and to Miss Olive Adair for her capital delineation of the placid nun. Miss Elizabeth Watson was good as Mrs Naresby, and Messrs F. Powell, J. A. Manley, T. N. Walter, and Whitford Kane as the Boys all rendered excellent work. Mr E. A. Douglas as Tom Oxley and Mr H. Dean as Abbot deserve special mention.

KING'S THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General-Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—The Golden Chance, a sensational comedy-drama, played by Mr James Hare's company, is here for the week. Mr Herbert King as Hubert Zac plays the part with distinction; Mr James Hare depicts Stephen Clinton with rare ability; Miss Agatha Halford is distinctly good as Lydia Hastings; and Miss Irene Clifford makes a first-rate Viva Zac. The comedy is in the safe hands of Mr Hill Cremer as Edward St. Clair, Mr John Stimson as Sam Brown, and Miss Jenny Hallworth as Susan, while the remaining minor characters have capable exponents.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—An excellent holiday programme is presented here. May Edouin and Fred Edwards are still as entertaining as ever in their crisp little playlet, A Bachelor's Dream. The Werner-Amoros Troupe are real comedians and expert jugglers; Charles Austin's songs and patter are extremely amusing; Miss Florence Esdaile has a fine soprano voice which is used to advantage; the Stavordale Quintet provide a clever banjo performance; and The Cheerful Idiot is again presented with success by the Tribune Trio. Then there are Chas. Fanning, with humorous patter and songs; Tennyson and Wallis, two smart comedians; James Stewart, "The Tramp at the Piano;" and American Bioscope.

CHESTERFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr Holbery Hardy.—The holiday attraction here is a visit of Mr Horace Stanley's company in the popular drama, The 10·30 Down Express. As Sam Wagstaffe Mr Stanley is a host in himself, investing the part with much humour and originality. Mr Leslie Beaufort is a commendable Jack O'Malley, and Miss Adelaide Clare distinguishes herself as Bessie Leigh. Other characters are well represented, and the scenic effects are on an elaborate scale.

CHORLEY (LANCS).

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr G. T. Santé.—This theatre was reopened for the season on Bank Holiday, a capital attraction being provided by Mr Chas. H. Phelps and his company in the musical comedy-drama One Woman's Wickedness. Mr Chas. H. Phelps creates an excellent impression with a powerful rendering of Jem Craggs; Mr Hubert Humphreys plays the dual-characters of Justice Hotpot and Paul Rogue with exceptional success; Mr Howard Ward as Limpy Larry is a droll comedian, much appreciated; Mr Rukiln is good as John Fossett; Mr Lawrence Brian as Philip Beaufort and Mr George Bryne as Lord Fitznoodle are acceptable. Miss Augusta Tullook is a powerful Janet Raymond; Miss Ethel Asbury gives a brilliant rendering of Jenny Jiggles; Miss Louie Davis submits a pathetic impersonation of Lillian Craggs; Miss Florence Lloyd gives a realistic performance as Marrienne Beaufort; and Miss Florence M. Daly successfully undertakes the rôle of Aunt Crasy.

CORK.

OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—The attraction for the Bank Holiday was Mr Frank Nelson's company in Trooper Hunt's Widow. Mr Howard Cridland gives a decidedly clever performance as Trooper and Widow Hunt, and keeps the house in roars of laughter. Another capital performance is that of Mr Edgar Kent, in the part of Fraser, the solicitor; also Mr Cecil Fowler as Nathaniel Sapp, the grocer. Miss Susie Oak gives a pretty sketch of Bess Wood; Miss Amy Edmonds is capital as Miss Gresham; and Miss Ella Kitson gives a capital haracter study as Mrs Jane Watson. Mr Henry Osman is good as Gordon Ryder, as is Mr Roy Milton as Dick Hunt.

COVENTRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—The Golden Ladder has proved to be an exceptional attraction for the holidays. The Rev. Frank Thornhill is ably and forcibly rendered by Mr Harry Cullenford. Lilian Grant is in the capable hands of Miss Mary Austin. Michael Severn, a cashier and rogue, is presented by Mr E. Vivian Edmunds in a powerful manner. Mr J. Grant is well embodied by Mr Milne Taylor. Samuel Peckaby and Mrs Peckaby are respectively sustained by Mr John Owen and Mrs Milne Taylor, who prove a welcome source of amusement. Lily, a little daughter of Frank Thornhill, is charmingly portrayed by Little Doris Dale. Other parts are in good hands.

CREWE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry Taylor.—The regular season of the above was inaugurated on Monday by Mr and Mrs William Maclaren in a revival of Proof, with the former in the character of Pierre Lorance, a part which suits him admirably. Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Valentine plays with power and ability; Lazare is portrayed with conspicuous ability by Mr Richard Fulton; Miss Gertrude Evans displays dramatic skill as Adrienne; the comedy part, Chamboran, is well sustained by Mr Ardene Linden; and Mr K. Pearse acts consistently as the Duke D'Aubeterre. Miss Gertrude Coote makes a pleasing Little Adrienne. The Lady of Lyons was presented on Wednesday, with Mr Maclaren as Claude and Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Pauline, both of whom distinguished themselves in their characters. Friday was devoted to David Garrick, and Mr Maclaren undertook the title-rôle. The Screen scene from The School for Scandal was also introduced, with Miss Lily Bandmann as Lady Teazle and Mr Pearse as Sir Peter.

CROYDON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr H. D. Lyle.—Mr Fred Karno's company occupies the boards here with His Majesty's Guests. Mr William Rokeby enacts Sergeant Lightning with a pleasant, unctuous humour; Mr George Hudson, an efficient Lord Easem, sings with effect; Mr J. W. Hooper is capable as Mr Miffin; Mr R. Kellino is active as Bunker; Mr E. C. Lilly causes fun as Mr Minks; Mr Charles Cardon is very droll as Fritz; and Mr H. Gallimore makes a hit as Solina. Miss Madge Campbell is an enchanting Dolly; Miss Katie Brunton makes a suitable Miss Manley; and Miss Marie Campbell is agreeable and renders valuable aid as Lady Maud Easem. The smaller rôles are adequately played, and the pantomimic business is smartly arranged.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—The holiday programme here is an attractive one. Annie Cohen is a captivating comedienne; Zaro and Arno cause amusement in their comedy bar act; Jack Charman sings nicely; Maxwell and Frances are smart in their comedy act; Mabel Evans is an untiring dancer; the Attilla Brothers are marvellous strong men; Tiny Reiff, comedienne, has a pleasing presence; G. H. Elliott, comedian, sings and dances commendably; De Velin and Belrose are good in operatic selections; the Evalos are entertaining in their juggling and gymnastic mélange; Flo D'Orville is an interesting comedienne; Billy Hobbs is an excellent comedian and dancer; Edie Gray and White Coons, vocalists, are greeted with applause; the selections of animated pictures are well received; Stanley and Vandyke are immense in a funny farce; and Dudman Bromwich, Katie Neville, and company are successful in the sketch, The Detective.

DERBY.

NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Allen Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr Chas. Denby.—Mrs Henry Mayhew's and Mr Chas. Herrick's company is here this week with The Triumph of Truth. Miss Marie Auckland secures premier honours as the twin sisters, Violet and Lilian Anstruther. Mr Edwd. E Louie as an English naval officer is distinctly successful. As Sir Chas. Eversleigh Mr R. D. Bell is in every way praiseworthy, and Mr T. Renand Lockwood is effective as D'Orville. Lena is well impersonated by Miss Nellie Kenneth, a juvenile actress, and Miss Lily Rogers plays vivaciously as Kate Bright. During the recess the theatre has been thoroughly renovated, and a glass screen erected at the back of the dress-circle to prevent draughts.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Allen Edwardes.—First place is well filled by Dandy George, society clown, and his dog Rosie. Mdlle. Bertoldi, who ranks high as contortionist and equilibrist, submits a clever turn; Alec Thomas, black-faced comedy artist and dancer, is exceedingly mirth-provoking; an instrumentalist of real ability is Mdlle. Henriette, whose vocal efforts are also of a high order; Ethel Dove is an attractive comedienne; and Will Lytton, comedian, is praiseworthy. The Kimberley Boys prove an enjoyable item, and a capital series of animated pictures closes a first-rate programme.

DEWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Resident-Manager, Mr J. Herbert Asquith.—As Midnight Chimes is the name of the production selected for the commencement of this season at this theatre, and is attracting good houses. Mr Melville Bickford has a strong part in Luke Dezzard, which requires energy and talent; Mr F. E. Petley is fine as Dave Stannard, and Mr Hy. Beaufort as Ezra Gamble is well placed. Tat Spavin is undertaken by Witty Wattie Walton, who keeps the audience in one incessant laugh. Miss Annie Megson as Suzette is chic and natural; Miss E. M. Ward's Zamora is a sound portrayal; and Miss Gertrude Price as Mary Stannard completes in a winning style a fine cast. The production is in the hands of Mr E. Marris, and has many capital points.

HIPPODROME.—General Manager, Mr Geo. Weldon.—The artistes engaged here include the Fordyces, juvenile artistes; Henderson Paddy, the grotesque; Mollie Seymour, vocalist; Clayton Twins, sketch artistes; Post Mason, baritone; Lanton and Lane, original comedians; and Judge's marvellous cockatoos.

DONCASTER.

NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Councillor J. W. Chapman.—The Mariners of England came as a welcome relief on Monday, after quite a plethora of variety entertainment, and attracted a large house. Mr Ernest K. Abbott's assumption of Lord Nelson stamps him as a good actor; Mr Clifford Clifford's representation of Admiral Talbot entitles him to the warmest eulogy; a manly characterisation of Captain Hardy comes from Mr John Lester; Mr W. H. Garbois is capable in the rôle of Captain Lebaudy; much piquant humour comes from Messrs Edwin Keene and Thomas Searle as Tom Tripp and his father respectively; Mr W. Firth does well as Dr. Churchill; Miss Linda Riley's impersonation of Nelly Dell is effective; and Miss Isabel Singleton charms everyone as Polly Appleyard.

DOVER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—The Girl from Japan met with a most enthusiastic welcome on Bank Holiday. It will be remembered that the production of this pretty musical comedy took place here in the early spring, and the play has more than realised the success prophesied for it. Miss Nellie Valentine, an artist of exceptional ability, scored a veritable triumph in the title-rôle, encores repeatedly being demanded for her tastefully rendered songs and smartly executed dances. Scarcely less successful was the interpretation of Polly Perkins by Miss Nellie Jackson, whose fascinatingly vivacious manner soon made her a universal favourite. Miss Nellie Parker Dent's undeniably clever rendition of Lady Flippington was well received, and Miss Maidie Scott as Maud was delightfully entertaining, and rendered her songs with point and expression. The hero, Lord Allenbury, was capitally taken by Mr S. Lockridge, whose fine baritone voice was perhaps heard to most advantage in the popular "Motor" song. Mr Ernest Spalding, a past-master in the art of facial expression, gave a droll impersonation of the Rev. John Smith. Mr Tom E. Sinclair's mannerisms as Horatio Binks were most effective and amusing. Mr Chas L. Ludlow displayed a rich vein of humour in the part of Bingle, his clever business and comical disguises keeping the fun going consistently and continuously. The General Baugh of Mr Percy Baverstock was a particularly powerful embodiment, and Mr Alfred Wood was equally successful as Sir Mulberry Flippington.

DOUGLAS.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming; Business-Manager, Mr T. R. Woods.—For the holiday week has come to Mr Alfred Hemming's popular playhouse the musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl. It has drawn large and appreciative audiences. The company is under the direction of Mr William Greet. Mr William Stephens, the Jim Cheese, is an actor of fine qualities. He invests the character with humour, and secures laughter by legitimate means. Mr Percy Carr makes Dick Wargrave attractive, and Mr Bertie White is quaintly effective as the Hon. Crew Boodle. Miss Aimé Grey, a clever young artiste, as Elphin Haye is just American enough and can sing, dance, and act. Miss Dot Carey seems to revel in the rôle of Liza Shoddam, and Miss Gladys Fontaine is an entertaining Mrs Shimmering Black. The production, by Mr E. W. Royce, jun., is most capable.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Limited; Manager and Secretary, Mr Charles Fox, jun.—The audiences at the Gaiety Theatre this week have been enormous and enthusiastic. The motif for such attendance has been a double attraction, Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company, in Cousin Kate, and Mr Arthur Roberts and Miss Ruby Celeste, in a witty trifle, Packing Up. The Haymarket piece is excellently interpreted. Miss Lilias Earle as Kate Curtis acts with charm and sincerity; Mr Yorke Stephens makes Heath Desmond a gentleman, and plays with self-possession and dramatic skill; Mr Walter Ringham as the Reverend James Bartlett is excellent; Miss Hilda Hanks is as unimaginatively suburban as one could desire as Amy Spencer; and the Mrs Spencer of Miss Hilda Leyton is most effective. Packing Up, a trifle light as air, is well presented by Mr Arthur Roberts and Miss Ruby Celeste.

PALACE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr Chas. Fox, jun; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Brittain.—An excellent company here includes Mr Ernest Shand, who gives point to some capital songs. The Violas are clever; Miss Esta Stella is a really smart comedienne; Mason and Bart are clever gymnasts; Mr W. H. Clemart does well as a ventriloquist; and other attractions are Mr Harry Wood's orchestra, the Bio-Motograph, and the Asaki Japanese Troupe of jugglers.

DERBY CASTLE—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr Alfred Kelly.—Derby Castle is a delightful place. If you want to dance, you can; if you want to smoke, you can; if your inclination goes to variety shows, they are there for the asking in a charming Bijou Theatre. The Bonhair-Gregory Troupe are up to date as Risley acrobats; Spry and Monti, in their clever and humorous speciality entertainment, give every satisfaction; Mr George Adams, a robust baritone singer, sings well; and Percy Honri's performance on the concertina is as effective as ever. There are also animated pictures which save one's reading the papers, and the Three Donatos give a very clever performance.

HIPPODROME.—Directors, Mr C. H. Powell and Mr F. J. Connor.—Messrs C. H. Powell and F. J. Connor present a fine programme here which appeals directly to the visitor. A feature of the entertainment is a very laughable sketch Mistaken Identity, excellently played by the comedians of the company. The Brothers Doran give an equally clever turn. There is also a show for the little ones who think that a Jerusalem pony makes for laughter. This is Cyrus and Maud and their donkey, Bess. Mdlle. Marguerite Marr is a clever transformation dancer, Gillin as a ventriloquist is apt and acceptable, the Towergraph films are up to date, and there are clowns and jugglers and horse-riders.

BUXTON'S PIERROTS AND VILLAGE.—The company which shows thrice daily at Buxton's is an admirable one, and includes clever workers and smart turns.

DUBLIN.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr C. Hyland.—Mr Louis N. Parker's comedy, The Happy Life, was presented here on Monday night by Mr Herbert Waring's company, and attracted a large audience. Mr Waring displayed considerable ability as Cyril Charteris. Mr Harry Cane was amusing as John Charteris, and Mrs Russ Whytal cleverly acted the rôle of Maggie. Mr Arthur Hardy adequately portrayed the rôle of Jemmy Pastor, and Mrs H. Cane was good as Mr Pettigrew Smith. Prince Szczepanowski was played in an able manner by Mr William Sauter, and Miss Mabel Dubois as Plunkett and Miss Alice Campbell as a Temple Laundress made the most of their parts. Vyvyan Pettigrew Smith had an able representative in Mr Frank H. France, and Miss Mabel Knowles as Halcyon was excellent.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong.—Here we have a return visit of W. W. Kelly's company in the romantic drama A Royal Divorce. Miss Edith Cole acquits herself admirably as Josephine, and Mr Fredrick Victor gives a realistic impersonation as Napoleon. As Marshal Ney Mr Charles Stanley is all that can be desired, and Miss Ethyle Murray is effective as Marie Louise. Mr Claude Agnew gives a good impersonation as Tallyrand, and as Stephanie Miss Helen Richmond is excellent. Mr Denis Bryan is capital as Grimaud, and the rôle of General Augereau is well played by Mr Alfred Glenville.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr T. R. Nugent's company, in the sensational drama, The Web of Fate. The rôle of Sir William Heath is ably sustained by Mr Terry Hurst, and Miss Lillian Burns is excellent as Winifred Heath. Mr T. R. Nugent gives a good rendering of the part of Clement Burnie and Oliver Voneer is well represented by Miss May Kemp. Mr Nelson Turner is a successful Vincent Heath, and Miss Phyllis Watson a pleasing Mary Poppin. Mr Willie Vivian makes a capable Richard Richards, and the rôles of Florence Dormer and Mrs Pippin Perkins are capitally played by the Misses Alvina Mining and Mabel Parker.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—Mark Melford and company in the sketch Non-Suited is he attraction here this week. Kahn and Kahn, illusionists, are a clever turn, as are also Mr and Mrs Finden in the farce A Desperate Remedy. Edwin Barwick, monologue entertainer, does well, and Lillian Doreen, mezzo-soprano, has many admirers. Professor Dunning is a ventriloquist of no mean order, and Dolly Harmer is a chic comedienne. The other turns who remain from last week are the Stella Troupe, vocalists and dancers, and Nellie Young, comedienne, who are still to the fore, and the Empire Pictures are also good.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.—The leading turn here this week is Morcashani, eccentric vocalist, who is well received. Stanley and Greenop, International banjo players, meet with approval, and Cyrus Dare is a smart society entertainer. Emma Don and company, in Scenes from London Life, score a success, and the Knick Knacks, refined comedy and speciality dancers, are a capital turn. The Brothers Harrison are clever comedians and dancers, and George Rennie is an excellent ventriloquist. Sam Shipley is a good comedian and dancer; Beattie Worth, a pleasing comedienne; and Cora Magda, lady gymnast, receives appreciation.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr C. A. James.—The company engaged here includes Van Gelder, conjuror; Lillie Hustler, comedienne; Lizzie Hayden, descriptive vocalist; and Tony Merritt, actor-vocalist.

DUDLEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr J. W. Tilley.—This house reopened its doors after the usual vacation with the evergreen and ever-welcome Swiss Express. Suffice it to say that a big audience testified its appreciation of the amusing drolleries of the clever members of Messrs Renad's company.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr Tom Prichard; Acting-Manager, Mr R. Brown.—A big holiday programme is provided here, and both houses on Monday were full. The Abadaroffs, Pre-historic Mountebanks, head the bill, and cause endless fun. The company also includes Billy Tucker, ball puncher; Blanche Eland, a sweet ballad singer; George Fairburn, a popular comedian and mimic; Herbert Maden, character vocalist; Lily Lassah comedienne; Hal Chapter, quaint comedian; Sisters Adrienne, refined burlesque; Two Daniels, Negro comedians; and the still popular Empire pictures.

DUNDEE.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Will Parker; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alf Ross.—Dr. Walford Bodle is here this week, and is attracting enormous crowds, the huge building being completely packed from floor to ceiling. Dr. Bodle was greeted on his appearance before the footlights with an overwhelming ovation. The company accompanying the doctor is an all round success, and a capital evening's entertainment is provided.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Proprietors, the Dundee Empire Co., Limited.—The Anglo-French drama entitled The Master of the Chain is here this week, played by a very clever company.

EASTBOURNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company is appearing here in Quality Street. Miss Florence Jackson is an appropriate and sweet representative of Phœbe; Miss Grace Edwin is well suited as Susan, and her rendering is a clever one; and Miss Gwynneth Calton is a most amusing Patty. Mr George A. Brandram is an able and very interesting Valentine Brown. Mr A. C Lysons makes much of his opportunities as Ensign Blades, and Mr Dan Dyer is an excellent Sergeant. Mr Herbert Chown is an able Spicer, Master George Hollom is a smart Master Arthur, and Mr Douglas West lends excellent aid. The Misses Isobel Merson, M. Dennett, F. Leslie, and L. Rogers are capital in smaller parts.

DEVONSHIRE-PARK THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr A. Standen Trigg.—On Monday Mr Edward Terry and his company commenced an autumn tour here with *The House of Richard Burnside delighted the audience by his consummate skill; a clever impersonation of Parminter was given by Mr Arthur Connel; Mr Fred Knight was a rollicking John; and Mr Allan Pollock was entirely satisfactory as Mr Williams. Mr A. Hylton Allen undertook very successfully the part of Jack Morrow, and Mr C. M'Manus did all that was requisite as the Postman. A well-defined, earnest, and sympathetic rendering of the rôle of Marion was given by Miss Daisy Murch, whose work was highly praiseworthy; Miss Kate Mills as Betty displayed extensive power, and was both amusing and pathetic; Miss Beatrice Terry and Master Roy Lorraine were the Margaret and the Richard; and Miss Olga Kay was a pretty, bright Jenny. Bardell v. Pickwick followed, in in which Mr Terry gave his well-known rendering of Buzfuz, with which the audience was, as usual, intensely amused. Mr George Howard in his smart and confident work as Sam Weller thoroughly deserved the hearty applause he obtained; Mr A. M. Servington was a most appropriate Winkle; Mr Arthur Cornell was a sufficiently pompous Justice; and in the smaller parts Mr A. H. Allen, Mr Fred Knight, and Mr M'Manus did all that was required, while Miss Kate Mills excellently reproduced the eccentricities of Mrs Cluppins.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—At the head of the holiday variety bill are Captain Woodward's performing sea-lions and seals, and their wonderful performance shows remarkable training. Mr Charles S. Kitts and Miss Rhoda Windrum do some bright and clever acting in a smartly written sketch; Grell and Grey return with their combination of fun and acrobatic business; Brooks, Dale, and Blitz provide amusement in plenty in A Chase for Life; the Five Vivians introduce a novel and effective musical travestie; Miss Agnes Krembser is a very expert juggler; Mr Bob Hutt is a highly amusing and popular comedian; Les Sprays are in favour with their whirlwind dances; Mdlle. Chalon is a pretty, clever, and graceful equilibrist; and Miss Ruby Bijou is a pleasing comedienne.

EDINBURGH.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—Rob Roy was produced here on Monday with special scenery, picturesque ensemble, and an exceptionally interesting cast. This revival of the great Scottish drama by Messrs Howard and Wyndham is a particularly noteworthy one, and as the town is full of visitors should attract large houses during the fortnight it has to run. The distinguished operatic tenor, Mr Hedmondt, was quite in his element as Francis Osbaldistone, and had a hearty reception. His acting was animated and not without humour, and being in splendid voice he fairly roused the audience by a magnificent rendering of the ballads and concerted music with which the play is plentifully interspersed. A climax of enthusiasm was reached during a stirring rendering of "The M'Gregors' Gathering," which was vociferously encored. Mr Edmund Tearle gave a strikingly vivid portrayal of Rob Roy, his imposing presence and fine elocutionary powers making him an ideal hero. Mr William J. Miller's Rashleigh Osbaldistone was an effective study, and Mr T. W. Benson appeared as Bailie Nicol Jarvie, a part in which his comic ability was delightfully evidenced. The Dugal Cratur's uncouth appearance and remarkable dialect created immense hilarity, and Mr W. H. Monte, who also stage-manages, is to be complimented on his all-round success. As Helen Macgregor Miss Kate Clinton acted with considerable dramatic force, and made a deep impression in the emotional scenes in the third act. Miss Lillian Coomber was specially engaged for the important part of Diana Vernon, and used a powerful soprano voice with ease and undoubted skill. Her singing of "Comin' through the rye" was quite a treat, while her acting all through was artistic and graceful. She worthily shared the vocal honours of the evening with Mr Hedmondt. Miss Annie Gill presented a ludicrous picture as Jean M'Alpine, and Miss Esther Tearle was a sprightly Mattie. The scenery, as we have said, was exceedingly beautiful, and the music, under the direction of Mr George Burnley, all that could be desired.

Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—This theatre reopened on Monday with a capital performance of The Private Secretary, by Mr Eugene C. Stafford's company. In the interval the whole house has been thoroughly renovated, and, filled with an appreciative audience, presented a very charming appearance. Mr Hawtrey's comedy is one of the funniest ever written, and although played over thirteen thousand times up till now, maintains a marvellous vitality. The Rev. Robert Spalding was in capital hands, and Mr Donald Price Evans may be congratulated on a highly diverting performance. That esteemed actor, Mr W. Hargreaves, was in excellent form as Mr Cattermole, and Mr Wilfred Compton presented an effective bit of character acting as Mr Sidney Gibson. The young men, Harry Marsland and Douglas Cattermole, were capitally played by Messrs Vivian Gilbert and Fred Inwood, and Mr Raymond Chester proved an eminently satisfactory Mr Marsland. The ladies were particularly good. Mrs Alfred Davis made a fine appearance as Miss Ashford, and Miss Cissy Wade showed remarkable comic ability as the landlady, Mrs Stead. Miss Dora Grey had a hearty reception as Edith Marsland, and won golden opinions for her bright and vivacious acting. Miss Mary E. Deverell completed a very excellent cast as Eva Webster. Buckstone's domestic comedy, Good for Nothing, preceded, Miss Dora Grey giving a realistic impersonation of Nan.

Empire Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss.—Mr George Lashwood made a welcome reappearance at this house on Monday, and had an enthusiastic welcome from his many friends and admirers in the city. He sang six of his best songs in dashing style, and the audience would not let him retire until he had given them some of the ditties he made so popular when fulfilling his local pantomime engagement last Christmas. A very delightful turn was that of Dinah Morris and her troupe of Southern State artistes, in the musical and dancing scena "The Lost Coon," the several performers displaying great skill. The Leggetts appeared in their favourite statue sketch, and once more distinguished themselves by their clever and spirited acting. Stelling and Revell gave a humorous performance on the bars; and Mr and Mrs Neil Litchfield appeared in the American rural sketch Down at Brook Farm with considerable success. Miss Marie Reeve sang with great vivacity, and Miss May Milburn, comedienne, also made an excellent appearance. Miss Lillian Bishop, male impersonator, and Mr Dan Crawley remain over from last week; and Messrs Cullen and Carthy mplete the programme.

EXETER.

Theatre Royal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr W. H. Kirby's company, in The New Mephisto, is the opening attraction for the season here. Dick Pilgrim is laughably interpreted by Mr W. H. Kirby, his comicalities, coupled with the eccentricities of Miss Marion Armitage as Becky Pilgrim, keeping the fun going from start to finish. In excellent vein is Mr Fred Lyne's conception of the name-part. The three "goey" widows, as represented by Misses D. Cecil, L. Howard, and M. Keeley, prove exceedingly popular; and fun in no small measure is provided by Messrs Herbert St. John and Willie H. Vernon as Lord Hummingtop and Major Bantam respectively. Miss Lilly Gullick is a charmingly vivacious Dolly; and Captain Meredith is admirably portrayed by Mr H. P. Carr. The musical portion of the programme, under the bâton of Mr G. C. Brookes, is first-rate, and a vocal quartet introduced by the Thalian Glee Singers is altogether above the average.

FOLKESTONE.

Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—Mr George Dance's company in A Country Girl is proving a great attraction here this week. Mr Francis Ludlow is a gentlemanly Geoffrey Challoner; Mr H. C. Morton is a quaint Sir Joseph Verity; Mr F. W. Pattrick as the Rajah deserves praise; Mr Arthur Hayter gives a neat character sketch of Grandfer Mummery; Mr Harry Buss is immensely diverting in his treatment of the character of Barry; Miss K. Comber is a charming Nora; Miss Ernestine Desborough is well suited as Princess Melaneh; Miss Rosie Begarnie dances well as Sophie; and Miss Nellie Cozens as Nan puts much life and spirit in the part, her singing being much enjoyed.

Victoria Pier.—Lessees, Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., Limited; General Manager. Mr H. De Manche.—Miss May Finch, contralto, has a pleasing voice; Mr Ernest Pike, tenor, is well worth hearing; Mr Harrison Hill, humorist, is deserving of special praise; Mr Patrick Kirwan's "Idyllic Players" give an admirable performance; and delightful singing is heard in the Café Chantant from "Ye Olde English Minstrels."

Leas Pavilion.—Manager, Mr A. Sitter.—The artists here this week include Miss Cordelia Grylls, soprano; and Mr Charles Conway, the famous entertainer and comedian. Some pleasing selections are given by the Ladies' Blue Salon Orchestra. An excellent series of pictures is also exhibited.

Town Hall.—Lessee, Mr E. J. Chadwick.—Mr H. D. Roberts is exhibiting some fine pictures. There is also Garford's excellent educated dogs and pigeons, and several other variety artists.

GATESHEAD.

Metropole Theatre, Limited.—General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Straughan.—The last drama to be acted at this playhouse, The Traitor, has been patronised by big crowds nightly. After the close of the present week the theatre is to undergo extensive alterations, and on the 22d inst. will be opened as a variety house. Mr Wellesley Draper is responsible for a capable embodiment of the rôles of Prince Rudolf and Colonel Nervi, and as the Chief of Police (the Traitor), Mr Stephen E. Scanlan scores a creditable success. Mr Bernard Liell makes the most of the character of General Hertz, and as General Franz Mr Edward Duff acts well. Mr Edward Jenner makes a first-rate Captain Ross. In the rôle of Elsie Duprey Miss Hettie Senior scores a distinct success, while as Cen-Cen, a Japanese girl, Miss Anena Walton earns the applause of the audience. Miss Georgina Thierry makes a first-rate Zulu.

GLASGOW.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Humphrys.—Messrs Edward A. Coventry and John R. Collins's company is here this week, giving a capital performance of the sporting comedy Thoroughbred. This piece has not been seen in Glasgow since 1895, when it was played by Mr J. L. Toole for three nights. Lord Landacre and his son, Blenkinsop, are excellent types of the sporting swell, and are represented by Mr Richard Boleyn and Mr Edward A. Coventry respectively. Another successful bit of work is Mr Percy Bell's amusing portrayal of John Rimple, the Mayor of Upcome, whose ambitious wife is characteristically depicted by Miss Mary Smith, the Tosh of Mr George Elliston being also a good study. In the part of Decker the acting of Mr Allan Cunard is exceptionally fine, while Mr John R. Collins extracts a deal of humour from the character of Nizrel. Miss Hilda Stewart gives the requisite style and smartness to the part of the Hon. Wilhelmina Carlingham, and the Delia Rimple of Miss Katharine Parry and the Miss Pallington of Miss Beatrice Egerton are artistic performances. The parts of Wokeham and Jennings are well filled by Messrs Harold C. Wadley and C. Frere. The company is under the direction of Mr W. J. Lancaster, and as a curtain-raiser Cutting Out a Prize is performed.

Royalty Theatre, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr H. Macfarlane.—Mr Thomas Thorne and company opened here on Monday with The Guv'nor. The comedy was exceedingly well presented. The part of Macclesfield was in the able hands of Mr Thomas Thorne. As Butterscotch Mr M. Russell Rosse deserved credit. Capital work was done by Mr Philip Hewland as Freddy, and Mr George Mudie, jun., was well placed as Theodore. Miss Edith Hesketh was a charming Aurelia, and Miss Ethel Royale as Kate was very good, while Carrie was suitably played by Miss Vera Wallace. The Gregory of Mr Norman Clark was a capable portrayal, as was also the Mr Vellum and Ullage of Mr Clarence Pelham. The comedy was preceded by A Kiss in the Dark, which was briskly played.

Princess's.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon Acting-Manager, Mr Hugh Murdoch.—A large and appreciative audience turned out to welcome Mr S. F. Cody and his American company in the sensational drama The Klondyke Nugget. The principal characters are well sustained by Mr Edward Leroy as George Exelby, Mr Vivian Cody as Joe Smith, Mr Leon Cody as Waco, an Indian chief; Mr Bob Thorp as Bill Sykes, and Mr Tom Gillimore as Paddy O'Donohue, while a special word of praise is due Miss Edith Mumford as Rosie Lee. Some marvellous rifle shooting is given by the Cody Family during the evening, and is deservedly applauded.

Grand, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Mascard.—This handsome theatre opened again on Monday with Mr Walter Melville's company in Her Second Time on Earth. A crowded house followed with interest every incident in this exciting play, and curtain calls were given at the end of several of the acts. Miss Hilda Beverley again gives a most dramatic embodiment of Dora Grey, the evil genius of the piece. Mr Charles Franmore's performance as Captain Norman is particularly good. Mr Cecil A. Melton is a handsome Jack Carlton, and as Laura Norman Miss Frances Leamington makes a sympathetic heroine. Mr Santley as the callous Guy Brand acts with all the necessary emphasis. Mr St. John Stuart gives a clever performance as Tom Norman. Well-acted character studies come from Miss Polly Marsh as Elizabeth Burke (a realistic assumption), and Mr Wilton J. Selby as Beppo. Mr Fred Ingram and Miss Nana Flensberg infuse lots of fun into the play as Teddy Butterfly and his sweetheart Kitty. Mr Angus Mervyn is amusing as the old farmer, Gumbrill. The play is mounted with extreme care.

Metropole, Limited.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—Mr Howard Hinton's company is here with Honour Bright. Miss Nellie Marler as an American lady journalist gives a sparkling rendering of the character, and in her disguises as newsboy, office boy, and coster girl she is equally entertaining. Mr Richard Courtland as Sir Godfrey Forrester and Mr Gilbert Ainslie as his son, Frank, give good representations. Miss Grace Olivia as Constance Hope and Miss Violet Welsh as Ruth act with charming natural simplicity. Mr Wm. Carriden as the scheming villain, Ravenscroft, who occasionally lapses into an appearance of virtue, plays the part well. Mr Fred Yarnold as a journalist contributes much fun and several amusing songs. Mr Tom Robertson acts a "bad lot" down on his luck, and does it well. Mr R. Hamilton as a family lawyer is quiet and gentlemanly. Some excellent singing by Misses Marler, Grace Olivia, and others enlivens the play.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden.—After the summer vacation the Govan theatre opened again on Monday with Mr Waldon's own stock company from the Princess's in East Lynne. This version has been a great success wherever played, and Miss Grace Lester's performance of Lady Isabel is a striking piece of acting. The cast is practically the same as at the Princess's a few weeks ago.

Tivoli and Queen's, Limited. — Managing-Directors, Messrs T. J. Colquhoun and B. M. Armstrong.—These halls are now open again for the season, and have reverted to the "two-house" principle. At the Tivoli George Lurich, the Russian wrestler, is having exciting bouts with a number of clever wrestlers of various nationalities, including some of our local champions. Katie Butler, the Two Eltons, Prince Bendon's Bioscope, and Carlo and Maie contribute smart variety turns. At the Queen's Neil Kenyon, the Princess's pantomime favourite, is a strong attraction, and that stirring sketch, The Last Temptation, is given by Mr Percy Murray's company.

Zoo-Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and Thos. Barrasford.—The attractions here this week are up to the usual standard. Vansart, "the man with the grip of iron," performs some wonderful feats of strength. The Royal Zanettos, Japanese jugglers, also meet with a hearty reception. The other important turns include Verno and Voyce, descriptive vocalists; Rhoda Paul, burlesque artist and impersonator; Ward Brothers, eccentric acrobats; Harry Edson and his canine friend Doc; Edward Clode, baritone vocalist; Harry Taft, whistling comedian; and George Schindler, musical specialist.

Palace.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Rich Waldon and Thos. Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr David Douglas.—Good houses continue to favour the management at this resort. The company this week includes Verno and Voyce in their vocal burlesque Jack Sheppard; Mr D. W. Watson is a cornet soloist of much ability, and is particularly good on the post-horn; Queen and Le Brun are clever patter comedians and expert dancers; while Fred Cary, as an eccentric comedian and facial contortionist, gains much applause; and the Original Garganis are humorous acrobats of a high order, and they contribute some original acts. Similar praise may be awarded Felton and Manley in their unique athletic act, A Rural Relative; comedy juggling by Alba and Amber adds agreeable variety to the programme; and the Bodina Trio give a pleasing musical act in which, to the accompaniment of banjo, guitar, &c., they contribute some excellent melodies. Another good performance is that of the Three Dagmars, acrobats and equilibrists. A series of animated pictures completes an enjoyable entertainment.

GLOUCESTER.

Theatre Royal.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—The season opened here on Monday with Miss Grace Warner and her company in the musical comedy, The New Commander. Miss Grace Warner plays Violet Flintheart in a vivacious and pleasing manner; Lieut Frank Harding is capitally rendered by Mr George Gordon; and Mr J. Couch Jones renders valuable assistance as Lieut. Jack Tremmingway. The Sultan of Ramjamjah is entrusted to Mr St. Bernard Wyntour, who enacts the part in spirited style; Miss Maud Warburton as the middy, Freddy Bounce, deserves high praise; Matthew Flintheart is well impersonated by Mr J. P. Marsden; Mr M. Anderson makes a comical waiter of Tittums; Miss E. Marchant appears as Beda, a slave; Mr F. Dillon is a good Perado, and Mr A. Budd an able Bo'sun. The Primrose Quartet introduce some clever dances, and a cleverly trained and effective chorus enhances the quality of the production. Mr Caffin Baxter is the musical director. On Friday night The Little Widow was announced.

GRAVESEND.

Grand Theatre of Varieties, Ltd —Managing-Director, Captain H. E. Davis; General Manager, Mr David Hart.— For the holiday week Edward Ranier with his company paid a welcome return visit, and scored a huge success with the detective episode, The Bank Robbery. Harry Baylis, clever coster comedian; Sisters Julian, sparkling duettists and dancers; Lidden and Hayward, the smart comedy team; Flo Rayner, an attractive comedian and dancer; with Mamie Leigh and Will Farrell, complete a strong programme.

New Public Hall and Theatre. — The first three nights of the week were set apart for Mr Harry J. Snelson's company, in True to the Core. On Thursday and Friday Mr G. W. Bowes presented Mr C. Macdona's company in A Country Girl.

GREAT GRIMSBY.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Mr George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company opened here on Bank Holiday their second visit with the popular drama Judy. Miss Florrie Groves, in the part of Judy, has proved herself a young actress of exceptional ability; Mr George Kirk has given a forceful representation of Grip, the three-fingered detective; Miss Mary Neil has two very exacting parts as Alice and Polly, but acquits herself with distinction in each; Mr Carlton Wallace accomplishes good work as Duberg; and the parts of Blake, Sterling, and Jim are well portrayed by Miss Muriel Thompson, Mr William Vane, and Mr Conn Allister respectively.

Hippodrome.—The Hippodrome reopened on Bank Holiday, after being closed for renovation. The Four Burgatiles head the programme. They are a quartet of very amusing musical pantomimists. The Zenary Brothers have given an acrobatic performance that is remarkable for neatness and finish; Geoffreys and Benson have caused much fun with their sketch A Bit of Bacon; whilst the Sivronis' burlesque, Opera Gone Mad, has also proved entertaining. Emmie Ames, comedienne, has given some charming songs, and others contributing to the programme have been Syd Herman, comedian; Chas. Russell, comedian; and Wilton Walton, magician.

Empire, Cleethorpes. — Zertho's Dogs have given an example at the Empire this week of the wonderful degree to which animals may be trained. Their performance has been really astonishing. Marie Elsie, who has already established herself a great favourite in the district, both in pantomime and on the variety stage, has continued her former successes. La Belle Vita has given a highly pleasing exhibition of various styles of dancing. Ada Vernon, burlesque actress, has been responsible for an excellent turn; whilst others who have appeared are D. L Verrin, comedy contortionist; Percy Vere, comedian; and Frank Staley, actor-vocalist.

Pier Gardens Pavilion, Cleethorpes —The programmes at the Bank Holiday entertainments here have been particularly enjoyable. The artists engaged have been Miss Annie Goodwin, soprano; Mrs Margaret Radcliffe, vocalist; Charles Cassell, and Ernest Hastings.

GREENOCK.

Theatre Royal —Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alexander Wright; Managers Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—This theatre was reopened for the season on Saturday, Mr John Clyde's company presenting Rob Roy to a crowded audience. Mr John Clyde gives a vigorous impersonation of Rob Roy, and is frequently applauded. Mr Chas. Aitken is a capable Rashleigh, and Mr Fred Eugene keeps the house amused as Dougal. Mr Walter Grey is a general favourite as Francis Osbaldistone, his singing being much admired. Mr Craighall Sherry acts Bailie Nicol Jarvie in a way that leaves nothing to be desired. Mr Arthur Lester is good as Captain Thornton and Mr Bert Wynne successful as Sir Fred Vernon. Mr J. S. Davenport is effective as Mr Owen. Miss Florence Hayward is well received as Diana Vernon, and pleases with her singing. Miss Belle Cecil makes an excellent Helen Macgregor, Miss Jenny Sneddon is a creditable Mattie, and Miss Margaret Wilton as Jean M'Alpine deserves praise.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

Royal Aquarium.— Proprietor, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Scott Phipp.—Finely mounted, becomingly costumed, and admirably played, The Duchess of Dantzio is attracting crowded houses each evening. Miss Rita Presano is earnest and natural as Catherine Upscher; Mr T. Maxwell gives a spirited and effective rendition of the rôle of the Vicomte De Bethune; Miss Alice Coverick is simple and refined as Renée De Saint Mézard; Mr Frederick Moyes is excellent as Napoleon I.; Lefebvre is capitally represented by Mr Albert Chapman, who sings well the music allotted to him; Mr Colin Mackey is highly amusing as Papillon; Miss Mabel Bracey is a dignified Josephine; Napoleon's sisters are well played by Miss May Harriss and Miss Edyth Carlyle; and Miss Amy Burton is admirable as Lisette.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale.—Miss Fortescue and her répertoire company are drawing large houses this week. On Monday Moths was produced, when Miss Fortescue gave a breezy and effective rendition of the rôle of Fuchsia Leach; Mr Conway Wingfield was effective as Prince Zouroff; Lord Jura was well played by Mr Dalziel Heron; Mr Francis Burdett was excellent as the Duke of Mull; admirable renditions of their parts were given by Mr Eric Blind as Raphael De Correza, Miss Miriam Lewis as the Duchesse De Sonnaz, Miss Madeleine Meredith as Lady Dolly Vanderdecken, Miss Gladys Jesson as Vere Herbert, and Miss Eugenie Vernie as Princess Nadine.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr George Gilbert.—The great attraction for the week is the realistic spectacle Tally Ho! in which stags, hounds, hunters, and huntresses take part, all in the end plunging into the great lake of water formed by the sinking ring. In this scene rabbits and jackals evoke endless laughter. The Tokio Troupe of Japanese give an unique balancing entertainment; Parke's Eton Boys sing well and effectively; the Sisters Devona contribute a smart gymnastic show. Eugene Cooke, Talberto and Douglas, Mons. Henri, Baby Culeen, and the Royal Bioscope complete an excellent programme.

Britannia Pier Pavilion.—Managing-Director, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr Edward Gray.—The Jackson Family provide an exceedingly clever musical entertainment, for which they are rewarded with unstinted applause; the Patty Frank Troupe of acrobats give a marvellous display of agility and endurance; Amstell and Levi contribute an amusing turn; and J. D. Hunter proves himself a clever comedian and humourist. Arthur Royce, Miss Alma Curzon, the American Biograph, and Madame Angless' Ladies' Orchestra give excellent help in a capital programme of amusement.

Wellington Pier Pavilion.—Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr Harry Tunbridge.—An excellent holiday programme is provided for the week. As exponents of comedy Miss Lily Simmons, Mr Arthur Stacey, Mr Walter Wallis, and Conan and Doyle are successful in their respective turns. Miss Idalia May gains favour as a transformation dancer; the Karno Trio contribute an amusing sketch, entitled The Travellers' Rest; Mr Bert Woodward does wonderfully clever tricks as the cycling coon; Miss Grace Merten wins applause as a street singer; Wal Pink and company evoke roars of laughter in their amusing sketches.

Gorleston Pavilion.—Lessees, Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr Bertram Knight.—A capital entertainment is provided this week by Mr D'Arcy Clayton's humorous musical entertainers, the Gipsies, and their jester. In the latter rôle Mr Fred Milner is very successful; his songs, recitations, and patter being admirable; Miss Florence Croft and Miss Barbara Antoine sing with feeling and expression; Mr D'Arcy Clayton and Mr Eric Davidson contribute some well-rendered songs; Mr Robert Tattersall amuses as a conjuror and ventriloquist. Duets, quartets, and choruses are well given by the company.

GUERNSEY.

St. Julian's.—Lessee, Mr C. Robert Perkins Representative, Mr T. B. Banks —This week Mr George Edwardes's company San Toy is on a return visit. Mr A. Clarke gives a clever embodiment of Yen-How; Mr Edward Sherras as Bobby Preston is well received in his several songs; Fo-Hop is cleverly acted by Mr Clinton Reynald; Sir Bingo has a commanding exponent in Mr C. J. Williams; Mr Alfred Beers has made a decided hit as Li; and Mr Cliffe Davies is amusing as the Emperor. In the principal rôle Miss Don Harradine wins golden opinions, her sweet voice is well suited to the songs which fall to her lot; a very chic and engaging Dudley is Miss Florence Arnold; Miss Lydia Naylor as Yung-Shi is a favourite; and Miss Mabel Lavelle as Poppy delights everybody. The pas seul in act two by Miss B. Gradilla deserves mention, as do the efforts of the representatives of the five little wives of the Mandarin.

International Cirque. — Proprietor, Mr T. Sloan.— This popular place of amusement is crowded nightly, and every week there is a change of programme. Mr T. Sloan is an exceptionally clever trick rider, and Miss Annie and Louise Nella are encored nightly for their wonderful feats. Salvador and Alfred, comic Chinese, score; and the Paulestros Troupe and the Cleos are worthy of the applause bestowed upon them.

HALIFAX.

Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—A capital company here is headed by the Five Delevines, whose musical, acrobatic, and pantomimic concoction is very enjoyable. George Bernand, character vocalist, is effective and popular; Adrim and Oram give a clever turn of acrobatics and tumbling; Dan Filmer, a comedian of the eccentric order, is very diverting; the Sisters Llewellyn are the happy possessors of good voices; Ned Graydon plays on a variety of musical instruments; and Luis Hardt, styled the boy Samson, exhibits feats of strength. The De Lornes do a clever acrobatic turn.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil.—The Karno Troupe of speechless comedians are giving great satisfaction to Palace audiences with their funny pantomimic comedy Early Birds A really enjoyable and clever musical performance is given by Hill and Whitaker, the latter, a young lady with a fine contralto voice, being particularly effective in song. Abel and Welsh, acrobatic grotesques, come in for much applause; the Sisters Hula sing and dance with much success; Cameron, a conjuror, is smart in his tricks; and Flo Challis, contralto vocalist, is well received. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr Whitelock, is a prominent feature of the place, which deserves recognition.

HARROGATE.

Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr R. Hullah.—Messrs George Edwardes and Charles Frohman's company played here the first three nights of the week, with matinée performance on Bank Holiday, in the farcical comedy, Are You a Mason? Mr Harry Ashford as Amos Bloodgood caused a good deal of laughter, and Messrs Stephen Wentworth and T. O'Connor were good in their respective parts of Frank Perry and Ernest Morrison. Mr Anthony Fawcett was very amusing as George Fisher; Miss Violet Graham made a very charming Mrs Perry; and Miss Lily Beagle and Miss Isla Glynn as Annie and Lulu left nothing to be desired. Other parts were ably sustained. Messrs Silvanus Dauncey and Mr M. V. Leveaux's company, in Mr H. A. Jones's comedy, Joseph Entangled, was played on Thursday.

Kursaal.—Manager, Mr H. J. Dacre —At the matinée performance of Mr Arthur Roberts and company, in The Darling of the Guards, there was a big house. The concerts during the week have been well attended. Miss Edna Thornton is the vocalist.

HANLEY.

Grand, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—At the head of the bill is the Hadj Abdullah Troupe of Arab tumblers, whose performance is clever. The Staig combination present a novelty, entitled "Motor Racing on an Aerial Circle," which proves most interesting. George Brooks is a first-class comedian, with capital songs, and is nightly encored. Morris and Morris are most amusing, their turn being in some ways new. Miss Lizzie Daniels is a good comedienne; Turle and Volto are funny in their boxing and trapeze act; and the Biograph shows the great Toronto Fire.

HASTINGS.

Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr George H. Gaze —Mr Frederick Mouillot's company opened on Monday its tour here with My Lady Molly. The stage was managed by Mr Fredk. Silverston, and the orchestra was skilfully directed by Mr W. J. Damant. Lady Molly Martingale was admirably impersonated by Miss Beatrice Edwardes, and her singing pleased greatly. Miss Rita Everard proved a charming Alice Coverdale. Her singing of "The Merry Mediæval Maid" was especially good. Miss Kitty Upton played well the rôle of Lady Molly's confidential maid, Hester. Captain Romney was ably impersonated by Mr Harry Davies, whose singing was warmly applauded. Mr Ernest Mozar as Alice's suitor, Lionel Bland, achieved success in his song, "There's a little maid I know." As the Captain's servant, Mickey O'Dowd, much mirth was provided by Mr Stephen Fitzgerald. Mr Augustus Cramer was satisfactory as Sir Miles Coverdale, and the remaining characters were satisfactorily sustained.

Pier Pavilion.—Pier Master, Mr R. Turner; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles H. Hawker.—Under the direction of Signor Arrigo Boschie, Ashton's Italian Orchestra, whose conductor is Signor Comuni, are still holding the boards here. The programme is supplemented by the two vocalists Miss Jessie Goldsack and Mr Lewys James. The songs rendered by Miss Goldsack clearly demonstrate the possession of a remarkably good contralto voice. Mr James is listened to with great pleasure in such songs as "The Storm Fiend" and "The Devout Lover."

St. Leonards Pier Pavilion. — Pier Master, Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh. — Notwithstanding the many outdoor attractions at the seaside, Mr W. S. Penley's chief company is getting good houses both morning and evening during the week in the popular comedy Charley's Aunt. The actors are well-suited for their respective parts. The assumed Aunt "from Brazil" is taken in a highly diverting manner by Mr E. H. Wynne, his young undergraduate friends, Mr A. Mallalieu as Jack Chesney and Mr H. Wylton as Charley Wykeham, admirably supporting him in the deception. The astonishment at the pious fraud is naturally portrayed when Miss Mary Morison as Donna Lucia arrives. Mr Walter Pemberton gives a convincing rendering of Spettigue, the solicitor, whilst Mr E. Savery presents a well-coloured portrayal of the Indian baronet. The ward and niece of Spettigue, Kitty and Amy, are daintily and prettily represented by Miss B. Fitzgerald and Miss Marie Grogan.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny; Musical Director, Mr W. Denton.—The excellent holiday programme provided here is the means of drawing a host of admirers. Mr Ted Cowan introduces some capital songs; Mr Arthur Gilbert proves himself an excellent vocalist; Rich and Rich, comedians, keep the audience highly amused; Miss Lily Flexmore finds plenty of admirers, her graceful dancing being quite a feature; Mr Sam Mayo, comedian, soon ingratiates himself with his audience; Miss Rose Elliott, comedienne, sings with much sweetness and expression; and the popularity of Mr Chirgwin, the "white-eyed Kaffir," is well-known, his musical abilities pleasing all his listeners. The evening finishes with some effective pictures on the Bioscope.

Beach Concert Pavilion —Manager, Mr Geo. Blackmore.—The performances by Mr Wallis Arthur and party, here and in the White Rock bandstand, continue highly attractive, by reason of the refinement and good taste of both vocalists and comedians.

HEBBURN.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson.—Monday night being the re-opening of the season, an excellent variety company was engaged by Messrs Jackson and May. The bill is headed by the Ayrtons, who accomplish some daring acrobatic feats with grace and ability. The Sisters Korosko Bales are also a strong feature in the programme, and evoke much applause in their great juggling act. Charles Valvo creates much merriment with his ventriloquial entertainment. Other artists of merit are Florentia Glynne, Welsh soprano; Prince Sevrie, the Turkish mystery; Harry Travers, the curious comedian; Bertha Kendall, refined comedienne; Fred Byrne, versatile comedian; and Evans and Ford, speciality artists.

HORWICH.

New Prince's Theatre.—Manager, Mr Arthur Sandiford; Stage-Manager, Mr Alfred Holles.—After being closed since Whitsuntide for alterations the above house reopened on Monday under entirely new management. Mr R. S. Gresham and company occupy the boards this week in the Lancashire drama Vice and Virtue. The piece is well staged, and the company is a strong one. Mr R. S. Gresham as John Carford gives a fine manly exposition of a true Lancashire lad; Mr J. Cornwall is effective as Carford, senior; Mr Samuel Sinclair does well as Jem Jackson; Mr John Power as Robert Hickton is capital; Mr F. W. Chapman is a satisfactory Mr Wigglesworth; Mr Horace Buckley as P.C. Raspberry is responsible for genuine comedy, and his songs and dances with Sally Reedhook, a typical Lancashire lass, in the hands of Miss Nell Ingram, are received with great enthusiasm; Miss Ana Corri's impersonation of Edith Wheatley is a very pleasing and sympathetic one; Miss Dolores Hope as Lill, a ballad singer, plays the part to perfection; and Miss Rita Milman's Harriet Hickton is a very capable performance.

HULL.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; Resident Director, Mr W. F. Morton —Messrs Arthur Shirley and Hill-Mitchelson's play, I Defy the World, was a strong Bank Holiday attraction for Mr Morton, and, despite many outdoor attractions, the house was filled. The company presenting it is exceedingly strong, and do full justice to the rôles alloted them. The bioscope views are still a great attraction.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Local Manager, Mr Harry Eaden.—Once more that ever-popular opera, Les Cloches de Cornuville, is in our midst. To the long line of Serpolettes and Germaines are added Mrs Lucie Fitzroy and Mdlle. Delrita, both capable artistes. The music still runs with the same merry swing, and the choruses are received with the same feeling of pleasure as in the days long past.

Alexandra Theatre.—Sole Owner, Mr W. Morton; General Manager, Mr George Morton.—Mr James Willard's spectacular drama, In the Shadow of Night, is of a highly sensational, hence of attractive, nature to the denizens of this very popular house. The abundance of the applause testified to the extent in which they relished the excellent fare provided on Monday night.

Palace Theatre. — Moss Empires, Limited; Local Manager, Mr A. Graham.—At a very early stage on Monday Mr Graham had to hoist "House full" boards, and no wonder, for the bill was highly attractive. Miss Lil Hawthorne proved herself to be a comedienne who knows exactly how to hit the public taste. The Kaufmans are a capital cyclist troupe. The remainder of the programme is very good.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg —The holiday attractions here are headed by Radford and Valentine, smart and amusing comedy jugglers. Mdlle. Ada Alexandra is a capital exponent of Dutch comedy patter, and, assisted by her "bevy of charming Dutch girls," proves an attractive turn. Juvenile precocity is well represented by Little Uno, the boy comedian, and other attractions are Madge Grey, comedienne; Reed and Wright, comedy duettists; Beatie Foster, descriptive vocalist; the Sakers, comedy team; Wallace Whitney, comedian; and some new films on Burns's Bioscope.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur.—Messrs Carson and Granville's company is here in Defending His Honour. The hero and heroine have been ably represented by Mr John Davidson and Miss F Melrose-Millet. The villain and his satellites have been adequately portrayed by Messrs Clifton Boyne, Walton Peale, and Oscar Walker; and humorous variety has been cleverly supplied by Messrs F. L Arthur, Willie Black, and Miss Lilian Mathews.

ILKESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr Robert Perris and company supply the special attraction for Bank Holiday week with the American drama A Fight for Millions. Mr Robt. Perris is to be warmly commended not only for his excellent impersonation of the inventor, Tom Manly, but also for the admirable manner in which he has staged the production. Mr J. Newton Dowling gives a good reading of the part of Hudson Rivers, the millionaire; Mr W. S. Stevenson is unctuously villainous as Richard Dudley; Mr Fred Acton invests the inevitable Jew with much novel humour; and Mr Harry Clement makes Willie Neverwork the most lovable character in the play. As Pearl Rivers Miss Eva Purcell looks charming and acts with great feeling; Miss Fannie Williams is a dignified Mrs Hudson Rivers; Miss Evelyn Robson as Helen Dobson is excellently suited; and Miss Winnie Acton as Little Madge speaks her lines well. Miss Gertie Douglas in the dual-rôle of Betty and May Brady dances and sings with much taste, and gives great satisfaction.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr Joe Richards.—An excellent programme for the holiday week is as follows:—The Rushfords, electric illustrated songsters; Dennis Carney, refined Irish comedian; Professor Howitz Dunn, shadowgraphist; and King Leo, ventriloquist.

POPLAR PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Jabez Barber.—The Two Macs, patterers, comedians, and dancers; Bob Gardner, Tyrolean king; Fred Ray, descriptive vocalist; Natt Raynor, eccentric comedian; and Miss Lilian Clarke, charming soprano vocalist, make up a very attractive entertainment.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. Fisk.—The opening of the autumn season here was signalised by the production of Messrs G. Dance and John Crook's piece, The Lady Slavey. Some structural improvements of the Lyceum have been made during the recess, including a new portico, with new exits, the front now presenting a handsome appearance. A good audience, in spite of the hot weather, was present on Monday night, the merry comedy being well received. Mr Allen Morris is one of the chief members of Mr William Greet's company, and showed himself a good actor besides a fine singer in the part of Evelyn, while Mr Frank Sherman was a droll sheriff's officer. Messrs Harry Walsh and Walter Hybert were satisfactory as the Major and Lord Lavender respectively, and the other male parts were in efficient hands. Miss Addie Lennard was a charming Phyllis, giving her songs delightfully, while Miss Millicent Marsden was a characteristic music hall artist. Miss Ethel Ashton and Miss Jean Van Dalle both added to the success of the production, the chorus and band being well directed by Mr William Stephenson.

JARROW.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Secretary, Mr William Y. Oakes.—This week Mr Gus C. Livesey's company is here in the powerful drama entitled The Crimson Club. Mr Gus C. Livesey is a manly Richard Fenton; Mr Lionel Thompson plays with force the part of Sir Philip Garside; Mr Herbert Belmore is well placed as the Hon. Herbert Selby; Mr H. C. Gilpin gives a smart rendering of Silas Craddock; Mr Shaw is excellent as Reginald Adolphus Garside, his whistling solo being most highly appreciated; Mr J. E. Reed gives a good account of Sir Charles Lockwood, K.C.; Miss A. N. Livesey is well placed as Julia Marsden; Miss Elsie Mesnerd is a charming Muriel Lockwood; Miss Lily Day makes effective use of her opportunities as Esther Craddock; and Miss Bertha Cousins gives an excellent rendering of Soponisba Garside.

JERSEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. Robt. Perkins.—The work of Sherlock Holmes in connection with the strange case of Miss Faulkner was presented on Monday to a large Bank holiday house by Mr Charles Frohman's talented company, in whose hands the play lost none of its thrilling interest. The mounting and production were alike excellent, and the various rôles were in capable hands. Much of the work fell on Mr Kenneth Rivington, who impersonated Sherlock Holmes. In personal appearance Mr Rivington is an ideal Sherlock, and his every mood and action were in harmony with the well-known character of the detective. Professor Moriarty was ably represented by Mr Arthur B. Murray, and Mr Ernest Gray as James Larrabee gave a capable performance as a typical stage villain. Mr Edward Heanley both looked and acted the part of Dr. Watson admirably, and Miss Florence Radcliffe made a winning Alice Faulkner. Miss Carrie Lacy, who figures as Madge Larrabee, possesses histrionic abilities of a high order, and she made the utmost use of her opportunities. This thrilling play is being presented up to Friday night inclusive, and good houses are assured, the visitor's season being at its height.

WEST PARK PAVILION.—Mr and Mrs Victor Andre are paying a return visit to Jersey, and opened on Monday at the above pavilion to a full house. Mr Andre's conjuring and ventriloquial sketch elicited warm applause, and the clever tricks of Yoko and Hama, who work Oriental mysteries, add to the general mystery surrounding the clever entertainment. Mrs Andre's exhibition entitled "Somnomosto; or, Dream Visions," in which she replies to queries written down by members of the audience and kept in their possession, evokes the greatest interest and is a fitting finale to a soirée at once fascinating and clever.

KETTERING.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Payne.—The holiday attraction here is Mr and Mrs Kimberley's company in A Fight for Life. Mr J. Parker Royston is a dignified Count Adrian, Mr Bert Morley is successful as Jean, and Mr Harry Lindon ably portrays the evil character of Carlos. Mr Tom Lisbourne is funny as Dan Murphy, and is well supported by Miss Edie Macklin as Suzanne Mr James Hont gives a fine rendering of Miser Ferrand, Miss Grace Jones is admirable as Marie, and Miss Clara Santly submits a powerful performance of La Cardell.

LLANELLY.

ROYALTY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr John Tully.—This popular house of amusement reopened its doors after the summer vacation on Monday, when My Native Land was presented to a large crowd in a most notable manner by Mr Oswald Cray's talented company. The play was finely mounted and dressed.

LANCASTER.

ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Hy. Wilkinson.—After the usual summer vacation this theatre was reopened on Saturday evening last, the attraction being Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company in the musical drama On the Stroke of Twelve. The principal parts are played by Mr Fred Rivers, who appears to advantage as the hero, Jack Rutledge; Mr H. Creagh Hunt as the schemer, Horton, proves equal to his part; and Mr Leslie Lingham gives an amusing portrayal of George Bainbridge. Humour is a strong feature in the play, and Mr Fred J. Little as Jasper is responsible for a deal of it. He has invaluable assistance from Mr Will Bass, who plays the part of Pat Cahill and Mr Karl H. Edwards as Moses Levi. Miss Nellie Moore acts with spirit as Jess Bainbridge, and sings well. Miss Bertha St. Ruth (Doris Rutledge) is also a pleasing singer, whilst the part of the adventuress, Marie Bergerre, is in the capable hands of Miss Elma C. Turner. The piece is well staged, and the numerous sensational and comedy scenes afford considerable interest.

LEAMINGTON.

CORPORATION FETE.—In connection with the Corporation music season a big fête was given in the Victoria Park on Monday, when three or four thousand people were present, in spite of counter attractions. The artistes engaged were:—Tell and Tell, on the flying rings; Hegarty, comedian and dancer; the Brothers Lledge, athletes and silver chain acrobats; the Waltons, comedy acrobats; Swift Trio, trick cyclists; and the Three Zaracs, comic triple barists. The Dudley Prize Band provided the music, and a first-class electric switchback, together with gondolas and shooting galleries, were on the ground. In the evening Messrs Brock gave a big firework display.

LEEDS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—The immensely popular musical comedy, The Belle of New York, makes what is announced as a farewell visit this week, the company being sent out by Mr George Musgrove. Some tuneful new numbers have been introduced, and the piece is again a huge attraction. Mr Harry A. Meynott plays Ichabod Bronson in quite his old style; Miss Noel Neville is an admirable exponent of the name-part; and Frank Lawton, of course, needs no introduction in his old part of Blinky Bill. A new Fifi is seen in Miss Lilian Digges, the effort being a most successful one.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—Sentenced for Life is being played here to huge holiday business by Mr Fred Bulmer's powerful company. The principal rôles are acted in excellent style by Messrs Ernest Vaughan, Chas. Whitlock, and R. Bosco, and Miss Madge Douglas, Miss G. V. Dance, and Miss Mary Dalby.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. Bush.—This theatre is occupied by Messrs Polini and Austin Melford's company with The Silver King. The company is a capable one, including Mr Lauderdale Maitland as Wilfred Denver, Miss Lilian Bethel as Nellie Denver, and Mr E. J. George.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Limited; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen.—The prince and pioneer of coon artistes, Eugene Stratton, appears here after a prolonged absence, and experienced a tremendous reception on Monday from a holiday crowd of huge dimensions. A favourite comedienne, Marie Kendall, also gets a big share of applause. The Glenroy Troupe, expert dancers and speciality artistes, are always a popular turn, and the comedians include that quaint and amusing example, Jack Camp. Mr and Mrs Gene Hughes submit their usual entertainment, and other smart turns include Leo Durvals, Frank Sylvo, Jessie Burnett, Steve M'Carthy, Georgina Leonard, and the Venola Brothers.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr Thos. Barrasford; General Managers, Messrs Edgar O. Waller and Charles Weldon.—This popular hall is nightly crowded to its fullest extent with holiday pleasure-seekers, and a capital programme is in evidence. The Matweef Hugoston Troupe lead with their expert acrobatic show; Simms and Simms shine at the other end of the bill in a comical musical speciality. Bertha Winder is seen in a clever exhibition of speciality dancing; the Bohemians appear with smart musical business; and favourable notice is also achieved by Polk and Collins, George Ripon, and Edna Mastin.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Jones.—An attractive holiday bill is headed by the Breton Troupe of pantomimists, whose diverting entertainment is thoroughly enjoyed; Billy Farrell, the coloured artists, submits a clever turn; and other capital entertainment is contributed by Curtis Leo, Howe and Ardie, and Alma Obrey.

LINCOLN.

ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr F. King.—This house reopened on Monday with Mr J. Bannister Howard's company in The Fatal Wedding, which gained remarkable success at the hands of a large audience. Mr Algernon Lee does very well in the difficult part of Wilson, and Mr Cecil A. Collins is effective as the scheming Curtis, Mr W. Rushton Evans being a lively Toto, Mr L. Shirley a stolid and clever Schwartz, and Mr Shirley Lea an amusing policeman. Miss Eva Moss is excellent as the misunderstood wife, Miss Beatrice Whitney admirably plays the part of the adventuress, Cora, and Miss Carrie Fenton wins high favour as Bridget. Miss Maisie Richardson is delightfully sweet and unconventional as "Little Mother." Songs and dances are introduced, and the staging is particularly good.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur.—The reopening here took place on Monday. Johnny Trundley, the Fat Boy of Peckham, makes his appearance before astonished audiences, and is starred on the bill. Frank Coyne scores heavily, four songs being demanded of him, and he keeps the house in roars of laughter. Zeta Grey and company present a very amusing absurdity The Lancashire Lass; Master George, a boy soprano, sings two songs very sweetly; and other excellent turns are given by the Four Trees, Thomas E. Finglas, Connie Milton, and Mr W. Compton's orchestra.

LITTLEHAMPTON.

NORFOLK THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Dan Randall.—Mr Dan Randall and company are submitting an excellent programme here for the season. Mr Fred Spencer is a very old favourite, and he keeps the house agog with merriment with his humorous patter songs and quaint business. Mr Leo Stirling sings his songs in a racy and whimsical vein, and is an instrumentalist of high merit. A good stroke of business is the engagement this year of the versatile comedian, Mr Medley Barrett, whose selections are given with inimitable skill and ability. He is making rapid strides to the front rank, and should be seen at the West-end at no distant date. Mr Dan Randall contributes his full quota, and is seen to considerable advantage in character songs and sketches. Mr Hawkins's fine voice is appreciated; Mrs Randall sings capitally; and other members of the company are successful. Mr Pearson performs yeoman services at the piano.

LONGTON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. S. Howard.—The season opened here on Monday with Mr Ian Maclaren's company, in A Fatal Crown. The play is well dressed, staged, and ably supported by Mr Ian Maclaren as Lord Dudley, Mr L. R. Montgomery as Herne the Hunter, Mr H. Howard as Simon Reynard, Miss Maude Anderson as Mary Tudor, Miss D. Mackenzie as Barbara Herne, and Miss Margaret Sagill as the ill-fated Lady Jane Grey.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—For the Bank Holiday attraction a good variety company is engaged. It is headed by the Norman-Burnett company in a romantic sketch entitled Beneath the Surface. Miss Lille Le Britton proves herself a graceful gymnast; Mr R. C. Note is a good comedian; Cavern and Cave in their comedietta An Early Morning Dip are very amusing; Mr Arthur Albert, actor-vocalist with a fine clear voice, is greatly applauded; Mr Cumminger, society entertainer and sand dancer, is very good; and the Sisters Dover, vocalists and dancers, contribute some pretty dances.

LEICESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—A cordial reception awaited Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr J. Edward Whitty's company here on Monday evening, on a return visit, in the stirring drama The World's Desire, which kept the large holiday audience thoroughly interested from the rise to the fall of the curtain. The mounting of the play is especially well done. Miss Ethel Van Praagh gives a graceful and clever impersonation of Dora Mutley. Mr Edward Whitty in the dual-rôle of Henry and Robert Selkirk is very good, and Mr Fitzhammon displays ability as the Hon. Ellis Tridley. Mr Harry Belford makes a humorous Nathaniel Mutley. Others who give praiseworthy delineations are Miss Connie Meadows (Helen Berkshaw), Mr Herbert Light (Gladstone Blair), Mrs Charles Wood (Justerina Hook), and Little Ella (Ragged Jack.)

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—A most attractive programme here this week is giving the utmost enjoyment to crowded houses. The star turn is provided by Miss Minnie Palmer, who is assisted by Mr Sidney Harcourt, their incident, entitled A Husband's Diary, by Mr Fred Horner, M.P., allowing these talented artists to give a full display of their undoubted histrionic abilities. The Griffiths Brothers, who bottom the bill, keep the audience in one continual roar of laughter with their exceptionally funny and original burlesques on champion wrestlers. Peggy Pryde, who, like her lamented mother, has captivated Leicester audiences, is accorded a splendid reception for her songs, "The Shop Waitress" and "Sammy's gone a-soldiering." Lucy Clarke, the popular Irish contralto, renders her numbers in a manner which wins the admiration of all. Bonnie Goodwin and her piccaninnies give a most enjoyable entertainment, the youngsters being very smart. Mark Anthony is a clever and versatile comedian. Damm Brothers, eccentric acrobats, give a skilful and original exhibition of acrobatic feats. Rodolfo and Corola, on the rings and trapeze, give a good show. Tiny Arnold, a very small artist, scores her usual success. Some entertaining films are also projected on the Bioscope. Owing to the illness of one of the members of Les Voces, operatic soloists, they were unable to appear.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—A good programme here is headed by the Four Rosaires, who are conspicuous with a good acrobatic turn. The Three Boleros are amusing in their comedy triple bar act entitled "Two Tramps and the Dude." Flo Schubert is a chic burlesque actress. Dale and O'Malley are a couple of comedians who cause much hearty laughter. Gus Le Dial is a clever acrobat and chair vaulter. Regal, the impossible juggler, is good; and Nelson and Thomas, in their amusing absurdity On the Ra-Ta, are well received. Vesty May, vocalist, also appears.

LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—The principal theatre of Liverpool inaugurated the season under happy auspices. Delighted audiences gathered during the week to enjoy a capital production of San Toy, given by one of Mr George Edwardes's best companies. All the familiar numbers of the charming musical comedy, which has always proved popular with Liverpool playgoers, were again presented with finish and daintiness, the pretty dresses, colour, and general brightness of the work leaving nothing further to be desired. The spectators seemed to enter fully into the spirit of the comedy. All the principals were accorded a welcome which must have proved highly gratifying. Miss Fanny Dango was a graceful and vivacious San Toy; Mr Stratton Mills had his own part of Sir Bingo Preston; as Captain Bobby Preston Mr Reginald Kenneth was admirable; and Mr E. Statham Staples played Li in an intensely humorous manner. Mr John Humphries offered a well-finished portrait of Yen-How, Mr Colin Coop was the Emperor, and Mr Henry Claff Fo-Hop. A word of praise is due to Miss May Francis for her Poppy, and to Miss Alice Lethbridge for her graceful dancing as Rose Tucker.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Gaffney.—A drama new to Liverpool entitled A Path of Thorns has been given here this week. The authors are Messrs Arthur Shirley and Sutton Vane, and the company presenting is that of Hardie and Von Leer. The work is one of decided merit, and, although much familiar material is used in its construction, that material is deftly handled and made the most of. There is a fair element of the emotional and the sensational, but the latter is never carried to an advanced degree, and accordingly proves acceptable. The scenic effects are somewhat above the ordinary and the artistes good all round. Mr Claude King was the inventor, John Edmunds, a capital piece of acting; the "man from Lancashire," in the hands of Mr. Alfred Lester, was a thoroughly consistent character; Mr J. H. Booth a finished type of burglar, and Miss Amy Rogerson a lively restaurant keeper. Others in the cast were Miss Stanley Burt, Miss Winifred Pearson, Miss Violet Luddington, and Messrs H. F. Wright, Walter L. Rignold, Cecil Du Gue, G. Major Cooke, Cyril Mackay, and Francis Dacre.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun.—A good holiday attraction in the shape of A Beautiful Fiend, from the joint pens of Messrs George V. Wybrow and Frank M. Thorne, has been given here this week by Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's No. 1 company. The work is in four acts, and contains a number of highly sensational episodes dealing with life in Russia and contests with the military police there. A powerful rendering of a female political spy is given by Miss Sydney Crowe in the title-part, and Mr Beaudyn presents a well-drawn character of the chief of the Russian police. The audience followed the unfolding of the plot with keen interest, and the scenery was appropriate.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—Despite the tropical weather large audiences have been nightly witnessing the good fare provided this week. W. Selkirk's juvenile spectacle tops the bill; 100 Liverpool children are engaged. All Scotch, which is the title, is greatly enjoyed. Miss Frederica gives a fine exhibition of animal training; Pete and Juno, coloured comedians and dancers, are loudly applauded; the Sisters Benson and Charles King are exceedingly well received; Walter Emerson causes a deal of laughter; Jennie Belmore scores; the Brontes are decidedly amusing; Harry Laybourne is loudly applauded for his singing; and Denby and Dent create roars of laughter in their comedy act The Singing Barber.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—On Monday evening the popular Star presented a remarkable sight, there being in pit, gallery, and circle a "sea of faces," whilst hundreds of persons were turned away before the rise of the curtain. During the week large audiences have also been the rule. The attraction is the Russian drama At War with Women, given by an excellent company controlled by Mr Frank Bateman. Among those who sustain principal characters are Mr Fred Vaughan, Mr Arthur Balmoral, Mr Edward Austen, Mr Clinton Baddeley, Mr Horace E. Herbert, and Miss Lizzie Montague, the last-named being "the beautiful white devil."

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Sole Responsible Manager, Mr Fred Granville; Business-Manager, Mr Guy Morville.—The newly erected Queen's Theatre, which, as mentioned in last week's Era, occupies the site of the old Grand or Colosseum in Paradise-street, threw open its doors for the first time on Monday evening, and was quickly filled by a Bank Holiday audience, numbering about 2,000. Now that the interior of the place is brilliantly lighted up by electricity all its beautiful lines stand out prominently and effectively. The ceiling is a picture, and the plaster decorations around the proscenium are fine specimens of tasteful colouring and neat arrangement. All the seating is extremely comfortable, and so far as the lines of sight are concerned people at the uttermost back of the pit have a clear view of the stage, which can almost be seen over the heads of those spectators immediately in front. The place on Monday night, considering the vast audience and the sweltering heat, was delightfully cool and airy, the ventilation being perfect. There are eight well-appointed boxes on a level with the stalls and circle, each capable of holding six persons. The stage is 27ft. wide, 26ft. high to the top of the proscenium, and 53ft. long. The new lessees, who own several companies and plays, promise good things. Bigamy, played by Mr Fred Moule's company, was the opening attraction. The company responsible for the production worked creditably, and there were several good scenes shown, particularly a thrilling picture of a house on fire. The introduction of the Bioscope between the acts appeared to be a popular innovation.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; General Manager, Mr F. Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Cook.—Dan Leno heads the bill here this week, and, needless to say, the theatre has been crowded throughout the week. The prince of comedians received an enthusiastic welcome. The popular Boissett Troupe put in another week with a screamingly funny absurdity, The Dock Strike; the Outlaw Trio give a clever turn of wire-walking and balancing; Captain Slingsby is an accomplished ventriloquist; Mr Milner Verren's splendid tenor voice is heard to advantage in several songs; a neat vaudeville act is given by Messrs Spry and Austin; and others in the programme are De Kock Brothers, acrobats and hand-balancers; Alice Maple, comedienne and dancer; Palles and Cussick, comedians and burlesque boxers; the Petras, comedy jugglers; Ben Albert, comedian; Dot Hardy, low comedienne; and the Howards, with their musical comedy act.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—There is a galaxy of talent here this week. Foremost is the wonderful Japanese wrestler, Yukio Tani, whose exhibition of skill and dexterity is watched with amazement. Several amateur wrestlers from Liverpool and Birkenhead have during the week tried their prowess with Tani, with but poor result to themselves. Rudolph's elephants go through some very intelligent and clever tricks, which are watched with interest; the Passmore Brothers are a couple of funny grotesques; some comical and neat juggling is shown by Mac Turo; Florizell, a flexible lady, gives a pleasing performance; Ray and Calden provide a good comedy act; and others are Michael Nolan, comedian; Manello and Marnitz Troupe of acrobats; and the Brooklands, comediennes and dancers.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—After a fortnight's exclusive exhibition of the Bioscope, this place of amusement has resumed its two houses a-night variety business. This week we have Lieutenant Chard and group of performing dogs, Walter King, comedian and dancer, the Itrams, acrobats, Weston and May, with farcical sketch Married Life, Lilian Morgan, comedienne, and J. W. Cosgrove, Irish comedian.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin W. Smith.—The Anglo-American comedian, Jake Friedman, the "one-man opera," is here this week delighting large audiences; Vance Brothers, with their new comedy act, Harmonious Hilarity, create great laughter; and others in the bill are Marie Gibson, vocalist; Happy Attwood, with a variety act; Wat Tyler, character vocalist; Francis Maynard, comedienne, and Len Lever, the "coffee-coloured coon."

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr J. Kiernan.—Principal here this week is Mr Henry Carlton and his talented comedy team with the screaming absurdity One Night Only, a first-rate turn. Miss Fanny Robina has received quite an ovation with her songs, "Claude Duval" and "My Little Baby Boy;" Billy Renton is an accomplished eccentric comedian and dancer; Bandoni, the "one man band," with his automatic orchestra, is interesting; and others who appear are Miss Kitty Marion, vocalist; Aysha and Azra Rameses, Egyptian living pictures; Miss Florry Cooper, juvenile singer; and Ivy Graham, ballad vocalist.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery.—Here this week the New Macs head the bill with their comedy and dancing. There are also Lydia Dudley, comedienne; Dan Kennedy, Irish comedian; Kloof and Ramsey, musical novelty drolls; Harry Zetter, dancer; and the Sisters Dorrell, duettists and dancers.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—At this popular place, Ediscope and Barnum's electric animated pictures are the principal attraction, 500 entirely new subjects being shown. The star artistes are Jessie Harper, the singing Lancashire mill girl; Poole and Poole, with their comedy act; Florrie Brooklyn, lady top-boot dancer; the Three Funnyosities, sketch artistes; the Musical Corlettie; T. E. Moet, comedian and dancer; Belford and Mars, comedy duettists; Will Ivor, performer on stilts; and Clown Ohmy, with his performing dog Toby.

LONG EATON.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietor Mr S. Meakin.—The management has engaged Mr Harwood Clare's company for the holiday week, and Bugler Dunne, the hero of Colenso, has a big share in the display. There is a little variety business to open the programme. Mr Clare recites a military piece to introduce Bugler Dunne, who plays several calls. A military sketch, Defending the Flag, gives opportunity for Bugler Dunne as Sergeant Mike Cassey to illustrate the scenes in the Boer War in which he took part. The boys' bugle band parades the town daily.

LYTHAM.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr J. Harrison.—The charming comedy Saturday to Monday was produced to a capital audience on Monday evening and created hearty merriment. Mr Stuart Champion takes first honours as Lord Oliver; Mr Thomas Sidney playing the Rev. Lemuel Toop carefully. Mr T. A. Braidon as Probyn Dyke, Mr Dallas Welford as the fop, Stanley Pidding; Miss Josephine Rae as the masculine Miss Troy, an excellent character sketch; Miss O. Loftus Leyton, a sprightly Thompson; Miss L'Estrange as the corpulent Lady Diana; and Miss Moyra Creegan and Miss Nancy Beresford as the hostess, Mrs Wendover, and Angela all do well. A special word is due to Miss Ida Laurie for her conception of Miss Skeet. Mr Charles Frohman's Are You a Mason? was billed for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

LOUGHBOROUGH.

THEATRE. — Proprietors, the Corporation; Lessees, Messrs W. Payne Seddon and Geo. Robertson.—Two very creditable performances of the diverting farce Are You a Mason? were given at the Loughborough Theatre by Mr Charles Macdona's company on Monday and Tuesday. Principal among the ladies were Miss Marie Clayton, who gave a charming portrayal of Eva (wife of Frank Perry), and Miss Augusta Dewsnap, whose Mrs Caroline Bloodgood left nothing to be desired. The characters of Frank Perry and Amos Bloodgood were in the capable hands of Mr Arthur Claremont and Edward Thirlby respectively, their attempts at imaginary Masonic signs being very amusing. Equally successful was Mr William Pringle as George Fisher, and especially so when assuming the rôle of the opposite sex. Others in the cast whose efforts contributed much to the success of the performance were Messrs Brown, Elliott, George De Lara (who also combined the duties of stage-manager), and Mr Stanley Bell, as also Miss Bertha Payne, Lottie Maude, Lilian Elen, and Nell Douglas.

LOWESTOFT.

MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. A. Smith.—Mr Geo. Dance commences his provincial tour here this week in The Orchid—seen locally for the first time. The company is thoroughly capable, and the piece is prettily staged; while the costumes are picturesque. The various popular melodies were well received, and the clever dancing was warmly appreciated. Mr Bertie Wright as Meakin, the gardener, is deservedly applauded for an exceptionally clever and amusing performance. Others included in the cast, and worthy of praise, are the Misses Ethel Bryant, Madge Lucas, Eva Melville, Poppy Wilkinson, Royal-Dawson, and the Messrs Edmund Page, G. D. Burnaby, Ernest Darrell, &c.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Geo. Gilbert.—The star turn this week is Mendel, the blind pianist. Others included in the bill are the Assam baby elephants, Sisters Warner, Wartenburg Bros. Selbo, Martino, the Yoricks, &c.

LUTON.

GRAND.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Graham Falcon; Business-Manager, Mr Louis J. Beard.—This theatre, which was recently purchased by Mr Graham Falcon, the popular proprietor of the County Theatre, Bedford, and has since been tastefully redecorated, reopened on Monday. Until September it will be run entirely as a variety house with a change of programme twice weekly. On Monday evening Mr Falcon, in a well-chosen speech, enlightened his patrons as to how he intended conducting the house. The principal feature of the bill, which was a good one, was undoubtedly E. R. Dainez's comedy circus. The animals are cleverly trained, and Mr Dainez met with a flattering reception. The Two Cirnocs were well received, and the audience was astounded at the skill shown by Will Cirnoc in releasing himself from handcuffs of every description. Celest, wire walker and bâton manipulator, scored a success, and the same may be said of Wyotti, comedy juggler. Amy Elvira is a pleasing comedienne, and the Two Zampas, duettists and dancers, are all that can be desired. Fred Harrison was very funny, whilst Charles Gardiner had repeated encores. Grant and Allen and Agnese and Arthur Lynch complete an ample bill-of-fare. The orchestra is under the bâton of Mr H. W. Kasten.

MACCLESFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr W. K. Gatley.—The theatre again opened for the season on Bank Holiday. During the vacation Mr Gatley has had some very extensive alterations made, and has also had the house thoroughly redecorated. One notable alteration has been the lowering of the stage, so that those in the pit have a much better view than formerly. During the week Mr Fred C. Imbert and Wright's successful play, First-Class, has been presented here to crowded houses. Mr Fred Imbert as Dan, a miser and thief, goes a long way towards making the piece a success, his quaint methods being very amusing. Mr Leonard Thackeray as Lewis Mountford is well suited to the part, his portrayal of the aristocratic villain being excellent. As Mr Franklin Mr Gerald Nolan plays a conspicuous part; Mr Leonard Clarke as Jack Stroud is much appreciated by the audience; Mr C. Mason Davidson is an efficient Philip Roscoe; Mr Dick Seddon as Nosey and Mr James Lenton as Perkins provide the humorous element; Miss Ellen Armour as Peggy played capitally, and is responsible for many pathetic scenes; Miss Lizzie Ingles fills the part of Florence Franklin with great success; Miss Emily Handley submits a good impersonation of Mrs Stroud; and Miss Isabel Innes is a capital Mildred.

MAIDENHEAD.

GRAND EMPIRE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr A. Ball.—Under the local management of Mr G. Leone, Mr Howell Webb's company is here in The Convent Bell. On Bank Holiday the house was large, and gave the piece unmistakable signs of approval. Mr Charles Homer not only acts well as Philip Vautier but contributes with taste a good selection of songs, and Mr Howell Webb does well as the unscrupulous Henri Casella. Miss Emily Huby and Miss Ella Sennett are each very good as Christine and Marguerite; and comedy parts are capably played by Miss Belle Tilbury, Mr Teddy Myles, and Mr Harry Tilbury.

MARGATE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr F. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr C. F. Bawtree.—The Medal and the Maid has been the holiday attraction here. Miss Rita Leonhardt makes a delightful Merva Surningdale, her style being sweet and winning and her singing and acting of the brightest. Miss Maude Lake, who enacts Josephine, gives just the requisite amount of feeling to her share in some of the sentimental duets, and exhibits great vivacity. Miss Edith Blanche sustains the rôle of Mrs Habbicombe splendidly, and Miss Cissie Sephton is remarkably good as Miss Ventner. Mr Tom Graves is irresistibly quaint as Levanter, and Mr Campbell Bishop is satisfactory as Admiral Lord Belton. Mr Tom Fancourt is particularly successful as Simon Pentweaz'e; Mr William Bland is heard to advantage as Darien; and Mr John M. Dougall does well as Lionel Habbicombe.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. Macknight Business-Manager, Mr Chas. E. Hardy.—The John Leopold company is here in Frivolity. Mr John Gerant is good as Oliver Buckwheat; Mr John Leopold, jun., is funny as Daniel Teething; Mr Wilfred Vaughan capitally sustains the rôle of Jules Vermiglio; and Mr Bert Lloyd is amusing as Samuel. Mr Tony Leopold is mirth-provoking as the Schoolmaster, and plenty of agility and life is exhibited by the Messrs Willie, Joe, and Bertie Leopold Ernest Valls, Leopold Leglere, B. Almont, and the Bros. Leo as students. Mr John Kelly acts smartly as the French detective; Mr Levesque makes an eccentric waiter; Mr Gus Lenfield is good as Brun; Miss Ruby Wyndham does excellently well as Madame Cobweb; Miss Amy Hall makes a charming and vivacious Lucy Buckwheat; Miss Florrie Greensmith plays well as Vinnie More, and the cast includes Miss Gertrude Winter as Maude and Miss Queenie Bronte as Nauchette.

HALL BY THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr Charles Evans.—The holiday programme here has been a strong one. The artists include Florrie St. Clair, comedienne and dancer; and Signor and Madame Prosper Benn, in their novel musical act, "From the pavement to the stage." There are also in the company the Two Jagos, American speciality artists; the Moxons, musical acrobats and eccentric jugglers; T. C. Callaghan, comedian; Farley, Rennie, and Farley, in their novelty act, "Fun at a railway station;" and Walter Payne's bio-photoscope.

MANCHESTER.

Prince's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company appeared here on Monday in George Rollit's capital farce, The Money-Makers. It is one of the most amusing pieces that have been seen here for a long time, the audience being kept in roars of laughter from beginning to end. Mr Frank Lacy figures well as the dashing Captain Archie Fitzgerald, Mr Allan Thomas doing also excellently as the canny Scot, M'Dougall. Mr Edward Sidney shares the honours as Fred. Much of the humour is in the hands of the ladies of the cast, the most prominent being Miss Muriel Ashwynne, Miss Frances Davie, Miss Lorna Lawrence, and Miss Violet Ley. This rollicking piece is sure to be warmly welcomed again. It is preceded by Newspaper Nuptials, a one-act comedy.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A very good performance of Dan the Rake was given here on Monday by a company including and under the direction of Mr J. Rice Cassidy. Mr Cassidy sustains the title-part with his well-known vigour, Miss Lillian Clare playing excellently as Madge. Mr Frank Copeland's Lieut. Kavanagh is also admirably done, prominent success being achieved by Mr Charles H. Phelps, Mr Frank Orchard, Miss Ada Roscoe, Miss Florence Halton, Mr Stephen Crossley, Mr Norman Hall, and Mr Ernest Chandler in important parts. The play is very well staged, and gave pleasure to a large audience.

Metropole.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—This week's programme here, excellent as usual, includes Mdlle. Florence, sensational globe walker; Phil Herman, actor-vocalist; Chump and Chant, "comic kids;" Harry Meir, comedy juggler; Josberthos, in a speciality act; Dwight and Son, comedians and dancers; Scottish Meisters, comedy quartet; Will Godwin, vocal actor; Andy Fagan, comedian and dancer; and the Tatlers, comedians.

Grand Junction.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Max Goldberg's drama, Lady Godiva, is presented here this week by Messrs Preston and Doherty's company, under the direction of Mr F. B. Woulfe. A good audience on Monday showed its appreciation of the play, which is well written and mounted in really good style. Miss Hilda Shirley plays the title-part with distinction, Mr Alfred D. Adams scoring a success in the rôle of Tom o' Coventry. All the remaining parts are well played, Mr Dan F. Roe, Mr Lionel D'Aragon, Mr Henry Munro, Mr Ernest Hamilton, Mr James Duncan, Miss Georgie Walton, and Miss Nina Westerleigh being prominent.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Hilarity, a pantomimic absurdity, presented by Fred Karno's comedians, heads the bill here this week and is well received. The Four Maisanos are clever and eccentric comedians, who produce harmony from the most unlikely things. In songs, patter, and excellent dancing the Brothers Hayes are very successful, and screamingly funny are the Brothers Johns, in their comedy act, introducing some smart patter and tumbling. Other items of interest are those of the Sisters Russell, pleasing comediennes; Harlem Brothers, acrobats and sand dancers; Wal Croft, quaint Scotch comedian; Helene and Emilon, Continental novelty gymnasts; Law and Norman, in an amusing sketch; Katie Kemp, burlesque actress and dancer; and the Hippodrome pictures.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The Proveanie Family are here this week, their really marvellous cycling act being greeted with rounds of applause. Well received also is May Lilian Levey, the ideal English swell. Harry Glynn and company contribute a very laughable sketch; and other amusing turns are supplied by Kay and Rodney, eccentric knockabouts; the Three De Veres, acrobats; Eugene and Willie, in a meritorious musical acrobatic performance; and Frank Zara, who sings two songs in a very acceptable manner. The descriptive songs of George Edney, the songs and dances of the juvenile Sisters Clements, and the animated pictures are also greatly appreciated.

Tivoli. — Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—This popular place of amusement, beautifully reupholstered, reseated, and recarpeted, and tastefully redecorated throughout, with excellent new scenery, painted by Mr G. Dobson, of the Theatre Royal, Manchester, is now one of the handsomest bijou theatres out of London. This week the programme includes the sweet-voiced Lydia Yeamans, the great vaudeville star, whose reception is most hearty, and Ethel Ross Selwicke, a charming comedienne, who gracefully personifies the poetry of motion to the strains of a well-rendered song by an invisible singer — a most delightful turn. Marion Grahame, ballad vocalist, sings exceedingly well, and is loudly applauded; Nellie and Nora give a pleasing and clever musical and vocal turn; Henry Anthony successfully deceives the audience with several smart conjuring tricks; Walker and Lake and the Warlocks are capital patter purveyors; the Arthur Lloyd Trio are seen to advantage in their amusing sketch, Little Charlie; and Fred Bronte is a good descriptive vocalist. Ada Twibell, burlesque artiste, and Ted Young, comedian, figure on the programme, but on the occasion of our visit did not appear. The overture, specially composed by the conductor, Mr Frank J. Smith, entitled "March of the City Police," goes with a race swing.

Grand.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—Here this week are Madrali (the terrible Turk) and Siegfried, "the unconquered" (German), who nightly give an exhibition of their skill, and also offer the sum of £25 to any person (nobody barred) whom either fail to throw within fifteen minutes, Antonio Pierri, the terrible Greek, to decide which shall meet the challenger. In addition to the above Fournier (France) and Bartoletti (Italy) also appear. On Tuesday night some excitement was caused by a challenge from Sailor Woods, of H.M.S. Cæsar, to meet either the French or Italian wrestler there and then. The challenge was accepted after some little demur, and Woods was soon on the stage and facing Fournier, suitably attired, and informed if he succeeded in throwing his man he would receive the sum of £3. The style was catch-as-catch-can. In 9mins. 35secs. Woods was declared victor. The Frenchman took his defeat badly, refusing to shake hands. The ordinary turns include an intensely dramatic episode in one act, entitled A Daughter of Pleasure, excellently presented by Grahame and Harrington. The Cullane Trio (Fred, Florrie, and Daisy) cause considerable laughter in The Dude's Dilemma; and Harold Hughman, the American mimic, is a first-rate imitator of sounds. Martin Henderson, the blind musician, plays several pleasing selections on the concertina; Little Zola, comedian, is full of whimsicalities; Steel and Laing are clever in their eccentric acrobatic and dancing speciality; and Inez Clough is a good ballad vocalist. Some interesting animated pictures are shown, and complete an enjoyable entertainment.

Palace.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—A capital holiday programme is provided here this week. W. C. Fields, the well-known eccentric juggler, heads the bill, and deservedly meets with a big reception. The King's Musketeers appear in their musical entertainment, their singing being particularly good. Comedians are well to the front. J. W. Rickaby, with comic soldier songs; Hal Forde, with descriptive songs; George Neno, with songs of the eccentric character order; and Harry Clifford, of "I'm tired" fame, each score in their particular style. A remarkable turn is given by Lind? who never fails to deceive those who see him for the first time. Les Belles Americaines are pleasing vocalists and dancers, Ethel Loftus is a clever child actress and mimic, and Howard and St. Clair, American comedy artists, remain from last week, popular as ever. A new series of Palace pictures and an enjoyable selection by the orchestra complete the programme.

Ardwick Green Empire, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—Another programme of all-round excellence is presented here this week. George Gray and company in The Fighting Parson are followed with the greatest interest by large audiences at every performance. Enthusiastically received also are Frank and Jen Latona as the tramp and slavey in their really clever and smart musical speciality. The American banjoists, Earle and Earle, finger their instruments in a most remarkable manner, and meet with rounds of applause. A turn much above the average is that of the Five Sisters Warwick, whose exceedingly clever trick and acrobatic cycling act is gone through with the utmost grace. Another delightful turn is Tiller's Cocktails, a charming sextet of vocal Terpsichoreans, whose dancing is a positive treat. The Sisters O'Meers are graceful and daring on the tight wire; Charles Prelle is a novel ventriloquist, with some amusing little dogs, and is well received; as are also Sid Doody and Edie Wright, the Australian comiques, in their eccentric comedy act, and Allis and Cassati, in "A Funny Few Minutes."

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—The Black Bishop, by Mrs R. A. Cuthbert's company, provided an acceptable Bank Holiday attraction at this theatre. Miss Guinevere Shilton as Ruth Oldbury plays the part with intense feeling; Miss Nellie Benson is admirable as Hannah Bruttlebut; Miss Gladys Conover is natural and child-like as Little Ruth; and in the name-rôle Mr Albert Guyon is well suited, and gives a capital impersonation. Miss Jeannie Marquise undertakes the dual-rôle of Marion Strathcoat and Kate Marleigh with distinct success; Mr John Montgomery gives a capable portraiture of the unscrupulous Simeon Strathcoat; and Mr Chas. Coventry figures conspicuously as Captain Kielcrift.

People's Palace (Temperance Hall).—Manager, Mr Israel Price.—This hall was reopened on Bank Holiday after a short vacation with an excellent company of variety artists, including Primavesi, juggler; Rice, Rose, and Davis, in sketches; Harry Colton, comedian; Amy Bellwood, comedienne; Eva Searle, descriptive vocalist; Tom Yorke, coster comedian; the Two Primroses, duettists and dancers; and Riley and Taylor, Dutch comedians and patterers.

MEXBOROUGH.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Manager, Mr W. H. Melton.—Mr Hy. Swinerd's company is paying a return visit here under the direction of Mr J. W. Cordiner in the musical comedy Dare-Devil Dorothy. Mr William F. Green sings and acts in good style as Captain Fielding; the Captain Dudley of Mr H. C. Ward is excellent; Mr Alf Stretton does capitally as Hawkins; Mr Arthur Verne, a tip-top comedian, in the character of Silas Crump, is responsible for a most enjoyable performance; Miss Kathleen Vernon (Ruth Montrose) and Miss Marjorie Cecil (Dorothy Montrose) play gracefully, the latter rendering songs with refinement and taste; Miss Lilian Blake is a sprightly Rosy Ann. Specialities of a high-class order are given by Miss Marjorie Cecil, soprano vocalist; Miss Nellie Harcourt, American soubrette; Sisters Blake, speciality dancers; and Mr Arthur Verne, comedian. Mr A. Lester is the musical director.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Theatres, Limited; Managing-Directors, Messrs Geo. and Chas. Imeson.—The Island of Pharos, as presented by Mr Glynn Osborne's company, is approved by the audiences assembling at the Royal. Miss Nita Clavering as Antigone is pleasing, as is also Miss May Brooke in the part of Chloe; whilst Miss Bel Luscombe is very successful as the Arch Nymph. The Earl of Enniscorthy is capably presented by Mr Arthur Wilmot; Agothas is in the able hands of Mr Cecil Curtiss; and the William Sykes of Mr Daley Cooper creates much laughter.

Grand Opera House.—Licensee and General Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—The well-known Craggs Family of acrobats are here with Laughter Land, and are pleasing all who visit the Grand. Clarice is gracefully portrayed by Miss Amy Hastings, and as Waitresses Miss Doris Hanley and Miss Evie Darig are vivacious and attractive. Mr Henry B. Lewis does well in the part of Sylvanus Wood, and Messrs Harry Rousby, G. Westcott, Craigie Edwards, and Victor Raymond fill with credit the characters allotted to them; whilst the acrobatic feats of the Craggs Family are amusing and clever.

Empire. — Managing-Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow. — The chief attraction here is Albert and Edmunds, in their sketch The Locket; G. W. Hunter's songs score; Torbay is a clever and amusing silhouettist; Picton Roxborough and Miss Fanny Wright, of Chinese Honeymoon fame, give a pleasing entertainment; Penley and English are funny; Ernest Ball sings with taste and expression; Chas. Pastor, comedian; Miss Lily Lena, comedienne; the Imperial Quartet; and the Bioscope pictures, as manipulated by Wm. Sangster, all give satisfaction. Considering the tropical weather, good houses rule.

Oxford.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Wm. Robinson; Acting-Manager, Mr William Ainsworth.—The O'Learys, who made an impression in pantomime here last season, head the bill, and meet with well-deserved success; Leslie Brothers do some good speciality work; George Prince, comedian, is well received. Archie Glen, vocalist; Harry Lee, comedian; Fox and Melville, patterers; and J. Carroll, tambourine player, complete a programme which gives satisfaction to the patrons of the "'Varsity."

MORECAMBE.

Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Julian.—Though the hot weather has militated against seaside theatres, a fair amount of business has been done here with Little Miss Nobody, as presented by Mr Frederick Thorne's company. This musical comedy is as fresh and tuneful as ever, and the additional numbers by Landon Ronald and Paul Rubens are effective. The chief honours fall upon Mr H. C. Barry, whose Potter is extremely funny. The company is a capable one all round.

Central Pier.—Manager, Mr E. Hill.—Appearing here are Elias B. Seener's Imperial Russian Troupe of singers and dancers; Madame Stuart Cummins, soprano vocalist; Mr and Mrs Dickson Moffat, sketch artistes; De Varro, equilibrist and juggler; Ada Fawn, comedienne; Professor Howlett's Royal Marionette Palace; Brady and Johnson, in their comedy sketch; Lily Currie, comedienne; and Four Skandias, Swedish gymnasts. Professor Ted Heaton, the high diver, shows daily at the pier head.

Alhambra Pasage.—Manager, Alderman John Gardner.—A capital programme at this favourite house is provided by Brinn, in "Pastimes on a Battleship;" Elsie Roby, in the new musical comedy act, "The Slavey's 'At Home;'" Blanche, lightning change act; Sisters Phillips and Brothers Lorenzi, in their absurdity, The Cook's Birthday; the New York Comedy Four; Teddy Whittle, comedian; Shawlene, siffleur; and Mdlle. Luba de Sarema, in her new and starring animal show, including a bull.

Winter Gardens. — Manager, Mr William Holland.—The Tiller ballets Jolly Jack and Dresden China are drawing well, and the variety bill includes Austin and Cowan, Australian duettists; Du Gros Trio, eccentric gymnasts; Rose Cabani, comedienne; Larola, burlesque juggler; Sisters Terry, duettists; Harry Liston and Miss Lord Lumley; Evansio, conjuror and plate and basin manipulator; Rose Finnett, comedienne; and a picture postcard exhibition, containing about 5,000 specimens, has been added.

West-end Pier.—Manager, Mr John Porter.—The Pavilion entertainment has been delighting visitors, and it has been purveyed by the Miles Stavordale Quintet, Bink and Bark, duologists; Tom Stuart, impersonator; Irene Rose, burlesque actress; Samson, baritone vocalist; Wallan, boy juggler; and Sanford and Lyons, comedians and patterers.

MOTHERWELL.

New Century Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr W. Gillespy.—This popular county theatre has reopened this week for the season with Mr John Cassidy's company in The New Muldoon's Picnic. The celebrated comedians Mr Edwin Garth as Michael Mulcahy, Mr W. G. Wesley as Dennis Muldoon, and Miss Madge Cassidy as Kitty Muldoon keep the house in roars of laughter. Mr Reg. Kloof as Juno Smith, a black, ably sustains his part, and also gives a wonderful musical speciality.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

Tyne Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe.—The holiday programme here is provided by the appearance of Mr C. Lubbock's company in The Cherry Girl, and considering that on Monday the piece was performed for the first time in the provinces, it has been presented with commendable smoothness and spirit. Described as a musical play, it differs in many essentials from what we are accustomed to expect in this class of work, and the fanciful, fairy like nature of the piece is somewhat of a novelty, and altogether agreeable. It has the advantage of being capitally staged and dressed. Mr Frank Lincoln as Moonshine enters with a lively humour into the spirit of the part, and is well applauded for his songs and dances. Mr H. W. Walker gives a good performance as Starlight, and Mr Charles Danvers and Mr Alfred Ibberson do well as the beadles. Mr Albert Felino, in animal parts, causes laughter by his antics, and Master Louis Victor and Miss Rosie Campbell, in their original parts of Snowball and Dimples respectively, give pleasing performances. A large share of the work is borne by Miss Elsie Molloy as the Queen, and her acting and singing are endowed with qualities of a most pleasing and charming description. Miss Katie May appears with credit as Pansy; and Miss Rita Ravensberg, Miss Violet Macintyre, and Miss Connie Loxton are also seen to advantage. Some capital glee singing is contributed by the Steinway Quartet. The augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr Fritz B. Hart.

Grand Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—After an interval of a month, during which this theatre has been in the hands of the builder and decorator for extensive alterations and redecorations, it was opened on Monday as a music hall, on the two-houses-a-night principle. The house has been beautifully decorated—the prevailing colours being salmon and gold—by Messrs Dean and Co., of Birmingham, who have done their work exceedingly well. New scenery has been painted by Mr C. H. Frampton, and everything possible has been done to make the house comfortable and smart. The opening performances have been crowded. Deservedly the most popular turn was that of the Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of Arabs (ten in number), who go through a wonderfully clever acrobatic show. Fanny Harris and Harry Dent, two popular favourites, had a good reception for their clever sketch, Mary and the Squire; the Boston Twins, comedians, were capital, one of the twin's imitations of a child reciting and singing bringing down the house. The Barra Troupe of musical exponents was another capital turn; whilst the feats of strength by Atlas and Vulcana (a lady) were exceedingly smart. The New York Quartet, vocalists and dancers; Lily Lonsdale, ballad vocalist; the Wallys, jugglers; Ernie Myers, a smart comedian; and Valvero's "Bombardment of Port Arthur" completed a most attractive programme. A word of praise should be given to the new orchestra, under the bâton of Mr Sam Wilkinson.

Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham. — The Royal reopened its courtly Arthurian doors for the season on Monday, when the perspiring multitude found a cool retreat from the tropical heat and also a suitably light entertainment in the performance of A Country Mouse, by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company. We have previously had an opportunity of eulogising Miss Annie Hughes's refreshing piece of acting as Angela Muir, and the presumed artless simplicity of the character is again depicted by her with wholly delightful effect. In impersonating such ladies of the "smart set" as Lady Sylvia Bowlby and Violet Aynsley Miss Dorothy Drake and Miss Eve Erskine respectively are seen to considerable advantage, and the vagaries of Mrs Cropper are portrayed with a good deal of humour by Miss Emily Levettez. Some spirited and agreeable acting is forthcoming from Mr Sydney Stirling as Archibald Vyse, and the respective characteristics of the Duke of St. Kitts and Lord Robert Wykeham are well brought out by Mr Arnold Lucy and Mr Wilson Lumley. John Bowlby, M.P., possesses our sympathies, and the rôle is safely entrusted to Mr Charles Harley, while in the episode at the termination of the first act Mr J. E. Watson gives a truthful performance as the butler Jephcot. On another page will be found a notice of a new comedietta by Arthur Law entitled The Rising Sun, which was produced here on Monday.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—For some years now Mr J. Gar Kiddie has provided the entertainment for the week which opens with August Bank Holiday, and on Monday that gentleman's company was again in possession, giving a performance of his latest successful musical comedy, A Chinese Idyl, a lively and entertaining production, in which jokes, songs, and dances follow one another after the approved fashion. The author, Mr Fred Danvers, appears as his Excellency the Viceroy, and his eccentricities and humour are fully appreciated; while Mr Dawson Dewick as his secretary, Tang-a-Lang, gives an enjoyable performance. The part of Ching-Foo is enacted with effect by Mr J. G. Maine. Warm praise may be bestowed on Miss Marie Rainbird for her spirited acting and singing as Belle Brighton; Miss Emmie Milsted is also successful as Princess Stephanie; and Miss M. Mainwaring makes a charming Pitti Pat, the viceroy's daughter.

New Empire Palace.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—R. G. Knowles is again with us, and naturally his lively wit gives abundant cause for mirth. Love and marriage continue to be fruitful topics for his humorously philosophical remarks, and he hustles through songs and patter in his own irrepressibly restless style. An always welcome contributor is Albert Christian, whose fine singing is admired to the full. Paul Conchas displays strength and dexterity in his manipulation of cannon balls and Krupp gun shells. Fred Poplar humorously enlightens us as to how various personages come home when in a state of inebriety, and the domestic squabbles which form the basis of Phillips and Terry's comedy sketch afford much amusement to the audience. Silent Tait gives his clever conjuring act, not forgetting the dance by the way, and Josh Dixon, comedian, is favourably received. A pleasing ballad vocalist is Katie Cohen, and comediennes of merit are to the fore in Kitty Wager, Rosie Bartlett, and Annie Reid, while Clown Ferreros presents his novel musical act.

Pavilion Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—A ventriloquial act, in which many novel and clever features are introduced, is given by Mons. Segommer. The comedy illusion Nyanza is presented by Charles A. Frazer and Harry Athol's company, and the mysterious cabinet into which figures come and then disappear is certainly mystifying. Chard and Cleary appear in a sketch entitled The Covent-garden Ball, and afford much entertainment; while the sketch Getting Even is the medium for the introduction of Sinclair and Whiteford, both of whom act very acceptably. A Scotch comedian in J. A. Cassels makes a successful appearance; and Clifton and Gibson, in funny patter business, are well received. The vocal efforts of Princess Pocahuntas are applauded; and Marie Sennett is a capable comedienne; while Massias O'Connor, billiard ball manipulator and conjuror, is also programmed.

Olympia.—Lessees, Messrs Richard Thornton and Sidney Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—After having been used for all manner of entertainment purposes this large and centrally situated hall was opened on Monday as a playhouse, Mr Richard Thornton (resident director of the Newcastle Empire) and Mr Sidney Bacon (the well-known north country manager) having joined forces in the lesseeship. They have as acting-manager Mr Nelson Barry, who comes from the Imperial Theatre, Birmingham, so that the undertaking has the advantage of experienced and efficient supervision. The place, which has been redecorated and improved generally, was crowded to the doors on Monday, when A Royal Divorce was the attraction, and, with Mr Geo. W. Cockburn as Napoleon and Miss Amy M'Neill as Josephine, the leading rôles of the well-known play received able interpretations. During the evening Mr Nelson Barry made a speech from the stage, in the course of which he announced some of the attractions which were booked for the theatre, and, with popular prices and the fact that the conditions of the licence permitted smoking to be indulged in during the performance, in his opinion the success of the venture was assured.

NEW BRIGHTON.

Tower Theatre.—Manager, Mr Albert Bulmer.—Lottie Collins tops the bill here this week, and proves one of the most popular turns seen here for some time. The other items comprise Prof. Hulbert, a clever and original ventriloquist; the Three Gregsons, in a screaming absurdity entitled The Dummy; E. J. Sheldon, the unique comedian; Lily Lever, burlesque actress; Mons. De Lil, Continental magician and illusionist; and Haig and Novel, in a great acrobatic and refined comedy act. On the athletic grounds the Tower captive balloon, stated to be the largest in the world, is proving a great attraction, and makes frequent daily ascents.

NEWPORT.

Lyceum. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—This theatre reopened after the vacation on Saturday with Messrs Carson and Granville's company, in The Heart of a Hero. Jem Readale is played by Mr Fred W. Goddard with characteristic Lancashire brogue; Mr A. B. Mackay plays Mark Marl with dignity; and Wilfred Marl, an unscrupulous schemer, is capitally impersonated by Mr Chas. E. Johnson. Mr Allen Curruthers makes a capital Timothy Heigno, and Mr C. B. Wright depicts the manly Jack Allinson to the letter. Miss Beatrice Hudson plays the dual-part of Mrs Booker and Mrs Ryder with true womanly grace, and Nell Readale, an erring woman, is very pathetic in the hands of Miss Cissy St. Elmo, who wins admiration. During the vacation the theatre has been partially renovated, and nothing has been left undone that would conduce to the comfort of the patrons of the house.

Empire.—Moss's Empires, Limited; Managing Director, Mr O. Stoll.—Mashing the Missus, a sketch played by Horace Mills and two ladies, is being well received, as also is the sketch A Dark Night Before Us, by Big Ben Brown and Little Geo. Le Clerq, and company; and yet another, Inventions, played by Geo. A. Booker and Mabel Narbis, is a source of much amusement. A descriptive song, "Pictures in the fire," is sung by Alex. Lukos, and elicits warm recognition, and Madame Emmy's trained fox terriers, whose tricks have an element of humour, give a wonderfully clever performance. The Langdons are warmly applauded in their picture songs, and the Three Missouris pay a return visit in their clever acrobatic performance, "Captain Kettle and his Mates." A sketch, Our Suite, by the Smythsons, completes the bill.

NEWQUAY.

Cosy Nook Concerts.—Manager, Mr Frederick Dale.—The English Opera Singers continue to draw large audiences at this popular amusement resort, and from their extensive répertoire are continually submitting an agreeable change of programme. On Monday night particularly pleasing items were "The Owls and the Mice," sung by the English Opera Singers; Miss Edith Serpell's rendition of "By Golden Hours," and Mr Frederick Dale's amusing interpretation of a sketch entitled The New Century.

NORTHAMPTON.

Opera House. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews.—Mr W. H. Hallatt and his company are paying a return visit with the pleasing and romantic drama, Two Little Sailor Boys. Mr Hallatt plays the part of Noel Tregarthen with thorough earnestness. Miss Blanche Steele is a forcible Lola Grey, Miss Marie Daventry is a charming Mildred Grey, Miss May Day as Cyril and Miss Ethel Francess as Tom are clever representatives of the two little sailor boys. Competent support is rendered by Mr Leonard Booker as Lieut. Redstone, Mr Edward Warden as Capt. Tom Yorke, Mr George Cecil Murray as Admiral Grey, R.N., Mr Oscar Power as Jack Jolly, Mr Sid Cotterill as Ben Baxter, Mr Ambrose Horton as Jim Royston, &c.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting Manager, Mr Robert Barton.—During the vacation this popular place of amusement has been thoroughly renovated, redecorated, and the entrances rearranged. Two shows a night is now the order of the day, and the proprietor, in spite of the heat, has gained a fair share of patronage. The programme is headed by Mdlle. Yvette, the original lady clown, with her miniature circus and canine footballers. Prince Ishmael, assisted by Mem Sahab Rani, gives a clever display of Indian conjuring; Marie San Toy, a comedienne of undoubted ability; Miss Lil Gorman, vocalist and dancer; Eva Warde, a clever artiste; Ryder Davis, comedian, who is well received; Fred Carney, a very good Irish comedian and dancer; and Hector and Paulus, who give a smart and clever show as equilibrists which is highly appreciated. As heretofore, the selections by the orchestra, under Mr Ashton, are special features in the programme.

Town Hall.—Messrs Harry and Fred Poole's Myriorama of the Russo-Japanese war is here, supplemented by a talented array of variety artists.

Franklin's Gardens have been largely patronised this week, the attractions being a balloon ascent and parachute descent by Captain Bidmead, Captain Devereux's well-trained dogs, the charming singing of Miss Eva Nelson, the stump oratory of Dundie, juggling by Bonnetti, club manipulation by Miss Mab Venus, acrobatism by Feemine, the one-legged marvel, vocalism, lance and sword exercise by Gus Gauntlett, lightning cartoons by Carl Fritz, and the sensational knife and tomahawk throwing of Prof. Diamond and Madame Diamond.

NORTH SHIELDS.

Borough Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—Large audiences have been attracted here this week, Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company, with A Traitor Prince, being heartily received. The character of Prince Rao Dalmeirez is effectively played by Mr T. M. Montanini, and Mr Austin Mortimer comes in for a good share of public recognition as Lieutenant Frank Derrick. Mr E. Carter Livesey as Billy Bright and Mr T. G. Vane as the Hon. Bobby cause much amusement. Miss Lilian Rosebery as Lolo Vane acquits herself with conspicuous success; Miss Beatrice Western displays much ability as Vashti; Miss Maudie Grayson scores as Pansy Blossom; and the remaining parts are in good hands.

New Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Wm. Mould.—The Okito Family, Chinese magicians, top the bill, and are loudly applauded for their clever and entertaining performance. Mr Marcus Boyle, comedian, is paying a return visit, and still retains his popularity. Miss Mary M. Glenn, soprano, renders her songs in good style, and Miss Flo Melville, serio, meets with much favour. Messrs Baker and Balfe in their musical act are enthusiastically received, and the Biophotoscope completes a good programme.

NORWICH.

Grand Opera House.—Sole Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—This place of entertainment opened on Monday for the season with Mr C. P. Levilly's excellent company in the new comic opera Amorelle. Mr Leon Simpkin was a capital exponent of the part of Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crowe, and created much laughter; Mr Arthur Cozens as Jules and Mr Harry Newman as Francois were very good; Mr Fred Seymour was successful as Dotard, especially in his song "'Twas a nasty night;" Mr Arthur Elwyn appeared as the Count of Oideaux; and Mr W. Griffin as Bolssy. Miss Von Bargin did excellently as Marina; Miss Ida Ernest deserves praise as Jeanette; and Miss Empsie Bowman was very charming and vivacious as Amorelle. Mr W. H. Daviss deserves much commendation for his conducting.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt; Musical Director, Capt. W. Selby.—An excellent programme is provided here this week, and on Monday three performances were given to full houses. Mr Harry Pleon, comedian and impersonator, heads the bill, and is much appreciated for his representations of Sir Henry Irving, R. G. Knowles, Eugene Stratton, Dan Leno, Gus Elen, and the late Wilson Barrett, in the Dream scene from The Silver King. The Great Marconis are very wierd in their electric entertainment. Roy and Fenton are very amusing in their musical absurdity, "Blithering Berty and Blighted Berdie." Marie Terry and J. S. Bentley are also good singers and dancers; Florence and Lillian display excellent abilities as musicians; Ben Harris's famous nippers in their singing, dancing, and boxing are much appreciated; the Three Ferganas are skilful equilibrists and acrobats; H. O. Wills is a really good comedian; and the Brothers Artois are very clever on the three bars. Capt. Selby's band deserves mention.

Agricultural Hall Assembly Rooms.—Professor Richard, described as "the master of medical electricity," is doing some wonderful cures here. He is accompanied by Tom Willett, eccentric comedian; Mrs Gertrude Gray, vocalist; and Lieut. Walter Cole, ventriloquist, who contribute well-appreciated items to the exhibition.

NOTTINGHAM.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—After a somewhat lengthened holiday this house opens again this week, and the programme promised for the winter appears to be a very good one. To commence with, the management has secured Mr Milton Bode's company in the powerful and realistic drama Woman and Wine. Mr Frank R. Robertson as Dick Seymour is seen in a very happy vein, and Mr Fred Mace does well all that is required in the rôle of Hugh Seymour. Mr Walter Thornton as Alphonse Baudet and Mr Tom Tindall as the Professor add very materially to the success. Miss Edith Blande realises the part of Marcel to its fullest extent, and gives a very finished and powerful rendering. Miss Nellie Lauraine is a wonderfully vivid La Colombe. Miss Muriel Vox as Jane and Mr Percy Dawsone as Charles Sawter furnish admirably the comic relief. The sprightly dancing of the Edene Troupe in one of the scenes imparts a spice of variety to the play.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr Chas. P. Cooke.—After the usual summer vacation there is a great attraction at this theatre in the form of Mr James Willard's powerful modern drama, entitled A Woman's Pluck. Messrs Dottridge and Longden are to be complimented on the evident skill and care devoted to the whole production. Mr James Willard in his original part of Dick Darrell has ample scope for the display of his versatility, and the original creator of Grace Daremont in the person of Miss East Robertson evokes ample applause. Sir Noel Fordyce is admirably sustained by Mr Charles P. Wentworth, and all the other parts are in competent hands.

King's Theatre. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr George H. Beagle.—H. R. Sylva's play, described as a dramatic novelty, and entitled Greed of Gold, the Story of a Dumb Man, takes the boards here this week. It is very ably represented by an excellent company, under the management of Mr T. Morton Powell. The part of Harry Hood is entrusted to Mr Carthage Caldcleugh, who makes the most of the excellent opportunities falling to his lot. In the part of Dora, Miss Edith Wallis finds herself quite at home. Mr Wilson Summers is excellent in the rôle of Arthur Errol, and Mr Hyland Shea in a conventional "Irish" part, and Mr Walter M. Cameron as a racing tipster, bring a great deal of fun into the piece.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—Before a crowded holiday audience Mr George Robey made a welcome return here on Monday. Always a warm favourite, his eccentric methods and quaint humour again ensured him an enthusiastic reception. Mr Charles Morritt mystifies the audience as he only can, and Miss Ethel Haydon sings with as sweet a voice as ever. George Formby is a very funny fellow, and the Three Sisters Sprightly are certainly up-to-date comediennes, their singing and dancing being of a high order of merit. George Newburn is an excellent mimic, and in A Dress Rehearsal the Haywards have an original and interesting act.

NUNEATON.

Prince of Wales's Theatre, Limited. — Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter J. R. Bevan.—After being in the hands of the painters and decorators for the past four weeks this pretty temple of the drama reopened to the public on Saturday last, and in spite of various local attractions, appreciative audiences have gathered nightly to enjoy the rich holiday fare provided by Mr Henry Hare's company, in The Girl from Chicago. The parts are carried out in exceptionally good style throughout by Mr Buckstone Clair as the Judge; Mr Edwin Dodds as Billy; Mr Henry Hare as General Boomer; Mr Douglas Vigors as Percy Montmorency; Mr Clarence Ibbotson as Brother Obadiah; Miss Lucy Beaumont as Mrs Sweetlove; Miss Nellie Vicott as Lucretia Flatfoot; and Miss Lily Beverley as Flora. Some exceedingly pretty dances are given by the Daffodils. The scenery is effective and the musical numbers are well received.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A leaflet issued with the programme of this latest managerial venture of Mr Richard Flanagan, of the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, gave an expectant audience on Saturday last sufficient data on which to appreciate the motive and interest of Mr Maurice Grace's drama of Joan of Arc, which was produced for the first time, with all the scenic pomp that distinguishes Mr Flanagan's enterprises A fervid enumeration (like this in the leaflet) of the many virtues of the youthful "Deliverer of France," in times when honour and courage were conspicuously wanting, may be accepted as part of the historical portrait; while the circumstances of her inspiration, her triumphs, and her death at the stake, are certainly a procession of incidents well suited to depiction on the stage. It might be possible, also, to give the character of Joan a splendid and tragic isolation, sufficient in itself for dramatic purposes, amid the scenes of her unique adventures; but a playwright of extraordinary gifts would be required for that. Alternatively, the part must be interwoven with incidents that supply modern stage requirements; there must be something more than illustrated history. Mr Maurice Grace's version adds something to the bare events of the life of Joan of Arc, but he has not succeeded in arousing much more than a spectacular interest in her movements, being, perhaps, too conscious that she was foredoomed. His embellishments include some love interest between Lucelle, sister of Joan, and Florine, a young peasant, whose connection with Lucelle leads him to concern himself with the fortunes of Joan; we have also a comic soldier, Vallanto, whose last desire is to fight; and at least one poignant situation is created by the presence of Joan's father, who moves more or less prominently throughout.

A capital scene of a French village (Domremy presumably) opens the play, the situations being very well indicated at the start. Next, Joan is found wandering in a forest, where the vision appears to her and commands her to undertake the great work. It is soon apparent that she has undertaken it; one or two battle scenes ensue, the act ending with a very fine tableau of the victory of Orleans.

The second act includes further indications of the successful progress of the soldier-maid, and is notable for a beautiful scene of the Grand Square in Orleans and an impressive Interior of the Cathedral at Rheims, where the French king is crowned. Incidentally, the enemies of Joan are at work upon a scheme to deliver her into the hands of a tribunal of priests who shall try her for heresy and witchcraft, an event which duly comes to pass. The scene of her trial recalls that of Madame Bernhardt, in La Sorcière, and, given the difference of circumstances, may be not unfavourably compared with it. The last scene also is comparable with the final one in La Sorcière. It is, in fact, more truly a climax, the lighting of the faggots and the rising of the smoke and flames being especially well managed and a most effective illusion. Fifteen scenes are comprised in the three acts, all of them beautifully done, and short of nothing in the way of elaborate and appropriate accessories.

The company, moreover, are well up to the standard of the text, which, it must be added, is frequently very good. Miss Ellen O'Malley as Joan was commendably gentle and girlish in the early scenes. As Lucelle Miss Ella Thornton scored an appreciable success, and Mr A. L. Baron gave a strenuous delineation of Jacques, the father of Joan. Mr Hornby Warburton played the part of Florine acceptably; Mr Henry George acted with spirit as the Dauphin; Mr Richard Dalton did well as Bishop Cauchon; Mr Alfred E. Calver gave an effective rendering of General Beauvois; Mrs Culling figured to advantage as the Countess of Torento; and Mr William Calvert, who stage-managed the piece, did very well, as usual, with his part of the Prosecutor. One of the most prominently successful, however, was Mr J. H. Atkinson as Vallanto, whose gifts have ample scope in the clever humour of his lines. Author and manager may be congratulated upon the production of a play which must please and interest all who see it.

"THE RISING SUN."

A Comedietta, in One Act, by Arthur Law, Produced at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Monday, Aug. 1.

Prof. Henrich Theobald	Mr ARNOLD LUCY
Jack Fenwick	Mr SYDNEY STIRLING
Hild Theobald	Miss IDA RICHARDSON
Mrs Vandespar	Miss DOROTHY DRAKE
Maid-servant	Miss VIOLET HARLEY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

The occasionally conflicting interests of playwright and critic is the theme dealt with, and the author levels his shafts of pleasantry at the members of both crafts, and, be it said, with impartiality. The Rising Sun is the title of a journal with which Jack Fenwick is connected as a freelance, and lately he has taken to writing the dramatic notices, for which he considers himself fully qualified, inasmuch as he has written two farcical comedies, both of which have been dire failures. He is in love with Hild Theobald whose father is an ardent believer in the ancient Greek drama, and has written and produced, under an assumed name, a play in the severe style of his ideals. Jack Fenwick has mercilessly slated the production, and the rage of the old professor when he discovers who has written the article is great. He makes known that the play is his own work, and refuses to consider Jack's claim for his daughter's hand. A letter is received by the professor from a manager, who offers to buy the American rights of his play, as he considers that with a few alterations it will make the funniest farcical comedy ever written. The professor is momentarily enraged at this further affront, but quickly accepts the situation, and chaffs Fenwick with having taken the production as a serious work. Fenwick threatens to publish a scathing article on the whole business in the next number of his paper, and this eventually induces the professor to agree to the engagement of Hild and Jack, while the professorial author, who is matrimonially inclined, finds an affinity after his own heart in a widow, Mrs Vandespar. The sanguine go-ahead characteristics of Jack Fenwick are depicted in an alert, spirited manner by Mr Sydney Stirling. Mr Arnold Lucy submits a clever piece of acting as the professor, and Miss Ida Richardson and Miss Dorothy Drake give capital performances.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS HAIDEE GUNN.

Not quite eighteen months ago Miss Haidée Gunn made her début at a special matinée given in her late father, Mr Michael Gunn's theatre, the Gaiety, Dublin. On this occasion Miss Gunn played Iolanthe, in King René's Daughter, followed by the Trial Scene from The Merchant of Venice, supported by the Benson company, Mr Benson playing Shylock. The gratifying reception accorded her, and very favourable and encouraging press notices, decided Miss Gunn to adopt the stage in real earnest. November and December were spent in studing various rôles, and in January the late Mr Macklin offered her the part of Juliet, to be played in the suburbs of London in Elizabethan style, with Mr Gerald Lawrence as Romeo. This proved a very interesting and enjoyable experience, although lack of scenery and the most ordinary properties tend to make the creation of illusion necessary to stage plays somewhat difficult. This series of performances was the last professional work on which Mr Macklin actively interested himself, and the encouragement he extended to Miss Gunn will always be remembered. In the spring of 1903 Mrs Michael Gunn organised a company, which opened in Eastbourne. This Miss Gunn considers her first professional engagement, and gave her the chance of showing what she could do in such widely different parts as Beatrice, Viola, Galatea, Iolanthe, Donna Diana (My Lady Disdain), Parthenia (Ingomar), and Juliet, her younger sister, Miss Agnes Gunn, appearing as Hero, Myrine, Glanina (Fennel), and Balthazar (Romeo and Juliet). The reception accorded the new Juliet in both Brighton and Bristol was flattering in the extreme. Last January Mr Compton engaged Miss Gunn as leading lady, to play Lady Teazle, Kate Hardcastle, Lydia Languish, Joyce Thornton (Reformed Rake), Violet in David Garrick, and to create the dual-rôle of Anastasia Coke, in the new play To-morrow. It will be seen that short as Miss Gunn's professional career has been it has been her lucky fate to play a round of parts such as do not usually fall to the lot of a young actress.

MR. J. H. BOOTH.

MR J. H. BOOTH has scored some of his biggest successes in Sheffield, having for eight pantomime seasons written, produced, and stage-managed, as well as played in, the productions at the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield. It is at Endcliffe, a pretty suburb of Sheffield, that Mr Booth lives, and he has also a delightful little summer residence in the Isle of Man. He is a native of Manchester, and in the days of his youth played in amateur theatricals. He became imbued with a love of the stage, and while yet in his teens commenced his theatrical career in the place of his birth. Like many others, he started on the bottom rung of the ladder, and played small parts in all kinds of plays, operas, &c. At that time stock business was chiefly in vogue. His stay in Manchester lasted four years, during which he played in four consecutive pantomimes. His first touring engagement was with the late Mr Fred J. Stimson, and during the three years he travelled with the company played several important parts, creating General Abercromby, in Flint and Steel (which he played over 1,000 nights); Sugar, in Sugar and Spice; Lothario, in Merry Mignon; &c His first important part in pantomime was Fitzwarren, with the late Mr Edward Fletcher at the Theatre Royal, Cardiff. He toured with the pioneer of the touring system (the ever-green and popular manager Mr Fred Wright) playing in dramas, burlesques, &c., and also in two of his pantomimes, as the Ugly Sister in Cinderella and Will Atkins in Robinson Crusoe. He played Derrick in Rip Van Winkle with Messrs Arnold, Ashley, and Parker, and John Sternhold in Mr Elliott Galer's True Story at the Pavilion Theatre, E., and on tour. Breaks occurred in the way of stock seasons at Stockton and Birkenhead. A run of heavy parts included Dan M'Grath, in Mr J. B. Mulholland's Conspiracy; First class, in the drama of that name; heavy lead, in Mr Fred Cooke's New Mazeppa; and also in his own company, Royal the Scout and Black Diamonds. Pantomimes have always been, and are still, a leading article with him, and as a matter of fact he has only been out of pantomime one Christmas season during the whole of his professional career, and on that occasion being released with some difficulty to go touring, and Mr Booth is, therefore, able to establish, and has reason to boast of, an exceptional pantomime record. He produced, stage-managed, and played in six, at various theatres, for the Messrs Revill. He played Baron in Babes, and was re-engaged the following season for Emperor, in Whittington, producing and stage-managing both pantomimes for the late Mr Dennis Grannell at the Rotunda, Liverpool. He also played Will Atkins, in Crusoe, at the Royal, Leeds; Wolf, in the Easter pantomime of Red Riding Hood, at Belfast; Giant, in Jack and the Beanstalk, with Mr J. F. Elliston, at Bolton; Cannibal King, in Crusoe, at the Queen's, Manchester. Practically the whole of his time between pantomimes is filled up with touring companies and in writing pantomimes. He toured with Mr Harry Rogerson's company for about two years, creating the part of Professor Zerlo, in Jacko, and also booked the tours and did the business-management. During an autumn engagement with Mr Arthur Jefferson's company (numbering fifty-four), The Bootblack, he was the general manager as well as playing the Governor of Portland. Mr Booth wrote the pantomime for the Grand, Newcastle-on-Tyne, one season. Last autumn he played Marquis Imari, in The Geisha (Mr F. Moullot's company), a class of part for which it is generally admitted he is admirably suited. For pantomime last year he went to Southampton, writing, producing, stage-managing, as well as playing Gingerette (ugly sister), in Cinderella. Want of space precludes our mentioning many other important engagements. Mr Booth is now playing the part of Jim Price, in A Path of Thorns (Mr Hardie and Miss Von Leer's company), opening at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, on Monday; and for the next Christmas pantomime he has been engaged by Mr Ernest Carpenter to play the Wolf, in Red Riding Hood, and also stage-manage the production at the Eden Theatre, Brighton.

MISS ROSE MONCRIEFF.

MISS ROSE MONCRIEFF made her first appearance at the age of three as the child, in The Stranger, with her aunt's company (the late Rose Osman) She studied dancing under John D'Auban, Mons. Bertrand (ballet master at the Alhambra), and others, and was engaged by Mr John Hollingshead to do a dance in the production of The Forty Thieves, at the Gaiety Theatre, where she remained eighteen months. At the age of twelve, the late Alexander Henderson engaged her for the Comedy Theatre for the production of Rip Van Winkle, in which she played Tom Tit, a part specially written for her by the late H. B. Farnie. After staying there two years, and appearing in the comic operas Falka and Boccacio, she went to the Alhambra to introduce her sailor's hornpipe in the speciality scene of Blue-Eyed Susan Her first appearance as principal boy was as Robinson Crusoe, at the Theatre Royal, Sunderland; then followed Selim, in the pantomime of Blue Beard, at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, with the late Mrs Nye Chart, and she was two seasons at the Crystal Palace, under the management of Mr Oscar Barrett. Other pantomime engagements have been Croydon, County Theatre, Kingston, &c. Her favourite part is Little Red Riding Hood, in which she made a great success at the Novelty Theatre, with Miss V. St. Lawrence, and Mr S. Barnard. Theatre Royal, Woolwich. Since then she has been touring with her own company, playing Fun on the Bristol, Little Amy Robsart, and other burlesques, and has visited all the principal provincial theatres. Last Christmas she toured her pantomime company with Jack the Giant-Killer, which was most successful, and ran for ten weeks. This year she will take out Little Red Riding Hood, for which a new version has been written for her by W. Muskerry and Newman Maurice. She will visit many towns in Scotland, and intends running it over Easter. In private life she is the wife of Newman Maurice, general manager of the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, and resides near the river at Teddington, where they leased the Bijou Theatre for three years, and which was destroyed by fire last Christmas.

MISS LOUIE TINSLEY.

MISS LOUIE TINSLEY'S first engagement was in March, 1889, with Miss Laura Villiers' Fedora tour, in which she played Countess Olga; and also Cornelia Carlyle, in East Lynne. The following autumn she appeared as Mrs Rippendale, in The Balloon. In the spring of 1890, Mr Willie Edouin engaged her to play Bella, in Our Flat, and she was re-engaged for the two following tours. During this engagement she created the parts of Dolly Danby, in Daughters, and Teresa Jane Tomkins, in Back in Five Minutes. In the spring of 1892 Miss Tinsley joined Mr Arthur Bearne's company to play Mary Ibbotson, in My Jack, and in his répertoire she played Lady Creamly, in The Serious Family; Mrs Montgomery Brown, in Time and the Hour; Selina, in Garrick; &c. After eighteen months with Mr Bearne she was engaged by Mr J. M. East for nineteen weeks' stock season at the Lyric, Hammersmith. While there she played Phœbe Sage, in Drink; Norah O'Reilly, The Silver Falls; Topsy, Uncle Tom's Cabin; Mrs Timmins, In the Ranks; Mrs Galloner, True as Steel; Lucy Nettlefold, Hands Across the Sea; Vera, in Siberia; Margaret Bailey, Driven from Home; Fanny Squeers, Nicholas Nickleby; Louisa Ann Ferguson, An English Rose; Laura Shirley, Queen's Evidence; Martha Widgeon, Lights of Home; Nan, Good for Nothing; Belinda, Our Boys; Peggy Primrose, Fallen Among Thieves; Nancy Blenkarn, in The Middleman, &c. In the spring of 1894 she rejoined Mr Bearne to play Mrs Montrevor Smith, in Husband and Wife; followed by Oriana, in The Star of India; Rose Pringle, True Blue; Mrs Lappit, Dick Sheridan; Mrs Dean, in The Charlatan; and created the part of Jane, in Topsy-Turvy, a farcical comedy, by Roy Byford, produced by Mr Bearne at the Court Theatre, Liverpool. These engagements extended over four and a-half years. At their conclusion Miss Tinsley was engaged by Mr Fred Sidney for Petunia, in The Brixton Burglary. She then fulfilled special engagements in Our Flat; Penelope, in The Area Belle; Mrs Puffy, The Streets of London; Lottie Bromley, A Woman's Revenge; Selina Scragge, The Lightning's Flash; Jenny, The Noble Art; Chloe and Mrs Pannell, in Turned Up, &c. In the spring of 1900 she was engaged by Mr Percy Hutchison for Keziah, in Lady Huntworth's Experiment, and played the part for three consecutive tours. Since then Miss Tinsley has fulfilled many special engagements with Mr Charles Steuart, playing Mrs Ranklin, in The Schoolmistress; Maria, in Confusion; the Baroness, in Cinderella (her first pantomime part); and her old rôle of Bella, in Our Flat, a character she has played over 600 times in the suburbs and provinces.

THE THEATRE ROYAL, RYDE.

It is a source of considerable gratification to the Isle of Wight people that Mr Bannister Howard has become the new lessee of the Theatre Royal at Ryde. He has had the place nicely done up, and has made a number of alterations and improvements. He has done away with the orchestra stalls, and converted them all into the pit-stalls, and has added another row to the pit by taking away the old partition at the back. The entrances have also been re arranged, so as to enable more modern arrangements to be carried out in the shape of early doors, &c The theatre was reopened last week, when a new Ben Greet company gave performances of The Belle of New York and Florodora. These were extremely well attended, and on the first night the encores were so numerous that it was 11·15 before the curtain fell. Mr Bannister Howard has been warmly congratulated upon the success of his efforts. It may be taken as proved that when good companies are secured the inhabitants of the Isle of Wight are as fond of the theatre as other people. The Bank Holiday attraction was Three Little Maids, which was played to a crowded house by Mr Chas. Macdona's company, and during the later part of the week Mr Gordon Starkey's company performed the popular three-act comedy A Message from Mars.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, AUG. 4.—When the thermometer varies between eighty and ninety-five degrees in the shade it is small wonder that theatre-going is not popular. I have never known a summer when the public showed so little interest in the play, and not even the garden restaurants of the few theatres open prove much inducement. The new operetta met with a mixed reception, applause and hisses struggling for the upper hand. The plot is comical without being humorous, and the music is far behind that of the composer's popular work, Die Kleinen Michus. Florestan, a young Parisian painter, having been refused the hand of Justine—his inamorata—by her parents, goes off on his travels to mitigate his grief. Arrived at Kurdestan he finds the annual competition going on for the hand of the Queen. In accordance with an ancient tradition the Queen is compelled to take a new consort every year. The task set for the aspirants is a race with a deer. Who is fortunate enough to outdistance the animal becomes King of Kurdestan and husband of the fair Queen for the space of one year. Florestan has been followed by Justine, and all might have gone well but for "words" between the lovers. He takes part in the competition, and being a swift runner wins the race. The Queen, however, is perfectly satisfied with her present spouse and anxious to keep him on, so she sets a second task for the victor. He is to withstand the allurements of the syrens of the town—the slightest deviation from the path of rectitude will lose him the lofty position of King of Kurdestan. Justine is among the enticers, and Florestan falls an only too willing victim. All ends happily; the lovers are united, and the Queen retains the man she loves. The interpretation was a particularly inadequate one, and the work—never likely to be very successful in any circumstances—suffered in consequence.

HERR FRANK WEDEKIND—one of our most up-to-date, realistic dramatists—has just completed a new play entitled Hidalla. Dr. Brahm, who, with his Deutsches Theatre company, repairs in September to the Lessing Theatre, has accepted the piece, and will produce it as the first novelty of the season. Hidalla is the name of the heroine—an adventuress and swindler on a grand scale, but there is a good deal of sentiment and idealism in the character as well. There is a Wedekind cult just as there is an Ibsen cult and a Gorki cult here, and a Wedekind première is looked forward to with almost as much curiosity as a Hauptmann production.

THE summer opera season at the Schiller Theatre O., under the management of Herr Morwitz, is scarcely so successful as it was last year. It is possible the great heat affects the singers, as it certainly does the public. An experiment was made last week with Mozart's beautiful opera, Die Entführung aus dem Serail—an experiment which would have been better left untried. Even the lightest of Mozart's works needs worthily setting, and the cast in this case was an entirely inadequate one, with a single exception—that of Herr Raven's Selim Bassa, a rendering which was an enjoyable contrast to all the rest. More successful on the whole was the production of Karl Weiss's opera Der Polnische Jude on Friday. This is a work too little known; it possesses delightful melodies, and the instrumentation is above the average throughout, while the rôles are all grateful ones. Kapellmeister Wolf conducted with skill, and orchestra and chorus were the best part of the performance. The cast was fairly even and adequate, and the mounting—which is not easy—was well done The work was received with the utmost cordiality.

TWO of our most attractive theatres reopened on Monday, the Neues and the Kleines. Nothing new is announced at present at either house, the former giving Nestroy's burlesque-farce Einen Jux will er Sich Machen and the latter Gorki's Nachtasyl, with which plays the last season ended. Signora Duse will be in Berlin towards the end of September for a somewhat lengthy season. No particulars beyond the fact of her coming have as yet transpired.

REOPENING OF THE LEICESTER ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

After being closed for the summer vacation, the Royal Opera House, the premier theatre in Leicester, reopened its doors for the season on Monday evening. Although the Opera House is considered to be one of the safest and best appointed theatres in the provinces, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley, the sole proprietor, has taken advantage of the closing to further add to the attractiveness of the building, workmen having been employed in all parts of the theatre in redecorating, &c. Notwithstanding the fact that the exits of the theatre are considered to be most ample, an audience of 3 266 having been got out in the remarkably short space of two and three-quarter minutes, the gallant colonel, who is nothing if not thorough in all his undertakings, has had all the exits seen to, and several fresh ones added, and in the course of a few days an entirely new fireproof asbestos curtain of the latest improvements will be in use. The fronts of the upper and dress circles have been redecorated, and the interior of the pit has also undergone a similar renovation. A new exit door and staircase have been made from the dress-circle, and an additional exit from the pit has also been introduced—improvements which reflect great credit on the far-sightedness of Colonel Winstanley. Handrails have been put on the staircases leading to and from the gallery, and the stage and staircases at the back have been practically relaid, so that it will be seen that in a theatre that can get large audiences out in such a quick manner there is nothing at all left to be desired. The companies that have been engaged for the season are the best on tour, and include a farewell visit from Sir Henry Irving Mr Geo. M. Slater is manager for Colonel J. A. Winstanley, and Mr C. D. Leigh, the newly-appointed resident acting-manager, who is well-known to both the patrons of the Opera House and the profession, having been for a considerable number of years the scenic artist and stage-manager for Colonel Winstanley, has been the recipient of congratulations from a large number of friends on his new appointment, which, from his vast experience in all branches of the profession, he will no doubt carry out with credit to himself and to the satisfaction of his employer.

The company engaged for the holiday week is Miss Grace Silvester and Mr Fletcher Sansome's combination, who are here on a first visit in the musical comedy entitled Jack's Sweetheart, in which are introduced some very pretty and catchy songs and some original dances. Miss Gladys Sylvester as May Leslie, Jack's sweetheart, sings and dances in capital style. Mr Cecil W. Parke makes an excellent Jack Tremayne, and others who do well are Mr Fred Laceby (the Hon. Bertie Babington), Mr Will Percy (Samuel Sherlock Spotter), Mr Murray Yorke (Captain Dugard), Mr Harry W. Lingard (Sir Henry Stanhope), Miss Emmie Clegg (Lady Dolly Dartley), Miss Madge Western (Mrs Hopkins), and Miss Jennie Clare (Sally). Mr Caffyn Baxter is the musical director for the company.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Drama, in Five Acts, by the late Henry Pettitt, entitled "HANDS ACROSS THE SEA."

Mr George Davey celebrated his first anniversary as lessee and manager of the Grand Theatre on Monday evening, where, in spite of the warm summer weather, which tempted so many to get away from the hot dusty streets of town, a large holiday audience assembled in the house, which all the year round provides North London playgoers with sound dramatic entertainment. During the twelve months that Mr Davey has been lessee and manager of the theatre he has done much to render it popular by a consistent line of policy admirably adapted to meet all the requirements of those who patronise the house. To gain by perfectly legitimate means the confidence of local playgoers has been his object, and that he has succeeded cannot be disputed. One of his most notable achievements was the recent engagement of Madame Sarah Bernhardt and her company for a matinée performance, and in many other ways has Mr Davey shown that there is no lack of enterprise and energy in his managerial policy. In his work he has had the able and untiring assistance of his manager, Mr Oswald Brand, who has been associated with the theatre over twenty years, and during the period Mr Davey has been in command has successfully produced and revived more than thirty popular plays. He specially scored with his adaptations of several of Dickens's novels, including "Oliver Twist," "Bleak House," and "No Thoroughfare." In celebration of the anniversary a souvenir was issued embellished with portraits of Mr Davey and Mr Brand, and also containing pictures of scenes from the Dickensian plays just mentioned. In an address to the patrons of the house Mr Davey states:—"When I opened the theatre in 1903 I felt that there was certainly some hope that a part at least of the old public favour could be won back. The fact that 468,000 people have visited the Grand during this year bears out my first impressions." After calling attention to the list of engagements for the autumn season Mr Davey adds:—"I firmly believe that there is still some love on the part of those living in Islington and the surrounding neighbourhood for sound, healthy melodramas." The fact that there were over 1,200 present on Monday evening certainly tends to confirm Mr Davey's confidence.

The late Mr Henry Pettitt's drama, Hands Across the Sea, was originally produced in Australia with marked success, and it was first staged in England at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on July 30, 1888. The piece was produced at the Princess's Theatre the following November, with Mr Henry Neville in the part of Jack Dudley. On Monday evening the audience followed with close interest the fortunes of the hero and the girl who becomes his devoted wife, the story being presented with the skill which always characterised the work of Mr Henry Pettitt. Mr Leonard Yorke gave a vigorous embodiment of Jack Dudley, with just the right touch of manly pathos in those scenes where the hero appears to be doomed to an ignominious death. Mr A. C. Chandler depicted the French gamester, Count Paul, in a manner that gave complete satisfaction, and Mr Ivan Berlyn deserves unqualified praise for his very clever portrait of the adventurer, Jean De Lussac. Good work was done by Mr Fred F. Allen as Joseph St. Hillwood, whose son, Robert, had a capable representative in Mr Douglas Hamilton. Mr Arthur Estcourt was well placed as Dick Melford; Mr Hal Collier was a genial Tom Bassett; and Mr A. C. Clarke scored as the kind-hearted Captain Land. Mr J. Fergus rendered able service as Hiram Hickory from Chicago. Miss Helen Bancroft was not only a handsome Lilian Melford, but won the sympathies of the audience for the wife whose husband is in such deadly peril of his life. Miss Kate Brand made excellent use of her opportunities as Lucy Nettlefold, and Miss W. Leeson as Madame Valerie and Miss Winnie Wood as Polly also deserve favourable mention. The drama, which was admirably staged, was preceded by the Biograph and a variety performance by H. E. High, roller expert and fanciful figure skater, whose clever doings on wheels evoked loud applause; Alber and Amber, eccentric jugglers, in their comedy act "The Tramp and the Waiter;" Julia Kent and Alexander Keith, in "That's what they say at the Play;" Pat Doherty, "The Irish M.P.," Hibernian singer and dancer, a prime favourite at the Grand; Millis, the smart ventriloquist, and others.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Aug. 1, for the First Time in London, the Sensational Drama, in Four Acts, by William Hibbert, entitled "WHEN WOMAN HATES."

Gen. Sir Henry Rokeby	Mr William Dempsey
Lieut. Fred Rokeby, R.N.	Mr John B. Shinton

Warder Dickenson	Mr G. H. Bates
Police-constable T. Jones	Mr R. Seaton
Police-constable Atkinson	Mr A. J. Saunders
Tim Sprouts	Mr F. Leader
Marie Rokeby	Miss Jennie Hughes
Edith Rokeby	Miss Violet Carlyle
Mrs Sally Potts	Miss Lila More
Miss Sally Potts	Miss Ida Cunard
Mrs Growler	Miss Sybil Newman
Nelly Rokeby	Little Kathleen A. Crook
Florence Herbert	Miss Agnes Bertram
Ross Merton	Miss Jeannie James
Cora Daintry	Miss Nettie Ware

When Woman Hates was produced for one night only at the Theatre Royal, Aston, on Jan. 8, and did not again see the footlights till its successful production on Monday last at the Pavilion. The drama has all the elements of popular success in the provinces. It positively teems with thrilling incidents and exciting and affecting situations. The heroine is Cora Daintry, an artful and designing adventuress, who succeeds in parting husband and wife, brother and sister, and who, with the assistance of her villainous accomplice, Godfrey Lawton, causes all the trouble. This "fiend with an angel's face" cherishes an unholy passion for Fred Rokeby, a lieutenant in the army, and as he does not respond to her advances, hate, bitter and remorseless, takes he place of the feeling she formerly had for him. Godfrey Lawton, who admires the lieutenant's wife, has already succeeded in ruining Rokeby's sister, Edith, who is compelled by Cora as the price of her silence to pay her hush money. To do this she robs her father, and her brother is at first suspected. However, Cora makes a full confession to her father, General Rokeby, who, on discovering the true character of Cora and her associate in crime, at once repairs the injustice of a former will by making a fresh one in favour of his son and daughter. Lawton endeavours to obtain possession of this will, but the General confronts him with a revolver, and he is compelled to write a confession of his attempt on Sir Henry's life. Cora, however, puts in an appearance at this critical moment, and shoots the old man from behind. While Godfrey pockets the will Cora takes possession of the confession. Fred discovers the murder, and, as usually happens in such cases in melodrama, the hero is accused and convicted of the crime. He is lodged in a prison of which Lawton is the governor, and hither the vengeful Cora comes to taunt him in his captivity and to boast that she has caused the letters addressed to him by his wife to be intercepted. He is permitted to escape by climbing a high wall, a plan having been formed to shoot him ere he can get free of the prison premises, but this scheme fails owing to the intervention of a big burly ruffian known as Bill Smasher. Fred's little daughter, Nelly, has been earning a few pence by selling flowers in the streets, and, meeting her accidentally, he is conducted to the miserable room where his wife is living. But, alas, through overstraining her eyes at needlework she has become blind and dependent upon her child's scanty earnings. The act concludes with another exciting incident—the escape from his pursuers of Fred Rokeby through a window outside which hangs a rope. The abduction of little Nelly is Cora's next move, and when this terrible woman actually threatens to throw the unfortunate child into a seething furnace in a coiners' den the indignation of the audience knows no bounds. In the last act there is a thrilling scene between Cora and Godfrey, to whom she has played false, and he is stabbed to the heart. The career of the female fiend is eventually checked by her being handed over to the charge of the police; and happier days dawn for the hero and heroine.

Mr John B. Shinton is seen to advantage in the part of Lieut. Fred Rokeby, playing the character naturally and with abundance of vigour in the scenes where it is required. Miss Nettie Ware makes Cora Daintry a fascinating woman who possesses the heart of a fiend. Her fair face is a false index to the vile character which it only too effectively conceals; and Miss Ware is quite successful in depicting the syren whose luridly criminal career forms the basis of the story. Mr Oscar Adye as Godfrey Lawton co-operates loyally with Miss Ware in vividly portraying the seamy side of human nature, and his performance deserves the warmest commendation. Mr William Wallace scores as Colonel Hiram R. Vancutson, a Yankee, who befriends the hero at a critical moment. Miss Jennie Hughes wins plenty of sympathy in the part of Marie Rokeby, the heroine, and Miss Violet Carlyle does well as Edith Rokeby. Little Kathleen A. Crook has quite a long part as the child Nelly, and shows intelligence and aptitude beyond her age. Mr Willie Scott is amusing as Patrick O'Brien, a prison warder, and Mr Lionel West comically hits off the eccentricities of Alphonse Picolot. Mr Eric Campbell makes a burly Bill Smasher, and some good work is done by Miss Lila More and Miss Ida Cunard as Mrs Potts and her daughter, Sally. Mr Wm. Dempsey as General Rokeby, Mr Richard Hodden as the Right Hon. C. Fenchurch, and Mr Chas. Watson as Dr. Horten deserve favourable mention, and other minor characters are carefully sustained. The new drama, which was staged in admirable manner, met with a very favourable reception.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Drama, by Theo Kremer, entitled "THE FATAL WEDDING."

At the Standard this week Mr Bert Coote's company is appearing in Mr Theo Kremer's powerful play The Fatal Wedding. The cast is exceptionally good, and the scenic effects are excellent. Mr Wilfrid Payne as Howard Wilson handles the part with marked care, while the vigour put into the rôle of Robert Curtis by Mr Lancelot Cancellor is worthy of praise. Toto, the French butler, is commendably portrayed by Mr Charles H. Kenney, and affords plenty of amusement. Mr Fred Dobell depicts a typical German in the rôle of Peter Schwartz. Mr Henry Wellbeck does well in the rôle allotted to him, and too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Miss Ida Valli, who, in the rôle of Jessie, cleverly hits off the Yankee maid in all her self-assurance. Miss Marie Housley scores in the part of Mabel Wilson, while Cora Wilson finds a capable exponent in Miss Beatrix De Burgh. Bridget is ably embodied by Miss Annie Brophy, and adds greatly to the humorous element. The other parts are all well sustained.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Drama, by Frederick Melville, entitled "HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

Mr Frederick Melville's company met with a good reception here on Monday for an admirable performance of his interesting drama Her Forbidden Marriage. The play is embellished with sound and invigorating dialogue, and the various situations are thrilling to the highest extent, the resultant effect being that the "house" followed each act with breathless interest. In the arduous rôle of George Madison Mr Horace Hunter was all that could be desired, and his fine elocutionary powers were utilised to the greatest advantage. As Charles Devereux Mr Clarence Hague presented a finished study of an unscrupulous character. A more polished villain it would be difficult to find. Mr Chas. Carte gave an excellent and dignified performance of Sir George Lancaster, and Dr. Fenwick received capable treatment at the hands of Mr W. Browning. Mr Harry Elliston was untiring in the part of Timothy Tuttutt, and his comicalities were hugely appreciated by the onlookers. Mr Edgar L. Hocking was good as Joe Lampkin, and Mr Gilbert Heron was excellent as the Rev. Mr Dean. A charming representation of Lucy was given by Miss Isla Garnet Vayne, and her sympathetic and earnest acting speedily gained warm appreciation. Miss Marie Kildare as Pattie Lovejoy made a sprightly partner for Timothy Tuttutt, and the twain deserve every commendation for their indefatigable efforts. Charles Devereux's companion in villainy, Lady Lucretia Lancaster, was very successfully impersonated by Miss Doris Brookes, and an artistic and finished performance was that given by Miss Emily Hughes in the part of the Mother Superior. Several minor characters were all intelligently represented, and the whole performance was an undoubted success. The scenery was excellent, and the principal performers were unanimously called before the curtain at the end of each act.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Play, in Four Acts, by Theo Kremer, entitled "THE FATAL WEDDING."

Mr Theo Kremer, in writing the above-mentioned play, evidently knew the peculiarities of popular audiences, on whose sympathies he makes large demands by his "arrangement" of various telling scenes. Indeed, the success scored by The Fatal Wedding in the provincial and suburban houses since its production at the Princess's nearly two years since is really remarkable; and it forms this week the attraction both at the Standard and at Mr William Bailey's popular house in Church-street. The story of the wronged wife, whose innocence is so patent to everyone except the incredulous and stupid husband, appeals with rare force to the hearts of the more susceptible among the West Londoners, and there is a touch of nature that makes the whole world kin in what may be termed "the little mother" scenes. Out of great tribulation does the heroine emerge, and not until the final scene do the arms of an unthinking and illogical husband close round her, but she is sustained in her trials by the discerning love and dutiful affection of her daughter Jessie. It is in this character that the author plays his trump card, and "the little mother," which is the term fitly applied to the child—thoughtful and discreet beyond her years—is the most popular character in the piece. Fortunately at the West London the part falls to the lot of an intelligent and gifted little girl, whose name is Maldie Andrews. Already is Miss Andrews an immense favourite, and her treatment of the scene where the villainess endeavours to fix upon Jessie a charge of theft, betrays considerable histrionic ability. The gentleness and affection which are the chief attributes of the part are delineated with much naturalness. The great children scene in the third act has a particularly popular number in "The cake-walk in the sky," and Miss Andrews is well fitted with a pretty little song, "The boys and the apples." In the part of the heroine (Mabel Wilson) Miss Helen Russell plays with both sweetness and tenderness, showing considerable emotion in many difficult and exacting scenes. Mr Randolfe Reade has no little difficulty in making the hero plausible, but shows considerable discretion in his rendering of a character that cannot be said to appeal strongly to playgoers. The out-and-out villainy of Robert Curtis has been well studied by Mr Wallace Stranack, who brings down the wrath of gods and pit upon his devoted head by the resolute way in which he treads the thorny path of stage turpitude. He has an excellent partner in his many misdeeds in Miss Doris Gilham, who shows aristocratic ease, imperturbable coolness, and finesse in a character that could so easily be overcoloured. The strength of the play is largely increased by the cleverly drawn comic characters. These are Peter Schwartz, a good-hearted German caretaker, and Bridget, an equally loyal Irish cook. Mr John Wheatman, a comedian of the first rank, follows accepted traditions in his delineation of the Anglo-Dutchman, and is genuinely funny all the time; and Miss Marie Hassell gives rare breadth, heartiness, and comicality to the rôle of Bridget, her brogue being capital. Mr Jack Denton is a most entertaining Toto, the French butler. Messrs Jack Waring and J. Graham also do good work in minor parts. The children's scene to which we have referred is immensely enjoyed, and the variety entertainment contributed by the kiddies is highly creditable to their talents. The stage-management deserves high praise, and Mr Bert Coote's excellent arrangements have been well backed up by the theatre management.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Military Comedy-Drama, by Stephen Bond and B. Soane Roby, entitled "BOY BOB."

The engagement of Miss Louie Freear and West-end company, in Boy Bob, was a good stroke of business as far as Bank Holiday makers at least were concerned, and they took advantage of their good fortune by filling the house from floor to roof on Monday evening, and this notwithstanding the fact that there had been a matinée performance as well. Miss Freear's impersonation of the drummer Boy Bob is now so well known to suburban playgoers that we cannot say anything that has not been better said before. She is certainly more popular than ever, and at times the large audience simply "rose" at her. Mr Slaine Mills as Colonel Vincent and Mr Francis Hawley as Capt. Fisher were both of the greatest assistance, and Mr Stephen Bond (part author of the play) was equally good as Capt. Winton; Mr B. Soane Roby (the other part author) was excellent as the hearbroken Sergeant Daniels; and Mr A. T. Hendon ably portrayed the part of Sergeant Field. Edith Vincent (Col. Vincent's daughter) was tenderly acted by Miss Dora Rignold, while Miss Marie Rignold as Lottie Brenton made quite one of the hits of the evening, and gave a truly excellent rendering of the part. Mrs H. A. Saintsbury as Mrs Caudrough was a fascinating widow, whose matrimonial efforts caused unceasing laughter. Miss Constance Raymond made an attractive Nurse Draycott, and the numerous other minor characters were all in safe hands. The play was lavishly dressed, and was well mounted, and its success was undoubted. In Good for Nothing, which precedes Boy Bob, Miss Beryl Mercer's performance of the part of Nan is a highly creditable piece of work.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Drama, entitled "THE SILVER KING."

Mr Robert Arthur begins his tenancy of this theatre this week, and his opening attraction for the holidays was The Silver King. This is by no means the first visit here, but special interest is attached to it at present owing to its being the play in which the late Wilson Barrett was so successful, and with which his name will always be associated. Mr Austin Melford appears as Wilfred Denver and gives a very fine performance of the character. Mr Melford plays with great force, and he received a flattering reception which was a tribute to his fine assumption of the rôle. Nellie Denver is charmingly played by Miss Emelie Polini, who displays much emotional power. She was especially good in the more pathetic scenes. The faithful Jaikes is carefully played by Mr C. C. Gratton, who is well fitted to the part. Mr Charles Levey makes a first-class "Spider," his easy style well suiting the character. Mr Arthur H. Rooke again appears in his clever study of Elijah Coombe—it is a distinctly good piece of characterisation. Henry Corkett has a bright representative in Mr J. L. Power, and Cripps is quite safe in the hands of C. P. Amalia. Mr Warris Lindon makes a smart Baxter, and Mr A. E. Palmer is seen to advantage as Geoffrey Ware. Miss Phyllis Dailley puts in much good work as Olive Skinner, while Miss Margaret Rooke deserves praise for her bright impersonation of Susie. Miss Amy Manfree is effective as Cissy. Among the various smaller characters we may mention that of Mr Parkyn as played by Mr Eric Store, a very humorous impersonation, and the same may be said of Mr H. Launly's picture of the tipsy traveller. The play is well mounted, and the whole production is under the direction of Messrs G. M. Polini and Austin Melford.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Charles Hoyt, entitled "A TRIP TO CHINATOWN."

The lightest texture and brightest colouring are combined in the frolicsome entertainment which this week has made the Shakespeare Theatre ring with merry peals of mirth. The title of A Trip to Chinatown betrays its American origin, but its popularity with English audiences has endured ever since Mr R. G. Knowles, at Toole's Theatre, in the September of 1895, adventured into the realms of musical comedy. Around his droll personality a series of varied and diverting incidents grew up, embellished by musical numbers always tuneful and agreeable, and with the original two acts lengthened into three and extra songs and interludes the comedy now goes with added zest. Full justice is done to the piece by Mr Leslie Norman's company, which opened a tour auspiciously on Monday, and proved to be rich in comedy talent, both feminine and masculine. The leading part of Welland Strong is played by Mr Charles Seguin, whose high spirits as the imaginary invalid never wane. Roars of laughter give eloquent testimony to his comic powers, and his presence on the stage bespeaks hilarity. He is assisted in the mirth-making by Miss Harriet Fawn, a comedienne of refinement and charm, who becomes quite irresistible as the fascinating widow, and whose duets and dances with the irrepressible Strong are invariably encored. They are particularly entertaining in the "Tramp Cakewalk" and in the duet as "Reuben and Cynthia," which won a number of recalls. Miss Fawn makes a decided success of "Willie, you have caught my eye," also leading the revels in a "Cigarette" song and stately minuet, and in everything she does the grace and charm of her style are evident. Another painstaking pair are Miss Dorothy Vicott as the vivacious maid Flirt and Mr Will Smith, a comedian of unlimited resource, as Noah Heap. Both in song and dance this talented couple amuse, and the business of the waiter never fails to provoke a roar. Mr Frederick Bousfield develops a vein of real eccentricity as Slavin Payne, whose interest in his master, Ben Gay, is productive of such ludicrous results. That amorous old gentleman is played by Mr Jerrold Manville, who uses his voice with remarkable effect as the irascible bachelor, and whose comic expression has full play in the scene in the café, where his susceptibility to heat is so severely tried. The venturesome Rashleigh Gay is embodied by Mr Leslie Norman with manliness and vigour, and as his friend Saxon Blood Mr Oswald Gray acts gallantly, using with effect a melodious and powerful tenor voice in the ballad "Love, could I only tell thee," which was warmly redemanded. Miss Florrie M'Innes makes a winsome Tiny Gay, and her friend Isabel Dame is thoroughly well played by Miss Winifred Davies, whose assistance in the burlesque of grand opera with Mr Norman and Mr Gray is invaluable. Miss Beatrice Erle makes a buoyant youth of Willie Grow, and the cast is completed by Misses Vera Lake Grange, Daisie Cotton, Maisie Stanley, and Frances Erroll, and Mr Alf. Donohoe. The comedy is brightened by the efforts of the Canadian Belles, who sing the popular "Bedella," to which they attach a pas de trois, which is a fine sample of grace and skill. The waits between the acts are beguiled by some interesting coloured pictures thrown on a screen, presenting advertisements of general and local interest.

GRAND THEATRE, FULHAM.

On Monday, Aug. 1, "THE BEAUTIFUL AVENGER."

When Mr F. A. Scudamore's vigorous and well-thought-out piece, The Beautiful Avenger, was produced at Easter, radium was being eagerly and ardently discussed as a scientific discovery of great pith and moment. Now the piece still remains singularly appropriate and up to date, but more by reason of its references to Thibet, concerning which locality seldom a day passes but we find a reference in the newspapers. There is always a vast field for speculation opened for the imaginative or inventive mind by the discussion of occult science or dark continent, and of this opportunity Mr Scudamore has availed himself to the full. Miss Daisy Scudamore as the scientific and resourceful Vashti Volta, alias Victor Stanhope, earns golden opinions from the audience, the gods especially vociferously applauding her in her strenuous struggle with villainy. Mr James Gelderd makes a capital Cyrus Telford, the artist who makes a Mephistophelian, but highly remunerative bargain in order to save himself from ruin, and Messrs Frank Harding and Algernon Syms are indefatigable and masterful exponents of evil as Zadok and Herman Foxbane, in whom hereditary wickedness makes it a case of like father like son. Miss Cissie Podmore gives a clever and capable impersonation of a boy rejoicing in the name of Baldie Mansfield, and Miss Marie Scudamore contributes an impressive performance as Edna Volta, Vashti's wronged sister. The comic relief is safe in the hands of Miss Nannie Mead as Arabella Binks and Mr William Ames as Peregrine Patch, who cause continuous mirth throughout their traffic of the stage. Other small parts are creditably enacted by Messrs Withers, Rolls, Wright, Osborne, and others.

EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Play, in Five Acts, by Messrs George R. Sims and Arthur Shirley, entitled "TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

The attraction for the Bank Holiday week is Hardie and Von Leer's original company in Two Little Vagabonds, which was fully appreciated by a large audience on Monday. Mr J. W. Henson did justice to the part of George Thornton; Captain Darville was ably played by Mr Selwyn Seymour; Mr Jack Royal showed himself an experienced actor in the part of Leeson, the faithful servant; the villain Bill Mullins, alias "The Gaffer," was cleverly taken by Mr Alfred Russel, and was fully appreciated; and Messrs Leslie Parker and Fred Archer as confederates did well. Mr H. Holliman as Joe Gargoyle, a sexton, and Mr Henry Buckland, a village constable, made much of their characters. Miss Laura Hansen showed herself a charming and clever actress as the heroine, Marion Thornton; Miss Nell Oliver made a capital Barbara Scarth; Miss Kathleen Morgan was a fascinating nurse; Miss Marie Prichard as Biddy Mullins gave out her Irish brogue very clearly; and Dick and Wally, Miss Mary Hart and Miss Dorothy Marsdin, evoked loud applause by the way in which they rendered their parts.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Aug. 1, for the First Time in London, the Drama, in Five Acts, by G. Carlton Wallace, entitled "THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH."

John Strong	Mr Sam Livesey
Harry Strong	Little Christobel
Captain Leo	Mr Joseph Carter
Lucas Marler	Mr Frank Harrison
St. John Harman	Mr Geo. Edwards
Jeremiah Parkins	Mr Thos. E. Marshall
Billy Twig	Mr George V. Campbell
Inspector Grant	Mr Gus Ratcliffe
Detective Staple	Mr S. Bale
P.C. Wilkins	Mr E. Morris
Humpy Farn	Mr Bert Butler
Servant	Mr K. Wilton
Peter Walker	Mr Hal Stead
Martha Mopps	Miss Edith Giddens
Sal Parkins	Mrs T. C. Livesey
Ruth Parkins	Miss Maggie Edwards
Kate Strong	Miss Ethel Kay

"Under a spreading chestnut tree the village smithy stands." In the words of Longfellow such is the picture which presents itself as the story opens. Honest John Strong is at work at his forge, and the big, brawny blacksmith is happy in the possession of wife and child. On this blissful horizon a dark cloud appears in the person of Captain Leo, a truculent athlete, who has met with an accident, and has been succoured by the smith. The Captain happens to have known Kate before her marriage to the blacksmith, and is aware that her father was a forger and committed suicide, facts which are unknown to her husband. Leo makes overtures to Kate, which are scornfully rejected, and then the villain attempts to poison the blacksmith's mind against his wife. To this end, he employs a precious couple of vagabonds to waylay the girl, and they contrive to exchange her wedding ring for one provided by Leo, bearing the inscription, "From your husband in all but name." To John Strong Leo breathes of a liaison which existed between Kate and one Lucas Marler previous to her marriage, tells him of her father's career, and when the wrathful and incredulous smith would strike him to the ground challenges him to examine his wife's wedding-ring. Poor Kate, all unconscious of the vile fraud perpetrated upon her, takes off her marriage symbol, and her husband, with this apparently conclusive proof, is convinced of her guilt. Henceforth life has no charm for the blacksmith, and he leaves home, wife, and child to find solace in drink—and the friendship of Captain Leo. The latter still persecutes Kate with his attentions, even though there has appeared on the scene a former victim of the Captain's, Ruth Parkins, and her baby, and his falseness to the blacksmith is further demonstrated when he purloins little Harry Strong. But Nemesis is on the villain's track, for the distraught father happens upon Lucas Marler, who confesses that he has only been Leo's tool and catspaw, and that he can lead him to where the child has been taken. Hastening to Leo's house, Harry is espied in a cellar, and the pair gain admittance, but they are discovered and overpowered, and in the struggle Marler is killed, but ere his death he declares Kate's innocence. Ruth Parkins effects Harry's escape, and he is taken to his mother, but the severe treatment has affected the boy, and he lies in a precarious condition. When John Strong eventually gets free he appears weakened by privation at his boy's bedside with the terrible intention of taking the lad's life before avenging the wrong done by Captain Leo, but the sight of the suffering lad and his incoherent muttering for his father softens the man's heart, and as the child's mother enters the next moment the affecting sight is witnessed of husband and wife reunited over the bedside of their child. Now comes the climax of the story. Captain Leo is "starred" to appear as a champion wrestler at the Empire Music Hall, and outside the theatre he is confronted by John Strong, who would take summary justice on his hated enemy if not restrained by others present. Pointing to the playbill Leo exclaims, "Then meet me there," and Strong retorts, "I shall be there, Captain Leo. I shall be there." But John Strong's appearance on the stage is as a masked "unknown," and after an even bout Leo demands to know his opponent's identity, and snatches the mask from his face. It is now war to the death between the pair, and in a brief space John Strong throws his opponent, and Leo's neck is broken. The piece was followed throughout with intense interest by the packed audience present on Monday night, who bestowed frequent and unstinted applause on the play and its interpreters. Messrs Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is well balanced and capable, and the mounting and stage effects leave nothing to be desired. As John Strong Mr Sam Livesey possesses the necessary physical attributes, and plays very powerfully. Mr Joseph Carter makes an extremely vindictive Captain Leo, who quickly becomes an object of particular aversion to the "gods." Miss Ethel Kay plays with earnestness and sincerity as Kate Strong, and Miss Maggie Edwards makes a sympathetic Ruth Parkins. Mr Thos. E. Marshall submits an exceedingly clever character study as Jeremiah Parkins, and the tinker's wife, Sal Parkins, as played by Mrs T. C. Livesey, is a performance rendered very prominent by its fine characterisation. Mr Frank Harrison makes the most of his opportunities as Lucas Marler, and St. John Harman is appropriately played by Mr George Edwards. Billy Twig is a typical country bumpkin as portrayed by Mr George V. Campbell, and he is ably assisted in the fun-making by Miss Edith Giddens, very bright and sprightly as Martha Mopps. A special feature is the acting of Little Christobel as Harry Strong, a lengthy child's part, and played with entire credit. Minor parts are all carefully played.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Aug. 1, "THE TWO ORPHANS."

Redecorated and re-upholstered, Mr Purcell's Stoke Newington theatre presented a very bright and smart appearance on Monday last, when it reopened its doors after a four weeks' recess with Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company, including Mr Henry Neville, in The Two Orphans. Needless to say, Mr Neville's fine performance of his original character, Pierre, held the attention of the audience throughout, and he was easily successful in gaining for the poor cripple the fullest sympathy. As the bullying brother of Pierre, Jacques, Mr L. Cory Thomas is duly truculent and boisterous; and a smooth and easy performance of the Chevalier De Vaudray comes from Mr William Devereux. Miss Evelyn Weeden infuses a considerable amount of pathos into her rendering of the part of Louise, the blind girl, and her embodiment may be considered in every way a successful one; whilst no less deserving of praise is the Henriette of Miss May Congdon, which is a very charming and natural performance. A tender and womanly Comtesse De Liniere is found in Miss Lily Bertram; and Miss Emma Victor ably presents the repellant characteristics of La Frochard. From the part of Picard Mr F. G. Thurstans contrives to extract a good deal of humour, and his performance is a very popular one. Mr William Mallalieu is particularly good as the Doctor; and a special word of praise is due to the Marianne of Miss Barbara Gott and the Comte De Linière of Mr T. W. Rawson. Other parts are satisfactorily filled by Messrs Ernest Cox, E. St. Clair, John Mason, Reginald Walters, and J. W. Leighton; and Misses Adie Boyne, Cahill, Florence Wix, and Kitty Doyle. For the two concluding nights of the engagement The Ticket-of-Leave Man, with Mr Henry Neville in his original part of Bob Brierly, is the attraction.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Pantomimical farce, entitled "HIS MAJESTY'S GUESTS."

Mr Fred Karno's company in this bustling farcical piece has supplied abundance of diversion for Holloway audiences this week. The plot is of quite secondary importance, as it is only a vehicle for the introduction of a series of amusing incidents. The principal figure is Sergeant Lightning, whose sayings and doings evoke the heartiest merriment. This part is played by Mr Dan Rolyat, and he ably bears the responsibilities of his position. Disguised as a salesman in Miffin's Emporium the Sergeant has ample scope for his highly humorous oddities. His burlesque of the ways and methods of the young man behind the counter is extremely funny, more particularly his dealings with the lady customers. The sergeant quickly becomes a favourite, and his appearance on the stage is always very welcome. Indeed, such a genuinely comical representative of law and order is seldom encountered either on or off the boards; and it is a source of delight to renew the sergeant's acquaintance. Mr Andrew Higginson gives a capital embodiment of Lord Easem, alias Flash Jack, and he sings with good effect. Miss Leonora Castrelle is capital as Lady Maud Easem, alias Maud, the shoplifter, and her success is unmistakable. Miss Melville is natural and pleasing as Miss Madley; and Miss Edith Ager does well in the subordinate rôle of Dolly Miffin. Mr Chas. Usher makes good use of his opportunities as Mr Miffin, the general provider, and Mr Harry Howe is a brisk and bustling Selina, his acrobatic performance being quite a feature of the show. Assistance also comes from Mr Victor Thomas as Bunker, Mr Miffin's lively page, and Mr Gus Le Clerc as Mr Minks heartily co-operates. Mr R. H. Kitchen as Fritz, doorkeeper of the Emporium, plays the part well. In the second act the Grecian Comedy Quintet sing some part songs, and are rewarded by loud applause. The piece is excellently mounted, and has proved an admirable holiday programme.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Drama, by Max Goldberg, entitled "THE RICH AND POOR OF LONDON."

The astute and enterprising proprietors of Brixton's popular theatre have secured Mr John F. Preston and Patrick E. Doherty's powerful company in the above melodrama as their reopening attraction. On Monday, in spite of the very hot weather, a large audience assembled to enjoy the many exciting and admirably invented situations in The Rich and Poor of London. The company engaged is all that can be desired. As Doctor Leonard Morton, of Bartholomew's, Mr Arthur Hillier is successful, and loses no opportunity for displaying his abilities. As the unscrupulous Mark Stanley Mr Andrew Money obtains the execrations of the audience. The rôle of Gussie Lamb receives careful treatment at the hands of Mr Sidney C. Cranston. The part of Matthew Grabbam is in the capable hands of Mr Harry Tilbury. As Bill Binks, of Billingsgate, Mr Herbert Woodin submits a capital character sketch. Mr F. Damer makes the most of his opportunities as the Earl of Ravenswood. Commendation is due to Mr Jay Laurier for his extremely clever enactment of Spider Jack. Miss Dora Dench as May Braithwaite is excellent, and Miss Belle Tilbury displays conspicuous talent as Ruby Redgrave. Miss Marie Ramez is seen to advantage as Auntie Scrimp; and Polly Philpot is admirably played by Miss Sybil Viney. As the decrepit Dan Drake Mr Sidney Dench merits high eulogy. The smaller rôles are in excellent hands, and the production reflects credit on all concerned.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Domestic Drama, by Frank M. Thorne, entitled "HER ONE GREAT SIN."

Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr J. Leicester Jackson's company is playing the interesting domestic drama entitled Her One Great Sin at the Dalston Theatre this week. Each part in the drama is admirably sustained. Mr Sam Arthur as Reuben Warhurst, the village carpenter, who eventually becomes owner of Hazelden Grange, is a very popular character. Miss Blanche St. Albans is Grace Warhurst, the faithless wife of this long-suffering man, but so effective is her acting after the scene in the second act, where she is supposed to be struck blind during a thunderstorm, and while taking a hasty glance at the child from which she has been parted, that she succeeds in fully securing the sympathy of the audience. Miss Maudie Lambert plays the part of Gracey Warhurst's little daughter, and Miss Nellie Lambert puts a good deal of vivacity into her rendering of the character of Nancy Winpenny, a maidservant in the employ of the Warhurst family. Mr Fred Hodson shares with Miss Lambert the pleasure of supplying the humorous element in the play. Mr Norton Shaw is a distinctly formal solicitor, Mr Thomas Stacey a typical country landlord, and Mr C. Dale-Pollard a constable with a heart more tender than his rigid uniform would lead one to suppose it possible for him to possess. Miss Phillis Dalmian makes up well as a boy—Charlie, a London flower-seller. These are among the good characters in the drama. Chief among the bad ones is the spendthrift squire, Arnold Thornhill, a character vividly portrayed by Mr J. Leicester Jackson. Mr Chas. E. Lambert, as Dan Hundle, a tinker; Mr Harold B. Ford as Jack, his son; and Miss Louie Walton as Bet Hundle make up the shady set in the cast, and special praise must be accorded Miss Louie Walton for a decidedly careful study of her part. Her representation of the tinker's wife forms quite a typical cruel old woman of the stage. Mr Fred Hodson is stage-manager.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH-END.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Drama, entitled
"THE CHRISTIAN."

This pretty little theatre, after being closed for the summer recess and decoration, reopened on Monday evening with Mr Wentworth Croke's No. 1 company in the drama entitled The Christian. The characters were entrusted to competent hands, and the piece met with a hearty reception. Mr Harry Scott, who portrayed the Hon. John Storm, displayed fine elocutionary powers. Parson Quayle had a conscientious impersonator in Mr Charles Hill. Mr Stanley Radcliffe played well as Father Lamplugh; Archdeacon Wealthy was acceptably depicted by Mr Charles E. Dering; Mr Charles B. Bedell presented with commendable care and vigour the characteristics of the villain, Lord Robert Ure; Mr Jackson Willcox meritoriously played Horatio Drake; Mr Wilfred Blumberg deserves praise as Brother Paul; Miss Lily Crammonde did all that was required as Polly Love; Miss Esther Ohlson was well placed as Betty; Miss Clara Nicholls submitted an excellent version of Mrs Callender; Lettie, Miss Bella Moody; Liza, Miss Edith Huntley; and Aggie Jones, Miss May Weir, were amusingly artistic in their several characters, whilst Miss Grace Chalmers presented an excellent picture of Glory Quayle, and the lavish applause testified to the fact that she had made a palpable hit. Mr Duncan Young, who has now the sole management of the house, deserves congratulation on his first venture.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON.

"KITTY GREY."

Holiday audiences have appreciated at the full the melodious music and witty lines of Kitty Grey. Mr C. St. John Denton has got together a good all-round company, foremost amongst whom may be counted Miss Hilda Guiver, who, in the name-part, acquitted herself well. Mr Leslie Harris, too, as Lord Plantagenet won a high place in the regard of the audience, uttering his many jokelets in a delightfully high-pitched voice, to a running accompaniment of laughter. Mr Robert Whyte, jun., was seen to advantage as the amorous King of Illyria; while Mr Robert Selby as the peccant husband, Sir John Binfield, did well. Miss Lily Helene as Mrs Binfield bewitched her audience with her demure manner, and set about the business of being gay with a charming air. Miss Emily Stevens as Mrs Bright deserved well of everybody; while Miss Nancie Wood as Sadie De Poulson did what little she had to do excellently. The minor parts were well sustained, and the chorus and orchestra, under the direction of Mr Albert Vernon, performed their duties efficiently.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE TEMPTRESS."

This theatre, which has been closed for a short summer recess, reopened on Monday with The Temptress, a powerful drama, which, skilfully handled as it was by the members of Messrs Gordyn and Gelling's company, was well calculated to appeal to a Bank Holiday audience. Miss Grace E. Leslie was admirably suited in the title-rôle, and gave a telling representation of the part, her reserved manner and dignified carriage aiding a somewhat unconventional rendering of a conventional stage-type. Miss Vashti Wynne won considerable sympathy for Marion Fordyce, the banker's daughter and heiress, and therefore mark for the schemes of Lucas Denbeigh, an adventurer. Of this last-named character a most valuable impersonation was submitted by Mr F. D. Daviss, under whose clever handling Denbeigh appeared not to be altogether so black as he was painted, his saving grace being the evident strength and sincerity of his love for Marion. Denbeigh's debate as to whether he was right in forcing Marion to marry him, and his heartrending despair on finding her for ever lost to him, were real to the point of conviction. Mr George Dalper was a vigorous and earnest representative of Philip Welford, and made a good figure in his soldier's uniform, several allusions to which were received with rounds of applause by the military portion of the audience. Miss Ada Ryder did well as Madge Denbeigh, giving a pathetic and convincing portrayal of this poor woman who has lost her wits under her husband's ill-treatment. Mr Henry Hatchman was excellent as Pedro Gonzalez. The comic element was well to the fore, the efforts of Miss Mattie Everett as Rhoda Brown and of Messrs Herbert Williams, Will Gelling, and Johnny Chippendale being responsible for much laughter. The principals were supported by a capable cast, too long for individual mention, and the play was mounted and staged with an unusual degree of lavishness and taste.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Comedy, in Four Acts, by Thomas Raceward, entitled
"SUNDAY."

This virile, wholesome, and effective play was produced at the Royal County Theatre on Bank Holiday evening before an appreciative audience. The play is being toured by Mr Louis Calvert and Mr Herbert Ross, by special arrangement with Mr Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson, and the company which opened the tour at Kingston is a thoroughly capable one all round, the play receiving ample justice at their hands. Miss Dorothea Desmond fills the title-rôle with distinction, and Mr Herbert Ross appears as Colonel Brinthorpe, a part that is admirably suited to him. Mr Charles Langton gives great satisfaction in the part of Arthur Brinthorpe. Good work is also done by Mr Arthur Willoughby as Tom Oxley, by Mr Henry Stevenson as Towzer, by Mr Alfred Phillips as Lively, by Mr Arthur Somers as Jackey, by Miss Maud Henderson as Mrs Naresby, and by Miss Dorothy Gordon as the Nun. The play, which was produced under the direction of the author, was admirably staged in point of scenery and effects.

A "FLYING MATINEE" was given at the Pier Pavilion, Eastbourne, under the direction of Mr H. Bernhardt, on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Connie Ediss was received with very marked favour, and, after singing several songs in her own humorous manner, she appeared in the new rôle of a story-teller, and her anecdotes met with as much success as her singing. Mr Louis W. Bradfield worked loyally and delighted the audience with a selection from his successes, and six charming ladies gracefully assisted in the choruses. The graceful and delicate work of Miss Valerie Salberg and Miss Marguerite Lennox was worthily recognised.

"A VICTIM OF VILLAINY."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Howe, Produced at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, on Monday, Aug. 1.

Frank Manton	Mr WALTER HOWE
Stephen Cavanagh	Mr FRANK LISTER
Tom Leckie	Mr ARTHUR STAPLES
Arthur Lennox, M.D.	Mr JOHN WYBRETT
Walter Lennox	Mr LEONARD HOWE
Dick Carson	Mr EDWARD FIELDER
Patrick Maloney	Mr FRED GROVE
Sam Blobbsby	Mr HOWARD STEPHENS
John Davis	Mr ALFRED REID
Arthur Griffiths	Mr CHARLES LEIGHTON
Sidney Downham	Mr CONWAY FORBES
Jim Cripps	Mr CECIL ALLPRESS
Robert Johnson	Mr ALBERT CREMER
Mary Manton	Miss EILEEN CONCANEN
Alice Cavanagh	Miss HELENA WALBRAN
Mrs Leckie	Miss SOPHIE SHENTON
Eric	Miss MAY HONING
Vera Dalmond	Miss NITA BARTON
Maria Blobbsby	Miss BLANCHE NICHOLLS
Jane	Miss MARJORIE CARROL

Mr Walter Howe's "domestic drama" A Victim of Villainy, which has been played to decidedly appreciative audiences during the week at the popular and handsome Borough Theatre, Stratford, is carefully constructed, and in parts particularly well written, containing plenty of sensational incidents and an abundance of comedy relief, and is certain to command success in suburban playhouses and "on the road."

The "victim of villainy" is a young marine engineer, Frank Manton, whose wife, Mary, wrongly imagines herself neglected, and also fancies her husband is on too familiar terms with a lively young music hall artiste, Vera Dalmond, who lodges in the same house. Mary herself listens to the voice of the tempter in the person of the scoundrelly Stephen Cavanagh, a partner in the firm in which Frank is employed, and notwithstanding the good advice of her kind old landlady, Mrs Leckie, after a little persuasion from Stephen decides to desert her husband and her only child. Not satisfied with stealing Manton's wife, Cavanagh also purloins a model of a submarine boat on which Frank has been long employed, and passing it off as his own invention, patents it and sells it to the government. The cab in which the guilty pair depart breaks down, and the repentant wife hurries home again, but as she has written a confession and farewell to her husband he casts her off, taking the child with him. He is discharged from his employment, and in the second act we see father and son penniless and hungry, but the kind-hearted landlady manages to smuggle the youngster into the presence of his mother. Cavanagh had some years previously committed a murder in America, for which an innocent man had been condemned to death, and his son Walter Lennox has at last some clue as to whom the guilty person really is. Walter visits Cavanagh, for whose wife he had years before entertained some affection, and who had only married that villain in order to save her brother, Dick Carson, who is in his power, from disgrace; and Stephen determines to get him out of the way as quickly as possible. He gets Carson, who can closely imitate his sister's handwriting, to write a letter purporting to come from her, making an appointment with Walter in a deserted house. Alice Cavanagh discovers the plot, and though locked in a room, manages to escape, and endeavours to find some one to take a note to warn Walter of his impending danger. Frank Manton offers to take the letter, but he arrives too late, for Cavanagh has shot Walter, and Manton is, of course, accused of the crime and taken prisoner. Alice Cavanagh, aware of his innocence, would save him, but her husband threatens to hand her brother over to justice if she reveals who the murderer is. Frank is cast into prison, and whilst awaiting his trial a reconciliation is effected with his wife, a visit being paid him by Cavanagh disguised as a clergyman. This unscrupulous individual, although his identity is eventually disclosed, persuades Frank to accept a large sum of money, telling him it is the only way to save his wife and child; but in the last act Frank's innocence is proved, and retribution overtakes the evil-doers.

The drama, played by Messrs John A. Atkin and Walter Howe's really first-class company, was throughout admirably enacted, an outstanding performance being the easy and convincing portrayal of the arduous part of Stephen Cavanagh by that experienced actor Mr Frank Lister, who is to be warmly congratulated upon a decidedly meritorious and finished piece of work. The author, Mr Walter Howe, effectively portrayed the hero Frank Manton, being especially praiseworthy in the prison scene and in the conclusion of the first act; and Arthur Lennox, M.D., and Walter Lennox were satisfactorily undertaken by Messrs John Wybrett and Leonard Howe; Dick Carson, Alice Cavanagh's erring brother, being quietly but convincingly delineated by Mr Edward Fielder. Alice Cavanagh, the unhappy wife of the villain, had a realistic and powerful portrayal from Miss Helena Walbran, an actress of undoubted talent, whose performance throughout was most convincing; Miss Eileen Concanen contributed a natural, careful, and in all respects praiseworthy performance of Mary Manton; the kind-hearted landlady, Mrs Leckie, was amusingly and easily embodied by Miss Sophie Shenton; and Miss Nita Barton made a decidedly favourable impression as the "painted hussy," Vera Dalmond, her song in the first act, "Up in the gallery," particularly pleasing. Prominent in the many comic scenes also was Mr Arthur Staples as Tom Leckie, the nephew of the indulgent landlady, who is apparently more successful as a comic singer outside the Metropolitan Music Hall than he is in, and who scored most effectively in his scene with Cavanagh. The numerous other rôles were all capably undertaken, and the drama, which was played with commendable smoothness, was excellently mounted.

GREENWICH THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Indian Play, entitled
"WEP-TON-NO-MAH."

Miss Go-Won-Go-Mohawk and company in the Indian drama, Wep-Ton-No-Mah supply the holiday attraction here. Miss Go-Won-Go-Mohawk as the Indian mail-carrier is a great favourite with the audience, who follow her adventures with evident delight. This lady is an excellent artist, and her company supports her loyally, especially Mr C. W. Charles as Colonel Stockton, Mr George Courtenay as Captain Franklin, Mr George De La Claire as Manuel Lopez, and Mr Guy D. Hackney as Sam White. Mr Dan Ryan is excellent as Garry Cullen, and the numerous smaller parts are well acted. Miss Minnie Goepel is a delightfully dainty Nelly, and Miss Jessie Hart is a most amusing Matilda. The two horses and the dog do credit to their trainer, and songs and dances are introduced by Miss Minnie Goepel, Miss Jessie Hart, Mr Hackney, and Mr Dan Ryan.

A CHAT WITH MR. JESSE WILLIAMS.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

We believe it was Wordsworth who said that books were a substantial world. The saying came to our mind the other evening while chatting with Mr Jesse Williams, the well-known and experienced musical director and composer, for it occurred to us that were Mr Williams to write a book on his life, he would have a very substantial world to talk about. However, if he should at some future date join the ranks of autobiographers, we hope that his literary efforts will lose nothing by anticipation and the undignified process of compressing his "world" into a column or so of The Era.

As a youngster Mr Williams sang in the chorus of the Benchor's Chapel in Lincoln's-inn Fields, and later at the Brompton Oratory and at Moorfields Chapel. After his voice broke he entered the Academy of Music and studied the pianoforte, violin, and harmony, and played at most of the great festivals of the period, including those held at Birmingham, Sheffield, Manchester, and Winchester. He also appeared in a festival at Exeter Hall under Sir Michael Costa. Then followed engagements for the orchestras of the Adelphi and other London theatres, and with Mr Blagrove in the principal concerts arranged by that gentleman. Later he had enjoyable trips in the P. and O. steamers running to Malta, Gibralter and Alexandria, and, returning to this country, he performed with the Moore and Burgess minstrels on their first appearance in London, and remained with them for several years, writing a great many of their most popular songs and arranging the music. He was next seen at the Canterbury Music Hall under Mr Holland's management, his contract being to form a minstrel troupe and to write all the necessary music. After running the combination there successfully for fourteen weeks, he was appointed conductor of the orchestra, and while in that capacity he wrote "The four-leaved shamrock" for Nellie Power, as well as a number of popular ballads for Fred Evans and D'Auban. He was also the author of "All amongst the hay," sung by J. H. Milburn; "The Lancashire lads" sung by George Leybourne; "Come, along, do," sung by Fred French; "Good Evening" (Harry Sydney); and the music for Majilton's La Trois Diables. On Mr Holland taking over the North Woolwich Gardens, Mr Williams acted as conductor, and when the same manager held the Spanish bull-fight at the Agricultural Hall Mr Williams controlled a band of eighty performers. Eventually he became manager of the Canterbury under, and until it was closed by, Mr Holland, but when Mr Villiers reopened it Mr Williams was again in his old place as musical director. In 1871 he went to America, remaining there altogether some twenty-eight years. He started with Newcombe and Arlington's minstrel troupe at Fox's Theatre of Varieties, Philadelphia—the largest establishment of the kind at that time in the States. Afterwards he was engaged with Mrs Oates' comic opera company, that lady retaining his services for seven years, during the last three of which he combined the duties of musical director with those of stage-manager. Then back to New York in musical burlesque with Sam Colville, opening at the Fourteenth-street Theatre, and subsequently touring throughout America. Returning to the United States capital he performed good work with M'Call's opera company at the Bijou Theatre, where Miss Lilian Russell made her first appearance in comic opera. M'Call moved him to the Casino, New York, after leaving which he joined Mr Aronson, under whose banner he served for seven years, producing operas such as Prince Methusalem, Merry War, Gypsy Baron, and Erminie. He conducted the last named for two years and two weeks, and, in addition, produced nearly all of the Gilbert and Sullivan pieces. Going from there to open the Madison-square Gardens, he was assisted by Strauss, who came over from Vienna with an orchestra of fifty, the entertainment consisting of two concerted parts by the eminent Austrian composer and a couple of ballets. Mr D'Oyly Carte and his company also appeared with The Gondoliers, which ran for thirteen weeks, Mr Williams conducting all the time. When the Garden Theatre was opened in the same building Mr Williams was reappointed as musical director, and had the pleasure of accompanying all the great European stars, including Madame Jane Hading and Madame Sarah Bernhardt. Chicago was the next point to which he was called, and there he conducted at Mr William Henderson's theatre and wrote the first few ballets. Quitting Chicago, his services were requisitioned by Messrs Abbey and Grau for the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, where he conducted during Sir Henry Irving's appearances. This appointment was succeeded by his managership of Koster and Bial's variety theatre in Twenty-third-street, and by a season's tour with Miss Anna Held. The following year Albert Chevalier paid a visit to the States and Mr Charles Frohman engaged Mr Williams as conductor for the famous coster comedian's recitals. The Manhattan Theatre was the next to profit by Mr Williams's clever work, for while in that house he wrote, composed, and produced a number of musical pieces, amongst them being an opera entitled Mignonette. Returning to England it was not long before his activities were again aroused, for he joined the Bandmann Opera Company on their travels to Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria, Ceylon, Madras, Calcutta, and Bombay, producing in the aggegate twenty-four pieces of the San Toy, La Cigale, and Gentleman Joe type. Again back in homeland, he was engaged as conductor of the orchestra at the Canterbury, an appointment he resigned quite recently after a two years' excellent record.

Mr Williams' professional career has certainly not been uneventful, and he is able to recall a few amusing reminiscences. One concerns a visit with Mrs Oates' opera company to Indianopolis. On the opening night The Grand Duchess was announced to be the attraction. Mr Williams set the music out and gave the members of the orchestra time to look at it, while he himself played a prelude on the piano to start off with. In a few minutes the instrumentalists came to the conclusion that they could not play that kind of work, and the leader of the orchestra getting up and turning round to his men said:—"I make a motion we don't tackle it." The proposal was carried nem. con., and they packed up their instruments and calmly walked out, Mr Williams being left to perform the music of the opera on the piano.

"LA SCALA" AT EARL'S-COURT.

The programme of the entertainment in the pretty La Scala Theatre at the Italian Exhibition has been greatly strengthened by the addition of a "mirthful ventriloquial and illusory duologue" entitled A Chinee Hullabaloomon; or, the Yellow Peril, in which Professor Hercat and Miss Florrie Fairfax appear with great success. The scene is the kitchen of a seaside lodging-house kept by Mrs Grabbe, the widow of a custom house officer, who has her apartments empty. Suddenly and unexpectedly she lets them to a "honeymoon couple," who require refreshments. It is Thursday afternoon, all the shops in the town are "early closed," and Mrs Grabbe is much exercised as to how she shall get the necessary articles for the repast of her visitors. Her servant is a Chinaman, one Li Sin, who is anxious to marry Mrs Grabbe. He is a clever ventriloquist; and, by the aid of his art, he makes the landlady believe that an itinerant vendor of fish is outside calling his wares. Mrs Grabbe goes out to buy some from him, but finds nobody, and, returning to her kitchen, detects the imposture which has been practised upon her by Li Sin, who exults in the success of his hoax. However, he promises to atone by providing all the necessary material on the condition that she becomes his fiancée. First of all, he waves an umbrella in the air, and suddenly several mackerel float in under the parapluie. He then proceeds to extrude egg after egg from his mouth; and, to prove that they are real eggs, he breaks them into a saucepan, preparatory to making out of them a "Welsh rabbit." The materials catch fire, and the lid of the saucepan is put on to extinguish the flames. When it is raised, Li Sin pulls out a rabbit all alive and kicking. There remains only sugar, milk, and hot coffee to be found. Li Sin produces all these, by his magic, from different domestic articles; and Mrs Grabbe's gratification is complete. She is about to take up the tea to her lodgers, when Li Sin reminds her of her promise to marry him. She refuses to do so, and in the struggle which follows the tray is upset, and the carefully prepared meal is thrown on the ground and spilt. So Mrs Grabbe escapes her "yellow peril" at the expense of her "honeymoon couple." The sketch, brightly embellished with Hercat's marvellous illusionary items, goes with accompaniments of laughter and applause at La Scala, and is immensely admired and enjoyed by the crowds which the present fine weather is attracting to the Italian Exhibition. Professor Hercat, apart from his skill as a ventriloquist and prestidigitateur, is very amusing as the smooth and oily Oriental; and Miss Florrie Fairfax as the landlady acts with bright and piquant animation. The variety programme is composed of a number of brief, but pleasing, contributions, the company working very hard, as the entertainment is continuous from 2·30 to 10·35. Miss Polly Bellina is a lively serio and a smart dancer; Mr Tom Harvey is energetic and eccentric both as an Irishman, with a song about "Mulligan's Motor Car," and as an East-end Jew; Mr Fred Newland sings serious and sentimental songs with a steady flow of feeling, which evidently appeals to his hearers; Miss Florrie Fairfax's imitations of Vesta Tilley, Gus Elen, R. G. Knowles, and Marie Lloyd are quite clever; Miss Bessie Norris is a characteristic vocalist and an accomplished dancer; Mdlle. Iris is firm "on the points," and is skilled in the performance of the usual items of an acrobatic pas seul. The Franco Brothers are two dwarfs who do some well-arranged conjuring tricks; Miss Maeie Stewart is a pleasing comedienne; Paulin and Roosey are decidedly funny; Raffin's performing monkeys do their work with marvellous resemblance to the human artist, whom they unconsciously imitate; Miss Blanche Vincent excels both as comedienne and dancer; the Harveys supply a clever acrobatic act; Kittie Bell's claim to be a "queen of Terpsichorean art" is well founded; Les Zeleys are applauded in their Continental comic act; and Lennard and White are effective as speciality artistes. The band of La Scala contributes some acceptable selections, and the entertainment is diversified by various "extra turns" and by the appearances of one or two "deputies." Mr George Ashton, the "King's Caterer," of Bond-street, who is "running the show" at La Scala, may be congratulated on the variety and number of the "turns" which constitute the programme.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

SPECIAL TO THE ERA.

MR HARRY POWELL has been appointed property master at the Apollo Theatre.

MR S. J. KESSELL has sufficiently recovered from his recent accident to be able to resume his duties as master carpenter for Mr Fred Terry's company. Mr Kessell will go on tour with Mr Terry.

THE Shaftesbury Theatre staff go for their annual outing to Burnham-on-Crouch on Sunday, and the Crown Theatre, Peckham, staff go to Margate. Mr Cecil Paget, the popular manager of the Peckham Theatre, will preside at the dinner to be given in the Crown Hotel, Margate.

AT a meeting of the committee of the Heads of Departments Association on Thursday several grants to members from the benevolent fund of £2 and £3 were sanctioned.

THE half-yearly financial statement of the No. 1 branch of the N.U.T.S.E. just issued shows an income for the half year of £240 14s. 3d. The payments, including sick and funeral benefits and benevolent grants, were £33. The gross balance in the several funds was £859 11s. 11½d.

A MEETING of theatrical employees will be held on Sunday evening in the Royal Standard, Fleming-street, E.

MR J. ALGER, who has filled the office of chief fireman at Collins's for the last ten years, has sailed for Australia, the voyage being recommended by his doctor. Before his departure he was presented by the staff with a testimonial.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

THE Gorleston Pier Company, Limited (81,650), was registered on July 25 with a capital of £40 000 in £1 shares. The object is to acquire the undertaking authorised or constituted by the Gorleston Pier Order, 1904, to adopt an agreement with T. W. Warren, J. Durrant, and W. B. Cockill, and to carry on the business of pier proprietors, licensed victuallers, owners of tramways, pavilions, ball rooms, kiosks, and shelters, club proprietors, &c., in the counties of Norfolk and Suffolk. Minimum cash subscription, 10 per cent. of the shares offered to the public. The first directors are J. Durrant, J.P., W. H. Palmer, J.P., L. Buckland, C. U. Warren, W. F. Crabtree, A. H. Johnson, C. N. Brown, F. Sparkett, A. Sayer, W. J. Cockill, and T. W. Warren. Qualification, £100. Remuneration as fixed by the company.

COSTUME UNDER LOUIS QUATORZE.

"In the days of Louis XIV.," says the author of "Racine and the French Classical Drama," "people were, to say the least, as familiar with the manners and customs of the ancients as they are in our times, and they paid more attention to the business of the stage than they have ever done since. Instead of aiming, as the natural school does, at scenic illusion, at individual truth, in dress, scenery, and decoration, or what is called local colouring, which is often as far from the reality as the wigs and hoops of Versailles, the founders of the classical drama sought only by the outward appearance of an actor to awaken in the minds of the audience a certain ideal of the moral truth of the type or personage he was called upon to represent. To a certain degree the dresses and decorations of past times were allegorical; as, for example, when at the opera it was necessary to figure the winds, they came forward each holding a little pair of bellows in his hand; and when, another time, wishing to personify the earth, a man was attired in a curiously-cut garment, variegated and painted to look like a map, on the heart having inscribed "Gallia," in gigantic characters, on one leg "Italia," and on the body "Germania."

"In the days of Louis XIV. the costume was the same both in tragedy and comedy. It consisted of a full dress coat, three-cornered hat and plume, flowing wig, white gloves, short breeches, silk stockings, and red-heeled shoes. Warriors and heroic characters wore over all this a cuirass. This kind of costume, worn only in private life by persons of the highest rank and importance, was intended to invest those who assumed it on the stage with the outward marks of dignity and distinction; but the alterations made by succeeding fashions contributed to bring it into disrepute. In the eighteenth century powder was adopted, but without any diminution in the length or volume of the peruke. The place of the cuirass was supplied by stays well laced, and by scarfs worn as shoulder-belts. Men as well as women laid claim to slightness of waist. The former wore false hips (hanches), or pads of horse hair, that enlarged them by half-a-foot on each side, and the latter were imprisoned in hoops of immoderate dimensions. The dresses of the actresses, however, were invariably of the most magnificent description. It was not rare to find them costing seven or eight hundred louis d'or, and no duchess at the Louvre could boast of more splendid toilettes than the heroines of the Théâtre Français. Their costume, though modelled generally upon that of the Court, was much richer and more ample; their trains were longer, their hanging sleeves wider, their gold embroidery more massive, and the plumes upon their heads more numerous. But, except the splendour visible in the costumes of the actors, everything else was upon a scale of poverty and meanness wholly at variance with our ideas of theatrical pomp; and certainly no dramatist of the present day would consent to see the humblest of his pieces brought out in the condition which satisfied Corneille, Racine, or Molière. The principal light was suspended over the centre of the stage, whether the decoration pictured a forest, a street, or a Grecian Temple. A moonlight serenade or an invocation to the sun both equally took place beneath a sweating circle of foul-smelling tallow candles grouped together in a miserable chandelier—for wax lights were not used even at the opera until during the Regency, and then their introduction was owing only to an act of liberality on the part of the famous financier, Law. The stalls of the time were but rows of benches ranged on each side of the wings of the proscenium, where the fops of the day appointed to meet one another of an evening. The insolent Marquis interrupting by his noisy arrival the already advanced tirade—the youthful libertine coquetting with the fairer portion of the dramatis personæ—seemed by their demeanour to set at defiance the decently behaved citizens of the pit, who sometimes retaliated by vigorous manifestations of displeasure. 'All the world was on the stage,' writes Madame de Sévigné, speaking of a representation of Bajazet, 'the Marquis de Villerol in a ball dress; the Count de Guiche, girded and belted like his wit; all the rest like so many vagabonds.' When a piece was very attractive, sentinels were posted at the opening of the wings to keep back the crowd; and the difficulty of passing to and fro not unfrequently gave rise to incidents of a burlesque nature. At the first representation of Semiramis the press was so strong just in front of the tomb, at the moment when Ninus should appear, that the sentinel was forced to cry out with all his lungs, 'Make way for the Ghost, gentlemen, if you please; make way for the Ghost!'

"The first reformer of theatrical costumes was Lekain; but he was fully aware of the extreme precaution that was required in introducing into the ideal drama any attempt at scenic illusion. 'Let us make use of the picturesque with discretion and care.' The alteration of the costume in the Théâtre Français was far from being the work of a day. Half a century and the authority of the most eminent names were scarcely sufficient to subdue the influence of routine. Lekain and Mdlle. Clairon began the reform; and the former, even while casting off the false hips in the part of Tancrède, and substituting in Gengis-khan a real tiger-skin to a coat of striped silk, did not dare banish the powdered wig and curls. In truth it was an arduous undertaking for an actor to condemn the usage of that odorous dust which whitened the heads of some fifteen hundred judges before whom he stood. The innovation upon which Gengis-khan and Orosmane had not ventured was, however, accomplished, and that cleverly enough, by a second-rate singer. This individual, whose name even has not reached us, playing one night the part of Hercules, presented himself with a mass of black entangled locks upon his head, worthy of the savage inhabitant of some Hyrcanian forest; but, whilst in one hand he bore the formidable club, the other was armed with an irreproachably powdered peruke, white as snow, and his uncertain attitude clearly demonstrated that he was ready to return to the former fashion if such was the pleasure of the audience. A universal murmur of approbation apprised him that he had gained his point. Assuming quickly an heroic posture, he flings far from him the antiquated head-dress, and a shout of applause greets the rising in the air of the grey cloud which the wig shakes from it in its fall. From that hour everything became possible. Larive had his hair cut and curled à la Titus; Talma, aided by the counsels of his friend David, the painter, copied history exactly both in the form and quality of the vestments worn by the ancients; and under his direction the severe woollen toga replaced in all Roman parts the splendid stuffs in which former actors had delighted to attire themselves."

The author of the book was once present at a representation of Andromaque, in the company of a lady who was one of the most refined judges of French literature. When Mdlle. Rachel, who enacted the part of Hermione, came to those lines which in the second act open her first scene with Oreste:—

Le croirai-je, Seigneur, qu'un reste de tendresse
Vous fasse ici chercher une triste Princesse?
Ou, ne dois-je imputer qu'à votre seul devoir,
L'heureux empressement qui vous porte à me voir?

"Do you not feel with me," exclaimed the lady "the want of the court-dress and the fan? Those are the words in which Marie-Thérèse of Spain might have delighted to greet her royal and faithless spouse, had he deigned to confer on her some special mark of attention after weeks passed in devising fresh pleasures for the Montespan; but the rustle of her brocade train upon the floor, and the courtly movement of her fan, these are wanting—Oh! more than all, the fan!—the coup d'éventail!" pursued the lady—"Racine's heroines are nothing without that."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Henry Irving's plans for the remainder of the two years during which he intends to continue on the stage include a tour of Great Britain and Ireland; and he has arranged for a final visit to America previous to his retirement in 1906. There is every hope that the eminent actor will be seen, for one season at any rate, in town. Sir Henry is now resting at Sheringham, near Cromer.

The sums spent yearly in altering and redecorating the fashionable places of amusement in the West-End are very large. At the Lyric Theatre Messrs Greet and Englebach are incurring an expenditure of over £10,000. The improvements completed at Daly's Theatre this year cost Mr George Edwardes upwards of £14,000; Mr Tree's improvements at His Majesty's, finished this spring, involved an outlay of over £6,000; and the directors of Drury-lane will probably spend £12,000 on their theatre between the present date and December.

Miss Norma Whalley, the well-known musical comedy actress, was quietly married on Tuesday last at St. James's Church, Piccadilly, to Mr Edward Percival Clarke, son of Sir Edward Clarke, K.C. There were no bridesmaids, and Mr W. F. Clarke, the bridegroom's brother, acted as best man. The bridal ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. J. M'Clean, and the wedding was practically only attended by a number of personal friends of the parties. Mr Edward Percival Clarke is a young barrister who has already shown that he possesses considerable ability and aptitude for the profession which he has adopted, and is rapidly making a name for himself.

The bride, Miss Norma Whalley, is a native of Australia, and a daughter of the late Dr. Henry Octavius Whalley, a much-esteemed physician of Sydney. She made her début before the footlights at the Antipodes; and, after gaining considerable experience and becoming a very popular artist in the colony, she took a trip to America, where she remained for three years, appearing principally in light plays. Her first appearance before an English audience was in A Runaway Girl, following the run of which she attracted attention by her clever work in The Three Little Maids and in Madame Sherry. Latterly, she understudied Miss Ellis Jeffreys in Lady Flirt, at the Haymarket, and on one occasion when Miss Jeffreys was unable to perform on account of indisposition, Miss Whalley took up Miss Jeffreys' part with conspicuous success. With her marriage to Mr Clarke she severs her connection with the stage as an actress. The bride and bridegroom are at present staying at Folkestone, and in a few days will go to Normandy, where they will spend the remainder of their honeymoon.

The family of the late Mr Wilson Barrett, finding it impossible to reply personally to their kind correspondents, desire to present their grateful thanks to the many messages of sympathy they have received from all parts of the world.

It is expected that a final settlement will soon be arrived at with regard to the constructional alterations of Drury-lane Theatre. In the early part of this year the London County Council made an order requiring the directors of Drury-lane to make certain alterations. The requirements numbered over a hundred, many of them being, in the opinion of the directors, absolutely unnecessary, and to protect the interests of their company, while perfectly willing to do everything possible to safeguard audiences, they applied to the First Commissioner of Works to appoint an arbitrator. Mr Slater, vice-president of the R.I.B.A., has been appointed to hear evidence and settle the question between the two parties. The only witnesses are Mr Frank T. Verity, architect, on behalf of the London County Council, and Mr Frank Matcham, architect, for the theatre.

Mr Gordon Craig was at one time an actor of great energy. When he was playing in Cymbeline at the Lyceum, he and Mr Ben Webster had to fight their way off the stage through a crowd of "supers." Mr Craig used to lay about him vigorously, too much, indeed, to please the "supers." One night Mr Webster, on coming off, felt sore about the head and ribs, and found that he had been roughly handled in the melée. When he remonstrated with the super-master, that functionary replied with a grin, "They're very sorry, sir, but the fact is they mistook you for Mr Craig!"

Mr Walter Pallant, chairman of the Gaiety Theatre company, died on Tuesday at Birchington, near Margate. Mr Pallant, who made a fortune in the South African market before the Jameson Raid, suffered from chest trouble. He was operated on by Sir Alfred Frith, who was with him at the time of his death. The remains will be brought to London, and the funeral is arranged for to-day at Brompton Cemetery. In his early days Mr Pallant was a great friend of the late M. Marius, and through him was introduced to those theatrical circles in which he eventually became so popular a personage. He was a member of the London Stock Exchange, and took great interest in the Stock Exchange Orchestral Society. Mr Pallant was a skilful pianist and vocalist. He was, before he became a director, the unannounced author of the plots of several musical comedies, including that of The Circus Girl, produced at the old Gaiety Theatre in 1896. He was unmarried, and was forty-six years of age. Mr Pallant's successor as chairman of the Gaiety Theatre company will probably be Mr George Dance, who is well known to playgoers by his numerous pieces, the most successful being A Chinese Honeymoon. This season he has twelve companies in the provinces.

We regret to announce the decease of Mr John Phipps, a well-known actor, who died suddenly in Camberwell Infirmary on the 31st ult. of blood poisoning, and was buried on Wednesday in Norwood Cemetery. Mr Phipps was with the late Wilson Barrett for many years, and also with Sir Augustus Harris.

Mr Otho Stuart has fixed upon Saturday, Sept. 17, for the opening of the Adelphi Theatre under his management, with Mr James B. Fagan's drama, The Prayer of the Sword.

Madame Sarah Bernhardt, who has retired for the summer to her island of Belle Isle-sur-Mer, gives a programme of her day's employment there. "In all weathers, up between five and six. Shooting immediately. Eight a.m., back home, gun exchanged for fishing-net, and I go shrimping. Eleven a.m., bath and toilet. 12 30 p.m., lunch. After lunch, siesta. The siesta is compulsory and sacred. It is my first instant of bodily rest after the moment of getting out of bed; the first instant of immobility and silence. We lie down on wicker sofas against the fort, sheltered from the sea breeze. Then 'mum's the word!' Each one meditates, reads, or sleeps as he or she feels disposed. Afterwards to work. In the studio opposite the fort each inmate has a special corner. For myself, I read MSS., learn or look over parts, or I take up the sculptor's chisel. At five, tennis. Then dinner, then music, then bed." After all this Madame Bernhardt probably sleeps well.

Mr Cecil Raleigh has been greatly disturbed in his "quiet retreat" at Folkestone by the yelling of the local newspaper boys. They manage these things better in Blackpool. At the police-court there last week, Ernest Renton, for not desisting from shouting when selling newspapers on the Promenade, was fined 2s. 6d. and costs, and George Major was summoned for a similar offence and was fined 2s. 6d. and costs.

"The Golden Ladder," the play which Mr G. R. Sims and the late Mr Wilson Barrett wrote together, is being performed at the Sydney Theatre Royal. A local genius is said to have brought the play up to date by "added" incidents of Port Arthur, including the rescue of an English missionary and the blowing up of a Russian man-of-war. At the production of the play at the Globe some critics took exception to its Chauvinism, but what will Dagonet say to its latest developments?

The King on Wednesday inspected the plans of the new opera house which is to be erected on the vacant site in the Strand near the Law Courts. The building will be ready for occupation in about two years, and will be under the direction of the Royal Opera Syndicate.

A party of theatrical artists, Messrs Wilson James, Charles Conyers, Misses Ruby Wilson, Edith Trew, and Maggie Goldsmark, who are touring as the "Galeties," recently started to go from Ilfracombe to Swansea by sailing boat. They had done about a third of the journey, when the wind entirely dropped, and a strong current took the boat out to sea. They could not row, land was out of sight, and there were no provisions on board. In the early morning a tug came up, and the exhausted party was landed at the Mumbles lighthouse.

Herr Eugen von Jemmendy, the artistic manager of the Opera-house in Buda-Pesth, has invented a process whereby the movement of the Rhine waves in the Rheingold is exactly reproduced. For the "Walkürenritt" the artist has had instantaneous photographs taken of eight female circus-riders who were dressed in Valkyrie costumes, and rode in front of a black boarding six hundred yards in length. These are to be cinématographically thrown on the stage. The effect produced is that of riders bursting out of the clouds and riding in the air. The Fata Morgana scene in the last act of The Queen of Sheba has also been "realised" by the aid of the cinématograph, a circus providing the "sitters" for the horses, camels, elephants, and arabs, seen in the vision as a caravan crossing the desert.

On Wednesday afternoon the members of the San Toy company playing at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, were invited by the police Athletic Society of that city to a match at cricket. The day was gloriously fine, and the sport admirable, the society's ground being in splendid condition. Winning the toss, the police batted first, and scored 179 for nine wickets, and then declared. The San Toy team went in and were put out with a total of fifty-seven, Mr Stratton Mills scoring twelve and Mr J. Hope eighteen. At the close of the match the police entertained their welcome visitors, who comprised a number of ladies, to tea in the pavilion.

Mr Alberto Randegger, who celebrated on Thursday the fiftieth anniversary of his arrival in London from Trieste, says,—"The fault with present-day singers is that they do not pronounce their words properly. It is not surprising remembering that they are not taught English properly at the majority of schools, although they learn other languages. This should be rectified. You cannot hear or make out what they are singing, and the result is you go to a ballad concert to hear English songs sung by English vocalists, and you have to buy a book of the words! The Welsh are much better singers than the English, and the Irish and the Scotch pronounce their words better."

Mr Clarence Burnette, author of Our Guardian Angel and many other popular plays, has completed a new naval and domestic drama, entitled When Jack's Ashore, and Mr James Hare will produce the piece in London this autumn with a strong cast.

Messrs Doitridge, Longden, and Livesey produced on Monday at the Theatre Royal Stratford, their new play, The Village Blacksmith, and scored an instantaneous success. The great wrestling match in the music hall scene between Capt. Leo and the masked wrestler worked up the audience to a keen pitch of excitement. Mr Fred Fredericks highly congratulated Mr Livesey at the end of the play, and offered a quick return date. Mr Livesey was also inundated with wires from managers, artists, and friends.

The New Gaiety Theatre, Ayr, which was partially burned on Aug. 4, 1903, has been reconstructed, and will be reopened on Monday, when A Hot Night will be staged. The house has been reconstructed in accordance with plans prepared by Mr Alexander Cullen, F.R.I.B.A., Hamilton, and a great improvement has been effected, the line of vision being perfect from every part of the theatre. The building has been heightened 11ft., and eight boxes now take the place of the original four. An amphitheatre has been introduced, the entrances and exits have been improved, so that there are two exits from each section of the house. The entire auditorium has been remodelled, and the galleries taken down and re-erected with steel and concrete. The roof also has been renewed, and is entirely of steel beams and concrete, so that practically the auditorium is fireproof. The stage has also been improved, and extra precautions taken in the event of fire by fire hydrants on the stage, with the addition of a sprinkler over the proscenium opening. The building is entirely refurnished and decorated. The managing-director is, as formerly, Mr R. C. Buchanan, and the local manager is Mr Harry W. Day.

Mr Herbert Percy, who left London with William Gillette to play Dr. Watson in Sherlock Holmes, is now quite well known in New York. After a long season with Mr Gillette he joined Amelia Bingham and played an important part throughout America with her all-star company, of which W. L. Abingdon was a member. When the season finished Mr Percy accepted an appointment with Miss Alice Kauser, the famous New York play-broker and dramatists' agent, and demonstrated his ability as a business man, a new rôle in which he has been more than successful. News now comes to hand that Charles Frohman has re-engaged Mr Percy for an important part in the New York production of Sunday, in which he will support Ethel Barrymore at the Hudson Theatre. He may also be a member of Mr William Gillette's company when that actor comes to London in his new play next season.

Mr T. Eaton, the enterprising superintendent of the Midland Railway line, sends us an interesting series of picture postcards, each one of which gives a map of England and Wales, and, in addition, a pretty photographic picture of some place of interest on the Midland line. It would be a good idea if the company arranged to place a number of these postcards in their waiting-rooms, which are largely used by members of the theatrical profession.

We regret to record the death of Miss Madge Cleaver, well known as a member of the Ben Greet companies and Messrs Harrison and Maude's Little Minister company. She was the mother of Miss Constance Medwyn, of The Worst Woman in London company. For several months she had been a severe sufferer, and at the Miller Hospital on July 30 she underwent an operation for the removal of a cancer. She passed peacefully away at five o'clock on Saturday afternoon. The funeral took place Friday afternoon at Brockley Cemetery.

A matinee performance had been arranged at one of the theatres at a seaside resort on Monday, but the heat was so great that only nineteen persons attended, and their money was returned to them.

Mr Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson will take the New Theatre for a season as soon as Messrs Harrison and Maude leave that house to return to the Haymarket, and will produce at the "New" in January the piece entitled The Scarlet Pimpernel.

Mrs Hayden Coffin, it will be remembered, presided at a meeting of the executive committee of the entertainment held at the Queen's Hall on May 31 last, in aid of that humane institution, Our Dumb Friends League. After all expenses were paid the accounts showed a balance of £324 7s. 6d., which was allotted as follows:—£200 to Our Dumb Friends League (general funds), £25 to the Horse Ambulance Fund, £25 to the National Animals Hospital Fund, £50 to Our Dumb Friends League (Children's Branch), and £24 7s. 6d. to the Drivers and Horsekeepers Branch.

Madame Helen Townshend's pupils have been as successful as usual in procuring engagements this autumn, and among them may be mentioned Little Miss Hanid Alexander, who has been secured by the Moss and Thornton tour for three years, and also by Mr Robert Arthur for Christmas. Miss Kitty Lindley has been engaged for the part of Kissy Fitzgarter in Mr George Musgrove's Belle of New York company; Miss Elsie Molloy for the title-part in The Cherry Girl in Mr Lubbock's company; and Miss Katie May to play Pansy in same combination.

Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison will offer an exceptionally fine bill-of-fare to the holiday-makers at Douglas next week. They have arranged with the management of the Gaiety Theatre to present a double bill, consisting of a performance by the famous comedian Arthur Roberts similar to that with which he has made such a success at the Palace Theatre during the last few months, and the great Haymarket success, Cousin Kate. This will be the opening of the autumn tour of this pretty play, and Mr P. Hutchison is to be congratulated on the strong company he has engaged for it. The cast is headed by the names of Miss Lilias Earle and Mr Yorke Stephens, both great favourites in London and the provinces; and also in the company are Miss Hilda Horrise, Miss Betty Castle, Mr Walter Ringham, and Master Vyvian Thomas, with Mr Sandon Perkins as business manager.

In the course of his preaching in Johannesburg "Gipsy Smith," an evangelist, recently caused a disturbance by denouncing the morals of everybody connected with the stage, and declaring that not a pure woman had ever left the stage, which he described as "the breeding-pond of all that is vile and the meeting-place of the abandoned." A lady in the audience rose and asked the missioner what right he had to make such a statement. Her daughter was on the stage, and she was a pure woman. The Johannesburg papers have taken up the matter indignantly.

Mr Leon M. Lion has secured the entire rights of The Edge of the Storm from Mr Forbes Robertson, and is sending the piece on tour next month with a specially selected company, headed by Mr Henry Renouf. The company also includes Miss Jean Sterling MacKinlay, daughter of the late Madame Antoinette Sterling, and Mr Frederick Annerley. Mr Lion has also acquired all the magnificent scenery and costumes used in the Duke of York's production, and the tour is already booked far into the spring of 1905. The play, which the authoress has considerably revised, will have the additional advantage of a new "production" under the able direction of Mr Edward O'Neil, and the general management is in the hands of Mr W. H. Rotherham.

Messrs Gilbert Sims and C. J. Bannister having secured the rights of Miss Violet Sims' drama The Brand of Cain, which was so successfully produced at the Theatre Royal, Windsor, on July 4 are now sending the same on tour with a first class company, who will have the advantage of a capital equipment of scenery and effects. Miss Sims has been secured to give her clever impersonation of Nellie Black; and no expense has been spared to make the production excellent.

Mr Frank Goldsmith sails next Saturday per Holland-American liner, Potsdam, to begin rehearsals for Letty, the run of which opens at the Hudson Theatre on Sept. 19, under the manage ment of Mr Chas. Frohman.

Miss Ida Millais has rejoined her No Man's Land company, and is nightly taking her sensational dive into real water.—Mr Henry Crocker has been engaged by Mr Laurence Irving as stage-manager and to play Alderman Scheverell in Richard Lovelace.—Mr Charles Boult has been specially engaged by Mr William Bourne to play his parts in his répertoire.

The "Old Stagers" have been at the Canterbury Theatre this week playing The Chuli Widow and The Red Lamp. Assistance has been given to the amateurs by Miss Vane Featherston, Miss Lizzie Henderson, Miss Mabel Beardsley, Miss Rosalie Toller, and Mrs H. T. Whitaker.

The Bournemouth Town Council on Tuesday discussed a proposal to acquire the local Belle Vue Hotel and adjoining property, at a cost of £65,000, or at an annual rental of £2 325, for the purpose of erecting a kursaal close to the pier and the sea front. The proposal was rejected by eighteen votes to seventeen. A further proposal to offer £60,000, or an annual equivalent, was also lost, the voting being equal.

A point has been raised by Mr J. F. Jacobs, solicitor, of Hendon, in reference to Clause 3 of the bye-laws of the Middlesex County Council relating to music and dancing licences. Mr Jacobs was consulted by Messrs A. Probyn and Co., of the Old Welsh Harp, Hendon, in reference to opening their premises at Hendon for sacred concerts on Sundays, Messrs Probyn and Co. being of the opinion that their ordinary music and dancing licence under the bye-law referred to covered Sundays for sacred music, both vocal and instrumental. Mr Jacobs communicated with the Middlesex licensing authority, and that body has intimated that the bye-law does not cover sacred music, and that the grounds at the Old Welsh Harp cannot be opened for sacred music on Sundays. Mr Jacobs will probably make this a test case, with the view of having the question decided by a court of law.

Miss Suzanne Jugierska, a juvenile actress, has obtained £10 damages from Madame Sarah Bernhardt for breach of contract. The child had been engaged for the rôle of Madame Royale in Varennes, but after ten rehearsals Madame Bernhardt refused to let her appear. The court held that this could not be done without incurring a liability, nor was the artist bound to accept the substitution of another rôle under such conditions.

During the recent performance of a melodrama at Kieff, Russia, the villain, a captain in the army, following the stage directions, arrived on the stage in a semi-intoxicated state. As the heroine was shrinking from his tipsy embraces a retired colonel jumped from a stage-box on to the stage, and throwing one arm around the heroine's waist, drew his sword and advanced upon the "villain." The latter pulled out his property sword, which was promptly cut in two, and then took refuge in the wings. The colonel, with his arm still round the "heroine's" waist, advanced to the footlights and shouted that he had saved the Russian uniform from being disgraced by a drunken ruffian.

Mr Henry Arthur Jones's new comedy, which will be produced at the end of this month at the Garrick Theatre, deals with the subject of hypnotism and mesmeric suggestion. It is in three acts, and the cast will include Miss Nancy Price, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Miss Ethelwyn Arthur-Jones, Mr Sydney Valentine, Mr O. B. Clarence, Mr A. E. Matthews, and Mr A. Bourchier.

Miss Helen Pillans, we are sorry to hear, has had the misfortune to slip down and break her ankle. She has been for some time a patient at St. Mary's Hospital, and thanks all friends for kind inquiries, letters, and telegrams.

Messrs A. S. Gatti and Mr Charles Frohman will reopen the Vaudeville Theatre early in September, with The Catch of the Season, the authors of which are Mr Seymour Hicks and Mr Cosmo Hamilton. The lyrics of the piece have been written by Mr Charles Taylor, and the music by H. E. Haines and Evelyn Baker. The main idea of the story was supplied by Captain Robert Marshall. The play is in two acts, the first representing Sir John Crystal's house, Berkeley-square, and the second St. Jermyn's House, Piccadilly. The cast will include Mr Seymour Hicks, Mr Sam Sothern, Mr Stanley Brett, Mr Charles Daly, Mr F. Wilson, Mr Mervyn Dene, Mr Compton Coutts, Miss Rosina Filippi, Miss Mollie Lowell, Miss Hilda Jacobson, Miss Ethel Mathews, and Miss Zena Dare.

Mr A. F. Henderson writes:—"Referring to the published reports concerning the fire outbreak at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, I shall feel greatly obliged if you will kindly state that apart from the so-called fire being of an alarming nature, it was, as a matter of fact, most trivial, and was confined entirely to the roof of the engine-room, where a few planks caught fire. My own firemen completely extinguished the fire in three minutes from its outbreak, and when the fire engines from the brigade, which had been summoned by the constable on point duty, arrived on the scene the fire had been overcome for some little time. Certain of the reports anent this matter would lead the public to believe that the fire had attacked the auditorium. As a matter of fact, there was a morning performance proceeding at the time, and not a single member of the audience was aware of what was happening."

The alterations and redecorating at the Court Theatre will be completed by next October, when the house will be reopened, and a series of special matinées, commencing on Tuesday, Oct. 18, will be given. A new play by Bernard Shaw; The Hippolytus of Euripides, translated by Professor Gilbert Murray; Aglavaine and Selysette, by Maurice Maeterlinck, translated by Alfred Sutro; and Candida, will each be performed six times. After a short interval, a Christmas play called Prunella; or, Love in a Dutch Garden, by Laurence Housman and Granville Barker, music by Joseph Moorat, will be put on for morning and evening performances. The plays will be produced by Granville Barker, and the series will be under the management of Mr J. E. Vedrenne.

At the annual meeting of Hopwood and Crew (Limited), held on Thursday at the Savoy Hotel, the chairman, Mr W. Abbott, expressed his regret that the firm was still suffering from the bare-faced robberies that had hampered it for the last three years, and there was no likelihood of any relief until the next Parliamentary session. Indeed, thousands would have to suffer in order to gratify the cranks of one man, whose opposition had brought our system of law-making into contempt.

The pantomime which is to be produced next Christmas at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end, will be presented under the supervision of Mr Fred Baugh. The subject will be Dick Whittington, and there is little doubt that, with his previous successes in the direction of "annuals," Mr Baugh will have something attractive to the patrons of the popular playhouse.

The imposing edifice overlooking the lengthy Southend Pier, which has long stood silent and empty, is now all bustle and animation. The Hotel Metropole, as it is called, has been delightfully furnished and decorated; there is an excellent cellar, and the cuisine is capital. The tariff is surprisingly moderate. There are about three hundred rooms in the building, and much of the furnishing has been done by the well-known firm of Oetzmann and Co. of 62 79 Hampstead-road, W., whose wide experience, ample resources, and unfailing good taste always ensure satisfactory results. Jaded Londoners will certainly appreciate the position of this luxurious hotel, within an hour of London, and the management being so up-to-date and terms so "reasonable," the new hotel should never want either temporary visitors or permanent residents.

The Brothers Shubert, the well-known New York managers, have secured from Mr E. G. Saunders, representing and principal shareholder in an influential syndicate, a twenty-one years' lease of the new Waldorf Theatre now in course of construction in Aldwych. The building, of which the foundations have already been laid, will be ready for opening in March. The architect is Mr W. G. R. Sprague.

Mr A. E. Greenaway, after two years with Mr Richard Mansfield, in America, will return to Australia, under engagement to Mr J. C. Williamson, to play Parsifal in the forthcoming dramatic production of that piece in Sydney.

Mr Philip Leslie, who has been supporting Mr Herbert Waring in Mr Louis N Parker's charming play The Happy Life, has been obliged to resign his part in order to reappear in his old character of Harry Bronson in Mr George Musgrove's farewell tour of The Belle of New York.—Mr Arthur Fitzgerald, who has concluded a successful twelve weeks' stock season with Mr Robert Arthur at Aberdeen and Dundee, has been engaged by Mr Leon M. Lion for his autumn tour of The Edge of the Storm.—Mr Clarence Derwent has been specially engaged by Mr Kirwan to play Filippo, the part originally sustained by Mons. Coquelin, in Le Luthier De Crémône.

The Spirit of Evil ..... Mr Stanley Kovce
Ivra Blight ..... Miss Joan Pereira
Hilda Dundonald ..... Miss Grey Allison
Mrs Oxen ..... Mrs Richardson
Araminta Eighteen, Emily Eighteen ..... Miss Polly Emery

A truly dramatic story has been invented by the author under the above title, the words being subservient to the action, with a result that the progress of the play is rapid and the interest of the audience maintained to the end.

Sir Charles Tremaine and Rupert Thorne, a young gatekeeper, are foster-brothers. The action opens at Tremaine Hall with the return of the mourners from the old squire's funeral, and in preparations for the reading of his will. Thorne has been sullen for some time at Tremaine's better fortune, and is remonstrated with by the old baronet's ward and Tremaine's fiancée, Hilda Dundonald, who endeavours to win him over to better ways. In the interim there appear upon the scene the weak-kneed lawyer to the estate, one Blight, accompanied by his ambitious and unscrupulous daughter Ivra, who between them have concocted a forged will, in which Rupert Thorne is proclaimed the rightful heir to the title and property. Armed with this document Ivra Blight approaches Charles Tremaine, promising its suppression in return for an annual sum of money for her father and the making of herself his wife. Charles indignantly refuses to be a party to the business, and Ivra thereupon makes the same proposals, with success, to Rupert Thorne, who thus enters upon his ill-gotten fortune. Our hero, now flung out upon the world, gets employment as a chauffeur in London, and in this capacity saves the life of an old blind violin player, Stephen Rowe, whose daughter it turns out had been betrayed by Thorne years before. Here he is visited by the masquerading Countess, now tired of her boorish husband, who again renews her proposals, to be again repulsed, and the next instant Charles receives a shot in the arm from a shadowing emissary of his enemy. We next encounter Rupert Thorne in his home, where a tableau is vouchsafed us, showing the Evil One prompting his acquiescing instrument to a wholesale deed of murder, namely, the securing of Charles, Hilda, and Stephen Rowe in a cottage in Hangman's Coppice, and encircling the whole in a ring of leaping fire. Hilda has, meantime, been retained a prisoner at Tremaine Court, and it is now that Ivra Blight, smarting under her rejected advances to Charles, resolves to murder the girl, with the aid of her vacillating father. The latter, however, bungles his work, being felled by a chance blow from a candlestick at Hilda's hands, and whose rescuers place him on her bed, after administering the sleeping-draught intended for his victim. Ivra then enters, strikes at the form on the bed, and is caught in the act of murdering her own father. The burning hut tragedy is happily frustrated somehow by the powers of a ring of fire—a family heirloom in possession of the hero—and wedding bells herald the return of the squire to his ancestral home. Some amusing lighter scenes are interspersed throughout the play, affording laughter at the extraordinary courting and subsequent matrimonial troubles of the family butler and housekeeper. Mr Allen Wade makes a hit as Lord Sefton; Mr Dennis W. Cleugh is successful as Charles Tremaine; Mr Frank Graham excellently portrays the lawyer, Blight; Rupert Thorne at the hands of Mr William Vaughan receives capital treatment; Mr Frank Emery presents an excellent character-study of the sight-stricken violinist, Stephen Rowe; Mr Sidney Greenstreet does well as an amorous fireman, Bob Saunders; Mr Harry Talbot quite tickles his audience with the antics of the comic butler, Jacob Single; Mr Angus Alexander is a distinguished footman, Trimmings; Miss Grey Allison plays charmingly as Hilda Dundonald; Mrs Richardson makes good points as Mrs Oxen; and Miss Polly Emery doubles the parts of the twin-sisters Eighteen with great success, getting hearty applause for some clever business. The thanks of the author are largely due to Miss Joan Pereira for her fine work in a successful production. The part of Ivra Blight calls for powers of no mean order for its successful handling, but here the resources of the actress never once failed her. Several minor parts are capably filled, and Mr Garrett Todd and all concerned in the management are to be heartily congratulated.

THE LATE WILSON BARRETT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Will you, through the columns of your paper, remind the profession at large not to forget the memory of the brave and great-hearted man who, during life, was the champion and benefactor of his poorer brethren and sisters.

It has been suggested that the erection of a monument would be a suitable method of perpetuating his memory. The monument should show him in one of his creations, and I am sure that every actor and actress who had the honour of his acquaintance would be glad to subscribe towards such a tribute. A similar memento marks the grave of Barry Sullivan. Why should not Wilson Barrett be remembered? Many of the playgoing public would certainly assist the project. I am personally indebted to him for many kindnesses, and if Mr Ledger, with his customary interest in every good cause, will undertake to receive subscriptions I will esteem any work I may have to do in the matter as an honour and as a labour of love. To provincial artistes I especially appeal. Remember what he did in our interests. Remember what a stubborn fight for our rights he would have waged if Fate had not so cruelly cut him off. Remember his great love for his profession, his courtesy as a manager, and his unfailing goodness to everybody and everything theatrical. At the end of his last tour the remark made by him to my wife was characteristic of the man. Referring to my infant son, who was the last baby who appeared with him in The Manxman, he said, "Take care of the little one, and I hope he'll grow up all right." Such was Wilson Barrett, ever solicitous for the comfort and welfare of others, even when the hand of death was almost on him. May peace be his; for

> His life was gentle, and the elements
> So mix'd in him that Nature might stand up
> And say to all the world "This was a man."

Yours faithfully, WILLIAM MACREADY.
26, Portland-road, Notting-hill, Aug. 2.

Miss Louisa Peach, who has been very warmly welcomed at several of the suburban theatres lately as Joan, in Home, Sweet Home, was at Dalston last week, playing the leading part in The Harvest of Sin, and again had a hearty welcome, being the recipient of some pretty floral tributes.

Miss Annie Brophy is one of our most charming exponents of Irish female character. The delicious brogue of the Emerald Isle which she speaks in the character of Biddy Roonan, in The Shadows of a Great City, is quite delightful and refreshing to listen to.

It is seldom that a play is seen more packed with incident than is Mr Theodore Kremer's drama An Actor's Romance, which was played for the first time in England at the Camden Theatre on Feb. 8, 1904. A revised version of the piece was performed at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on Monday last. Humorous, emotional, and melodramatic scenes follow each other in rapid succession. There is even a dash of musical comedy, and the wonder is that, with so much in hand, the author has been able to preserve the coherence of his story so well. Mr Kremer's object, if it was to keep the audience's interest alive, and, at the same time, produce the effect of a long sequence of events, has been certainly achieved.

We are introduced at the outset to a gang of thieves and burglars, who do not stop even at murder if it suits their object. One Robert Livingstone is at the head, and his sister, under the name of Florence Hastings, is an accessory who moves among the class of people whom it is designed to rob. The "job" in prospect is the robbery of the safe of Mr Woodford, the father-in-law of Harold Davenport, an actor, with whom, though he is married, Florence Hastings is in love. True to their rule, the gang murder Mr Woodford when the old gentleman comes upon them in the act of robbery, and it seems that a second murder will be committed when Davenport's little girl makes her appearance before their escape. Instead of killing her, however, which they cannot do for sentimental reasons, they carry her off as a dangerous witness, and place her in the charge of a villainous hag. During this time we are made acquainted with the fact that Florence Hastings is carrying on an intimacy with Davenport's brother-in-law, Jack Woodford, who resorts to dishonourable means to obtain money for her. Finding afterwards that he has forged his name to a big cheque, Davenport, after a severe reproach, undertakes to prove to Jack that he is merely the puppet of Florence Hastings, whom he knows to be in love with himself. The plan is that Davenport shall meet Florence by appointment, and take her to a certain café where Jack may overhear her protestations. But the woman, thinking to wreck the happiness of Davenport and his wife, both of whom are already in deep grief over the loss of their child, arranges that Livingstone shall insinuate the infidelity of Davenport to his wife, whom, in fact, Livingstone covets for himself. Thus the appointment at the café has two deeply interested witnesses, Davenport's wife taking her departure, heartbroken, just before the discovery of Florence Hastings that she has been the victim of a trick. Cleverly, however, the latter reinstates herself in Woodford's good graces, while the misery of Davenport and his wife is increased by Woodford's refusal to speak the truth and clear the man who has done so much for him. Woodford is, in fact, hopelessly under the influence of Florence Hastings, who now devotes herself to the utter severance of the ties between Davenport and his suffering wife.

Some vivid incidents take place behind the scenes and on the stage of the Empire Theatre, New York—the most remarkable portion of the play. We are shown the wings and the dressing-rooms, in one of which Harold Davenport, dressing for a part, is undergoing all the agonies of the situation. Threatened with the departure of his wife from the country, he is beset now with a blackmailing offer of Woodford, prompted by Florence Hastings, that he will speak out for a given sum, which is too high for Davenport to pay. The woman herself repeats the application, and, being refused, taunts Davenport so unbearably that he at last casts her to the floor. Little fit as he is to go on and play his part, Davenport with an effort passes on to the stage. He knows that this hateful woman will be watching him from her box; and lo! when the scene changes to the Empire stage, which is set for the screen scene from The School for Scandal, there in a box of the actual theatre is Florence Hastings and her lover, Jack Woodford. Monday's audience appreciated the novelty, the more so when her comments were heard in disparagement of Davenport, and the latter was goaded to reply. Florence retorts with a shot from a revolver, but someone has tampered with the cartridges. She is, however, arrested and imprisoned. Yet even this is not her last attempt upon the undeserving Davenport, who, by the means of chloroform in a room of an hotel, is made to appear again in her arms before the eyes of his wife, who has come in hope of reconciliation. By this time, however, one Detective John Lennon has got near to the end of his inquiries, and only half an hour is needed for the restoration of Davenport's child, the while Florence Hastings is being conveyed again to durance vile for her complicity with the Livingstone gang. Needless to say the rescue of little Phyllis Davenport, the arrest of Robert Livingstone, and the reconciliation of Davenport and his wife are not achieved without stress of narrow escapes and the like.

The principal success was gained by Mr Guy Hastings as Harold Davenport, his acting being throughout graceful, well studied, and at the right pitch of emotion. Miss Bertha Northam was also excellent in the part of Davenport's wife. Miss Alice Esden's Florence Hastings might have been with advantage a little more reserved in tone. Mr Percy Marmont gave a capital depiction of the unprincipled but repentant Jack Woodford. Mr Ernest Ruston realised the part of Livingstone with great success. Praise should be accorded also to Mr W. H. Beaumont as Mr Woodford, Mr Tyrone Power as Police-Constable O'Hara, Mr J. C. Croudace as Bill Skulkum, Miss Annie Travers as Sal Wiggins, and Mr Albert Wainwright as John Lennon. The acting of Mr Carl Lyle as Ikey Isaacs, Mr E. H. Dobell as Charlie Cummings, Mr John Detliv as Isidore De Valois, and Miss Marie Ada Dowsing as Phyllis Davenport stood out conspicuously well, Miss Connie Leon assisting the comedy element considerably, especially in her song scena with the Pansy Quartet of vocalists and dancers. The mounting is good, and the piece is likely to achieve success. It is being played under the direction of Mr Cecil Barth.

AT the Grand Theatre, Nottingham, on Wednesday, A Woman's Pluck was presented. In the third act the heroine dashes up on a motor-car in time to prevent the villain of the piece drowning a little girl. When the car came on the brakes would not act, and the vehicle, with the heroine in it, ran down the stage. At the last moment the brakes acted, and the motor, with its front wheels over the footlights, was brought to a standstill. The car was dragged back on to the stage, and the performance proceeded.

AMATEURS AND "ESTHER."

At a time when aristocratic amateurs make such eager attempts at public display it is agreeable to read the incidents which were connected with the performance of Racine's Esther at the Convent of St. Cyr. "Madame De Maintenon," writes the Comtesse De Caylus, in the charming work entitled "Mes Souvenirs," "being persuaded of the great advantage arising from well-taught declamation, as well as from musical recitation, wished much that her little flock of St. Cyr should be well instructed in both. Her principal difficulty consisted in the profane nature of the verses generally adapted to music, and of those to be found in theatrical compositions. She communicated her dilemma to Racine, saying, 'Our little girls have been playing your Andromaque, and that so well that they shall never play it again so long as they live, nor any other of your pieces.' She had wisely become alarmed lest these studies, which on the one hand might be productive of great benefit to her pupils, might on the other create in their youthful minds sentiments entirely opposed to those she desired to inculcate. She accordingly begged Racine to choose some subject, moral or historical, and to compose for her, at his leisure hours, a poem in dialogue, from which all passionate expressions and all love-plot should be completely banished. She represented to him that he need fear nothing for his reputation, even should the piece not conform strictly to the established rules, as it would remain for ever buried at St. Cyr, and that all she wished was to convey moral instruction to her flock under the form of an intellectual amusement. Racine was considerably embarrassed; but, too finished a courtier to refuse, he, after a little reflection, fixed on the subject of Esther, and in a few days carried to St. Cyr the plan of the whole piece, and the first act of it complete. Madame De Maintenon was charmed, and all the modesty in the world could not have prevented her from recognising that certain passages in the character of Esther bore a strong resemblance to her own; the Vashti received likewise its application, and Aman was not to be mistaken. The piece was represented a year after Madame De Maintenon had decided to allow no more profane plays to be acted at St. Cyr. The success was so great that the remembrance of it is not yet effaced.

"Till this moment no one had thought of me, nor was I destined to take a part in the drama; but finding myself often in company with Madame De Maintenon and M. Racine, when he came to communicate to her scene after scene as fast as he composed them, I retained whole passages, and one day I recited some of them to the author. He was so pleased that he begged Madame De Maintenon to oblige me to take a part. She tried to do so, but as I would not accept a rôle already disposed of, the great poet did me the honour of writing expressly for me the prologue of his play. However, as I learnt, from hearing them repeated, all the parts of the piece, I subsequently represented by turns every one of the characters whenever any one of my schoolfellows was unable to perform. Esther occupied the whole of the winter; and this piece, which was to be buried in St Cyr, was applauded over and over again by the King and the whole Court.

"Esther was first performed in 1689, and Racine, by his constant lessons in declamation, had made excellent actresses of the young ladies of St. Cyr. Madame De Veillarme, remarkable for her beauty and grace, took the part of Esther, Mdlle. De Glapion that of Mardochée, Mdlle. D'Avancourt that of Aman, and Mdlle. De Lalie that of Assuérus. Madame De Caylus played afterwards this latter part with great success.

"The allusions of which Esther is full contributed, in some slight degree, to its immense success. In the Jewish heroine no one could fail to discover Madame De Maintenon; in Vashti, Madame De Montespan; and in Aman, M. De Louvois.

"The production of this play is, perhaps, one of the greatest acts of courage of Racine's whole life. The choice of the subject itself left the field open to allusions. The persecuted Jews represented the Protestants, persecuted at that period throughout France. The poet ventured to defend the cause of the oppressed in the face of the Royal oppressor; and, at the very time when M. Arnauld was censured for saying that the King might be deceived, he did not fear to say before Louis and his assembled Court,

On peut des plus grands Rois surprendre la justice.

The fatal repeal of the Edict of Nantes (counselled by Louvois) had just begun to desolate the whole country when Racine dared to let Louis XIV. hear Mardochée exclaim indignantly, 'The too credulous king has signed the edict!' and declare that 'By this law the whole nation is proscribed.' He painted Louvois to the life as the 'sanguinaire Aman,' and lost no opportunity of indirectly supporting the doctors and doctrines of Port Royal.

"Nothing could exceed the success of Esther. 'There never was anything like the anxiety of people to go to St. Cyr,' writes Madame De La Fayette. 'Great and small ran after this piece, and what was intended as a Comédie de Couvent became the most serious affair of the Court. The ministers neglected the business of the State to pay court to the King by going to witness a performance of Esther. At the first of these the King was accompanied only by the gentlemen who had that day followed the royal hunt; the second was given in honour of divers holy personages, such as the Père La Chaise and twelve or fifteen Jesuits, to whom Madame De Miramion and some other devotees joined themselves. After this the whole Court was successively to be seen at St. Cyr. The King thought the performance of Esther might interest the King of England (James II.), and accordingly he took him and his queen to witness it.' If from Madame De La Fayette we turn to her friend Madame De Sévigné, we shall find the same praises re-echoed by a person who was assuredly not one of Racine's professed admirers. 'Esther has been played at St. Cyr,' writes the fair Marquise to her daughter under the date of January, 1689. 'The King thought it admirable, and Monsieur le Prince (De Condé) was affected even to tears. Racine never wrote anything more beautiful or touching. There is a prayer of Esther's for Assuérus that transports you.' Further on, she adds: 'Racine has surpassed himself: he loves God as he loved his mistresses, and is towards sacred things what he was towards profane ones. The Scriptures are strictly adhered to in this piece; all is beautiful, all is great, all is treated with dignity. . . . I cannot describe to you the excessive charm of this composition; it is a thing that is not easy to represent, and that will never be imitated. There exists between the music, the verses, the choruses, and the characters so perfect a harmony that one can desire nothing more—all is innocent, sublime, and affecting; the saintliness of the subject impresses one with respect. I was enchanted, and the Maréchal De Bellefond told the King he was seated by a lady worthy of appreciating Esther. His Majesty advanced towards us and addressed me saying, 'Madame, I am told you are pleased.' Without any embarrassment I answered, 'Sire, I am charmed; what I feel is beyond words.' The king added: 'Racine is very clever (Racine a bien de l'esprit),' and I could not help making this remark, 'Sire, he is very clever, but in truth so are also these young people who perform, for they enter into the subject as though they had never done anything else in their lives.' Upon which he rejoined, 'Oh, as to that, it is quite certain,' and he took leave of us.' In another letter, dated March of the same year, Madame De Sévigné speaks again of the charming performance of the demoiselles de St. Cyr, and makes the following observation:—"It is evident that young, innocent creatures like these were alone fitted to sing the miseries of Sion: the Champmeslé would have shocked one. It is this extreme propriety which is so delightful."

THE LATE FRED CHARLES.

We regret to announce the death of Mr Fred Charles, who passed away on Tuesday, the 26th ult., at the Charing-cross Hospital, of gastritis, in his seventy-sixth year. Mr Charles was the son of the youngest sister of David Prince Miller, of Glasgow. Miss Sophy Miller married Mr Fred Charles Levi. Mrs Walter Edwin, mother of Mr Walter Edwin, is the only daughter of the late David Prince Miller, and therefore the late Fred Charles was her first cousin. His first appearance was at the Lyceum Theatre, under the management of Madame Vestris and Charles Mathews, in 1848. His second season was in a modern comedy by the late Charles Dance, called The Happy Family, the title being suggested by a cage of animals that used to stand in Lancaster-place, at the Strand side of Waterloo-bridge, close to the toll turnstile. At his uncle's (the late D. P. Miller) theatre in Glasgow Mr Charles, before he was twenty, acted repeatedly with such stars as Edwin Forrest, G. V. Brooke, W. C. Macready, Sheridan Knowles, Phelps, Charles Dillon, Fanny Kemble, Charlotte Cushman, Madame Vestris, and Taglioni. Mr Charles was in the original cast of Fraud and Its Victims at the Surrey Theatre in 1857. This was the first adaptation of Les Pauvres de Paris, produced seven years subsequently at the Princess's Theatre under the title of The Streets of London, Mr Charles playing the Mark Livingstone of the play; Mr Shepherd, Tom Trumper (Badger); and Mr Creswick, the dual-rôles of Captain and Paul Fairweather. In Horace Wigan's adaptation of Nos Intimes (Friends or Foes), at the St. James's Theatre, in 1863, Mr Charles appeared as Frederic Fervid (the Captain Bradford of Peril), associated with Miss Herbert, Messrs George Vining, Fred Dewar, and Frank Matthews. He was the original Major Coffin, in Arrah-na-Pogue, at the Princess's Theatre in 1865, supporting Mr and Mrs Boucicault, John Brougham, Dominick Murray, &c. Mr Charles was for many years a respected member of Mr F. B. Chatterton's Drury-lane, Princess's, and Adelphi companies. He was the Sir Walter Raleigh, in Amy Robsart, one of the greatest financial successes probably of Mr Chatterton's management of the national theatre. At the same house, in 1869, he played Spooner, in Formosa, with Katherine Rodgers, Mrs. Billington, J. B. Howard, John Rouse, David Fisher, Brittain Wright, and Henry Irving in the cast. In 1871 and 1872 Mr Charles was at the Princess's Theatre supporting Messrs Phelps, Creswick, and Benjamin Webster in various light comedy and juvenile parts—Roderigo, Malcolm, Lorenzo, Osric, Sir Benjamin Backbite, Brush (Clandestine Marriage), and Torelli (Fool's Revenge). He was the De Beringhen in Colonel Bateman's production of Richelieu at the Lyceum on the occasion of Henry Irving's first appearance in the title-rôle. Since 1877 Mr Charles has been mostly on tour. He was for a considerable time associated with Charles Wyndham, playing Charles Greythorne, in Pink Dominos, his son Harry Charles—better known as Mr Prince

Miller—appearing as Harry Greenlanes. Among the numerous engagements since that period we may mention Sir Augustus Harris, Miss Marie De Grey, Charles Dornton, C. W. Somerset, &c. Mr Charles, in spite of his advanced years, retained his smart figure and juvenile appearance until the end. The portrait which we give above represents the deceased actor in Mr Cyril Maude's part in Under the Red Robe. Mr Charles was until quite recently playing the Duke of St. Kitts in Miss Hutchison's Country Mouse company.

"THE NAVAL DETECTIVE"

Lieut. Jack Beresford	Mr ARTHUR HICKMAN
Rev. Frequent Nipper
Pat M'Guinness
Dr. Schreiner	Mr STANLEY BEDWELL
Captain Hustle	Mr ARTHUR BEAUFORT
Hon. Bertie Fairlox	Mr WALTER LANGFORD
Hans Winkelpump	Mr FRED GRESHAM
Sergeant Duncan	Mr WILL BIRD
Susan Scrubbs	Miss EDITH CLARIS
Lula Kaufmann	Miss IRIS BANFIELD
Rebecca Gentle	Miss LILY SEYMOUR
Pearl	Miss MAMIE WALSH
Ruby	Miss ELSIE PAUL
Phyllis Leslie	Miss LOUIE FOUNTAINE
Mam'zelle Lucette
Bill Mainway

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The plot of The Naval Detective is slight. A farmer named Leslie, the possessor of valuable diamonds, is supposed to have been murdered during the late war by the Boers, and after his death the diamonds are missing. Dr. Schreiner and Lieutenant Beresford are both in search of the valuables, the former being the villain and the latter the hero of the piece. Both men are in love with Phyllis Leslie, whom, through her father's misfortune, is left penniless. She, of course, has a decided preference for Beresford, and suspects Schreiner of being her father's murderer. Beresford, finding it necessary to play the amateur detective, appears alternately as the Rev. Frequent Nipper and Pat M'Guinness, and with the help of Lula Kaufmann, an old flame of Schreiner's, discovers the diamonds, and proves the latter's guilt of murder and treachery.

Mr Arthur Hickman was very successful in the rôle of Lieutenant Beresford, singing both sentimental and comic songs ably. Mr Stanley Bedwell, under whose supervision the piece was produced, was excellent as a Boer, and Mr Arthur Beaufort was good as Captain Hustle. Mr Walter Langford was deservedly popular as Bertie Fairlox, Miss Louie Fountaine worked hard and achieved success in a triple-rôle, Miss Edith Claris was amusing as Susan Scrubbs, and Miss Iris Banfield was extremely successful with her coon ditties. Miss Lilly Seymour made the most of her part of Rebecca Gentle, and Misses Mamie Walsh and Elsie Paul did several smart dances.

"THE STATE OF THE DRAMA."

There have been several interesting additions made this month to the "State of the Drama" symposium in the English Illustrated Magazine.

Mr HENRY ARTHUR JONES writes:—"In reply to your letter asking me for my 'views on the best means of ameliorating the drama in England,' I cannot do better than repeat the summary of my recent lecture at the Royal Institution on the 'Foundations of a National Drama.' You will notice that my proposals cover the whole of the issues raised by your first two questions: (1) As to the most practical and effective means of giving a new impetus to dramatic art; and (2) whether the institution of a State-aided theatre and a State-aided dramatic academy would be favourable or detrimental to dramatic art. In my lecture I urged that if we are to rescue the fine and human art of English Drama from its present decline and degradation, it is desirable, nay, it is necessary:

"(1) To establish and separate our Drama from popular amusement; to affirm and reaffirm that popular amusement and the art of the Drama are totally different things; and that there is a higher and greater pleasure to be obtained from the Drama than from popular amusement.

"(2) To found a national or répertoire theatre where high and severe literary and artistic standards may be set; where great traditions may be gradually established and maintained amongst authors, actors, critics, and audiences.

"(3) To insure, so far as possible, that the dramatist shall be recognised and rewarded when and in so far as he has painted life and character, and not when and in so far as he has merely tickled and bemused the populace.

"(4) To bring our acted Drama again into living relation with English literature; to dissolve the foolish prejudice and contempt that literature now shows for the acted Drama; to win from literature the avowal that the Drama is the most live, the most subtle, the most difficult form of literature; to beg that plays shall be read and judged by literary men who are also judges of the acted Drama; to bring about a general habit of reading plays such as prevails in France.

"(5) To inform our Drama with a broad, sane, and profound morality; a morality that neither dreads nor wishes to escape from the permanent facts of human life and the permanent passions of men and women; a morality equally apart from the morality that is practised among wax dolls, and from the morality that allows the present sniggering, veiled indecencies of popular farce and musical comedy.

"(6) To give our actors and actresses a constant and thorough training in widely varied characters and in the difficult and intricate technique of their art; so that in place of our present crowd of intelligent amateurs, we may have a large body of competent artists to interpret and vitalise great characters and great emotions in such a way as to render them credible, and interesting, and satisfying to the public.

"(7) To break down so far as possible, and, at any rate in some theatres, the present system of long runs, with its attendant ill-effects on our performers; to establish throughout the country répertoire theatres and companies to the end that our actors may get constant practice in different parts; and to the end that the author may see his play interpreted by different companies and in different ways.

"(8) To distinguish between the play that has failed because it has been inadequately or unsuitably interpreted, and the play that has failed on its own demerits; to distinguish between the play that has failed from the low aims or mistaken workmanship of the playwright, and the play that has failed from the low taste of the public, or from the mistakes of casting or production.

"(9) To bring the drama into relation with the other arts; to cut it asunder from all flaring advertisements, and big capital letters, and from all tawdry and trumpery accessories; to establish it as a fine art.

"I have nothing to add to these suggestions, except what I have said in explanation and justification of them in the lecture itself, and in my article on the 'Recognition of the Drama by the State,' in the March number of the Nineteenth Century, where I strenuously advocated the establishment of a National or Répertory Theatre."

Mr Jones is also opposed to the abolition of the censorship.

Mr LOUIS PARKER, asked if the English drama does, as a matter of solid fact, require ameliorating; whether it is any worse than it ever has been; whether, indeed, it is not at the present moment more alive and nearer nature than ever before, says:—"In my opinion the question is purely academic; it has been asked time out of mind; it was asked in 1698 (to go no further back) by Jeremy Collier, in 1739 by Colley Cibber, in 1762 by Churchill, in 1836 by Macready, in 1866 by Henry Morley, in 1875 by G. H. Lewes, in 1889 by T. W. Robertson the younger, in 1892 by Grant Allen. All these, and a host of others, have incessantly deplored the condition of the contemporary drama, and some of them have even foamed at the mouth and grown indecently violent on the subject.

"Before we can hope to 'ameliorate' the Drama we must make up our minds as to what the ideal drama is. But, as Mrs Bouncer says in Box and Cox (a great English classic—taken from the French) 'People's tastes do differ so.' If the ideal drama be Shakespeare, he has never been better played all round or more worthily and correctly (mark the words!) mounted than in our generation. Or do we wish to see Dryden revived, or Sheridan Knowles, or 'My Name is Norval'? Or are we to advance? Why, we are trying to advance all the time. Experiments of one sort or another are being made every day, but the Public (with a capital P) most frequently takes no interest in them. And there you have the answer to your first question. Granting the Drama requires a new impetus, it is the Drama's patrons who must give it.

"Of course a State-aided theatre would be an admirable thing. It would encourage experiments; it would enable those who now shout for a 'new' drama to crystallise their ideas; it would keep old plays alive. There would always be room in the auditorium. But—but—but! Ah, there are so many buts! Who is to be at the head of it? An actor? Then how would it ultimately differ from any other theatre over which an actor presides? A dramatic author? I hear shouts of derision, in which I am inclined to join. A 'liter'y gent?' It is so difficult not to become personal that I will leave this point unlaboured. A committee? What play would ever pass a committee, and what would be left of it, if it did pass?

"I am delighted with the present system of consorship. I feel safe. The censor is my moral conscience. When he has approved of me, no dog may bark—and what a comfort that is. Of course, I regret I may not write plays about—about a number of things, the mere names of which you would on no account print, but I prefer this abject intellectual slavery to the grandmotherly supervision of the London County Council or of a watch committee organised by a justly incensed audience.

"I think it would be a good thing for the Drama if the Press would leave the personalities of authors, actors, and people connected with the stage alone; if it would differentiate between purely ephemeral entertainments and serious dramatic art; if it would encourage endeavour, even when endeavour misses actual achievement; if first nights could be entirely reorganised, so that the real public had some inducement and some opportunity of being present; and if the 'deadhead' were buried."

Mr PINERO'S secretary writes:—"Mr Pinero is out of town at work, too busily engaged to answer your questions at any length. As he has said elsewhere, Mr Pinero is heartily in favour of a national theatre, whether State-aided or not, and considers such an institution necessary to the thorough well-being of our stage. But he does not share the extremely pessimistic views held by many on the subject of the condition of drama in England."

Mr EDWARD ROSE remarks:—"I take it that your questions refer to the English drama, as the French and the German certainly need nothing to give a 'new impetus' to their splendid vitality, while in Italy the most famous of living poets is now giving his aid to the band of young dramatists who are trying to re-create a theatre there.

"For England then—in answer to your questions (2) and (3)—I should say that a State-aided theatre and conservatoire would both, on the whole, do very much more good than harm, if the nation were sufficiently advanced to care to have them. But this is, by no means, the existing state of things.

"As to your first question, it is difficult to suggest a 'practical and effective means of giving a new impetus to the Drama' in this country. A subsidised theatre would probably be the toy of a capitalist, and of no great value, even if we had an audience sufficiently advanced to give it worthy support. I think, however, that real good might be done by a more modest scheme which should found itself upon the Grand Guignol and other 'one-act-play theatres,' so to call them, of Paris. In these both the young dramatist and the young actor might learn their art; and they might be—as the Grand Guignol is—so very cheaply run that the smallest of publics would support them. There is, indeed, no reason why the first of such theatres should not be carried on—of course, in a separate building—as a kind of annexe to one of the greater houses. His Majesty's, St. James's, the Haymarket, must have many young actors employed only for ten minutes in the evening or as understudies; and six or eight of these—with a well-known actor or so, out of work, for the moment—would form the nucleus of an excellent little company for little plays in a little theatre with low prices.

MR H. BEERBOHM TREE says:—"In answer to your first question, I would say quite briefly, 'The play's the thing.' Good plays will quicken the Drama into life more than anything else. The welfare of the Drama, as of all institutions, depends on men and not on systems."

Signor TOMMASO SALVINI thus replies categorically to the three questions:—

"(1) Those who cultivate Dramatic Art are actuated by two motives—ambition and interest. Therefore, I see no better means of giving a new impetus to authors and actors than the institution of pecuniary and honorary awards for the best compositions and the best interpretations.

"(2) Very often Art left to itself becomes either a prey to the speculator, who spoils and degrades it for its own purpose, or it remains stagnant for want of proper funds. I believe, therefore, that it requires the aid of the State, that would thus acquire the right to establish rules and conditions conducive to the well-being of the Art thus protected.

"(3) In order to avoid the present overwhelming tendency to dialogue and immoral and licentious subjects, the censorship of plays is necessary; but, in my opinion, such a post should not be filled by one single individual, but held by a committee, whether for the purpose of judging from the point of view of either politics, literary merit, or morals.

"That which would prove even more useful to pupils than schools or academies would be the free admission to State-aided theatres, the right of attending rehearsals, and the compelling of the principal artistes to guide and direct, practically and theoretically, those who show a natural disposition for the Art and sufficient culture to exercise it.

"Finally, for the general development of dramatic art, conscientiousness should be exacted from all concerned—from those who govern; the authors; the actors; from all those who wish to follow an art whose aim is to instruct the people intellectually or morally.

"These are my ideas, briefly stated, which I authorise you to publish, when and where you please."

A CHAT WITH MR. GEORGE ROBINSON.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Unlike the old knife-grinding worthy in Canning's poem, Mr George Robinson, the well-known and experienced actor, has a tale to tell. During a period of forty-nine years devoted to one department of the world's work, something of interest must happen. Half a century may not seem much in the life of a nation, but it is a great deal in the life of an individual, and it is of that half-century that Mr Robinson has something to say.

He started his professional career in 1855 as call-boy for Mr Charles Kean at the Princess's Theatre, where he remained for four years. Mr Robinson recollects that during that time Mr Kean produced a play entitled The Heart of Gold, by Douglas Jerrold. The piece was not successful, and one day at rehearsal Mr Kean related to Mr Robinson and others that he had met a gentleman in Oxford-street who inquired how The Heart of Gold was going. "For heaven's sake, sir," replied Kean, "don't call it The Heart of Gold—call it The Loss of Gold!"

Later on Mr Robinson played with Kean, G. V. Brooke, and Samuel Phelps, at Drury-lane and the Dublin Theatre Royal. Mr Robinson once asked Mr Phelps how long it took him to complete the study of the character of Sir Pertinax Macsycophant, and the reply received was "Seven years." "Surely, Mr Phelps," said his interrogator, "it didn't require that amount of time to study the words." "No, not to study words," answered Phelps, "but to tackle the Scotch accent."

As Mr Robinson's history is gradually unfolded before us, what reminiscences of old-time stage favourites rise up before one's eyes! "I had," says the subject of this interview, "a starring engagement for nine months with Mr Barry Sullivan, playing principal parts along with James Cathcart and Mrs Arthur Stirling. Then I was with Mr Walter Montgomery during a short summer season at the Princess's Theatre, appearing in such rôles as Malcolm, in Macbeth, and Sir James Tyrrel, in Richard III." Mr Bandmann was the next to take Mr Robinson up, and for nearly a year the latter played juvenile rôles, such as Bassanio, in The Merchant of Venice, Malcolm, in Macbeth, Horatio, in Hamlet, and the Duke of Buckingham, in Richard III., under Mr Bandmann's management. At different times he played similar parts with Mr Charles Dillon, and had a season at the Lyceum with Hamlet, this being Sir Henry Irving's first attempt at management. In the Bristol Theatre Royal stock company Mr Robinson did notable work, supporting such famous artists as the late Mr James Bennett. Thirty-four years ago Mr Robinson appeared as Captain Leveson in Mr and Mrs Wilson Barrett's production of East Lynne. With the same company he also played Major Oakley, in The Jealous Wife, and the Colonel, in Proof. "I always found Mr Barrett a perfect gentleman and the actors' friend," is the appreciation Mr Robinson gives of the tragedian, who but a few weeks ago, quitted for ever the drama of this life.

Of Charles Mathews, with whom Mr Robinson played at the Theatres Royal, Birmingham and Edinburgh, the interviewee gives the opinion that he (Mathews) was the greatest light comedian we have ever had. Hardly less is he an admirer of E. H. Sothern, with whom he played in David Garrick, Lady of Lyons, and a piece called Home. In these productions Sothern was ably supported by Miss Madge Robertson, now Mrs Kendal. A subsequent engagement was with Messrs Thorne and James, who for a number of years were the lessees of the Vaudeville Theatre. During the time they were holding that house Mr Robinson went out on tour with one of their productions, entitled The Half-Way House, which he stage-managed and in which he played a part. Mr J. L. Toole, who had always taken a great interest in the doings of Mr Robinson, and had been largely instrumental on several occasions in getting him employment, was the next to requisition his services for the Theatre Royal, Wolverhampton, at a period previous to the association of Messrs Billington and Weston with Mr Toole. During that starring engagement Mr Robinson enacted three different rôles, these being the principal light comedy part, in The Blessed Boy; the Frenchman, Victor Dubois, in Ici on Parle Français; and Dr. Clipper, in The Steeplechase. While at one time playing with Henry Neville, Mr Robinson appeared as Hawkshaw, in The Ticket-of-Leave Man, for ten nights at the Theatre Royal, Greenwich, without having had a single rehearsal. Among his later work, Mr Robinson has faced the footlights with Mr Hermann Vezinas Benvolio, in Romeo and Juliet, at the Theatre Royal, Bristol; with Sir Squire Bancroft for nine months at the Theatre Royal, Dublin; with Mr Weedon Grossmith as stage-manager, for eighteen months of The New Boy, at the Vaudeville and Terry's Theatre; with Madame Celeste, as leading man, in Woman in Red; with Miss Bateman (Mrs Crowe), as the Pastor, in Leah; with Miss Adelaide Neilson, as the Friar, in Romeo and Juliet, and in The Lady of Lyons; with Miss Amy Sedgwick as the Banished Duke, in As You Like It; Friar Lawrence, in Romeo and Juliet; Eugene, in Love's Sacrifice; and Paul Lafont, in the same piece; and with Mrs Arthur Stirling and with Mr Horace Wigan as Colonel Damer, in All for Her, at the St. James's Theatre. During this engagement he was called upon at two days' notice to play the principal part in Pretty Poll, written by Mr Robert Reece. At the end of the comedietta on the first night a loud call was made for Mr Robinson. That gentleman had gone to his room to change his dress, and was not anxious to respond to the call. The audience, however, persisted in their demand, and our hero suggested to the stage-manager that the playing of an entr'acte by the orchestra would have the effect of quelling their noise. It had no such effect, but, as a matter of fact, they stopped the music, and finally at Mr Horace Wigan's earnest entreaty Mr Robinson went on the stage and acknowledged the compliment of the audience. That, he tells us, was the proudest moment of his life.

We have not by any means dealt fully with Mr Robinson's career. We could not do so in an interview of this character. An idea of the space required will be realised when we say that Mr Robinson has played over 3,000 different parts, and has appeared in more than fifteen different characters in one week. One quality which has marked the whole of his professional career—and for which he deserves the utmost congratulation—is that of punctuality. Mr Robinson claims that throughout his half century of theatrical work he has never been once late at a rehearsal. We think that is a record of which any man might justly be proud.

In one direction at least the gods have been gracious to Mr Robinson. In spite of the great amount of work he has undergone, in spite, too, of the fact that the westhering for more than half a century of winter's wind and summer's sun has scarcely left him with the clear complexion of youth, he still possesses some of the energy and fire of a much younger man, and this, coupled with his extensive and varied experience in the playing of parts, should render his services invaluable to managers in the representation of several characters we could mention. No doubt someone will be inclined to avail himself of Mr Robinson's first-rate abilities and experience.

Messrs F. H. De Quincey and Sime Seruya, with a very powerful dramatic company, under the direction of Harold Reyner, commenced a long tour of the "legitimate" on Monday at Oldham. The Days of Cromwell, Richelieu, Louis XI., The Twin Sister, and Corsican Brothers are in the repertory. The plays are liberally staged and dressed.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS EDIE MARTIN.

Miss Edie Martin commenced her theatrical career when six years of age, appearing as an Oyster and a Glowworm, in Alice in Wonderland, on its original production at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Christmas, 1886-7, when Mr Walter Slaughter was the conductor. After that she was engaged at the Royal Court Theatre, then under the management of Mrs John Wood, appearing as Cupid, in a children's pantomime entitled Little Goody Two Shoes. After that came an engagement with Mr Willie Edouin at the Royalty Theatre in his production of Ivy, subsequently visiting the Theatre Royal, Manchester, with the same play. Then came a series of dancing lessons under Paul Valentine, followed by a lengthy engagement to play children's parts with the late Miss Sarah Thorne. After that come a happy engagement with the late Miss Kate Vaughan to play Adrienne, in Raymond. Then pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, under the late Charles Dornton's management (this was a joint engagement with her sister, Georgie Martin, for a specially introduced duologue). Then she returned to Miss Vaughan, and afterwards she was re-engaged by Mr Dornton to play Cissy, in The Silver King. This lasted for three tours, at the end of which Miss Martin decided to rest until she was qualified to undertake boys' parts; so after two years' retirement she was engaged by Ronald Grahame for the juvenile part in Honour Bright, but after thirty weeks' tour she was compelled to return home owing to her mother's death. Then came two and a-half years with Mr Mouillot's Message from Mars, in which she played various parts in the course of the tours. This was followed by an engagement with Miss Mary Austin, Miss Martin playing the Chambermaid, in A Silent Foe. After that she was engaged by Mr Clarence Brune to play the American soubrette part of Madge, in Over Niagara Falls, a charming part, for her embodiment of which she received deserved praise from Press and public alike, and she was sorry when the twenty-two weeks' engagement ended. Miss Martin has recently terminated a six months' tour with Mr Tom H. Taylor, playing the soubrette in Mr Walter Melville's drama, The Female Swindler.

MISS EVA REED.

Miss Eva Reed, who began her professional career at the age of twelve, is the second daughter of Augustine Dorney, who was for a number of years musical director at several of the theatres and music halls in Liverpool. Miss Reed began as a song and dance artiste. After a while, however, she worked with her sister. Then she thought she would like to work on her own again. This she did until she married, still working alone for a couple of years, after which she joined her husband, and they worked a comedy turn together under the name of Miles and Reed. After working double four years, she was advised by Mr W. Smithson, of the Royal, Merthyr, to try comedy. Some time after, however, she turned her attention to the dramatic profession, playing such parts as Nora Donnelly, in The Power of Gold; Dolly Clink, in Her Wedding Day; Estelle, in The Black Vampire; Paul, in The Octoroon; Dicky Deans, A London Arab; Caroline Augusta, in A Life's Handicap; Chucky, in The Stowaway. She has also played principal girl to Miss Ada Wallis in Dick Whittington, also Polly to Miss Rena Roby Robinson. In 1902 Miss Reed played a comedy part in pantomime at the Elephant and Castle Theatre. Afterwards she played the "slavey's" part in The Sins of a City on tour, introducing a comedy song with eccentric dance, written and composed by herself, which proved a great success.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving, March 3d, 1898.

Will be of great service.—Charles Wyndham, March 1st, 1898.

Mr A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era, March 5th, 1898.

Very useful.—Sporting Life, March 4th.

Mr Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News, March 19th.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News, March 11th.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its page, they may avoid much misapprehension and troubles.—Star, March 9th.

Should be of great value. An ably compiled digest of the law relating to the theatrical profession generally.—Daily Mail, March 11th, 1898.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun, March 20th.

Clearly set out, concise, and altogether comprehensible.—Pall Mall Gazette, March 19th.

Contains much that is of practical value to musicians, music publishers, and concert givers.—Musical Times, March 12th, 1898.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times, March 19th.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican, March 12th.

In the Court of King's Bench on Wednesday, in the course of the hearing of an action to recover £75, one year's rent of a flat in Charing-cross-mansions, Charing-cross-road, let on lease to William Henry Nagle, who had left without notice, Mr May, an actor, in giving evidence, said that, when tenant of a similar flat to that of the defendant, in the same mansions, he—Mr May—after repeated complaint of the conduct of certain tenants, and acting on the advice of his solicitor, left in a similar manner. Judgment, however, was given for plaintiff with costs.

Mr Charles Harrington's company is appearing at the Broadway Theatre, New-cross, this week, in the ever-popular Uncle Tom's Cabin, a feature of which is the plantation festival, in which many coloured artistes take part. Mr J. Carr is a powerful and impressive Uncle Tom; Mr Charles Harrington is a great favourite as Phineas Fletcher; Mr B. Linton is good as St. Clair; Mr W. Henry Hargreaves is an earnest and manly George Harris; Mr J. H. Rogers makes Legree sufficiently repulsive; and the same may be said of Mr J. H. Renny as Mr Haley. Miss Hettie Johnson is an interesting Eliza Harris; Miss Emma Stewart plays Emmeline pleasingly; and Miss Ida Fane as Aunt Ophelia and Miss Sylvia Fane as Topsy cause unbounded amusement. Mrs Carr is good as Aunt Chloe. Little Eva is very naturally and prettily acted by Little Minnie, and Miss Zerlina Zerbini gives a graphic delineation of the character of the creole slave, Cassy.

Mr Potnoy's company, which left London on June 4 last, opened its season very successfully at the Theatre Royal, Calcutta, on July 9 with Morocco Bound. The company will continue at the Theatre Royal, pending the completion of the alterations and improvements at Mr Potnoy's own theatre, the Tivoli.

At a meeting of the Salford Council, on Wednesday, a Councillor moved that the whole of the applications made at the last Watch Committee for licences for places of amusement be referred back, with instructions to the committee that all applicants must enter into an agreement not to apply for an Excise licence in case of a dramatic licence being granted. This was carried by twenty-five votes to ten. The decision of the Council means that after this month no intoxicating drink can be sold in any of the Salford theatres.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the Publisher, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

A SHOWMAN'S VICISSITUDES.

"On my arrival home, on one occasion after an absence from England," says Van Hare in "Fifty Years of a Showman's Life," "I found Boucchore, the Italian Fire King, drawing crowds to Cremorne Gardens. It happened at the time that a German calling himself Chevalier, the Fire King, arrived in London and was introduced to me. I engaged him. I had to get a costume, iron cage, &c., made, as he had nothing whatever to perform with. I had to advance him money to discharge his bill at a German restaurant, &c. I had fine coloured posters done by Webb, of Snow-hill, advertised him well, and soon had plenty of engagements. We commenced at the Zoological Gardens, Liverpool. We fixed the cage upon a island, with an artificial lake in front, and had it covered all over with wood shavings. At night there was a big crowd and the fire lit, and Mr Chevalier pranced about in the flames, which were not very hot, and he found fault that the fire was no good; which I explained to the men who had had the making of it. They said, 'Oh! we will make it hot enough for him to-morrow night.'

"So they did; for he had not been long before he was glad to get out of it, and a pretty picture he was when he threw off his mask. Now, the absurdity of having a mask enamelled with wax! Of course the heat melted it, and it proved a very keen blister for him, for his face was one mass of blebs; his boots were so burnt that we had great difficulty in getting them off. I took him away to the hotel, undressed him and put him to bed. He was quite delirious, calling out he wanted a cold bath. I rushed off in search of a doctor, whom I procured and brought back with me. We had to sit up with him all night. The doctor paid great attention to him, as I explained to him that I wanted to get back to London, and the man being a foreigner, I did not wish to leave him in a strange place. In about a fortnight he got well enough to travel. So I paid the hotel and the doctor's bill, and brought him to London. On arriving at the railway station I took a cab, in which we both went as far as the Duke of Wellington's statue, when I called another cab, put him in, gave the driver directions where he had been staying previously, paid the fair, and wished him good-bye, and told cabby to drive me home, where I arrived safely, and with the satisfaction that I had had enough of the Fire King. But to my great annoyance I had not suffered enough with the brute, but I must be threatened with a lawsuit. I went to see the solicitor, and explained to him that I was the person who ought to sue for damages, if the man had anything. But it was not worth while; I had been very much taken in, and lost money by him, as he was nothing but an impostor; I had behaved much better to him than he deserved, and had he not been a foreigner I should have left him in Liverpool to shift for himself. The solicitor was perfectly satisfied that he had been wrongly informed in the case, and that he should go no further with it.

"Some time after I was travelling about on the Continent in search of novelties when I met some English artistes travelling with Herr Carrey's circus. They came laughing up to me saying—'You have got your revenge of your Fire King' (for they knew all about my affair).

"Then they told me an extraordinary tale, viz., when they were performing in a small German town this Chevalier went to Herr Carrey, the proprietor of the circus, representing himself as the great Fire King from London, upon which he was engaged; and the first night that he was to exhibit his great salamander feat the police went and tapped him on the shoulder, telling him they wanted him. He looked at them most indignantly, telling them that he was 'one English;' but they knew better than that, so took him away and locked him up. He was put on his trial, and proved to heve been previously transported for seven years from this very town, and had escaped; so they sent him back to serve his time, and gave him three years longer as a reward for his ingenuity.

"Mr Wilert Beal, having taken the Surrey-gardens for a series of French fêtes, I was made the managing-director. We had Julien's band, &c. I had a café-chantant erected in the grounds, in which concerts were given à la Paris, introducing, sopranos, duettists, serio-comiques, comiques, Christy minstrels, ballets, acrobats, &c. I introduced a new performance, by one of the acrobats, to run a barrel on the water, the same as if on the ground. I got a large barrel, sent it to a cooper, and gave him directions what I wanted him to do with it. He looked at me very cunningly, asking me what I was going to do with it. I got it properly faked, and it was a great success; I had £5 per night for it. I had Mademoiselle Pauline Violonte on the high rope across the lake, with fireworks, &c., all of which was a great success. After this I had Mr John Henderson, the celebrated slack-wire performer at the great Britannia Theatre, Hoxton. He was the best juggler on the wire—which was only like a piece of thread—I have ever seen; and his great feat was at the finish, to stand upon his head whilst the wire was swung backwards and forwards, nearly touching the ceiling of the theatre. This was an immense draw, and ran six weeks.

"A fortnight before this engagement finished I made another engagement with Mr S. Lane to produce Dick Turpin's Ride to York. What were we to do? We had no Turpin horse. I met with a tout at a horse-dealer's near Finsbury-square, who took me to look at a thoroughbred black mare that belonged to an ironmonger in Smithfield. He had been driving in a phæton, which she took great delight in kicking to pieces. She was a beautiful creature, but very timid. I bought her for £26, and gave the man a guinea. We commenced to train her at once, as we had only two weeks to do it in. She was a very high-spirited animal, and a splendid jumper. We got her to lie down and die, &c.; we had two rehearsals on the Britannia stage; she leaped the toll-gate, &c., very well, but we took the precaution to have a dummy horse made to represent her, in case she should be any way awkward in the dying scene the first night, which we were fortunate not to require, as everything went off splendidly, to the evident delight of a crowded house. We played it up to the pantomime time, and I made another engagement with Mr Lane to produce Mazeppa and Dick Turpin, to commence two months after Christmas."

At Westminster Police-court, on Wednesday, Charles James Lawrence, manager of dining-rooms of Duke-street, Charing-cross, was charged before Mr Francis with assaulting Miss Kathleen Aldine, a dancer, in a first-class carriage on the Underground Railway. The prosecutrix, who resided at Oakfield-street, Redcliffe-gardens, stated that at twelve o'clock on Tuesday night she entered a first-class carriage at Earl's-court, with the intention of proceeding to Charing-cross. She had previously noticed the prisoner following her about, and he came close behind her and almost pushed her into the carriage. Miss Aldine resented this, and just managed to jump out as the train was going on and enter another compartment alone. At Gloucester-road—the next station—as the train slowed up defendant changed into the carriage in which she was seated. Witness at once rose to change again, whereupon he seized her by the throat and said, "No, you don't go; you stay with me." She screamed for assistance, the guard came, and Lawrence was given into custody. Mr Francis imposed a fine of 20s. or fourteen days' imprisonment.

The end of the summer season and the close of a most successful run of the summer pantomime The Trippers came on Saturday last at the Whitevale Theatre, Glasgow. The house was a record one, and all the principals were recipients of numerous bouquets.

EARLY FRENCH ADAPTATIONS.

The seventeenth century was the era of glory, as far as the poetry of the drama is concerned, for France. In the year in which Shakespeare passed away, there was a boy in the Jesuits' school, in his native city of Rouen, whose name was Pierre Corneille. He was then ten years of age. Very early indeed in life accident made of him a dramatist. There was, in that same city of Rouen, a young man, Corneille's old school-fellow, who was deeply in love with one of the youthful beauties of a city once famed for daughters so richly endowed. The lover introduced his friend to the lady, whose name was Milet; and very soon the lady showed more regard for the friend than for the lover. The consequent course of things took such a dramatic character that Corneille shaped the incidents into a comedy, which he called Mélite.

In 1636 when he produced the immortal tragedy—or rather tragic drama—Le Cid, French playgoers acknowledged that in Corneille they had not merely got a man, but a master of his art. Shakespeare had been just twenty years dead, when this new foundation of the French stage was so solidly laid. "Beau comme le Cid" became a popular expression of comparison. Lines from the play became popular quotations. Small critics flung dirt at the author, and Cardinal Richelieu, who wanted to pass for the first dramatic poet in France, was powerful and paltry enough to induce the Académie to censure the Cid as immoral and irreligious!

The master had yet to ascend higher, and the steps by which he was led to the summit of dramatic glory were made in his three tragedies, Horace, Cinna, Polyeucte. The last (and some think the grandest) was represented in the season 1639-40. Corneille then descended with the majesty of a great king; still glorious, but with diminished strength. This descent began with Pompée, 1641, a tragedy, the hero of which, like the heroine, Peace, in the drama of that name by Aristophanes, never opens his mouth. But Corneille mounted again by the production of his comedy of character, Le Menteur, first acted in 1642.

Corneille's Cid, slightly altered in the translation, was acted before Charles the First and Henrietta Maria in 1640, just before the English stage and Monarchy were suppressed by the Puritans in power. The Cid was among the first plays that Charles the Second and his Queen went to see acted in the public theatre after the Restoration. Pepys says it was delightful to read, but a dull thing to see acted. To the matchless Orinda's translation of Corneille's Horace, played at Court, the little Duke of Monmouth spoke the prologue. The play (the last act of which was translated by tuneful Denham) had a great run on the Court stage. Another version, at Drury-lane, was set down by Pepys as "a silly tragedy." Polyeucte was translated for readers. Katherine Phillips (Orinda) translated Pompée with such dramatic success that Lord Orrery, in execrable verse, assured her that Corneille, "if he could read it" (to which he was certainly not equal), "would deem the copy greater than the original." Later came a new translation by four fine gentlemen, Buckhurst, Sedley, Godolphin, and Waller. This version was treated with critical sourness by Orinda; and Pepys, reading it as he was rowed from the Custom House to Deptford, declared that it was "a mean play, and the words and sense not extraordinary." On the other hand, the diarist, who saw an English version of Corneille's Héraclius at the Duke's Theatre, says that it was "an excellent play," and that he saw to his great content. The English stage also took Corneille's Mentaur, which, under various forms, has come down to the present day, and was made to live and amuse by the perfect acting of Charles Mathews. Dryden has judged the original. "The most favourable to it," he says, "would not put it in comparison with many of Fletcher's or Ben Jonson's."

Six years after Shakespeare's death was born, in Paris (1622), that young Poquelin who assumed the name of Molière, and became the second of the three dramatic glories of France. Like Corneille, Molière was a pupil in a college of the Jesuits. When, after a strolling life, he settled in Paris, he brought with him most of the plays of which we now know him to be the author, but none of his masterpieces. Molière's career in the French capital extended from 1658 to 1673. In the two years, 1666 and 1667, he produced the two dramatic pieces which have, so to speak, made him immortal, namely, Le Misanthrope and Tartufe. Had he been the author of the latter play only, his dramatic place would be at the head of all the writers of comedy in the world. At his death, in 1673, his satire had made itself so stingingly felt that the Church refused to honour his body with funeral rites, and a curé de Paris amiably expressed his regret that the author of Tartufe had not been burnt alive, like John Huss!

Shakespeare had been dead three-and-twenty years, when Racine was born (1639) at La Ferté Milon, on the Ourcq. Seventeen years younger than Molière, the same year saw them both winners of the crown of dramatic glory. In 1667, the year of Tartufe, Racine's Andromaque proved that he who had gracefully rhymed the Thébaïde and Alexandre le Grand had received the true inspiration, and that France possessed a successor to Corneille worthy of equal (perhaps of greater) honour. Racine more immediately challenged Corneille when he produced Mithridate, and he somewhat boldly touched the shield of Molière with his comedy Les Plaideurs. The public pronounced the comedy a failure till the "Grand Monarque" declared it to be a success, and France has accepted the criticism. As to the contest between Corneille and Racine, Madame De Sévigné thought she was the interpreter of public opinion when she protested that neither Racine nor coffee would long be thought much of in France! This protest, however, has not been endorsed by the dramatic judges of that nation.

The next poet in order of birth, Molière, was a great resource of writers of plays in England who lacked invention, or who were too lazy to stir it to activity; but they ploughed up the surface and plunged through the subsoil, and "struck the offended sense with double stink." Molière offered them the pure and pungent essence of comedy, and his translators, paraphrasers, and imitators presented to the dramatic nostrils of our nation only the nasty materials from which some essences derive their pungency. Except Congreve, who was original in his nastiness and brilliancy, scarcely an English comedy writer can be named who did not covertly steal from Molière.

One example will show with what prompt alacrity the plays of Molière were appropriated by our "adaptors." Tartufe was in its first blush of popularity in France, when a translation of the comedy by the young actor, Medbourne, appeared in 1667. It was, however, not acted till 1670, at the King's House, Drury-lane. The title-page of the printed English play had, indeed, a smack of impudence in it, for the play is described as "Tartuffe; or, the French Puritan—written in French by Molière, and rendered into English, with much addition and advantage, by Mr Medbourne, servant to his Royal Highness" (the Duke of York). In the dedication, Medbourne says:—"How successful it has proved in the action, the advantages made by the actors and the satisfaction received by so many audiences have sufficiently proclaimed."

On the English stage Lee's Nero gave some faint idea of Racine's Britannicus. In 1677, Racine was represented by Lee's Alexander the Great at Drury-lane, and by Otway's Titus and Berenice at the theatre in Dorset-gardens. It may, however, be remarked that Racine was not adequately represented on our stage till after his death. His Andromaque, first acted in 1667, was translated and adapted by Phillips, and under the title of The Distressed Mother was first played in England in 1712.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

The small charge for admittance to the Palace caused the Park and other parts to be well attended on Monday. The Bank Holiday programme was a long and varied one. Bands of music were everywhere in evidence. The two side shows in the Bijou Theatre and Londesborough Hall were all day doing good business, and being the only two in the Palace had the "trade" to themselves. Three performances were given in the Theatre and Central Hall—the latter consisting of a variety entertainment which gave satisfaction to large audiences. Noticeable were the Three Bennetts, clever and artistic hand and feet dancers. Some graceful dancers described as Paul Valentine's Specialities were also engaged. Ella Zulla on the rope wire went through an exhibition thoroughly appreciated, and the Addos, a pair of gymnasts on the flying trapeze, were exceedingly smart and clever in their business, and called for special commendation. The I.D.K. Minstrels bid fair to take the place vacated by the Moore and Burgess. Their entertainment was an enjoyable one, and the songs and choruses were efficiently rendered. The Raymond Bio-Tableaux followed the Minstrels in the theatre. The usual performance and sensational dive into the lake in the evening by Frank Burley took place. There was also a balloon ascent in the afternoon, and a kite-flying competition organised by the proprietors of Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday was a novel feature in the programme. The prizes won were presented in the Conservatory at nine o'clock by Captain Henry, the well-known lion tamer. The firework display by Messrs Pain and Sons on the south front concluded an enjoyable day's amusement.

MR WILL NEWMAN has compiled a capital programme for the holidays at his Happy Valley vaudeville concerts, Westcliffe. His scheme includes Lester King, Paul Pelham, Sam Dalton, C. Clark, Madame Oliver, cornet soloist; W. F. Moss, W. Newman, and Harry Nation, all of whom are clever in their respective lines.

A COPY OF "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"MILDMAY."—It is against our rule to give the age of members of the profession.

J. F.—The Ladies' Idol, by Arthur Law, was first produced at the Theatre Royal Bournemouth, March 28, 1895. It was staged at the Vaudeville, London, April 18, same year. The cast was as follows:—Delamere, Weedon Grossmith; Duke of Castleford, Sydney Warden; Callardale, C. P. Little; Roebuck, Arthur Helmore; Purley John Beauchamp; Wix F. Volpé; Kurdie, T. Kingston; Beamish, Kenneth Douglas; Duchess, Gladys Homfrey; Countess, Helen Ferrers; Lady Helen, Esmé Beringer; Lady Eugenia, Kate Serjeantson; Mary Alice Belt and Dora Vale, May Palfrey.

K. G.—Mr G. H. Chirgwin and Miss Fannie Leslie appeared in the Islington Grand pantomime of 1895-96, Aladdin Up-to-Date.

JAMES.—B Bayly, author of "The Mistletoe Bough," "She wore a wreath of roses," and many other popular songs, died April 22, 1839.

AMATEUR.—(1) As your piece can legitimately only be performed in a place licensed for dramatic performances, you must send it to be read by the Licenser of Plays, Lord Chamberlain's Office, St. James's Palace. The Licenser's fee will be one guinea. Performance carries copyright, but it is always advisable to register (after performance) at Stationers' Hall. Fee, 5s. (2) St. George's Hall.

T. O. T.—(1) We know nothing of the New York Agency mentioned. (2) See last week's ERA.

W. S.—Strictly a dramatic licence is necessary, but if there is a music and dancing licence it is unlikely that you will be interfered with.

MR FREDK. MELVILLE'S company is appearing at the Terriss Theatre this week in Between Two Women. Mr Tubby Edlin as Jack Pringle has made a decided hit; Mr Albert Ward is well placed as the Rev. Phillip Carton; Mr Sydney Price ably embodies the Earl of Millard; Mr Harry Marlow scoring as his son Harry. Mr Fred Morgan as the villain Durwood meets with success; Mr J. W. Waters as Jacques Spado and Mr Graham Woods as Major Strangeways deserve favourable mention. Mr P. E. Dowsett is amusing as Mr Jorking, the manager of the stores, and Mr Fredk. Sandy is an excellent Dick Burgess. The two women are admirably represented by the Misses Marie Robson, and Morita Valda as Violet Thornton and Carmen De Savereaux respectively. Miss Sybil Hammeraley is a vivacious Polly Popp and Miss Alice Bowes wins sympathy as the blind boy.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright, and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901

Mr A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 2d, 1901

MUSIC AND MANNERS.

In a recent leading article we remarked "Avarice is not the motive power which impels our London actor-managers. We are certain that if the choice lay between making large fortunes by producing the kind of pieces for which they feel antipathy, and making a moderate income by the highest art of which they are capable, all our leading managers would choose the gratification of their own instincts in preference to the increase of their bankers' balances." An illustration of the truth of these observations has been supplied to us in reading an article in an American magazine on the New York Metropolitan Opera House. We are in the habit of considering the Americans to be the most "practical" and least sentimental nation of the world; yet this is what a writer of that nation says of the American musical entrepreneur:—

"'From a psalm of Asaph,' remarked the late Mr CARLYLE in one of his most bilious seasons of reflection, 'to a seat at the London opera in the Haymarket. what a road have men travelled!' The distempered sage had himself upon one occasion been induced to take a seat in the London opera. The outcome of all the cost and of the various art that had been lavished upon the performance he declared to be 'an hour's amusement, not amusing either, but wearisome and dreary, to a high-dizened, select populace of male and female persons, who seemed to me not much worth amusing.' These are extremely bilious remarks, but it must be owned that to many persons the Italian opera in its present estate makes no more appeal as a serious form of art than it did to CARLYLE or to WAGNER. The interest in opera is at least three-parts social to one-part musical. The more wonderful the heroic and unexampled sacrifices which have been laid upon the American operatic shrine! An impresario was long ago defined as a person who paid all his money for the pleasure of being blackguarded by everybody; and the definition remains so far true that the successful managers of Italian opera who have escaped its perils with their lives and fortunes are scattered columns in a waste of ruins. And yet the seed of the American martyrs of Italian opera continues to fructify. From the lean and primitive opera seasons which Mr RICHARD GRANT WHITE not long ago commemorated, the 'cause' has never lacked a forlorn hope. A whole procession of Curtiuses, each girded with an orchestra and a chorus, and brandishing his poetical prospectus in his good right hand, have followed each other into the gulf of insolvency, which obstinately declines to close over them. Managers who have amassed competences in the more prosaic departments of their calling do not consider their careers rounded until they have embraced the opportunity to beggar themselves in behalf of the lyric drama."

It is pleasing to find that Mr CHARLES MANNERS's recent experiment at Drury-lane Theatre has not resulted in any serious loss; and there can be little doubt that any deficiency in the balance will be fully made up by the excellent advertisement gained by Mr MANNERS's London season. It takes time for a novelty to make its way into the apprehension of the British public, though, once established in favour, a manager may feel safe and satisfied as to his position. Mr MANNERS has had to suffer from a variety of irritating criticisms; but there is one form of carping from which we particularly desire to defend him. It is to the effect that the manager of the Drury-lane season has done nothing for National Opera.

Of all the baseless theories which have been formed in connection with art, this in relation to National Opera is the weakest. Art is of no country, and has neither frontiers nor protection laws; and the idea that a manager must, for the sake of patriotism, produce inferior works by Englishmen in preference to first-rate operas by foreigners is ridiculous. It is really injurious in the end to English art itself. Take, for instance, the late D'OYLY CARTE's production of Ivanhoe at the Royal English Opera House. If there was ever a composer who was utterly incapable of writing a serious that is to say, a dramatic opera, it was ARTHUR SULLIVAN He was essentially a cynic and a humourist. The essence of serious opera is passion, and in that quality SULLIVAN'S artistic nature was utterly deficient. Yet, to read the notices which appeared after the production of Ivanhoe, an immortal work had been born into the world It was lèse-majesté, disloyalty, to state the truth—that Ivanhoe was a smooth uninspired, "scholarly" opera—the clever, laborious effort of a skilled musician, but without any of the sacred fire of genius. Mr CARTE was reproached, quite unjustly, with the high prices which he charged at the English Opera House. But if Ivanhoe had been another Carmen—or even another Pagliacci—the British public would have found the money somewhere. Not only was the opera a failure financially; the genuine test of popularity, the sale of published copies, proved conclusively the absolute indifference of the musical public. The result of the extravagant laudation of the press was that the public is now utterly incredulous of any printed recommendation of English opera. As a matter of fact, we can no more manufacture the first-class article than we can produce fine champagne. English opera is nearly always "gooseberry" It is all very well to talk about "encouraging native talent," but the native talent must first exist The only name which suggests itself in this connection to us on the spur of the moment is that of Mr SIDNEY JONES; but we are quite unaware if the composer of A Greek Slave has any desire to soar on the wings provided for him by Mr CHARLES MANNERS. There is, however, nothing to be gained by reviving or fostering the production of "written-to-order" works, produced, not in submission to an irresistible impulse from within, but in response to an encouraging commission from without—the musical equivalent in short, of the "regulation" Academy picture In our opinion Mr MANNERS, by presenting such operas as The Flying Dutchman, Lohengrin, Tannhäuser, Faust, and Mignon, has done the very best thing possible in the circumstances. The difficulty of the task he has attempted was obvious and immense; and that he has not seriously failed on such a "forlorn hope" is decidedly a feather in the plucky and enterprising manager's cap.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, JUNE 28.—Cousin Kate is Mr Williamson's new bill at the Criterion, deftly staged under the eye of Mr H. H. Vincent. Miss Florence Hamer as Kate is natural and thoroughly womanly. An old favourite—Mrs Henderson, once Miss Maggie Knight—resumed her professional career by appearing as Mrs Spencer. It was a bit of quaintly quiet comedy. Miss Florence Le Clercq was well placed as Amy. Mr Wilfred Draycott was the Wilfred Desmond. He did good work, and so, too, did Mr Athol Forde as the Rev. James Bartlett. Master Sydney Halliday was the small boy and Miss F. Champion a hoyden general servant. They were both good. The comedy was preceded by Madame Butterfly, in which Miss Rose Musgrove was the Cho Cho San. This clever young actress scored heavily. Mrs Henderson appeared as Ku-Ku-Shi, an admirable performance.

MR WATKIN MILLS gave recitals at the Town Hall on the 22d, 24th, and 25th. The reception of the eminent English basso was most cordial, all the musical and many of the alleged musical ones greeting him enthusiastically.

MR J. C. WILLIAMSON'S Royal comic opera company returned to Her Majesty's Theatre on Saturday night, reviving The Country Girl, with Mr Haigh Jackson, in the baritone part, in succession to Mr Harold Thorley and Mr William B. Beattie. The newcomer gave an acceptable rendering of the music. The rest of the cast is as before, and Mr Leon Caron conducts. On Friday there were two performances of The Darling of the Gods, and Mr Julius Knight made a farewell speech. It is singular that Mr Knight is the one in the cast who makes no attempt to conform to Japanese physiognomy.

"THE PRICE OF PEACE" shows no diminution in interest or attendance, and Mr Walter Baker's impersonation of the British Premier is the crowning effort of his long career as an actor.

"THE ROSE OF THE RIVIERA" will cease to bloom at the Lyceum after Thursday; and Mr George Stephenson's complete company, headed by Mr Edward Lauri and Miss May Beattie, will migrate to Victoria and other sister states.

THE Nawn Vaudeville Company concluded its season at the Palace Theatre on Saturday night.

THE Tivoli outlives all its competitors in variety bills, and Mr Harry Rickards' frequent visits to the old and new world's centres in search of first-class attractions are of infinite benefit to his patrons. On Saturday a clever trio, Dan Burke and the Misses Moller and Tellar, made their first Australian appearance in a sketch, The Professor and His Pupils. This was rapturously received. The Jones Brothers were also heartily welcomed. The star turn is still that of the Uessems, and the Japanese playlet O Mats San is a welcome innovation. Tom Bass, comedian, will be the next to arrive by the Orotona.

PADEREWSKI, the great pianist, is now nearing Sydney, as is also Mr Alfred Hollins, the blind organist, who is engaged by the City Council for a series of ten recitals.

MR GEORGE STEPHENSON'S English musical comedy company leave for Newcastle, and then go on for two months at the Princess's Theatre, Melbourne. His American comedy company is doing a record season in Western Australia. Mr Stephenson has bought the Australian rights of the American comedy Other People's Money.

CLARA MORRIS AND THE "MOXA."

"Among my friends," says Clara Morris, the celebrated American actress, in an article in M'Clure's Magazine, "there was one who was particularly bitter against the press, because it had so little consideration for the privacy of the individual. She denounced the tittle-tattle, the continued gossiping about the doings of those men and women who in one way or another had come into the eye of the public, and was quite specially severe upon those persons who heedlessly gave information to the 'meddlesome matties,' that being her picturesque tribal name for all newspaper reporters, interviewers, &c. Yet it was owing solely to her own personal indiscretion that a letter from me describing the application to my poor person of the moxa, or searing with a hot iron, reached the newspapers, and through them my private affliction became public property. A letter so swiftly, so widely copied, that I actually met it face to face in a French paper before I had started for home.

"Wounded, mortified, and hotly angry was I, over the breach of confidence, until upon my arrival here I met that wondrous wave of sympathy that, starting afar off from the great cities, tangled in the white fringe of the Pacific, had in its onward sweep reached out both north and south, ever gathering pity and sorrow, kindly thoughts and many prayers in its swell; a wave that broke about me heart high, washing away all anger and humiliation and leaving only profound gratitude and a great wonder that the public should not only heed but sympathise with the pain of one of the least of its servants.

"But oh! what a crop of piteous letters was gathered into my letter-box directly after my return from Paris!—so many, many poor sufferers in varydegrees from spinal trouble wrote to me eagerly asking if the moxa cured? If it had cured me? And would I advise others to submit to the treatment? And oh! poor souls! I had to confess I had apparently suffered in vain.

"Physicians here at home declared the details of the operation were barbaric and outrageous; that the needless strain of waiting, the sound of the furnace, the preparatory marking of the spine with a pencil, were cruel, unnecessary, and I almost believe, but for three disinterested witnesses, they would have added incredible.

Miss Morris then describes the application by two Parisian doctors of the moxa. She says:—

"Even the preliminary examinations seemed to me to be theatrical and designed to impress and awe me—each of the doctors with his paper and his pencil solemnly making his little notes. Could I stand this way? Could I bend that way? Could I walk a straight line with my eyes open?

"'But, good sir,' I remonstrated, 'I am a teetotaller!'

"They went on, they measured off so many feet on the floor, and marked each end of the distance with a chair. They bandaged my eyes tight and, quite unnecessarily, drew down the shades also before placing me at one chair and bidding me try to walk blindfolded to the other.

"'Ah!' I remarked, 'your blindman's-buff is a rather staid and melancholy game. I prefer the English version.' As they gravely measured how far I was away from the chair I had aimed at, I hopefully suggested a change to 'puss in the corner.'

"Dr. Belvin, an American by birth, strove desperately not to laugh, for Professor Ball, who was his superior, looked upon mirth as the sure sign of an empty mind. Then, with a weighty and momentous manner, the hawk-faced professor began sticking needles into the calves of my unfortunate legs, while quite in the style of the Inquisition, Dr. Belvin behind me took down this conversation:—

"Do you feel these punctures?" "Being alive, yes." "Are they painful?" "Naturally." "How many needles am I using?" (My eyes were bandaged still.) "One." "Now, how many?" "Two." "Now, how many?" "I—I can't tell" "Now, how many?" "The whole paper, I think! Sharp's make; mixed sizes!" "Madame jests—make a note, monsieur That is certainly of the unusual—since madame undoubtedly suffers. The other leg, now. Ah! that is, eh?" "Yes, professor, 'that is,' as you say Most decidedly these prickings are harder to bear. Two—three—I think five—gracious! I wish you'd permit me to offer you a cushion for your needles."

"The bandage being removed—to my great relief—I was about to retire my indignant and smarting calves to the protecting shelter of the lacy white petticoat of the period, when the scientific hawk swooped down upon my foot—nay, my feet; and his plucking off of my shoes made me think of the hungry dismembering of prey. Exaggerated? Very likely, but that was the fancy of the sorely tried and secretly frightened woman, whose black silk heels were planted upon his knees with soles facing him like a pair of medium-sized flat-irons; and I watched with grave curiosity while the professor, with long, bony fingers, strove to tickle—yes, tickle—those immovable, irresponsive black sole of mine. He gazed at me menacingly, with ever-growing excitement, as his nails vainly scratched up and down, criss-cross, while I regarded his efforts with the half-amused, large patience of a mother who sees her child planting pennies in the flowerpot in the hope of raising little pocket-book plants from them. Suddenly he sprang up. 'You—you laugh not? You have not even to squirm? You, who are one bundle of nerves—broken, sick nerves at that—yet you have the feet nerveless! of the marble! You are extraordinaire, Madame! You have made the note, mon confrere? the feet not to be tickle—eh? you have him? Bien! A-a-ah!' he shook his ten fingers furiously at me. 'A-a-ah! you are an extraordinary woman—bien, oui!'

"'Mais, non!' I objected. 'It is you, Monsieur, who are extraordinary. You do not consider that I am a stranger to your ways. You should give me time. In America, now, a gentleman never thinks of tickling the feet of a lady who calls upon him for advice. Would not even if the call were purely social. He entertains her with conversation, pays her compliments, that tickle her fancy or her pride, possibly—but he respects her soles. Dr. Belvin, you don't seem well? But you can, I think, as an American, bear me out in my assertion. And perhaps you will also return my shoes; I should greatly dislike going down to the carriage in my stocking feet.'

"And while the big Kentuckian, shaking with laughter, replaced my shoes, I shook with sick terror of the decision I was presently to listen to. My nonsense was not meant for flippancy—but laughter was my only shield, a jest my only weapon of defence, and the greater my pain and fright and need, the more recklessly I used them. Then I heard my fate: 'The iron——or——'

"'Well,' I asked, 'or what?' and they added:

"'A year—perhaps a year and a half of time, and ——'

"So that night was a night of terror—because of an active and excited imagination. My husband and my mother were on the other side of that great ocean that widens so terribly between hearts at need, and troubles always loom gigantic at night, and the decision rested wholly with me. 'Oh!' I whispered over and over, 'if it were not my back! If only I could see for myself what was to be done! But how helpless I shall feel, knowing they are exchanging nods and signs behind me, and—No, I will not take ether nor chloroform!' I cried aloud. 'If I die, I will at least die consciously!' And with a start I found that I had then resolved to endure the new and, to me, revolting treatment by burning—called the moxa. And being decided, I had but one conscious thought—to get the thing done, lest my courage fail! To get it done, that the strained anxiety in the eyes of my friends might give place to relief, perhaps to satisfaction. This letter, to the indiscreet one, will speak for their sympathy and distress:

11, Rue de la Bienfaisance, Paris,
Aug. 12, 1875.

My dear ——, I hasten to write you, as I am well able under the circumstances, of the terrible trial to which our dear little friend has been subjected. As Prof. Ball concurred in the opinion given by Dr. Belvin that the disease of the spine would if not arrested terminate fatally within two years, she determined to submit to the treatment that it makes me shudder to think of. She said: "Only let me have it over—don't let me think of it!" And last Tuesday we drove to the doctor's rooms, No. 51, Rue de la Luxembourg. She was very pale, probably though not more so than usual, but I could not but notice that the nostrils were dilated and the mouth more firmly set than usual. She conversed less than common, and in fits and starts, and, strange to say, of the most trivial things we saw upon our way. Arriving at Dr. Belvin's we were annoyed at not finding Professor Ball there, and had to wait for him nearly an hour; all the while our poor friend sat, with her hands clasped between her knees, saying at intervals, "If they keep me waiting, I shall fail—I know I shall fail!"

At last the professor was announced, and then fifteen more minutes were given to preparations in an adjoining room. Clara had stipulated that she should not see the furnace nor the irons, and it cost the two physicians some trouble and labour to comply with her wishes. We were at last summoned to enter, and nothing was visible but the low chair in which the victim was to sit and the two operators. Dr. Belvin is a man over thirty-five, with a clear blue eye, blonde head, and a rather kind expression of face. Prof Ball is about sixty, with a prominent hooked nose, small grey eyes, and of less than the medium height. It may have been the circumstances, but he looked to me the beau ideal of an Inquisitor of the Spanish Inquisition—well deserving the title given him in Paris among medical men of "The Butcher," on account of his terrible and frequent operations.

Poor Clara was required to sit in a low chair, with her back bared, and she went through the preparations quiet enough, but with her face pale and rigid as marble. The only evidence beyond this was the pitiful trembling of her poor little hands. She spoke calmly, however, requesting me to hold her head, not her hands and as she sat looking up at me as if to read in my face what was going on behind her, I believe I suffered the more of the two.

Then Dr. Belvin lit his furnace, and the roaring of the flame that was to heat the irons to a white heat in a few seconds was dreadful to hear; and while this was going on Prof. Ball marked with a pencil the line the iron was to follow on either side of the spine. Every touch of the pencil sent a thrill through the delicate frame of the poor victim; but the professor had scarcely ended making the pencilled marks when with a flash the iron was applied. The white point seemed to sink an inch into the quivering form, with that sickening sound of burning flesh—but beyond a writhing of the body, accompanied by deep, heavy breathing, there was no response, not a shriek, not a sigh nor groan. The doctor had nearly completed his dreadful task when Clara, suddenly starting up, cried out in a voice that even moved Prof. Ball: "My God! I cannot—I cannot bear it!"

It was all over, however, and, do you know, she helped replace her clothes, after the wounds were dressed and walked down to the carriage. The doctor said it was a wonderful exhibition of nerve. She is quite prostrated to-day, and suffers from violent pains in her head. The doctor says it is all right, and she will be up and well soon but to us she seems alarmingly weak. I forgot to say that she was urged to have the operation performed while under chloroform, but positively refused.

Since writing the above we have learned that Dr. Fordyce Barker, of New York, is here in Paris, and we are going to call him in, in consultation with Prof. Ball and Dr. Belvin. I will write you further.

"Ah! well it was for me that Dr. Barker came upon the scene, for, in spite of my diminishing strength and ever lessessing vitality, the Paris doctors insisted upon repeating the trying operation, and as I was no longer strong enough to go to them, they volunteered to come to me at the hotel. The hour was set, and the day had arrived before Colonel Piatt, who was the acting guardian and guide of his wife, his sister, and myself, had succeeded in his almost frantic search for Dr. Barker. By galloping the life nearly out of a poor cab horse he managed to get him to the hotel a scant ten minutes ahead of the arrival of Messrs Belvin and Ball. Only ten minutes, but long enough for him to swiftly examine the patient, his sorely broken countrywoman; for surprise to become amazement, and amazement indignation—long enough to reach a stern decision. He gently laid my thin, waxy hand down upon my knee and said: 'We'll have no operation to-day, my child. You are afraid there may be trouble? Well, don't you worry, that's all. You have worried too much already. There's been an awful mistake here, but it's going no further, please God! Trouble, eh? Well, I'll take that trouble on my shoulders. Oh! how do you do, gentlemen?' for the two doctors, carrying all the demnition paraphernalia of the modern Inquisition with them, entered and stood amazed at the presence of the big, handsome man, with the big, cordial manner and no voice to speak of. Then, as Dr. Barker was recognised professionally, both in London and Paris, as a very, very great gun of the heaviest calibre, and socially as the very fine flower of good fellowship, they greeted him with extravagant demonstrations of regard. When Colonel Piatt asked them to receive the doctor in consultation they exchanged glances and answered that as soon as the moxa had been applied they would gladly consult with him.

"And right there the snag that was to prevent further smooth sailing revealed itself to all, when Dr. Barker demanded immediate consultation and imperiously removed me from the scene by the simple expedient of picking me up and carrying me into the next room. 'Wait here,' he said; 'I may want you for just a moment—but have no fear; there is to be no moxa to-day, nor to-morrow either!' and, smiling his kind smile, he went back—and then, oh, dear! very soon the voices rose excitedly.

"Suddenly the door opened. 'Gentlemen!' cried Dr. Barker, entering; 'come here one moment, please!' They followed him in, one sullen, the other red and snappy. My champion came to me, raised me to my feet, and, leading me to the wide open window, drew back the curtain and let the full blazing light in upon me. 'Look,' he said, and he held up my hand to the light, which showed through it, as lamplight shows through the hand—only, alas! without the pinky hue. He touched my lips with his finger. 'You see, gentlemen, they are as pale as her cheeks. But, see this!' he exclaimed, angrily, and he lifted my lip to show the poor pale gums within. 'There's not as much blood in her body as many a fish carries. Her pulse is a thread, her nerves are visibly a-quiver; she is taking no food other than a little milk or less broth; she has failed rapidly in strength since the first application of the iron. You have yourselves just told me of her immense exertion of will power, of nerve force, to endure that trial. Where do you expect her to find that power to-day?—tell me that! I believe in the moxa; I believe in it even for her—when she is prepared to endure it. Rest her—feed her—give her some strength, some blood, before you venture another tremendous shock to her nerves!'

"'But,' insisted Professor Ball, 'our judgment is for the continuation of the moxa at once. Our preparations are complete and we will proceed. You shall see our success when——'

"'You shall not proceed, monsieur!' interrupted Dr. Barker. 'Colonel Piatt, take the little woman to her room, or—oh, excuse me, we will retire!'

"They withdrew, but the door was left partly open, and oh! St. Patrick's day in the mornin'! As the argument there developed into a really respectable row, Colonel Piatt said my cheeks flushed and light came back into my eyes, for you know one man against two is an inspiriting sight, and my doctor, who was doggedly determined, never lost his dignity—scarcely his temper, until, in an outburst of rage, broken English and pure French combined, Professor Ball furiously ordered Dr. Belvin to light the furnace and at the same time himself advanced toward the room where I sat.

"'Stop!' commanded Dr. Barker. 'Courtesy seems wasted here—etiquette ignored! Don't you light that, doctor! I am an American—but I know Paris well! I know my rights perfectly! Our consul, our—oh, curse it, man, light that furnace and I'll throw you both over the balcony!'

"'St. Patrick was a gentleman!' I softly hummed, for, you see, I profited whatever happened. If they failed to light up—I wouldn't be ironed that day. If they did light up—there'd be broken bones down there on the pavement, for Fordyce Barker was big enough to back a threat with action, and I—really, one believes in heredity after all. For my forebears, on the purely American side of me, though they gave no orders but obeyed them instead, died in their tracks wearing the ragged uniform of the country—just common men, of course, who, having nothing else to offer, gave their lives and had for reward so fierce a fight against odds that it must be some far faint tang of its joy that thrills my poor nerves to delight whenever a man has his back to the wall—whenever hands are put up in a fair fight.

"So, though he declared the scene simply outrageous and was visibly vexed at his own loss of self-control, Dr. Barker won. The other doctors retired, their properties with them, and I saw them no more. Dr. Fordyce Barker continued upon the journey he had delayed in the name of his life-long friendship for Colonel Piatt—and I, having followed his advice piously, was able to return home in September, from the first, the last, the only journey that since my marriage I have made without my husband."

A CHAT WITH MR. GEO. W. BYNG.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

The importance of the work performed by a theatre orchestra cannot be over estimated, and it follows, therefore, that the position of a chef orchestre is a significant and responsible one, and while the different houses of entertainment vie with one another in procuring for the enjoyment of their patrons the best artistes and the best and latest works of dramatic literature, they are concerned to an equal extent in the careful selection of suitable people for "the band."

The management of the Alhambra Theatre, Leicester-square have shown good judgment in having secured as conductor such a capable exponent of harmony as Mr George W. Byng. Mr Byng's musical education was commenced in Dublin when he was seven years of age, at which early period of his life he entered the Royal Academy of Music and studied under Mr R M. Levy for the violin, and, later on, under Sir Robert Stuart and Dr. Jose for musical composition. When he was only eleven he was engaged for the orchestra at the Dublin Theatre Royal, then under the directorship of Mr Levy, and remained there for six years, leaving as one of the principal violinists. After the demolition by fire of the Theatre Royal, Mr Byng's services were requisitioned by the late Mr Michael Gunn, the lessee of the Dublin Gaiety Theatre. At the age of seventeen, he quitted the Irish capital, going over to Edinburgh as violinist in the orchestra of the Theatre Royal in that city, where he stayed some nine months. An engagement with Mr Fred Stanislaus at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, followed, and on Mr Stanislaus leaving for the Gaiety Theatre, London, Mr Byng accompanied him and was appointed chef d'orchestre, a position he retained for three and a half years. Severing his connection with the Gaiety, he transferred his services to the Shaftesbury Theatre, where he opened with the production of As You Like It under the Lancaster-Wallis régime. He was next busily engaged on tour with Messrs Chappell's opera entitled Jirouette, after which he had a run round the provinces with Mr George Edwardes's companies; with Van Biene in Faust Up to Date, Ruy Blas, and Rip Van Winkle. Returning to London, he joined forces with Mr Arthur Roberts in the production of The Corsican Brothers, written by Mr Cecil Raleigh, at the Royalty Theatre, after which followed the first presentation of Tra La Tosca by Sir Francis Burnand. Mr Byng subsequently went on tour with Mr Arthur Roberts with a piece written by Mr Fred Leslie and entitled Guy Fawkes, for which the subject of this interview wrote the music. He was next seen on the Continent for several months, travelling with an English company in Carmen Up-to-Date and Faust Up to-Date, the enterprise being a very successful one, both from a financial and an artistic point of view. Coming back to this country Mr Byng was engaged as sub-conductor at the Empire Theatre, Leicester-square, where he performed good work during his three years' term of office. Then Messrs Arthur Roberts and Henry Lowenfeld called him to the Prince of Wales's Theatre for the productions of The White Silk Dress and La Poupée, the last-mentioned running for eighteen months. It was during the period he served at the Prince of Wales's that he produced a pantomime, in three acts, bearing the name of Pierrot's Life, which was put on at matinées only, and became exceedingly popular. This brings us to the commencement of his appointment at the Alhambra Theatre as musical director, a capacity in which he has faithfully served his directors for the past six and a half years.

Mr Byng's premier composition at the Alhambra was the ballet Jack Ashore, produced on Aug. 8, 1898. This was succeeded, in January, 1899, by The Red Shoes, of which he was part author, and he also wrote the music for the ballets entitled A Day Off, Napoli, Soldiers of the Queen, The Handy Man, The Gay City, Inspiration, Gretna Green, Santa Claus, and The Devil's Forge, as well as the dancing music of Carmen. Mr Byng was also the composer of H.M.S. Irresponsible, the well-known musical comedy which Mr Arthur Roberts ran for over three years at the Strand and Globe Theatres. Among the operettas for which Mr Byng has written the music are Ghosts, by Charles Fossett, produced at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester; At the Stage-Door, written by Mr Charles Wilson, the stage-manager at the Alhambra; The Old Muff, produced at the Alhambra; and Polly's Birthday, the initial performance of which was given at Manchester. The songs written and composed by the talented Alhambra conductor are numerous, to say the least, some of the favourites being "Across a field of daisies," sung by Miss Florence Singer; "When alone I dream," sung by Miss Ruth Davenport; and "The west wind calls me home," which Mr Courtice Pounds helped to make popular by his brilliant vocal efforts. Mr Byng has composed reams of marches and gavottes, &c., and one work for which he deserves the highest commendation is his selection of old nursery rhymes put into operatic form. He wrote an orchestral suite called "Kenilworth," the motif of which was founded on an incident in Sir Walter Scott's novel of that name. Mr Byng is at present hard at work on the music for an opera on the subject of Paul Clifford, written by Mr Charles Fossett, and a romantic operatic piece by Mr Clement O'Neill, entitled Lamb's Eve.

When he has time for recreation, cycling and rowing have a great attraction for Mr Byng. He knows well how to handle a pair of sculls, and is hardly less expert in the work of pedalling along country highways and byeways. He is a big favourite with all the members of the Alhambra orchestra.

PENTRE Lyceum Theatre, which has been closed for the past two months, was reopened on Monday, and local patrons gave an enthusiastic welcome to Messrs Garside Knowles, and Ludlow's company in The London Fireman. The piece, which is full of dramatic incidents, is powerfully interpreted by a very strong cast, including Mr Hodgson Taylor as Hal Curtis, the fireman, whose portrayal was of a very high order, seconded by the clever acting of Miss Mona Gray as Ida Curtis. Mr Edward Garside as Ratty Curtis gave a fine impersonation of the designing adventurer. All the other parts were well sustained.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

It is proposed that a bust of the late Mr Herbert Campbell should be placed in the vestibule of Drury-lane Theatre. The scheme commends itself greatly to the legion of the lamented comedian's admirers. He found congenial scope for his comic abilities in the Christmas productions at the National Theatre, and to perpetuate his memory with those who so heartily appreciated his truly British spirit of geniality and heartiness is a graceful thing to do.

At the monthly meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund, held on Tuesday at the York Hotel, Mr Frank Heath in the chair, Mr Pat Carey, the popular Irish comedian, was unanimously elected president of the society in the place of the late Mr Herbert Campbell. The election of a trustee as successor of the late Mr Herbert Sparks was postponed. It was agreed that the next ordinary meeting should be held on Wednesday, Oct. 5, and also that in future the monthly meetings shall take place on the second Wednesday in the month, instead of the second Tuesday as hitherto. In addition to the chairman, the members present were Messrs W. J. Wainratta, W. H. Handley, H. E. High, J. Mulcaster, and W. West.

Mr Dan Leno has been enlivening the visitors to Douglas, where he distributed the prizes in a cake-walk competition at Derby Castle, and, of course, kept his audience in a roar. What he said was something like this:—"Of course, I don't really understand this sort of business. If it was a little whisky and soda I might. My dad was one of those spiritualists. Mother used to say he believed in spiritualism. He would get a few friends in on a Saturday, and they would put money on the table. The spirits appeared, and the table and the room went round, and more spirits came and big things got hold of them and threw them out. I have heard father say that mother was a bit of a spiritualist, but mother was really more of a beerist. That dance has put into me a feeling just like this," whereupon the famous comedian danced himself off the stage amid loud cries of "Encore." Mr Leno is now on the Moss tour, and opened at the Empire, Liverpool, on Monday. He gets back to the London Pavilion in September.

Mr Bransby Williams, who is now resting with his family in the neighbourhood of Selsey Bill, has just finished a fifteen weeks' tour. His success in every town has been most gratifying, and has been the medium of some most edifying Press comments. He has been starring in his popular sketch "87," but has introduced each week a Dickens night, which has proved a most popular feature. Hard and incessant work has slightly affected the popular young character actor's throat, and he will not return to town until the 22d, when he opens with Mr Oswald Stoll at the Shepherd's Bush Empire.

Various reports have long been current concerning the fate of some of our suburban theatres, and when we announced the resignation of Mr Jack de Frece we stated that he would devote his energies in the near future to the organising and establishing as variety houses of several suburban theatres which at the present time are not answering the purpose of their promoters as temples of the Drama. The first of these is to be the Metropole, Camberwell, which will be opened by Mr J. B. Mulholland as a variety theatre on the two houses a-night plan on Sept. 12. Mr Jack de Frece will be manager of this enterprise, and there are other suburban theatres that will join in a new circuit. Some of these might easily be named, but it is not well to be too previous in such matters.

Mr Eugene Stratton, who was reported by his friends of the Vaudeville Club to be looking particularly fit and well, has returned from his second visit to the States this year. He has taken in his native town of Buffalo, and has had a most enjoyable time round and about the majestic scenery in the neighbourhood of Niagara. After a short provincial tour he will return to London in September.

Miss Ida Rene is by no means lost to musical comedy, though for the present Mr George Edwardes has not been able to find a part at all commensurate with her abilities. She will vary her experiences by going to New York next month, where she will be heard at the Casino, under engagement to the Shubert Brothers.

When the Lyceum starts its career as a variety theatre it will be found to have the largest stage of any house of a similar kind. Some idea of its size may be gathered when it is stated that the width of its proscenium opening exceeds that of Drury-lane by 4ft. To be exact it is to be 42ft.

Mr Paul Valadon, whose legerdemain for several years has been an attractive feature of the Maskelyne and Cooke entertainments at the Egyptian Hall, took his leave on Saturday, previous to his departure for America, where he has been engaged for two years. Mr Maskelyne expressed his great regret at the loss of so able an entertainer, who was presented with a flower pedestal and basket by Mr and Mrs Horace Goldin and Mr T. Nelson Downs. We regretto hear that Mrs Valadon will be unable to accompany her husband, in consequence of an impending operation.

Agents have the greatest difficulty in finding really good and entertaining performers. This difficulty will be increased when the Lyceum and Coliseum come into competition with the existing variety theatres at Christmas. There is a fortune for anyone who can devise a novel turn or think out something sensational. With the growing popularity of song scenas, it becomes a question for variety theatre managers whether it would not be advisable to have a small permanent chorus or ballet attached to the larger houses. The work of a clever lyrical writer would in this way be given a chance that at the present time it only gets in musical comedy.

Miss Kate Carney has been securing honours on the racecourse, her mare Princess Jessie scoring a good win on Monday at Ripon in the Bondgate Handicap Plate. On Tuesday 'Liza Johnson was second in the Ripon City Handicap Plate, and Bitter Almond was placed third in the Innkeepers' Selling Handicap Plate.

The sketch controversy, which has not been so prominent a topic in music hall circles since the adjournment of the Empire summons sine die, threatens to become more acute than ever. Few, if any, of the dramettas or comediettas now being played exceed the thirty minutes' limit, but it is understood that the Theatrical Managers' Association have instructed their solicitor to prosecute what they consider to be flagrant cases. In the provinces, some of the theatre managers intend during next summer to put on mixed programmes of sketches and variety turns, in order to attract the classes that at present prefer the music halls.

A well-known writer for the variety stage has written to a notorious Member of Parliament gravely informing him that the best beverage to cool the blood this tropical weather is "Piratec Saline.

Mr Alfred Butt, who is the popular business and assistant-manager at the Palace Theatre, is taking holiday in Switzerland. On his return his chief, Mr Charles Morton, will take a fortnight's rest, though this will not be until after he has celebrated his birthday on the 15th.

The Metropole Theatre, Gateshead, is to undergo extensive alterations, and on Monday, Aug. 22, will be opened as a variety house.

Mr Johnny Thornborrow, the genial and active little manager of the Empire, Middlesbrough, is about to take a sea voyage. Though he has made wonderful progress towards complete recovery since his recent serious illness, he is still far from well. His many friends in and out of the profession will join with us in the hope that Mr Thornborrow will derive great benefit from his trip.

The Victoria Theatre, Broughton, which had been closed for several weeks, during which it had been redecorated and transformed from a house of the drama to that of variety bi-nightly shows, opened on Monday to overflowing houses, under the management of Mr C. Smith-Wilkes, who provided a programme of excellent quality, and so long that encores asked for could not be allowed.

After a month's closure the Grand Theatre, Newcastle-on-Tyne, was reopened on Monday as a music hall on the two-houses-a-night plan. The house has been beautifully decorated by Messrs Dean and Co., of Birmingham, and some charming cloths have been painted by Mr C. H. Frampton.

Mr Frank Macnaghten's new offices are now fairly established at Lincoln, and the painters, decorators, and paper-hangers having retired, a very handsome series of rooms is shown. The painting of the woodwork is all in white, and the decoration of the rooms is in a rich deep red or a soft shade of green, with most graceful picture cornices. The spacious rooms are arranged very methodically for the large and growing business of the circuit, and Lincoln people are welcoming back Mr Sydney Arthur, who not only resumes his old post of manager of the Lincoln Palace, but is now installed as general manager of the circuit.

The staff of the Empire, Middlesbrough, spent a happy day on Sunday last at Croft Spa. Leaving the metropolis of the iron district soon after eight, they did the journey by road, and returned shortly after 10 0 p.m. During the day a short programme of sports was gone through.

The Empire, Rochdale, is the latest addition to the amusement palaces in that busy and enterprising town. It is the property of Mr Thomas Hargreaves, whose son, Mr Frank Hargreaves, is the general manager. The new building is advantageously placed in the Town Hall square, and holds 1,500, and it has cost about £7,000.

Glasgow will, in the course of a couple of weeks' time, lose a familiar entertainer in the person of Mr E. H. Bostock, of the Scottish Zoo and Hippodrome. This news will be regretfully received by the Glasgow public, with whom Mr Bostock is deservedly popular. It is now seven years since the Scottish Zoo was opened in Glasgow, and in the course of that time the place has been conducted on capital lines, and a long-felt want in such a city as this has been admirably supplied. Prior to the opening of the Hippodrome Mr Barrasford, of London, was invited to become a partner, and under the joint management the Hippodrome prospered exceedingly. Some time ago, however, the partners disagreed, and the breach has terminated in Mr Bostock parting with his interest in the concern.

Miss Louise Beaudet, the charming singing-actress, who has won renown in all parts of what Mr Micawber would call "the habitable globe," has made a highly successful start in a new musical and dramatic scena, entitled Touring the Varieties. This has been expressly written by Mr H. Chance-Newton and composed by Mr Robert Coverley. The special scene is by Mr Baker, of the Shakespeare, Clapham, and the gorgeous costumes are by Harrison's, Limited

Dr. Walford Bodie finishes to-night at the Palace, Dundee, where he has been performing to packed houses nightly. During his stay of two weeks at the Palace Theatre, Aberdeen, he broke all his previous records, opening on the Monday night to £100 odd, and playing to overflowing houses nightly, despite the hot weather and great trade depression. Mr Sheldon has again booked him with his combination for one month next year. Dr. Bodie opens on Monday next at Collins's and the London, and will remain in London one month, after which he resumes his Scotch and provincial tour of four months, returning again to London at Christmas for two months. Dr. Bodie has just signed a batch of contracts for London amounting to £3,200, and is fully booked till 1906.

Mr Will Downes (of Downes and Langford) was passing along one of the thoroughfares of Glasgow last week when his attention was directed to a couple of policemen struggling with some roughs in an excited crowd. In their endeavours to arrest one of the gang the "force" looked like getting the worst of it when Mr Downes came to the aid of law and order, and with a straight left floored some of the disorderly ones, rendering valuable service until further police assistance arrived.

Mr Harry Marvello, partner in the firm of Lee and Arden, has just received another mark of Royal favour. Mr Marvello has been again engaged by her Royal Highness Princess Louise (the Duchess of Fife) to give his conjuring and ventriloquial entertainment at Duff House to-day (Saturday). This makes Mr Marvello's fourth appearance before Royalty, he having been at Balmoral Castle on two occasions and at Duff House during Coronation year.

The Palace, Dundee, will reopen on Monday next, under the general management of Mr Ernest Sheldon. The post of acting-manager will still be filled by Mr Will Parker, and Mr Alf. Ross will be secretary and treasurer.

Mr W. F. Frame began his autumn tour on the Island of Bute. He is entertaining crowds nightly on the banks of the Clyde, where he is known as the great "Hooch-aye."

Clyo and Rochelle return to town on Monday for one week only, after fourteen weeks tour in the country.

The staff of the Paragon Music Hall have arranged to take their annual outing on the 21st of this month, when they will go to Clacton-on-Sea.

The staff of the Walthamstow Palace will take their first outing on Sunday, the 14th inst., at the Metropole, Southend-on-Sea. The party will be accompanied by Mr Arthur J. Barclay, the popular manager.

The staff of the Granville, Walham-green, will betake themselves to the sea on Sunday next, when they will journey to Portsmouth. They will afterwards have a short spell on the ocean wave, in a voyage to the Needles.

The Hackney Empire staff will have its outing to-morrow, when a large party will enjoy the cool delights of an up-river trip.

Mr Harry Poole, son of the late Mr H. H. Poole and Mrs Ellen Poole, of the South London Palace, was married on Saturday last to Maude Lilian Evans, a daughter of Mr Fred Evans, the well-known clown and pantomimist, and sister of the popular Will Evans. The happy couple start on their honeymoon next week. Mr Poole was at one time acting-manager at the Tivoli.

Considerable interest is still being evinced in Miss Minni Letta's walking feats at the Pavilion. One cannot help noticing her pretty style and the graceful way in which she makes her nightly appearance before the footlights. She comes on the stage in a white tailor-made costume of box-cloth, with salmon pink facings, diamond buttons and silver and lace trimmings, while from under a white panama hat trimmed with silk a pretty face acknowledges the compliments of the audience. Miss Letta possesses a good figure, and very winsome and charming she looks in her picturesque and well-fitting short walking shirt and silk blouse. She stands out prominently among the three other "sporting" girls, who are attired in delightful costumes of brown, orange and fawn, and grey. This week Miss Letta has performed a quarter of a mile on her moving track in 1min. 35sec., her previous record being 4sec. less, and she hopes to do better than that. Her engagement at the Pavilion terminates early in September, after which she goes to the Alhambra, Paris, for a couple of months, for a similar period at Berlin, and subsequently at Prague and other German towns.

Mr Albert Letta, the inventor of the revolving track, experimented on it for eight months prior to opening at the Pavilion on the 4th of last month. He spent no less a sum than £1,100 on perfecting the machinery and getting it to run smoothly, and when he first brought it before the public at the Palace, Manchester, he experienced a good deal of trouble, owing to the tremendous friction engendered during the working of the engines. He is now having four electric motors built in order that the use of his present gas engine may be rendered unnecessary.

Miss Minni Letta, it may be mentioned, is athletic in more directions than one. She is a first-rate swimmer, enjoys sculling on a rough sea, is a good cyclist, and an expert with Indian clubs and dumbbells.

The funeral of the late Mr Fred Lacey took place on Tuesday afternoon at Tooting Cemetery at 2 15. The cortège, which consisted of a mourning coach and three carriages, left the undertaker's, Mr Theophilus Dunkley, 88, Westminster-bridge-road, at one o'clock, there being many friends present to witness its departure. The mourning coach was occupied by the chief mourners, Messrs W. J. P. Monckton and C. Douglas Stuart, and in carriages were Messrs Douglas White (hon. treasurer of the M.H.A.R.A.), Fred W. Millis, Harry Blake, John Alexander, George Bandurria, J. E. Dunedin, Joe Lavender, and Charles Cornish (all members of the committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association) In another carriage were Messrs Burrows-Smith (representing Mr Leo Dryden, who is out of London), Walter Norman, George Preston, and Jim Elvo. The last carriage contained Messrs J. Driscoll, Jim King, Marzello, and Frank Slocum.

On the arrival at the cemetery there were a number of other friends waiting, including Mrs Douglas Stuart and Master Claude Stuart, Mrs Klasen and son, Mr Charles Coborn, Mrs Cecil Merrie, and Mr Will Dodds, &c. The service was impressively read by the chaplain of the cemetery, after which the procession walked to the grave where the concluding words were pronounced. Several handsome wreaths were sent, including those from the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association, the Terriers' Association, Mr and Mrs Fred Millis, a large one with the inscription "From a few old friends," Mr Edgar Lee, Miss Rosie May, Fenton and Harcourt, Mr and Mrs Harry Lester, Mr Will Helmsley, Mr and Mrs J. Gillmore, Mr and Mrs Klasen and son, and a cross from Mr and Mrs Douglas Stuart.

Amongst those present either at Westminster-bridge-road or at the cemetery, not enumerated above, were Miss Edna Cragge and Messrs Griff, Fred Maxwell, Sydney Monckton, Fred Hughes, Ben Woodger, Fenton and Harrison, Bill Toole, Johnny Gilmore, Harry Softley, and Mr Klasen. The arrangements made by Mr Dunkley were excellent. Friends desirous of visiting the grave are informed that the number is Plot F, 225, Lambeth Cemetery.

The 366th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon, Mr Charles Coborn, V.P., presiding. The secretary reported that twenty-one new members had joined during the past week, making the total number enrolled since the commencement 10 395. Mr Clemart and Mr Jim Elmo were elected as members of the committee.

Members of the M.H.A.R.A. are particularly requested to note that the new agent at Chatham is Mr E. Moyce, and that Mr A. Brittain, of the Gaiety Theatre, Douglas, Isle of Man, has also been appointed as agent.

Mr G. H. Chirgwin, who is at Hastings, had a glorious run down on his new 18 h.p. Siddeley car. He tells us that it is a beauty, and runs perfectly. The popular comedian will have many an enjoyable run on it during his tour, in which he is scoring a gratifying success.

Our readers will regret to hear that, as the result of a consultation between two eminent London physicians, Mrs Eustace Jay, the wife of the popular manager of the Croydon Palace of Varieties, is to undergo a very serious operation on Monday next. On that date Mr Jay completes his sixth year at the Palace, and he has never missed sending his daily report to the chairman of directors—a record of which he is naturally very proud. Mr and Mrs Jay's many friends have expressed much sympathy with them in their domestic crisis.

Mr Tom Foy's success as "The Yorkshire Lad in London" at the Oxford is a subject for hearty congratulations, and his numerous friends have not been slow in offering them. He returns to town on the 22nd inst. Mr Foy has acquired a comic song likely to admirably suit his striking individuality and quaint method. It is entitled "I reckon he'll be much obliged to me." In it the singer details how, to oblige a relative, he has taken charge of a small farm for a month; and, though requested to do no work, has gone in for a little amateur husbandry, which, he trusts, will greatly gratify the owner on his return. The words are by the author of "If it wasn't for the 'ouses in between," and the song has been published by Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Mr Philip Sefton, who has been appearing with such conspicuous success this week at the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Hammersmith, in a revival of the dramatic monologue On Guard, which the late Charles Godfrey made famous some years ago, has arranged with the author, Mr Harry Adams, to write an up to-date version, which will be produced shortly. The second scene, including the world-famous song "Here upon guard am I," will, however, remain intact. Mr Sefton has also secured the rights of The Wreck and other sketches and monologues of which Mr Adams is the author, and will present the same in a first-class manner to the public in due course.

The total amount received and banked to the credit of Mrs Jean Stanley now stands at £82 10s. The committee still hopes to make up the £100, and is doing all it can to procure some employment in theatre or hall to enable Mrs Stanley to support herself and daughter without touching the bank account, if possible. She thoroughly appreciates the response from her friends in such a time of trouble. Further sums have been received from Mr Phil Ray, £3 15s. (Water Rats balance); and Mr B. Soane Robey (per R. Warner), £1.

The shareholders of the Euston, Limited; the New South London, Limited; the Chelsea Palace Syndicate, Limited; and the Walthamstow Palace, Limited, all companies owning two-houses-a-night halls, met on the 29th ult., at the Freemasons' Tavern, and practically unanimously agreed to amalgamate their interests. The new company, the Variety Theatres Consolidated, Limited, which is taking over the various undertakings and their assets, will have a nominal capital of £250,000 in shares of £1 each, of which 130,000 will be issued to the shareholders of the several companies, based, as far as practicable, upon ascertained past earnings, as follows:—New South London, 28,000 shares, being four £1 shares for every £5 share; Euston, 45 000 shares, being three £1 shares for every two £1 shares; Chelsea Palace Syndicate, 27,000 shares, being three £1 shares for every two £1 shares; and Walthamstow Palace, 30,000 shares, being one £1 share for every £1 share.

For the purpose of dealing with the several debenture issues of the four concerns, the new company will issue First Mortgage Debentures of £50 each, carrying 5 per cent. interest, payable half-yearly, to the amount of £47,500, Mr Joseph Davis, Mr Henri Gros, Mr George Adney Payne, and Mr Henry Tozer will be the directors of the consolidated company, Mr Tozer acting in the capacity of chairman, and Mr Gros and Mr Payne as joint managing directors.

Presiding at the Euston meeting, and afterwards at the Walthamstow meeting, Mr Henri Gros observed that the scheme of amalgamation had been decided upon in order to maintain the present success of the halls interested against the ever-growing competition of rival concerns. The margin of debenture and share capital in the Variety Theatres Consolidated (Limited) would enable the directors to avail themselves of any opportunity of taking over any other well-proved successful place of entertainment. At present there was no free market in the shares of the various companies because of the small individual capitals, but as one of the beneficial results of consolidation he had no doubt that the shares would not only find a ready market, but stand at a premium. The present profits of the four companies were ample to pay 10 per cent. on the capital of the amalgamated company after allowing for depreciation, &c.

Mr Henry Tozer, the chairman of the New South London (Limited) and Chelsea Palace Syndicate (Limited), at extraordinary general meetings of the shareholders of those companies, said he was confident that the scheme would be for the benefit of everyone concerned in the four companies, and he was glad that the shareholders had so readily and so thoroughly accepted it.

One of the Australian dancers, the twin Sisters Anderson, had a narrow escape on Thursday at the Middlesex. Suddenly, while dancing, her hair ignited and blazed away till it was extinguished. The cause of the trouble was a celluloid comb in the hair, which in some way or other began to burn. It is said that the electricity in the body will set these combs ablaze. The lady had a narrow escape of being disfigured for life.

There will be a considerable change in the programme at the Empire on Monday, the alterations including the return of Marguerite Cornille, the charming chanteuse, with an entirely new répertoire; H. Sloan, a burlesque juggler; Iben Obed, an Arab acrobat; and Jean Prix and Miss Annie, who in a barber's saloon do some eccentric painting. Last, but not least, there is the popular divertissement High Jinks, which seems to have taken a new lease of life.

By-the-way, in speaking of the popular divertissement, we should state that at present it is without the services of that exquisite dancer Mdlle. Genée, but an excellent substitute has been found in Miss E. Cleve. Mdlle. Genée's absence is only temporary. She is taking a well-deserved and much-needed holiday.

Mr Tatten Hall must be the envy of many of his audience, when he lolls in bed and sings a song. It is a philosophical dissertation on the general undesirability of any sort of exertion, and the doctrine of inertness so amusingly expounded by Mr Hall—who is now fulfilling a successful series of engagements in the provinces—finds a number of ready adherents this torrid weather.

Mr Tom Costello has returned to town for ten weeks with a brilliantly successful répertoire, including the new song scena entitled "Mad Willie; or, Ding-Dong Bell" in which we see the popular actor-comique in a new and interesting character.

On Wednesday Mr Justice Darling concluded the hearing of the case of Baucus v. Urban. The plaintiff claimed a declaration that 5,000 shares in the Warwick Trading Company, which stand in the name of the defendant, and were held in trust, should be transferred, or, in the alternative, damages. Defendant denied that the shares were held in trust by him for the plaintiff. Attempts were made at the first day's hearing to settle the action, but were unsuccessful, and, after hearing the evidence, his lordship held in favour of the defendant, and gave judgment accordingly, with costs.

Mr Frank Weeks is arranging to celebrate in first-class style the fifth anniversary of the opening of the South London Palace of Varieties, and he will give his patrons an "extra special" programme on the 19th inst., when the house itself will be decorated inside and out.

A wrestling match for a silver cup, presented by the popular Mr W. J. Grimes, and a handsome piece of plate by Mr John Cramp, of Smithfield Market, between Mr Keifer (Kennington) and Mr A. Wrangham (Brixton) takes place at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday, at 9 0 o'clock. A contest between these well-known amatuers should prove exciting.

Miss Florrie Forde, who has been starring on the Moss tour, opens on Monday at Blackpool, and afterwards for two weeks at Douglas, Isle of Man, returning then to the Moss tour. Miss Forde does not return to town until Sept. 26.

The Foresters' is at the present moment undergoing a few alterations and improvements. The walls of the passages leading to the auditorium are being decorated in white enamel and white paint, with a yellow beading, and fresh electric lamps are being fixed to the ceiling. Mr Baugh has also put into use a new idea. He has had a couple of easels bearing photographs of the artists who are performing during the following week placed in the entrances, and these make a very effective advertisement. Red electric globes have been set over the doorway of each exit in compliance with the regulations of the London County Council.

Brien M'Cullough produces his new farcical sketch, Two Runaway Girls, for the first time on Monday at the Grand, Clapham. The scenery is by Francis Bull and the uniforms are by John Hyman. We wish him every success.

Mr Pate Murray, the able manager of the Foresters', will start upon a well-earned rest at the end of next week, when he will betake himself to one of the pretty and picturesque hamlets which nestle by the side of Father Thames.

THE HIPPODROME.

The auditorium of the London Hippodrome is one of the most delightful places imaginable on a hot, stifling evening in London. In mere gratitude we must emphasise the scientific care which has been taken to provide, even in the heat of summer, a perfectly pure and fresh atmosphere. On the programmes it is stated—"The observer will notice this and that," but so few amongst the public are "observers" that it is necessary to call everyone's attention to the facts of the case:—The space round the open colonnade in the ceiling is perforated. In a space of 60ft. by 60ft. round the colonnade, and above the ceiling, is a ventilating chamber, the perforations visible being in the floor of this chamber. All the air is drawn from outside the roof by a great revolving fan, resembling a paddle wheel, through a saturated screen of matting which revolves in iced water and is thus cleansed of impurities, and then forced downward through the perforated ceiling. The air in the auditorium at the Hippodrome is thus both cooler and cleaner than the atmosphere of the street; for it has been subjected to two processes—those of cleansing and refrigeration, which have improved it immensely. Of course, all the comfort possible will not compensate for an inferior entertainment; but the Hippodrome management takes care that the high standard which it has set up for itself is ever maintained. A very pretty picture, or series of pictures, is supplied by Salamonsky with his "Fire Horse." The animal is clad in cloth of gold and sumptuous trappings; and, with the aid of lights of different colours, an effect is obtained which is both brilliant and artistic. The well-trained animal also explodes with his foot a number of fireworks, and stands unmoved in a surrounding shower of sparks and flames. Those marvellously strong, active, and graceful equestrians the Anthony Powell Family repeat their daring and dashing performance, now so well known as not to need further description. The admiration they excite is as keen and demonstrative as ever. Morris Cronin and his troupe of modern jugglers are remarkably expert; at one point the stage is a perfect maze of bottles, with which this talented combination does some extraordinary feats. Francis Wylie has a thoroughly well-trained "pack" of canine performers, the little white dog who stands on his fore legs and does other clever tricks being especially admired. Boswell's miniature circus is still a strong item of the Hippodrome bill, and supplies in itself a bright, smart, and agreeable entertainment. Alexander and Hughes perform on various instruments in skilful and accomplished style; and that inimitable droll, Marceline, convulses the audience by his irresistibly comic business, and excites the admiration of all by his great activity and agility. Carl Hertz, as illusionist and conjuror, is too famous for any description of his well-known achievements in the art of puzzling and bewildering the public to be necessary. His startling and astounding achievements evoke great enthusiasm, and the applause with which this is expressed is eloquent in praise of the consummate "magician." Mdlle. Gertrella has realised that the best trapeze business may be rendered more attractive by being done in front of a pretty scene, and led up to by a little classical pantomime. Her speciality act, "In Cupid's Garden," is very dainty and delightful. Warm approbation is nightly bestowed upon the Kellinos, who, in "Venetia," combine acrobatism and musical skill in a wonderfully expert way; and the head-balancing of the Maningos is excellent of its kind, and well deserves the vigorous plaudits which it evokes. The daring feats of Newhouse on his tall "bike" and in his sideway jumping from one high platform to another are very sensational; and Ward, as the tramp on the wheel, is intensely grotesque, and at the same time extremely skilful. Altogether, the entertainment at the Hippodrome is an ideal one for the present weather; and the cool suggestions of Siberia complete the attractions of the cleverly contrived and well-arranged programme.

The Oxford announces for Monday the important engagement of The Belle of the Orient, a musical comedy sketch, which has already been favourably noticed in our columns. The performance of Turkish dances gives a realistic idea of the diversions in the home of an Eastern Sultan, and the costumes, scenery, and effects are on a rich and lavish scale.

After a notably successful engagement of a month at the Tivoli music hall—where, by the way, he was given the 9·25 "turn"—Valazzi opens this week for a run of the same duration at the Oxford. His leap over one table on to a cannon-ball resting on another, and his subsequent "sloping the slope" whilst standing upon the ball, are both unique feats of strength and skill. His juggling with tennis-balls, a straw hat, and a tennis-racquet is particularly neat and effective. Mr Valazzi is the only juggler who has mastered the immensely difficult trick of keeping eight regulation tennis-balls going in the air at the same time. He does it without the suggestion of a mistake. This week, in addition to the Oxford, he is appearing with success at the Canterbury.

The staff of the Empress, Brixton, held their annual outing this year at Walton-on-Thames on Sunday last, the weather being all that could be desired. Three fully laden four-in-hand coaches carried the party, and the popular Mr W. J. Grimes, present on horseback, gave them a hearty send-off. The manager, Mr Nelson Francis, and his lieutenant, Mr Cooke Frankish, accompanied the party, which consisted of fifty all told. At an excellent déjeuner, provided by the hostess of the Swan Hotel, the usual loyal toasts were gone through, and Mr Francis proposed the chairman and directors of the Empress Theatre of Varieties. Messrs Frankish and Sanders spoke in eulogistic terms of the management and staff and the party then made for the river, boating, &c., occupying the remainder of the time until tea. The homeward journey through a different route was then made, the crowd arriving at the Empress soon after eleven. A most enjoyable outing.

Miss Katie Lawrence, after a most successful season in town, is away on a south coast tour. Her famous song "Oh! Charlie!" is repeating its triumphs this week at the Palace of Varieties, Plymouth, where the hero of the ditty is represented by Mr Charlie Deane, of "All in a Row" fame.

Messrs Frank Oldfield and Co., the well-known theatrical printers of Ludgate-square, E.C., have nearly ready a huge new printing office in South London, to supplement their City establishment, and, when finished, it will be replete with all the latest and most up-to-date appliances for the production of high-class lithographic work. The new posters they are now exhibiting for pantomimes on all the usual nursery subjects display striking originality.

Quite a number of well-known authors and composers will be making Brighton their headquarters during the forthcoming fortnight, including J. P. Harrington, A. J. Mills, Bennett Scott, and Maurice Scott.

Mr Henry E. Pather, the music editor of Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter's establishment, returns to business on Monday after a fortnight's vacation at Great Yarmouth. Mr J. Airlie-Dix has been spending a similar enjoyable period at Lowestoft, much to the detriment of the denizens of the deep, he being a mighty fisherman.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE TIVOLI.

The pleasure to be derived from turns of a refined character is always to be found at the Tivoli, and the Bank Holiday programme presented to a large and enthusiastic audience on Monday is no exception to this excellent rule. The Tivolians, indeed, are fortunate in being able to listen to an accomplished artiste in Miss Winifred Hare, an actress who has won triumphs both in comic opera and musical comedy. Miss Hare, as many of our readers will remember, was the heroine in The Silver Slipper, and has appeared also with great success for several years in the role of principal boy at the Coronet Theatre, Notting-hill. Her engagement by variety managers adds to the lesser stage a decided acquisition. Miss Hare, who is both dainty and pretty, has been winning golden opinions by her singing at sings with real culture. She interprets with considerable chic and a great deal of charm three songs, the most successful of which is "White Little Girl" specially written by Hannen Swaffer and Hermann E. Darewski, jun. This is a catchy number that should take the fancy of the town, and should be heard at every street corner. In its interpretation Miss Hare has the assistance of a young lady. Other items in her répertoire are "The Maid of Hindostan" and "The Glee Maiden." Miss Ada Colley, who the Grand Opera House, Berlin, is gifted with a voice of exceptional range, and she displayed the charm of her well-trained organ in "The Nightingale's Trill," by that most sympathetic of composers for the voice, Wilhelm Ganz. This solo was delivered with brilliant effect. To the "Holy City," a selection that has been much hackneyed, Miss Colley gave a certain freshness by singing it in a very high key, and finished on the D in alt—a tour de force that brought down the house. Mr Bert Gilbert has made himself such a favourite in the Strand — at Terry's Theatre close by — that he can scarcely be regarded as a stranger by audiences at the Tivoli, many of whom have reason to remember the rich fun of his Micky O'Dowd in that successful comic opera My Lady Molly. Mr Gilbert has excellent scope for his talents for low comedy in "It's my Birthday." Mr Hamilton Hill, who returns to the Tivoli after a short absence, possesses a voice of excellent quality, and infuses much earnestness into his rendering of a new song "Good-bye Little Girl" by the author of "Dolly Gray," and also scores greatly in his second contribution, the words of which are from the pen of that graceful lyrist, Clifton Bingham, and the music by Edward St. Quinten. It is entitled "Life's Delight," and is both joyous and impressive. Gymnastics on the stage have reached such a pitch of perfection that the remarkable feats of years ago have become quite commonplace. It is, therefore, to the greater credit of the Brothers Bright, a couple of finely built gymnasts, that they have sufficient originality to present a show that is veritably a series of surprises. Their athletic skill, muscular grace, and rare agility enable them to give one of the most effective exhibitions that it has been our lot to witness for some time. An agreeable feature of their doings, too, is the absence of fuss and the apparent ease with which every feat is accomplished. A very great favourite in the holiday bill is Miss Ray Wallace, who has a wide range of imitations, not being restricted to the variety stage for her subjects. She treats with great success such widely different artistes as Marie Lloyd, Vesta Tilley, and Julie Mackey. Dutch Daly fills in a pleasant ten minutes with his smartly told gags, many of which are old acquaintances. But what matters—they are greeted with the hearty familiarity that is the happy lot of old friends. Concertina playing of a most acceptable kind marks the conclusion of Mr Daly's turn, and his popularity, which has lasted for at least two generations of music hall frequenters, continues unabated. Bright and happy in her swell coon impersonation, Miss May Henderson, who rejoices in the title of "the dusky queen," gives to her turn a vim and sparkle that are immensely exhilarating. Dancing is somewhat neglected on the variety stage at the present time, and it is Miss Henderson's purpose to show modern audiences the beautiful regularity and perfect stepping that can be introduced into a jig, a task in which she succeeds perfectly. Mr Mark Sheridan, who may be always relied upon for quaint contributions, has a capital parody on the famous "Pansy Faces." It is entitled "Japaneasy Faces." He is also well fitted in his song, "All the little ducks go quack." Early in the evening Miss Lily Soutter, an established favourite at this house, renews her triumphs in a capital song, "I'm a lady every time;" Miss Myra Stanfield, a clever soubrette, sings in light-hearted style "Visitors are requested not to touch;" Mr Harry Freeman is the disciple of cheery optimism in his song concerning troubles; and another genuine comedian is Mr Wilkie Bard, who has advanced quite to the front rank as a comic singer, and may be listed as a Tivoli favourite. Miss Lilian Rigby, a versatile young lady in her early teens, shows musical expertness on the sleigh-bells, and plays "My sweetheart when a boy." She also indulges in a cake-walk dance—a form of terpsichorean exercise in which Cline and Clark show to advantage. Wood and Bates afford genuine pleasure in their eccentricities and music; and Professor Duncan's faithful collies are as attractive as ever. Miss Peggie Lennie and Mr Walter Hast, in The Heirloom: a Christmas Dream, present a pretty fantasy, in which both artistes display considerable ability. Mr James Howell, who is in charge here, has had to change his programme in consequence of the illness of a couple of artistes; but he has managed to secure a very strong and attractive list of turns.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

It has been stated that the extreme heat this week has rendered audiences apathetic and disinclined to the exertion even of applauding artistes whose performances as a rule evoke enthusiastic demonstrations of approval and delight. Speaking from personal experience this remark hardly applies to the patrons of the Holloway Empire, who have certainly shown no lack of energy in expressing their appreciation of the several turns which form the current programme. Very hearty has been the welcome accorded the Two M'Naughtons, whose cross-talk never fails to put an audience into the merriest of moods, even with the thermometer at 90 deg. in the shade. The clever way in which these comedians gradually work up from a quiet conversation into a heated debate is a study. They head the bill this week, and they have well earned the distinction which this position in the list of attractions implies. The performers known as Roburtus and Wilfredo make an effective entrance, walking on as sedately as an archbishop, preceded by their remarkably clever dog, who also assumes an erect attitude. As ball manipulators these two gentlemen are wonderfully smart, and their performance is well worth watching. So, too, is the dog, who quietly looks on, but should one of the balls which his masters are juggling with go astray he is after it like a shot, bringing it back in his mouth. This intelligent animal also takes a seat in a chair and performs various amazing tricks, finally making quite a triumphant exit, having contributed in no small degree to the success of a capital show. A merry couple are Zanfretta and Napio, whose eccentric musical performance wins for them much popularity. Assuming the characters of knife-grinders, they keep up a flow of melody on various instruments. One of them gets a hearty round of applause for an admirably played solo on the violin; and they also excite mirth by making fun of the Scotch national garb. They have a charming assistant in Mdlle. Vilbert. An American comedy sketch, entitled The Bogus Duke and the American Heiress, is brightly given by Hume, Ross, and Lewis. One of these scores as a step-dancer, an accompaniment being played on the piano by the lady member of the trio; and he also appears in the character of a messenger boy who has the impertinence to pay court to the heiress. The way in which the lady punishes his presumption causes much merriment, and altogether the trio obtain a favourable reception. Herr Fritz has had the honour of presenting some of his marvellous illusions before the German Emperor. He is an expert at the hat trick, and he completely succeeds in mystifying the audience. Having got inside a large sack, he is placed in a cabinet and the curtains are drawn. In a few seconds it is found that he—sack and all—have disappeared, and in place thereof is a charming young lady. Such a complete master of the art of magic is certainly deserving of royal patronage. The British Quartet of vocalists and glee singers are on a return visit. They all possess good voices, which blend most harmoniously in popular melodies, such as "The March of the Cameron Men" and "Alice, where art thou?" Their selections are listened to with evident delight. Mr J. W. Hall, comedian, does well with "The good old dinner hour" and another ditty concerning one "Bill Bailey," whose home-coming is not a happy one. Mr J. A. Wilson, Negro comedian and dancer, appears in the character of a coloured swell, and next as a railway guard who engages in humorous discourse with the passengers. Miss Marie Weston meets with considerable success as a vocalist, a banjoist, and a neat step-dancer; and Miss Bijou Russell relies chiefly upon her ability as an exponent of the Terpsichorean art. Mr Chas. W. Adams, the manager here, is well qualified for his position, and Mr Thomas Gray exercises able control over an efficient orchestra.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

"Merry goes the time when the heart is young" says the song, and the popular Mr Coe and his acting-manager, Mr Lewis Vincent, have arranged a holiday programme that is merry enough to rejuvenate a host of Hammersmithians. In spite of the riparian delights of the neighbourhood the local dwellers have rewarded enterprise by attending in serried ranks the palace of delight that plays such an important part in the amusements of the Thames-side suburb, and there has been during the week no such thing as half-hearted encouragement of the many entertaining turns presented. Mr Mark Sheridan, a comedian who can always be relied upon to cause merriment, has a really funny parody on "Pansy Faces" entitled "Japaneasy Faces," and his comic rendering of "All the little ducks go quack, quack, quack," with many amusing remarks interpolated, is immensely appreciated. Laughter is heard immediately the Brothers Redmond—a couple of original humourists and skilful acrobats—emerge from a huge cornbin, seen in the centre of the stage. Their catch-phrase "Willie, come here" and their many other novel devices for creating hilarity never fail in their purpose. Neither must we forget the extreme cleverness of their feats, which are performed to an accompaniment of loud applause. Altogether a novel and amusing turn. Condon and Preston indulge in side-walk conversation, which is now considered a necessity with every pair of comedians, and their song "La-tiddley-umpty-ay" goes extremely well. They are expert dancers, and their top-boot stepping brings down the house. Griff is quite a hot weather humourist, and his wonderful nonchalance has quite a cooling effect on the temperament. His spoof is intensely amusing, and he has a very smart lad in Alpha, who is particularly good in his hoop performance. Miss Rose Hamilton, who has returned from a long stay in Australia, has been too long absent from London. Her popularity "down under" is being renewed at Hammersmith by her cleverness in a dialect ditty, which we may call "Going to shop." Herein she hits off cleverly the various accents of an American girl, a Glesca lassie, a Lancashire lass, and a donah from the East-end. She shows her great versatility, too, in a pleasing little scena, in which she is assisted by six little Japs. It is entitled A Hottentot in Japan. The sextet of kiddies are completely hidden under a huge umbrella while Miss Hamilton sings the first verse. Afterwards they join in the chorus, dancing round, making play with their fans, and generally helping along the effect of a dainty and pleasing number, to which a neat step dance by Miss Hamilton herself forms a fitting conclusion. She is a great success. Mr Walter Stockwell, with a long white beard, appears as a rustic octogenarian. In the village where he resides there has been a flood, and the ribald youth call after him "Noah, Noah, we've never seen you before," inferring that he has been buried in the mud for ages, and making inquiries concerning the Ark. Another capital chorus song that does Mr Stockwell good service is "I'm so cosy," and the house exercises its lungs unanimously and vigorously. Mr Billy English in the happiest and most irresponsible fashion hits off in a humorous style the walks of the inhabitants of various cities in America and England, and, as a matter of course, includes Hammersmith in the series. The Two Bees are favourites everywhere, and Hammersmith gives them an excellent welcome; and Miss Julia Feaviour, comedienne and dancer; Mr Jack Pleasants, comedian; Mr Tom Parker, comedian; and Miss Kathleen Gray appear with success early in the evening. A very important production is On Guard. The name of the late Charles Godfrey naturally rises to the lips in connection with this celebrated episode, which was produced as far back as 1882, when its popularity was established at the same time as the fame of its chief interpreter. It is produced at Hammersmith in three scenes, the second of which shows the trenches before Sebastopol, where the hero is wounded. Mr Philip Sefton plays the hero, Jack Middleton, with virility and force; and he receives able assistance from Mr Victor Wilder, Mr Tom Danby, and Miss Isabel Compton. The novelty dance of the Twin Sisters Anderson is one of the most exhilarating items on the programme. These young ladies come from Australia, and their verve and vivacity in a pretty skipping-rope dance are remarkable. Dancing is rather tabooed by lady artistes on the music hall stage; but the ringing applause that greets the Misses Anderson shows that audiences in suburban London at least are appreciative of Terpsichorean grace and skill. Other attractions in the bill are provided by the Brothers Wilson and the Edisonograph with all the latest pictures.

THE LATE ARTHUR LLOYD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In the reminiscences given by Mr Douglas Stuart of that lamented comedian, he says that Mr Arthur Lloyd made his first appearance in London in 1862, and that he appeared at the Philharmonic, Sun, and Marylebone, and quoted his songs, viz., "Beef, Pork, and Mutton, will you Buy?" "Acting Mad," and "Street Musician." I beg to say that in the same year he also appeared at the old Winchester Music Hall, Suffolk-street, S.E., and that one of his very best songs at that time was "I'll place it in the hands of my solicitor," which became all the rage in the early sixties. The old Winchester at that time was carried on by the then proprietor, Mr Preece, sen., afterwards by Mr Preece, jun., and lastly by Mr W. B. Fair. I have good reason to remember well the year 1862, having been a theatre and music hall goer from my boyhood, and am now between seventy and eighty years of age. You likewise speak of the fortunes of the old Surrey Theatre; but you make a big breach from 1824 to 1865, leaving out two of its best proprietors, viz., Mr Davidge, in the early forties, and Mr Bunn, in the fifties, when such actors as Mr Saville, Mr Honour, Mr Fredricks, T. P. Cooke, Mr Widdicombe, and Mr Bruce Norton were in their prime. It was here that Sands, the great ceiling-walker, made his first appearance in the early fifties.

Yours faithfully, AN OLD PLAYGOER.

A CHAT WITH MR. HARRY WRIGHT.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Mr Harry Wright, the well-known comedian, started his professional career in much the same way that the majority of our present-day artists began—as an amateur. And as an amateur he may be said to have distinguished himself, for on one occasion, in competition, he won a silver cup for singing James Taylor's "Johnny Walker" at Collins's Music Hall. That was in 1868, and since then Mr Wright's popularity has gradually increased until he is able now to claim the status of a star. His first engagement in London was at Deacon's Music Hall in November, 1869, and the first song he sang professionally was "Tinker Tom," written and composed by himself. He commenced his appearances in the provinces at the old Mitre Music Hall, Wigan, at the salary of 35s. per week, opening on Mondays at 12 0 noon, and working right on till 11·0 p.m. He had six songs then, and used to sing each one nine times over. Mr Wright also performed in conjunction with Fred Mackley at the Oxford Music Hall, Gravesend, where, in addition to singing eight songs nightly, he played the heavy part, in The Beacon Light, and the old man, in Love in a Tub. Mackley did a similar amount of work, and the two men shared £3 per week between them. After fulfilling several minor engagements in the country Mr Wright toured through Ireland with a circus company as a singing clown, after which he returned to London, and performed at most of the variety theatres then in existence, including the Trevor, Knightsbridge, the Royal, Holborn, the Middlesex, the Strand, and the Philharmonic. In 1875 he wrote and composed a song, entitled "I traced her little footmarks in the snow," which is still in print, and being sold at the present day. After he had been some considerable time in the profession Mr Wright, together with his wife, joined the Keegan and Elvin combination, with whom they remained for nearly ten years. He and his wife played the principal parts in such sketches as The Tinker's Holiday, The Clock, The Broker's Man, Hansom Cabby, Lot 33, and The Dreadful Tragedy. Later on he was called upon to deputise for J. W. Rowley at the Trocadero, where he appeared for eight months, singing nightly throughout the whole period the same three songs, namely, "Beaconsfield," "Still got the same old walk," and "Items of the Day."

Mr Wright has done a good deal of pantomime work, the first Christmas "annual" with which he was connected being Little Goody Two Shoes, which was produced at the Alhambra, Sheerness, in 1869. In the seventies he played in a pantomimic ballet with Paul Herring, at the old Alhambra, Shoreditch, and other similar productions in which his talents were seen to advantage were Robinson Crusoe, brought out at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, and in which he played the part of Daddy Perkins, and James Kiddie's Cinderella at the Grand Theatre, Cardiff, where he made a popular and amusing character of one of the Sisters. For three years in succession he wrote and produced the Christmas spectacles of Robin Hood, Aladdin, and Blue Beard at Paul's Music Hall, Leicester. Robin Hood, in particular, ran for seven weeks, while the production at the rival house only lasted five weeks. In this piece Joe Colville played Friar Tuck, and J. L. Dixon, Emily Mellon, and Sambo Sutton also took parts.

As an author Mr Wright's most popular ditties have been "'E dunno where 'e are," written for Mr Gus Elen; "The Recruiting Sergeant," "Our Stores," "Walker, London," and others for Mr Dan Leno; and "The Inspector of Police" and "The Lamplighter" for Little Tich. He tells us that every song he has sung has been written and composed by himself, and recognition of his talents is not wanting in the long list of future bookings he has secured. In fact, he has hardly had an idle week in the whole course of his career. "I might," he says, "have been a gymnast instead of a comic singer, but I had a severe fall at the St. Pancras Gymnasium in 1866, and that put an end to all thoughts of trapeze work. However, I can't complain much, for I am now in my fifty-third year, and I am told by everybody that I am working as well as I did at the age of twenty. My motto since I started in the profession—and the advertising columns of The Era thirty years ago will bear me testimony—has been:—

Originality without vulgarity,
I depend upon for popularity.

To that motto I have strictly adhered, and always intend to adhere to it. I may say that during the second year of the publication of my song, 'I traced her little footmarks in the snow,' it was sung to my knowledge in thirty-two pantomimes. Oh, I must tell you that once, at the old Philharmonic, I saw the late George Leybourne playing at billiards with Kate Garston, now deceased, for a champagne supper. Kate Garston won by seven points in a game of 100. Among some of my pleasantest reminiscences are those concerned with my work at the Strand Music Hall, when the late Jolly John Nash was chairman, and a very fine chairman he was."

An evidence of the great respect felt for Mr Wright by his brother and sister artists was shown on the occasion of his silver wedding in November, 1903, when he received seventy letters and telegrams and over a score of presents from well-known variety performers, including Miss Marie Lloyd and Joe Elvin. He was married to Miss Nellie Gannon twenty-seven years ago, and his daughters, who are known in the halls as the Two Stars (Lottie and Gertie), are making great headway as speciality dancers and singers. Mr Wright, who has been for many years a Freemason, was one of the founders of the Terriers' Association, and has served faithfully on the committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Rates Association ever since that excellent body was founded.

PARISIAN MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

(FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT).

THERE were persistent rumours last week that the Moulin Rouge, which has been in the market for some time, had at length found a purchaser, and on the 29th ult. the news leaked out (under the usual strict seal of secrecy) that the deal had been concluded with a manager of a theatre at Rouen. This caused considerable excitement amongst the performers, who read through their contracts anxiously to see how the change of management would affect their engagements Montcharmont, the well-known impresario, and Melchissedec, the son of the celebrated singer, are announced as the new proprietors; but I doubt if the matter is definitely settled yet. So many deals have gone equally far, and then failed to materialise. Owing to the immense success of The Toreador all variety turns have been cancelled, save two first-class American attractions, Cooke and Rothert. Owing to the length of The Toreador, these popular artists have to go on very early. The former comedian has changed his make-up and has shed his tramp raiment for evening dress He looks very dapper therein and works very cleverly in garments which must double the difficulty of his work. But I personally prefer him as the multi-coloured, weirdly wonderful tramp. Humour of gesture, eccentricity of costume, are hampered neither by language nor country, and foreigners roar with laughter at absurdities which would be obviously out of place when attired immaculately as a dude. It is hardly necessary to criticise in detail work so well known as Cooke's, yet I may be permitted to remark briefly that of all his marvellous acrobatic tricks the "cradles and forwards," as they are technically termed, are the best. Cooke can do eleven. One is not surprised at his agility and at the extraordinary leaps he takes when one reflects that he is the champion somersault kicker of the world. Kicking even above Deonzo, another famous jumper, Cooke holds the medal for surpassing him by four inches. His companion, Grace Rothert, shares fully in his success. She looked as bonny, as saucy, and as handsome as ever when she dashed on to the stage the other night in a gorgeous Spanish costume. She is an excellent dancer and a first-class acrobat, tumbling and throwing somersaults with an airy nonchalance, dimpling and smiling all the time and cheerfully acknowledging the shouts of applause with which Parisians delight to welcome their special favourites, more especially if that favourite should be a pretty woman.

AND then there is La Sylphe, who always reminds me of a flower swaying on its slender stem when she comes floating on to the stage. She has none of the affected airs or mincing manners of the première danseuse. She is a fay, with her soft brown hair tossing around her pretty, pale face, like maiden-hair fern blowing in the breeze She is so delicate, so dainty, concealing under an air of extreme fragility an unexpected force. Of the three beautiful dances she gives us I personally like the Spanish dance the least, technically clever as it undoubtedly is. But one associates Spanish dancing with a physically different type. One looks for passion, fire, audacity, coquetry; but La Sylphe is like a fairy tripping lightly, a snowflake falling softly, an elf fleeting and elusive. Her toe-dancing is, of course, marvellous, and at the present day, with all the American toe-dancers in my mind, I consider La Sylphe has no superior, and I doubt an equal. During a long dance she only came off her toes once, and that was due to the exigencies of the step necessitating a momentary solid base to throw up a tremendous kick. Her contortion work is extraordinary, and she has had the wit to utilise it in a graceful dance, instead of in the painful performance generally associated with this class of entertainment.

"THE TOREADOR" still pursues its prosperous way, in spite of the fact that Claudius is out of the cast. Prince is a host in himself, and Ellen Baxone, who has made great strides in her profession, has established herself a firm favourite. The much-advertised scene, La Panne, is nothing but Harry Tate's amusing automobile sketch taken bodily and placed in the middle of the operette.

THE Urban Bioscope have, with praiseworthy promptitude, put on films depicting the combat between the bull and the tiger, which took place quite recently at Saint Sebastien. It was splendidly done, and was watched with breathless interest.

COLONEL CASWELL, Frank Bostock's representative, is over here to arrange for the production of Dreamland, which is so popular a form of entertainment at Coney Island; it is to be called A Country Fair, and it will cost a capital of $5,000,000.

BARNARD'S PALACE, GREENWICH.

An attractive and lengthy programme was submitted by the enterprising management of this popular hall for the approval of Bank Holiday audiences. Mr Charles Dexter opened proceedings with two capital songs, entitled respectively, "The 'Bus Conductor" and "The Do-Alls;" he was very favourably received. Next came Little Queenie May, a clever juvenile artiste, who delighted all present with her rendering of "Winkle Nell," "Won't us kids fetch the beer," and "I never told a lie." Mr Henri Bekker, assisted by Mdlle. Maie, was seen in a wonderfully clever conjuring and card manipulating turn, and won general approval for smartness and novelty. Miss Lily Jackson, who looked remarkably well in male attire, sang with considerable dash and spirit her songs "The Real Thing," "Be my gee gee, daddy," and "A Millionaire." A much appreciated item was Ruffle's Imperial Bioscope, which presented interesting animated pictures, chief among them being the Parade of the United Kingdom Streetsellers' Union. A popular interlude was the band selection, "Hearts of Oak," which, with the overture and incidental music, was admirably played by Mr Archie Howells and his capable orchestra. An excellent extra turn was supplied by Miss Mary Thorne, who sang "Stop your Blarney" and "The Go-ahead Girl" in a very attractive manner. A most important and pleasing contribution was that of Ford and Hanson, who represented all the great musical composers, accompanied by specimens of their compositions. Mr Mark Lane, a huge favourite, was loudly applauded in "Don't mind if I do," "I Awoke," and "Claude." Dessa and Lovett's turn was received with great favour, and the last turn was that of the popular Brothers Weddburn, whose clever clarionet solos and smart patter were very enjoyable.

MR GEORGE BURTON, who is at present in Douglas with his two successful troupes—the Palace Pierrots and Burton's Bohemian Serenaders—has been confined to his bed, and is just recovering from what might have terminated in a serious illness.

MR MICHAEL NOLAN writes to us to say he has placed his business in the hands of George Barclay and Co. from this date, Aug. 6, 1904.

MR ALBERT GODFREY will in future be known as Albert Godfrey Yates, and the agency will be worked under the same name.

SPOT, the enchanting coon, has been repeating his customary success with his scena, The Cake-walk Craze, at the Shepherd's-bush Empire.—Val and Goodman, musical comedy artistes, will shortly appear in London.—Owing to the success of Mr Frank Coyle last week at the Empire, Cleethorpes, his services were retained for another week.

MASKELYNE AND COOKE'S.

For thirty-one years Maskelyne and Cooke's has been one of the most popular amusement enterprises in London, and to its progenitors and managers we must give credit for immense energy, untiring patience, and marvellous ingenuity; for such a record as is held by "England's Home of Mystery" is unparalleled in any country in the world. But all things have an ending, and the Egyptian Hall is to pass away from the ken of Londoners and their country cousins. In the course of a few months it will be demolished and not rebuilt, as sufficient land for the erection of more commodious premises meeting the requirements of the London County Council cannot be obtained on the site. Fortunately Messrs Maskelyne have found another "home" for their excellent and much-valued entertainments at St. George's Hall, Langham-place. Mr Maskelyne is reconstructing the building with the view of making it the most comfortable place of entertainment in London. Every member of the audience will have ample room and a perfect view of the stage. The arrangements for ventilation—in which the old hall was sadly lacking—will secure perfect freedom from draught, and the stage, which is to be one of the finest in London, is being specially constructed for the production of grand magical effects, and the unique Egyptian Hall entertainment, greatly elaborated, will be given each afternoon. The floor of the auditorium will be stepped from front to back, giving a perfect view of the stage, which is raised from the floor only 3ft. 6in. It is perfectly flat, as all stages ought to be—so Mr Maskelyne contends—in order to afford proper perspective for the scenery. The problem of perfectly lighting the stage he hopes also to solve by arranging a double proscenium, the outer one having a complete frame of lamps invisible to the audience. An auxiliary stage at one side of the proscenium will be occupied by the orchestra, and other performers at intervals. Mr Maskelyne invented the magical effects in The Message from Mars in the production at the Avenue and also on tour, and it is, therefore, interesting to hear that a feature of the future home of mystery will be the production of powerful dramas with effects that are weird and puzzling, and for the opening a play, founded on Lord Lytton's novel "The Coming Race," is being produced. The company will be selected from the best artists, and everything possible will be done to render the production one of startling interest, all of which goes to show that the entertainment by its transference to more convenient quarters will gain rather than lose. Still, the Londoner must heave a sigh of regret at the disappearance of such an old landmark as the Egyptian Hall. But the spirit of sadness was conspicuous by its absence on Monday, when Mr Maskelyne presented his last Bank Holiday programme at the famous resort in Piccadilly. He has discovered in Mr Martin Chapender a prestidigitateur of exceptional skill, and one quite worthy of the traditions of the place. Whether Houdin, if living, could learn something from the manipulative skill of Mr Chapender is a problem that we need not attempt to solve. We have seen other masters of magic make a card rise at will and multiply billiard balls, but none with neater effect than Mr Chapender, who, of course, does the disappearing watch trick, much to the astonishment of the owner of the "ticker." Though not exactly garrulous, Mr Chapender has a pleasant flow of conversation, and is a decided acquisition. A laughable interlude is supplied by Mr Walter Graham's mysterious Lilliputians, which afford a rare fund of amusement for the youngsters. Mr Graham's entertainment is much on the same lines as that worked by M. and Madame Tissot some years since, and he brings down the house with Mr Harry Lauder's celebrated song, "Killiecrankie," of which a most acceptable feature is a funny dance. He is a most interesting addition to the programme. Mr E. A. Maskelyne, with the assistance of Miss Cassie Bruce, works most effectively the latest Egyptian Hall mystery, entitled "Well, I'm ——!!!" The missing word is supplied by Miss Bruce, who, after being by some means or other spirited away into the balcony, shouts "Well, I'm here!" Gems of animated photography include a number of amusing trick films, and the entertainment is wound up by a representation of the merry magical farce, written and invented by Mr Nevil Maskelyne, entitled The Philosopher's Stone, which is in its second year. It is exceedingly well played by Messrs J. N. Maskelyne, E. Morehen, J. B. Hansard, E. S. Elton, and Cassie Bruce. Mr F. Cramer supplies some excellent music from a mechanical orchestra and from a pianoforte-harmonium.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The August Bank Holiday, blessed with glorious weather, has again demonstrated the ability of the travelling showmen to cater for the millions in their open-air amusements. In the suburbs of great Manchester three immense fairs have held carnival for the people. Longsight Wakes this year coincides with the Bank Holiday, and the grand aggregation of shows, roundabouts, &c., at John Whiting's Fair ground eclipsed all previous displays, and reflected the highest credit both on Mr Whiting, the lessee, and his able manager, Mr C. Jones, under whose joint direction the excellent arrangements were carried out. Foremost amongst the shows were Colonel Clark and Son's electric cinématograph theatre, Dennis's circus, J. Norman's exhibition, Bailey's ghost show, Lomas's theatre of varieties, and Weston's boxers. John Whiting's superb set of Venetian gondolas headed the machine list, which included Hurst's three saddle birds, Geoghegan's steam gallopers, and Richards' steam yachts, Kirby's swings and Stoll's varieties.

At the Queen's-road Ground (Lessee, Mr John Collins), the centre of the vast square was occupied by four of the high-class machines of the lessee—the switchback gondola set, the four-abreast gallopers, the bike motor-track, and the twin ships in the air. The other machine sets were P. Collins', Limited, Venetian gondolas, Royle's steam roundabouts, and Hibbert's cockerells, Royle's swings, and also several sets of juvenile horses. Kemp's Electric Theatre; the Anglo-American Combine; varieties and animated photography; Captain Tom Payne's bioscope; Hasting's two shows—the Midget Wonders and the fat lady; Mephisto, the wizard; Le Neve and Norah Sullivan, wrestlers and athletes; Gal Hague's boxers; and Prof. D'Alfroy, with Miss Lovett, lady wrestler, and Coburne, the strong man; the shooting concerns of Messrs Cornwell, Fletcher, Humphries, Hughes, and Wright; varieties, &c., by Messrs Deeks, Messrs Whitmore, Horton, and others.

The Trafford-road fair ground was maintained amongst others by Dyer's variety theatre, Cordwell's Lifeograph, Wm. Holmes's aggregation, the steam horses, the shooters, and variety and pannum stalls, T. Hurst's No. 2 set, the three saddle birds; Wm. Mitchell, sen.'s, steam yachts, Wm. Mitchell, jun.'s, steam roundabouts, with the usual attendant throng of minor attractions, varieties, coker stalls, &c.

At Northenden, the pretty riverside pleasure resort of Manchester people, the fair was in the capable hands of Mr Walker, whose capital set of steam horses were the centre of attraction. The highfliers, the shooting gallery, the aerial flight, pannum and novelty stalls were all in goodly array.

The Durham Miners' Gala, as usual, attracted a big crowd of showpeople. Mackney's ghost illusion, Burnett's military tournament, Geo. Payne's Cinématograph, Mrs Testo's living pictures, the Mystic Hutins, Johnson's circus, Westbrook's exhibition, Prof. Moor's school of boxers, Matison's, Davis's, Marwood's, Colins, rifle marksman, and his No. 2 show, the spotted lady, and Beavis's exhibition constituted the show list. The machines were A. Payne's steam horses, H. Cariss' galloping horses, Richardson's Ltd., steam horse set, and the same company's switchback and No. 3 set, ostriches, and animals; the shooting saloons, bottle batteries, and Morris tubes by Messrs Hancock, Rosher, Smith, jun., Cariss, Cowie, Robson, Stephens, Pinninger, G. Newsome, Lowther, Cuilline, and Carter; cokers, Emmas, and varieties by Messrs G. Gray, Jackson, Coultiman, Firman, Wilson, A. Smith, Doubtfires, G. Gray, jun., Carter, H. Shaw, T. Newsome, Lowther, Wright, Hartshorn, J. Smith, jun., Hancock, Fisher, Foster, Pinninger, Millar, J. Bowers, O'Brian, Sedgmore, and R. Mitchinson; the swings and highfliers were by Messrs Cowie, Noble, Brindle, and Nicholson; overboats by Messrs Nicholson and Brindle; footballs by Messrs Testo, Gray, Haigh, T. Smith, and J. W. Gray, jun. This is one of the best fixtures on this circuit. The miners patronise their annual gala in vast crowds, and, given the good weather of this year, excellent business is the gratifying result.

From the Midlands and West Country news is to hand of three August Bank Holiday carnivals. At Tewkesbury were Chipperfield's Electrograph and Cooper's novelty exhibition, Marshall Hill's switchbacks, W. Matthews' juvenile steam horses, and bottle-smashers, cokers, &c., by E. Clarke, Herbert, Cooper, Robbins, Coulson, Preece, Boyward, Embling, Pittaway, and many others.

Chipperfield's royal show and Holloway's ghost illusion were the principal exhibitions at Redditch. Thomas Clark's switchbacks and highfliers were the machines present, and the other novelties included the same caterer's rifle saloons and coker shies and similar money-makers by Yates, Wood, Herbert Smith, Hawkes, Cooper, Seaton, Corrall, Newman, and R. Chipperfield's fisheries.

Evesham August Fair was upheld by Innes's Cinematograph, H. Ayer's steam horses and highfliers, with the last-named novelty by Rowells, H. Ayer's saloons, emma sheets by Tayler, Rowells' Innes, and others; cokers by Ayers, Stanley, Green, and Rowells; and roll-up boards by Kemp, Kimberley, Brown, Smith, Taylor, Innes, Rowells, Green, and others.

Now in the throng of the busy fair season we again draw our numerous show readers' attention to the risks attendant on their business from fire. This risk may be reduced to a minimum by forethought. Mr F. F. Pope, whose advertisement appears week by week in our showman advertisements columns, will, we understand, furnish estimates for insurance against fire risk. He invites showmen to write and ask him for particulars.

The usual interesting meeting of the Showmen's Guild took place at Longsight Wakes, in the parish mission close by the fair ground, on Sunday evening last. The room was crowded by show people and local friends. The rector of St. Agnes, Birch, hon. local chaplain, assisted by the Rev. T. Horne, hon. organising chaplain of the Guild, took part in the service, the musical part of which was sustained by the united choirs of the parish church and the mission room. The address was given by the Rev. T. Horne. The Showmen's Guild has lost a valuable South of England member by the death of Mr J. G. Clowes, of marionette theatre fame. He passed peacefully to his rest on July 21st, after a long illness, and was interred in the beautiful parish churchyard at Woodhurst. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved family.

The Cupar-Fife August hirings passed off to the satisfaction of everyone concerned, which speaks volumes for the organising ability of the veteran lessee, Mr John Wilmot. At the head of the list were Chipperfield's French menagerie, who, by-the-way, have retained the services of that young and intrepid animal trainer Mr James Panarzo. Next came the ever-popular circus combination of Mrs Johnson and Sons; then Leo's Egyptian Hall, which proved a favourite; as also did Mr Alf Haydn'sclairvoyantact. Cyclops and May performed many seemingly impossible feats of strength, and Mr Charles Birch exhibited his diminutive equines. Prof. James Lavan's school of arms and Horatia's giant horse concluded the shows. Messrs John Wilmot and Son's royal Caledonian hunters galloped to the music of their latest gaviolophone, alongside of which stood Messrs Palmer and Thomas's manual swings. The photographing of the gaybovs was directed by the experienced Frank Walton and J. Maley, and pseudo peeps into futurity were made by the Boswell families for the amusement of the young and frivolous. The Morris tubes and bottle smashers of Messrs S. J. Rostron, C. Horne, A. Horne, H. Dawson, W. Harris, W. Wright, and J. Wright, attracted the embryo marksmen. Each day's fun found its natural exhaustion in the strikers, coker shies, bogies, and Krugers provided by Messrs W. Strand, W. Slater, J. Hughes, W. Harris, W. Palmer, S. Freeman, C. Thomas, R. Horne, C. Clarke, J. Knight, H. Knowles, J. Cook, W. Salvoni, Mrs Thompson, and Mrs Palmer.

At Dundee the fair holiday attractions were Mr James White's Venetian gondolas, Mr John White's prodigious poultry, Leaburn's juvenile swings, Mr Charles Birch and his American midgets, and a host of others.

At Carnoustie we had Prince Samonda and his Oriental Illusions, Caddick's Cinématograph Goliath and Co., Herculean feats of strength, and Mr George White's rolling gondolas.

Holiday makers mustered in large numbers at Franklin's Gardens, Northampton, on Monday. The enterprising proprietor, Mr R. Wainwright, had arranged a strong programme of attractions including a balloon ascent by Captain Bidmead. Eager eyes followed the passage of the balloon in the direction of Kingsthorpe. When over the latter portion of the town, Captain Bidmead dropped from the balloon with his parachute, and eventually alighted near Moulton-park gates. He was driven back to the Gardens, and made an appearance on the platform immediately on his arrival. The crowd welcomed him with extraordinary heartiness, and the aeronaut outlined his voyage in the air, mentioning that the balloon reached an altitude of 6,700 feet. It was Captain Bidmead's 155th parachute descent. Other contributors to the variety entertainments were Captain Devereux with his clever dogs; Professor Diamond and Madame Diamond, in their interesting feats of knife, hatchet, and tomahawk throwing; Gus Gauntlett, a versatile comedian, athlete, and dancer; Miss Mab Venus, a lady athlete, who gave a capital display with Indian clubs; the Great Linton, a tight-rope artiste of ability; Flemine, a one-legged acrobatic wonder; Bonnetti, a good eccentric juggler and equilibrist; Miss Eva Nelson, a dainty vocalist and character comedienne; Dundie, a smart Negro comedian; and Carl Fritz, lightning cartoonist. In the evening there was a display of fireworks by Messrs Dugwell and Sons, which called forth much admiration.

Kilmarnock is an important fair on the Scottish circuit. Here we had Mr Geo. Biddall and Son's electric ghost illusions and Cinématograph, Mr Wm. Sedgwick's Yankee menagerie, M'Indoe's (Mr Arthur Henderson's) electric theatre, Mr George Green's Cinématograph of local events, and Mr Henry Chapman's British birds and hares. The roundabouts were well represented, at the head of which were M'Indoe's figure eight, an electrically driven set of coaches working on a track, which forms the figure eight; Mr Peter Swallow's racing cockerells, Mr Geo. Green's switchback gallopers, M'Indoe's Venetian realisations, Howard's steam swings, and Mr J. Wilmot's juvenile horses concluded the machine list. Messrs Steen and Swallow's manual swings, the photographic concern of Mr Frank Walton, and the phrenological delineations of Mrs Lovell; the first-class shooting concerns of Messrs Sheeran, Steen, Newton, Wilmot, Smith, and M'Indoe. The supplementary minor fun of the fair was provided by Messrs Stevenson, Irvin, Brockley, Newton, Graham, Merrick, Clayton, Morris, Smith, and a host of others.

At Bredon we have had Messrs Hill and Son's grand electric roundabouts, park swings, shooting saloons, cokernut sheets, and other numerous attractions.

At Cookhill we had Scott's steam gallopers, park swings, bottle shooters, cokernut sheets, and other numerous amusements by Messrs Scott, Bullock, Smith, Embling, and Lewis.

The opening of the great Yorkshire round started at Hunslet, Leeds, last week, and was attended by a large number of the leading lights of the show world, the attractions including Golden Venice, G. Aspland's Venetian gondolas, P. Collins' gigantic cockerels, B. Mitchell's Lancashire chickens, Hamilton's four-abreast gallopers, Lieskie's big wheel, Dobson's sea on land, Hartley's aerial flight, Monte Williams's No. 1 concern, "Yesterday produced To-day," Rhodes' Yorkshire theatre, Hodgini's Circus, Testo's Cinématograph, Farrar's fine art show, Moore with his athletes, Mrs Birch's freaks, Blakey the juggler, the steam swings of Messrs Morley and Shaw, and the fair-ground concerns of Messrs Jacques, Baines, Jameson, Mitchell, Doubtfire, Steward, Harrison, Redfearn, Casey, Williams, Ashcroft, Church, Berrill, Crowther, Proctor, Wright, Newell, and Kayes. Thanks to the Roundabout Proprietors' Union's efforts, the lessee, Mr W. Murphy, has made a further reduction in ground rents. Messrs Campbell and Whitehead performed stewards' duties in satisfactory style.

When a circus was entering Newhaven on Sunday morning a horse attached to a milk cart took fright and dashed against a house, doing much damage, and sending the milk-cans through the windows. The animal was killed, and its driver, a boy, seriously injured.

NEW-CROSS EMPIRE.

Large and enthusiastic audiences have filled this popular hall to overflowing this week, and apart from the fact that Monday was Bank Holiday, the excellence of the lengthy programme was sufficient to account for the capital houses that have been the rule. The first turn is that of Juno Salmo, appropriately styled "The Golden Mephisto," who excites general admiration and wonder at his marvellous flexibility of limb and perfection of detail. He is followed by Leonard and Francis, whose entertainment consisting of smartly executed acrobatic feats, and concluding with a comic bull-fight, with animal assistants, causes much merriment. The Four Milons have a remarkable equilibristic act. Two of the troupe hold in their mouths an end of the slack wire, on which a third performs with considerable skill. The Fleury Troupe contribute some dainty and graceful Parisian dances, among which the Butterfly Waltz wins general admiration. Mr Fred Russell, with his popular figure, Coster Joe, is warmly received, his ventriloquial efforts being highly appreciated, as also are the items "The Last Waltz" and "I love you," which are included in the turn. Mdlle. Diane De Fontenoy makes a welcome reappearance in her attractive production entitled "An Artist's Model." This charming artiste proves herself not only a graceful poseuse, but an excellent actress, and the dressing and staging are beyond praise. Her impersonations of Boadicea, Lallah Rookh, Cleopatra, the Slave, A Hymn of Praise, and the final picture of her Majesty the Queen are all rapturously applauded. Popular in a widely different style is Mr J. E Coyle, who evokes much amusement by his quaint singing of "She must have known" and "Why didn't you come before?" Miss Lily Langtry follows, and is greeted very warmly. This favourite artist sings in her best style of Bank Holiday adventures on Hampstead Heath and at the Alexandra Palace. Peppo's monkeys are watched with great interest, the wonderful gymnastic skill of these quaint little creatures delighting everyone. The clever comedy acrobats, Heeley and Meely, are also in the bill. The performance concludes with a novel entertainment called Larks in the Lake, which is received with every mark of favour.

A REAL good show is the verdict of the vast audiences at Will Newman's "Pierrots," Pawley's-green, Southend-on-Sea. F. Allsopp, J. Newry, F. Brain, A. Bond are the comedians, and Miss F. Beckwith, Miss F. Fuller, and Miss Beaumont are the ladies.

OLDHAM.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—Mr T. Arthur Jones and his No. 1 company are here in Life's Sweetest Sins. The interesting feature of this play is a submarine vessel at work. Captain Harold Marston is capably portrayed by Mr T. Arthur Jones, who is ably assisted by Miss Madge Morley as Doreen Rivers, heiress and orphan. Mr A. Barrett Garth as Doctor Colbrooke is very successful. Mr George Austin and Mr Cecil V. Procter do good work as the Doctor's confederates. Mr Charles Sewell wins favour as Ernie Wodstone. The humour of the play is effectively rendered by Mr Jay Laurier and Miss Sara Dudley as valet and maid.

OXFORD.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr C. C. Dorrill.—On Bank Holiday Mr Alexander Loftus's company commenced a most successful return visit here with The New Barmaid, which, smartly acted and handsomely staged, was received with uproarious delight by a capital house. Mr J. B. Montague repeats his highly amusing performance of Bertie White; Mr Lee Austin sings agreeably as Captain Lovebury; Mr Alexander Loftus is excellent as William White; and Colonel Claymore and Bonsor find most capable representatives in Messrs H. Cottesmore and Sidney Vincent. Miss Gladys Elvey is very charming and effective in the title-rôle; Miss Jean Gilmore does well as Lady Moulton; Miss Bessie Pelisier is very bright and "chic" as Dora Heather; and Miss Hilda Blanche is good as Brenda Louth. Some capital dances are given by Mr S. Vincent and Miss Violet Osmund.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—On Bank Holiday Mr Augustus George Lytton's company opened here to a full and appreciative house with A Hidden Crime. Mr Henry St. Ledger is a robust Jack Harrington, while Mr Charles Neville as the villain, Cecil Newton, is capable. Mr Charles Frome gives a commendable portrayal of Henry Adair, and Mr Harry Ray extracts considerable fun out of Tom Dacre. Mr Charles Wenman is especially good as the Chinese Hop Wah. Miss Hilda Clyde makes an effective Rose Adair, and Miss Marguerite Romney is powerful as Marie Ferrara. Miss Bessie Frank is delightfully vivacious as Kitty Raynor with some good songs.

PORTH.

POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—The attraction at this place of amusement for the holidays is Miss Winifred Maude's company, in The Sins of a City. The company, an excellent one, is being well received. Mr Royce Carlton is seen to advantage as Donald M'Ivor; Sandy M'Donald finds an able representative in Mr Leslie Alexander; Mr J. W. Baxter deserves credit for the manner in which he takes the rôles of Joe Woodleigh and Jasper Woodleigh; Mr Edward Fortress does justice to the part of Ralph Blackwater; Miss Winifred Maude is exceedingly touching as Norah, alias Seaweed; Miss Eva Reed and Mr Victor Du Cane play the comedy parts capitally; and Miss Marie Lyons is very effective as Lesbia. The drama is excellently mounted.

PORTSMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—For the holidays we have Mr Bert Coote's company with The Fatal Wedding at this house. The play has been admirably rendered, and meets with a cordial reception. The part of Howard Wilson is undertaken by Mr Randolphe Reade in a satisfactory manner; Mr Oliver Rogers is responsible for a good portrayal of Robert Curtis; Toto is capitally acted by Mr Edward Morgan; Mabel Wilson is effectively portrayed by Miss Gwynne Herbert; and Miss Gertrude Harrison well embodies the character of Cora Williams. Bridget, the lady cook, is most amusingly rendered by Miss Harriet Clifton, and Miss Eileen Moore as the "Little Mother," Jessie, gives signs of undoubted histrionic ability.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—The patrons of this theatre have been catered for during the Bank Holiday week in a most effective way by the presentation, by Mr. John F. Preston, of the realistic racing play The Rogues of the Turf. The piece is full of exciting incidents, and is well received by good audiences. Marion Sady Heathcote, alias Mrs Somerton, alias the Duchess, is excellently played by Miss Gertrude Godard. Nellie Flaxman is well rendered by Miss Susie Fradelle; Capt. Dudley Clifton and Moses Solomon (rogues of the Turf) are respectively played by Mr G. R. Montford and Mr H. H. Rignold, and both work hard to merit the name. Joe Flaxman, an old trainer, is convincingly played by Mr John F. Preston, and Mr Harry Benson puts in some good work as Sam Flaxman. The scenery is most appropriate.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—For this week a good bill is provided, the principal attraction being the Arthur Saxon Trio, who certainly do some astounding weight-lifting, and are much appreciated; the Floradors in the comedy sketch Naughty Nin, are well received, and create roars of laughter; the Sisters Desmond, character duettists, are a very good turn; Martine and Son, American song illustrators, are much liked; Prof. Thornbury, lightning cartoonist, is clever; and Ida Brophy, soubrette; Dan Conroy, eccentric comedian; Tina Florence, mimic; Morney Cash, comedian; and the Hamiltons, versatile comedy duo, complete a good all-round programme.

RAMSGATE.

AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr Henry Bowman.—The ever-welcome musical play Florodora, presented by Messrs H. J. Callan and Wentworth Croke's company, has been staged to large and appreciative audiences this week. Mr W. Everard is eminently successful as Frank Abercoed; Mr Frank Grans is deservedly popular as Capt. Donegal; and Mr A. Lenville is distinctly amusing as the eccentric Tweedlepunch. Miss May Yates charmingly plays the part of Angela Gilfain; and similar praise is merited by Miss Dorothy Sephton as Lady Holyrood and Miss Violet Bronson as Dolores. Other parts are well sustained.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Herbert Jay; Acting-Manager, Mr N. Arthur Hornby.—An attraction of a particularly strong character, If I Were King, has formed the Bank Holiday entertainment at the "Pav." The piece is put on in fine style. Chief acting honours fall to Miss Marion Grey as Katherine De Vaucelles; to Mr Frank Fenton as François Villon; and to Mr Clive Curry as Louis. Miss Violet Monkton, Miss Vansitter, and others also contribute in a great degree to the excellence of the production.

RAMSGATE MUNICIPAL AL FRESCO ENTERTAINMENTS.—Director, Mr Hugo Gorlitz; Manager, Mr J. T. Savage.—Programmes of a high-class character have daily been given by the Municipal concert party and Herr Rauscher's orchestra on the cliffs and at Ellington Park.

GRANVILLE HALL.—Proprietors, Messrs Spiers and Pond.—At this hall during the week Miss Daphne De Rohan, an accomplished and refined entertainer, gifted with much versatility, has been giving entertainments. Miss De Rohan is an elocutionist, actress, and musician of particular ability, and the clever entertainments she gives are pleasingly varied. Contributions are also made by Messrs C. L. Delph, H. Danby, H. J. Worth, W. Coleman, &c.

PRESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Executors of W. Johnson; Manager, Mr S. Pritt.—The autumn season was inaugurated auspiciously on Saturday evening with The Merchant of Venice, presented by W. Esmonde Bramley's Shakespearian company. Miss Millie Ford and Mr Norman E. Partriege are at the head, supported by a talented body of actors. Mr Murray Hathorn in the character of Shylock gave a masterly rendering; Miss Ford did well as Portia. Ingomar, Hamlet, Lady of Lyons, As You Like It, and Merry Wives of Windsor are underlined for production during the week.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—A Rogue's Daughter, a drama on orthodox lines, is being presented here by Miss Marie Menzies and company, and met with a cordial reception on Monday evening. Mr Frank Fenn as Sir George Reynard, Mr Wilfrid Blair as Frank Tyler, and Mr Richard Ferris as Colonel Foster all did well. Miss Marie Menzies as Lady Grey has a congenial part. Misses Mona Hall, Mabel Hall, and Messrs Will Wilson and A. Hall Menzies introduce their specialities in a most charming set, "The Village Fair."

RADCLIFFE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—This theatre was reopened after the summer vacation on Monday, and a large audience assembled to witness Edward Thane's drama The Mockery of Marriage. In the part specially created for her (Alva Kenyon, a woman wronged by an unfortunate marriage) Miss Olga Audre is seen to considerable advantage, and her company includes several capable artistes. Mr A. Winpenny is successful as Dick Kenyon, the villain; Miss Zillwood acts with the right spirit as Rose Vernham; and Mrs S. Halling and Mr W. Skelton do well in humorous parts. The Four Aces contribute a clever acrobatic performance. On Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday East Lynne was presented, with Miss Audre as Lady Isabel.

RAWTENSTALL.

GRAND.—Co-Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—For the reopening of this theatre on Saturday Mr Harold V. Neilson's company presented Sydney Grundy's charming play A Bunch of Violets to a well-filled house. Mr Neilson displayed much ability as Sir Philip Marchant; Miss Amy Sangster as Mrs Murgatroyd gave an exceptionally clever and telling performance; Lady Marchant was admirably and sympathetically portrayed by Miss Yvonne Orchardson. The remainder of the cast was in good hands.

READING.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Milton Bode.—This elegant theatre was reopened for the season on Bank Holiday, when a strong attraction was provided by Mr Henry Dundas's company in the Drury-lane play Human Nature. Mr Dundas (who was formerly the very popular proprietor and manager of a local theatre) received an enthusiastic reception in the character of Captain F. Temple. Miss Lilian Dundas acted finely as Nellie Temple, and all the other parts were in excellent hands. The play was mounted in first-rate style throughout. Notwithstanding numerous alfresco entertainments, the heat of the Parliamentary bye-election, and the heat of the weather the performances have been well patronised during the week.

RHYL.

QUEEN'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr P. J. Ashfield; Secretary, Mr E. W. Parry.—Mr Ashfield is to be congratulated upon a successful combination of variety artistes engaged here for the holiday week. Mdlle. Haydee presents ingenious and natural comedy sketches illustrated by her marionettes; Bennett and Martell are successful in their efforts to please as eccentric comedians; Schack Seebold submits a good musical entertainment; Esme Gordon is a dainty comedienne and dancer; John Lloyd, the singing collier, has established himself a favourite; the Brothers Lavelle are clever acrobats and tumblers; and the Palace Vivagraph and Bosanquet's orchestra are other attractions.

TOWN HALL.—Lessees, Messrs Baring Brothers.—On Monday and Tuesday Mr Chas. Macdona's company appeared in A Chinese Honeymoon.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr A. R. Sutcliffe.—The popularity of the pierrots may be judged by the full houses which patronise the high-class entertainment provided. This week Whit Cunliffe receives the heartiest of receptions; G. W. Hughes proves himself a basso vocalist of merit; Erroll Stanhope obtains much appreciation as a sifflieuse and comedian; and Maynard Dakin, comedian; A. R. Sutcliffe, vocal comedian; and Gordon Stamford are prominent favourites. Thousands of people witnessed the performances given by E. H. Williams's Merrie Men on Monday. Each item was received with much applause. The "Gold Chair," which Mr Williams has introduced, is the most popular competition in Rhyl.

ROCHDALE.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr Charles Clucas.—This theatre reopened on Saturday last with Mr Henry Johnston's musical comedy company in the Houp-la Girl, an amusing and refreshing production. Some clever dancing by the Rosie Rice Quartet is greatly appreciated. Mr Thomas Wyndham makes the most of the Prince of Felsenberg; Mr Launcelot Usher as Lieutenant Archibald Lambton creates roars of laughter in his disguise of Miss Matilda; Miss Margaret Wilson cleverly fulfils the part of La Belle Rosiere; and Mr Jack Durant is prominent as Frank Saville.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Hargreaves.—This long-desired place of amusement was opened to crowded houses on Monday evening. The proprietor has spared no pains to erect an up-to-date building, estimated to accommodate with comfort 1,800 people. It is a light and airy building, erected from designs of Messrs Butterworth and Duncan in the Town Hall-square in the centre of the town. The front is entirely built of stone, and has a handsome appearance; the inside arrangements are everything that could be desired, all the seats are of the tip-up style, those in the better parts of the house being upholstered in red plush. The decorations are most elaborate and pleasing. The building throughout is fitted with electric light, and everything required for the safety and comfort of its patrons seems to have been attended to. The proscenium has a fine appearance, and an uninterrupted view can be had from any part of the hall. Mr R. B. Brierley, a well-known local tenor vocalist, opened the first performance with an effective rendering of the National Anthem. The official programme was then commenced, the artistes engaged being the Gladenbecks, hand-balancers and silver ring speciality act; Miss Georgie Heaton, male impersonator; Keith and Merson, acrobatic comedians; Merton and Rydoe, refined vocal artistes; Three Adriennes, burlesque artistes, vocalists, sand dancers, and whistlers; Grace Compton, vocalist; T. W. Royal, comedian and clog dancer; Ugo, king of cards and coins; and Les Bollingers, the rag painters, each turn being received with approbation.

ROTHERHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—Messrs Armadale and Warren's company is the special attraction here this week with The Face at the Window, a highly sensational drama. Mr E. Hoggan Armadale is highly successful as the Chevalier Lucio Delgado, alias La Loup, and Mr T. W. Dunscombe gives a finished representation of Paul Gouffet, detective. Mr George Phythian scores as Henry De Brisson, and Mr Alfred Richards is a capable Lucien Cortier. Mr Bob Anderson is amusing as Peter Pottlebury. Mr C. Alan Hineson as La Blanc is an able second to Paul Gouffet, and Mr Walter Marriott is natural as Mons. Vernett. Miss Jeannie Dempster as La Pinau gives a highly finished rendition of the rôle; Miss Marie Florence is pleasing as Marie De Brisson; and Miss Lizzie Chambers is a sprightly Babette. The mechanical effects are of a very elaborate description.

RUGBY.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Kingsley.—The theatre reopened on Bank Holiday after the usual vacation, with Messrs Marston and Buckstone's company, in The Silver Cross, a domestic comedy-drama. The piece is strong in interest and is admirably mounted. Miss Maud Western is excellent as Ida Adams and renders various songs in first-class style. Mr Frederick A. Marston as Ben Adams, an old fisherman, leaves nothing to be desired in his exposition of the part. Mr Syd Bazley is very amusing as Tomkyns Quinton, a handy man, and Miss Poppy Danby is very good as Sally Beedles. The many songs and choruses are rendered by the company in artistic style, and altogether the piece is achieving a great success.

RUNCORN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr H. W. Caddick.—Mr Coleman Davies' company is paying a return visit with Money Makes the Man and No Escape. The former was staged on Monday, when Mr Coleman Davies again displayed ability as Theophilus; Mr C. Burnette as John Malting makes an excellent Boniface; Mr V. M. Carlyle manfully portrays Arthur Egerton; Mr Archer Terry truthfully reveals the evil nature of Norman Travers; and Mr Fred Ennis is an able Mat Mawley. Mr W. A. Stanton as Joe Moppitt and Miss Kitty Marriott as Peggy Bouncer contribute comedy of no mean order. Miss Evelyn Clare as Ella Gordon shows histrionic power, and Miss Eunice Udall again scores as Willie, a street arab.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—The drama A London Actress, by Emma Litchfield, is meeting with every success this week, good houses being attracted in spite of the very sultry evenings. Mr Stuart Cleveland ably sustains the character of the hero, Clive Crawford, and the authoress, Miss Emma Litchfield, makes an effective impression as Hilda Mannering. Mr Sam Wilford as Pat Malony and Miss Louise Millward as Biddy Malony, with Miss Adele Wilford as Rosie Blythe, cause much laughter. Moses Mendosa is well presented by Mr Fred Tenaur, and Mr Harry Barham as Lieut. Kingston and Mr John Worth as Captain Mannering give excellent representations. Miss Elsie Roberts makes a charmingly effective heroine as Phyllis Crawford. The staging is all that can be desired.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The great sensation "Looping the loop on a bicycle," by Miss Madeline, heads the bill this week, and furnishes a few seconds' excitement. The Three Rickards are much applauded for their smart acrobatic performance. Great Scott, the ladder king, is also much appreciated. The other acceptable turns include Baker Belphor, baritone; Nelson Hardy, clever ventriloquist; Curtis and Vanity, American comedians; Mr and Mrs Edward H. Lucas in scenes from Dickens; "The Cake-walk round the Workhouse Door," by J. P. Dane; and Violet Elliott, Australian contralto. An extra turn was given on Monday by a youth named O'Brien, who thoroughly captivated the audience with his singing "The Dear Home Again."

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—General Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-General-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—Good business continues to be done here twice nightly. The Loma Trio of herculean gymnasts give an excellent exhibition. The other turns include Hill, Barry, and Lang in their musical sketch, A Hot Reception; Cristo, the magician; Kitty Gower, lightning change character danseuse; Sid Bandon, comedian; Earle and Earle, American banjoists; Adams and Ward, comedy acrobats; Charles Dixon, the crazy comedian; Mystery Gause, female impersonator; Kate Lynd, comedienne; G. W. Hastings, comedy and character vocalist; and Steely and Dowton, acrobatic comedy artistes and dancers.

L. AND N.W. PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietress, Mrs S. A. Higham; Manager, Mr Sam Higham.—A good entertainment this week includes Mr Cliff Carter, comedian; Miss Lottie Berwood, comedienne; Mr Gus Smith, descriptive vocalist; and Miss Lillian Gilbert, contralto.

SCARBOROUGH.

SPA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Fras. Goodricke.—Mr Mouillot's company is fulfilling a six nights' engagement here, playing Old Heidelberg. The piece is well mounted. Mr George F. Tully makes an ideal Karl Heinrich; Mr Clifford Bown is excellent as the old tutor Dr Jüttner; and Miss Irene Lavington is a bright Kathie.

LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Waddington and Sons; Acting-Manager, Mr J. T. Carpenter.—Mr C. P. Levilly's company is occupying the boards here in the new comic opera Amorelle. A large audience gave the company a cordial greeting on Monday. Mr Phil Carlton is a manly Jules; Mr Newton Ide succeeds well as François; Miss Kitty Cavendish is a charming Leabia; Miss Stella Gastelle is a vivacious Amorelle, and Mr Eric Thorne as Doctor Napoleon Bonaparte Crow scores well. Scenery, dresses, and all accessories are first-class.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietress, Mrs Henry Mayhew; Manager, Mr F. P. Morgan.—A good audience assembled here on Monday to witness Mr William Armour's company in What a Woman Did. Mr W. A. Armour is seen to advantage as Conrad De l'Orme; Mr Kenneth Smith is successful as the Marquis De Viray; Miss Dora Price as the heroine acts with much feeling; and the comedy element is safe in the hands of Mr W. Simpson (Fritz), Mr Tom Wallace (Peter Pippin), and Miss Nita Imeson (Nanette).

PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing Director, Mr W Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr William Kitchingman.—A fine programme is provided here for the holiday week, and considering the glorious weather, the audiences have been enormous. The Cairo Orchestra, under the direction of Prof Adolf Voorzanger, finds popularity; Miss Haidee Voorzanger plays a violin solo in a most able manner; Mr Arthur Weber is again the vocalist for the week. Charles Ulrick, barrel manipulator, is a wonder; Kavados, juggler, is decidedly smart; Copeland and Son, dancers, have a good reception; C. Gray, in his table pedestal act, is clever; the Weimars, acrobats, are amusing; Miss Nellie Royd, vocalist, is well received; A. C. Revel, juggler, deserves commendation; Zenora and Foden, balancers, give a good turn; and Barton and Franklin, instrumentalists, display talent. The swimming exhibitions by the troupe of lady swimmers and Prof. Dickinson are always appreciated.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and General Manager, Mr George Zalva.—The programme here meets with approval. The Frantz Troupe of acrobats give a marvellously clever turn. Ray and Miles and the Brothers Neverslip (Doodles and Rumbo) introduce many absurdities. Cora Grey, vocalist, evokes loud applause. Massano, juggler, is exceedingly smart. Max Merlin, human crocodile, is an old favourite. Craig, Rose, and Craig, athletes, put in some good work, and the entertainment concludes with a series of animated pictures.

PROMENADE PIER AND PAVILION.—Director, Mr Quinton Gibson.—Visitors are catered for here in an able manner. Dr. Lynn, the well-known conjuror, is one of the many attractions. Mr Will

Douglas is a capital humourist, and Mr Quinton Gibson, with his clever impersonations, is just as much in favour as ever. Miss Perkins' troupe of swimmers give exhibitions of high diving off the pier; and the children seemingly never tire of Prof. Lewis's marionettes.

SHEERNESS.

TRANSFIELD'S HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr T. G. Transfield; Secretary and Manager, Mr Chas. Melvin.—Heading the bill here for this week are the Brothers Lang, eccentric knockabout comedians, who cause considerable merriment by their quaint antics. Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, styled as the Cardboard Box Makers, are loudly applauded for their excellent harmony. Little Gracie Bard, juvenile character vocalist and dancer, is also much appreciated. Other prominent turns include Mr John Yelding, barebacked act rider; Bouverie Pleydell, comedian; and Little Bishop, the popular clown. A series of local views on the Bio-Tableaux by Bernard Theobald concludes the performance.

VICTORIA PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Dorling.—The famous legendary play Rip Van Winkle is the holiday attraction at this hall, and is supported by a strong company of artistes, including Mr Fred Storey, who appears with success in the title-rôle. The play is capitally staged and the scenic effects are all that could be desired.

SHEFFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S Carter.—After being thoroughly renovated, Mr Purcell's beautiful and perfectly appointed theatre reopened for the autumn season on Monday with the domestic drama entitled Rogues and Vagabonds, which proved quite suitable to the taste of the popular audience expected on a Bank Holiday. The large house was repeatedly "thrilled," and at times kept in roars of laughter by mirth-provoking incidents. The exciting motor-car sensation was loudly applauded, the scenery was effective, and the members of Mr Henry Esden's company, including Mr J. C. Carlyle, Mr Frank Dennis, Miss Billee Doyle, and Miss Lizzie Webb, acquitted themselves to the satisfaction of everybody.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr Auguste Van Biene is again appearing here in The Broken Melody, accompanied by Miss Lena Burnleigh and a carefully selected company. Mr Van Biene repeats his successful impersonation of Paul Borinski, and his 'cello solos are loudly applauded; Miss Burnleigh looks charming and acts with discretion; and all the other parts have clever representatives. The First Night was billed for Friday in addition to The Broken Melody.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—Saved from the Sea, well mounted and acted, was received with approving cheers on Monday night. Mr Leonard Robson, Mr W. A Attfield, Mr Sydney Kearns, Miss Dora Condor, Miss A. Smith, and the other artists of Mr Leslie Vyner's admirable dramatic company all did justice to their respective parts.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—Nellie Coleman, "the female Dan Leno;" the Poluski Brothers, comedians; Annie Casey, serio; Charles Chard, vocal comedian; Dome, modeller in clay; the Sisters Govell, duettists; Orpheus, musical entertainer; Ross and Grayson, sketch artistes; Homer Mason and Marguerite Keeler, in Hooked by Crook; and the Bioscope delighted packed houses on Monday.

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr W. C. Burns.—J. P. Boston, an old Sheffield favourite; Reuben Hill, Lily Belle, Curley Jackson, Pallister's Bioscope, the talented Watson Family, and John Marx, in feats of strength, are doing well at this hall.

SHREWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. C. Dornton.—This theatre re-opened on Bank holiday, when The Belle of New York attracted a bumping house. The Ben Greet company, under the direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard, staged the piece well, and its phenomenal popularity does not wane. Mr Edward Chester was a vigorous and successful Ichabod Bronson; Mr Edward Crossland was smart and talented as Harry Bronson; Mr Jos. R. Tate caused roars of laughter by his quaint antics as Karl Von Pumpernick; Mr Colin Johnson acquitted himself creditably as Doc Snifkins; Mr Morrice Holmes was a capable Blinkey Bill, the Bowery boy, his dancing being specially good; Mr Gus Danby made an amusing Kenneth Mugg; Messrs Claydon and Evans were a diverting pair as Counts Patsi and Ratsi Rattato, and various other male rôles were satisfactorily taken. Miss Cicely O'Nolan made a pleasing Violet Grey, her singing being most effective; Miss Adele Roze danced and acted spiritedly as Fifi Fricot; Miss Daisy Baldry merited praise as Cora Angelique; Miss Maisie Potter was a capable Kitty Fitzgarter; Miss Louie Sand, an agile and vivacious Mamie Clancey; and the chorus of ladies was powerful and well trained. Miss Maude Brocks was a clever solo dancer.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—George Daventry's new version of the Indian Mutiny was the Bank Holiday attraction. It was played by Mr Frank E. Burdett's company. Mr Fred Emery as Lieut. Manley scores a signal success; Mr Villiers Stanley, whose undoubted ability is rigorously tested as Nebu Singh, stands out prominently by his resourceful interpretation; Mr H. J. Brandon ably depicts Capt. Manley; Ra Goonga is powerfully handled by Mr Ernest Keand; and Mr J. S. Sheddon is a cunning Abul Khan; Mr W. S. Tindall is a conscientious Major Ingleby; Mr Johnny M'Elroy's broad humour as Terry O'Brien never fails to gain points. The good-natured Mrs Major Ingleby is well looked to by Miss Kate Bruce; Miss Agnes Kingston presents a winsome Kate Ingleby, acting throughout with the necessary abandon. A dignity and spirit altogether suitable to the character of Ghuz-Nah are displayed by Miss Maud Digby. The scenery, costumes, and effects are noteworthy. Friday was set aside for the complimentary benefit of the popular lessees, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—Carrie Lourie's Juveniles in the Kindergarten is one of the most popular of turns which visit here, and excellent houses are showing hearty approbation of these versatile young artists. Tambo and Tambo, tambourine manipulators, are skilful; and Brett and Orford, in their vaudeville Two Love Birds, are pleasing. Others under engagement for the week include Maudie Kendall, comedienne and dancer; Prof. Earle, conjuror and humourist; Harry Hayton, eccentric comedian; Sisters Caselli, soubrette artists and dancers; Harry Sheldon, tenor vocalist; and James Grant, eccentric comedian.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—There was a crowded audience on Bank Holiday to witness the representation of The Female Swindler, by Mr Tom H. Taylor's company, which is one of exceptional excellence, and includes Mr W. S. Hartford, whose portrayal of Jack Coulsen is exceedingly clever and effective. As Lu Valroy Miss Violet Ellicot acts with power. Mr Weldon Atherstone is a capable Geoffrey Warden; and Mr Rule Pyott an amusing Abraham Mikestein. Mr Luke Foster appeared with success in several characters. Mr Geo. Unwin is praiseworthy as Harold Travers. Mr A. Kenyon Gray looks and acts the part of James Oliver admirably; and as May Andrews Miss Florrie Kelsey fills the part pleasingly.

SMETHWICK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—A Tempter of Women has kept the attendance fully up to Bank Holiday mark each night this week, thus Aston's verdict has been swiftly and heartily emphasised. Mr Clifford Rean, so far from resting content, has even improved his part of the admirable Buskin. Mr Forbes Murray, too, gives an excellent picture of a villain ready to profit by any scheme that might suggest; and Mr David Phillips as that sly rascal Isaacs is eminently clever. Miss Nesta Sandford continues to give a sympathetic picture of the heroine, and Mr Sidney T. Pease as the hero is most successful; as, indeed, are all the others.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—On Monday, to a crowded house, George Dance's company produced the musical play The Girl from Kay's. Pretty and winsome Miss May Marton made an ideal Norah Chalmers; her acting was perfect, and her songs could not have been rendered better. Majestic and commanding, and with charming presence, Miss Lily Lingard as Winnie Harborough proved herself an actress of no ordinary ability; her quiet repugnance to "Piggy," and, later, her display of true affection for him, were alike clever impersonations. Mr Johnnie Schofield as Max Hoggenheimer worked hard, and his quaint humour was truly refreshing; every point was made the best of, and the laughter of the vast audience was uncontrollable. Equally successful was Mr T. Shelford as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle. Mr C. Gould as Joseph was excellent, and Harry Gordon was effectively played by Mr Garnet Wilson. A word of praise is due to the picturesque scenery, whilst the dresses were elaborate and costly.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—A capital variety programme is submitted here this week, and most appreciative audiences find plenty of amusement. Tom Dunmore is a quaint comedian; Madge Daly makes a good burlesque actress; the Ashwells are clever in their female impersonations and dancing; Blanche and Diacoff are two wonderful sensational cyclists on the tea-cup track; the Three Woodbee Wonders as comedy acrobats give a capital display of their talent; the Original Yorkshire Mill Lasses possess excellent voices, and their singing is vociferously received; Johnny Worman is a humorous comedian; and the Four Magnets are clever acrobatic coon and step dancers. The Chamounix orchestra add greatly to the programme.

KURSAAL.—General-Manager, Colonel Blair Staples.—In the variety theatre are Cissy Pasis, cosmopolitan artist; Charles Osborne, society comedian; Wee Mona, a clever child; Rozel, in his sensational aerial gymnastic performance; the Twelve Cotton Coons in new musical scena, entitled Plantation Frolics; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. In the circus are several new turns, and the other attractions are well patronised.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; General Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—The above place of amusement reopened on Monday after having been closed for alterations. The improvements have been carried out in a praiseworthy manner, and include chiefly the erection of a scene-dock, and the installation of electric light, with numerous other alterations tending to increase the comfort of both audiences and artists. The opening performance of Mr Sanderson Moffat's company in A Woman Adrift was witnessed by a crowded audience. Mr S. Moffat successfully appeared in the dual-rôle of Don Leo Castro and Ferdinand Castro. Miss Phyllis Hamilton's interpretation of Cora Leigh is excellent, and Miss Phyllis Graham gives every satisfaction by her clever performance of Rupert Ingleby. Mr Geo. Sydenham gives a typical portrayal of Sir John Ingleby; Miss Violet Keand shows experience in the rôles of Lady Ingleby and Stella; and Miss Maud Merrick is sprightly as Molly. The comedy is ably accounted for by Mr Watson Hume as Dennis, Mr W. H. Mackersey as Roderick, and Mr Chas. Wilson as Jibbs.

STALYBRIDGE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr H. L. Rooke.—Mr John H. Morton has visited the town with the dramatic opera The Rajah of Ranjapore on several previous occasions, and each time there are improvements which are favourably recognised. Mr W. C. Bland is good as Horatio Chicks, and Mr Chas. E. Linney as Ted Travers, disguised as an artist but in reality the Rajah, performs his part in excellent style. Miss Nell Ascott as Primrose and Miss Carrie Nono as Eliza are very good. The remaining parts are in safe hands. The musical numbers are rendered very prettily, and the Verona Troupe give up-to-date cake-walk, Oriental, and acrobatic dances.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—After undergoing a thorough renovation this beautiful palace was reopened on Monday by a return visit of Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr F. C. Somerfield's company in A Life's Revenge. As Michael Orloff Mr Walter Roberts gives a clever and consistent delineation of the part. Mr F. C. Somerfield exhibits skill and force as Prince Strogoroff. Messrs J. F. Traynor and Pringle Roberts are very successful as Paul and Maurice respectively. Miss Marie Dagmar displays ability of no mean order as Princess Vanda. Miss Katherine Eckhart makes an excellent Marci, and Miss Sallie Adelstone scores as Daphne Dashaway.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs T. Barrasford, F. Willmot, and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—There is a very good general company here this week. The star turn is Miss Ethel Arden, supported by Mr George Abel and company, in a humorous sketch entitled Three of a Kind. Downes and Langford, comedians, make a welcome reappearance; the Two Donalds, who are deputising for the Harmony Trio, are a droll couple. Others appearing are Mons. Rappo, assisted by Mdlle. Ellis, who gives a clever acrobatic act; Mahatma, "the woman of mystery;" Miss Lillian Neville, a pleasing vocalist; and the Sisters Morrison, who have made a hit as duettists and dancers.

SUNDERLAND.

AVENUE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr Milton-Ray's company, in A Hot Night, occupies the boards here this week. Mr Rolando Martin as Whiffles was particularly good; Mr Maxwell Stewart as a spiritualistic professor and Mr Arthur Milton as Frank Firth score heavily; and Mr Sherwin as Captain Drake is excellent. Miss Susie Beaven is a bright Polly Drake, and Miss Clara Reid as a brisk maid gives some good singing and dancing. Miss Jessie Wrae and Miss A. Montague are worthy of special mention.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr Sydney Spenser's company, in the drama The Hero of the Flag, commenced a six nights' engagement here on Monday night. Miss Lizzie Hall as Mabel Forrester, Miss Mabel Yorke as Ruth Clifford, Mr Eric Williams as Jack Lawrence, Mr Sydney Spenser as Paul Mansfield, Mr T. G. Bailey, Miss Maude Le Ray, and Mr A. E. Andrews distinguished themselves greatly.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Livermore Brothers; Acting-Manager, Mr George V. Wybrow; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alfred Browne.—Alexandra Dagmar, burlesque artiste, is at the top of the bill this week. Manning's Entertainers are an amusing turn. The M'Connell Trio are first-rate singers and dancers. The Two Anartos, musical comedians; Allan and Hart, duettists and dancers; Eily Adair, comedienne; Kisbey, the "call boy;" and Maude Nicholls, comedienne, also contribute.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—Mr T. Morton Powell's company in the sensational play Honour Thy Father is paying a first visit here. Mr J. W. Evelyn as Gabriel Garth acts in a powerfully pathetic manner; Mr Campion Abbott's Jack Halyard is very creditably done; and Mr P. Barry-Lewers' Duncan Bly is also an able impersonation. Mike Copplestone, by Mr Charles May, is full of fun, and other male parts are in capable hands. Praiseworthy acting is also shown by Miss Alwynne Ermon (Mercy Merry), Miss Elizabeth Watkins (Lilian Garth), and Miss Lizzie Moorley (Poppy Cornleigh). Some very startling effects are shown in this piece, notably, the lunatic's chair and the terrible bronze mask.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—A good holiday programme here is headed by the Rinaldo Trio, comedy equilibrists. James Brady, comedian; Alexandra and Bertie, in their aerial act; Vasco, the mad musician; My Fancy, a splendid dancer; the Singing Pit-boy, the Freans, comedians and dancers; and Payne's Bioscope with new films complete the bill.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—A capital programme is presented this week. At the head are Lockhart's elephants, performed by Captain Taylor. Maggie Duggan is most successful in her contributions; the Royal Welsh Singers are particularly fine; the Two Bostons are most amusing in their comedy acts; Beatie Kent dances cleverly; and Tom Collins sings his comic songs in a smart manner. Edward Selman, a comedian of merit, meets with much success, and the Animatograph shows the Hackenschmidt and Jenkins wrestling match, which is watched with interest.

STOURBRIDGE.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—The atmospheric conditions were not in favour of a large audience at the above on Monday, when Messrs Perry and Stanton's company presented for the first time locally a musical drama, The Sporting Girl. The cast, although large, is representative, and the performance went very well. In the last act a speciality by Misses Matthews and Montrose of the cake-walk was very attractive.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—The popular military drama In the Ranks was played at this house on the afternoon and evening of Bank Holiday, by Arthur Carlton and H. Armitage's company, which is here on a week's visit. The play was well put on and won general appreciation, especially the hero, Ned Drayton, in the hands of Mr Bernard Copping, and the heroine, Ruth Herrick, by Miss Edith Blair-Staples.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—Here Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson's stirring drama, The Executioner's Daughter, has been played throughout the week, with a matinée on Bank Holiday, by Messrs Darcy and Little's company.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—An interesting programme has been given here for the Bank Holiday week with the following:—Keily and Gillette, "the bounding boys of the billiard table," a most humorous turn; the Lyons Trio, a clever and amusing trio of pantomimists and dancers; Carlotta Levey, a charming comedienne; the Tally-Ho! Trio, an amusing turn; Miss Helen Charles, a capital vocalist; James Kurry, a clever comedian; the Herald Comedy Four, in their speciality, The Indians and the Sailor; Cliff Ryland, an exceedingly quaint comedian; J. C. Jimson, with his cleverly trained dogs; and Conway and Leland, "the merry monopedes."

SWINDON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners; Acting-Manager, Mr W. B. Astin.—Mr Alfred Manners had abundant cause for self-congratulation when this popular playhouse was formally re-opened on Monday by Mr J. Hinton, Mayor of Swindon, amid a scene of the most intense interest and enthusiasm. It was at the commencement of July that Mr Manners took over the managerial reins, and during the month's interval it has been converted into one of the prettiest playhouses in the provinces. The tone of the colouring, especially the ceiling and proscenium, is in delightful taste, embellished with a clever arrangement of electric lighting throughout. The tasteful placement of cooling palms and ferns, and nicely framed pictures and pier-glasses in the private boxes and stalls, which are refitted with newly-upholstered drop seats, and warm carpets, has much enhanced the prevailing comfort. Very striking improvements are the beautifully designed entrance hall to the higher priced seats, and the rearrangement of the refreshment-rooms. Mr Manners, in his duties of sole lessee and responsible manager, will be assisted by Mr W. B. Astin, while a really good orchestra has been gathered under the able bâton of Mr Fred H. Lucas, late of the Elster Grimes Grand Opera company. In addition to the neat little opening speeches and the hearty singing of the National Anthem, another pleasant incident marked one of the intervals. Mr Lawrence Brough, whose admirable Lady of Ostend company holds the boards during the week, came before the curtain to present the new lessee with an exquisite floral tribute in the shape of a horse-shoe as an omen of the "good luck" that members of the company and the stage staff wished that gentleman in his popular enterprise. The performance of The Lady of Ostend was conspicuously successful in every respect, the staging being of the best. Mr Lawrence Brough gave an excellent study of Le Baron De Longueville, and Mr Harry Hampson must be deservedly complimented upon his masterly portrayal of Dick Whortles. Mr Percy Marshall's conception of old Joseph Carbury was a true one; and Mr Edmund Gurney, always enjoyable, submitted a very fine character study of Toby Krookitt. In the part of Dorothy Miss Kate Milford was particularly pleasing, and with Miss Margaret Anthony as Millie, was always a genuine favourite with the huge Bank Holiday audience. The smaller parts are each capitally dealt with, and Margaret's Stratagem forms an acceptable curtain-raiser.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs F. Moullot and Weldon Dale; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Edgar Manaton.—Mr Norman V. Norman's repertoire company is paying a successful return visit this week. The pieces selected for performance are Nell Gwyn and David Garrick. Miss Beatrice Wilson takes the title-rôle in the former, and Mr Norman in the latter, he also playing the Merry Monarch, in Nell Gwyn, while Miss F. Glossop Harris sustains the part of the Duchess of Portsmouth.

TYNEMOUTH.

PALACE AND WINTER-GARDENS.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H Graham; Acting-Manager and Musical-Director, Herr Arnold Blomé.—Lanos and Montes, comedy acrobats, head the bill here this week, and are enthusiastically received. Hyam Long, musical comedian, does well. The St. Johns, in their musical act; Master Ralph Moore, soprano; and Miss May West, vocalist, also contribute to the programme. The Royal Court Orchestra, under the bâton of Herr Wilhelm Wehber, continues to please with various well-rendered selections. The evening entertainment winds up with an excellent show of animated pictures.

VENTNOR (I.O.W.).

PAVILION.—On Monday Mr Payne Seddon presented Gordon Starkey's company in A Message from Mars. Mr Cyril Austen-Lee proved himself an efficient character actor as Horace Parker. Special praise must be given to Mr Percy Tyler in the part of the Tramp. The Messenger was most ably acted by Mr William Lockhart. A more charming and lovable Minnie Templars could hardly be found than Miss Edith Cuthbert. Dr. Chapman was represented by that capable actor Mr G. R. Peach, and a word of praise must be given for his reading of the part of Arthur Dicey. Through the unavoidable absence of Mr A. W. Munro, Mr C. R Wentworth made a most active and efficient policeman. Miss Parker was a faithful representation in the hands of that experienced actress Miss Rosetta M'Laren. The coster, Joe, was capitally played by Mr Sam Haines, and a word of praise must be given to Miss Maud Shortland as Bella.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs Carson and Granville's company is here this week in the play, The Drama of Life. Harry Beech is effectively presented by Mr Jerold Ord, Mr G. H. Hooker acts well as Walter Beech, Mr Owen Remond does capable work as Sir Dobson Wilde, Mr Walter Steele is successful as Benton, a detective; Mr Vernon Dalby makes the most of the part of the French Count, Miss Cissy Bellamy gives an able and sympathetic rendering of Sylvia Beech, Miss Murial Inglis is pleasing as Lady Wilde, Miss Marie Murray acts with taste as Master Robert Beech, and the character of Betty Black is creditably filled by Miss Nellie Daby.

WALSALL.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—When London Sleeps, played by Mr Lester Collingwood's company, is here. Mr Franklyn Graham gives a vivid impersonation of villainy as Rodney Haynes, and receives commendable help from Mr F. E. Thomas as Rodney's accomplice. Mr W. H. S. Sams's David Eagleheart is heroically performed, and the part of the heroine is charmingly portrayed by Miss Maude Hastings. Miss Phœbe Buller as Phyllis Kenyon, Miss Marie Turner as Adeline Verne, Miss Mary Brammer as Hilda, and Mr Victor Mason as Sammy Blyth all play with conspicuous success.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Mr T. Edward Ward's company, in Her Fatal Past, is proving a great attraction here this week. Mark Desmond is impersonated by Mr Jackson Hayes with great success, Gilbert Fernside has a vigorous representative in Mr Wilson Coleman, Mr T. C. Glenville makes a capital Leonard Fernside; Miss Ward thoroughly realises the responsibilities of the part of Honor Symes, Miss Helen Inglelow is most successful as Ruth Fernside and Belle De Lara, and Mr T. Edward Ward is exceedingly good as Jonathan Buckstone Nobbs.

WALTHAMSTOW.

PALACE.—Managing Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—Business of the "bumper" description was the order here at both houses on Monday. The Four Jumels started proceedings on the stage, and their really artistic instrumentalism was much enjoyed. Miss Jessica Grace is a handsome and talented burlesque artiste, and her contributions were well received. The ultra-farcical absurdity My Friend Boots, played by Johnny Holland and company, kept the spectators in constant explosions of mirth. A particularly popular item was the humorous and musical tit-bits of Signor and Madame Borelli. Miss Vesta Victoria's popular ditties fully sustained her reputation. The Mackweys were screamingly funny in their comic wire act. The classical pianist Kopski performed prodigies at the piano; Michael and Polo were much admired as athletes; and Pat Rafferty also entertained. Mr Joe O'Gorman was well received in the second house.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Mr Frank Lindo and company are appearing here for the first time in Home, Sweet Home. Mr G. F. Black gives a fine performance of Stephen Armitage, displaying rich histrionic abilities; Mr Frank Lindo as David Armitage is decidedly impressive; and a dignified Duke of Ancaster is presented by Mr Rolfe; and Mr W. J. Anson is excellent as the Hon. Percy Ashford. In the heavy rôle of Lucas Lyle Mr Arthur Rodney earns the execrations of all with his realistic acting; Mr T. Lewis is a satisfactory Solomon Leary; and a clever study of Dick Redmayne is submitted by Mr George Overs. Miss Marion Wakefield acts faithfully the part of Joan; Little Miss Ivy Rochefort plays sweetly the part of the child Dora; Miss Ivy Thorne is a vivacious Sybil Fay; and Miss Fanny Thorne as Lady Summerton completes an excellent cast.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmot.—Another excellent list of artistes is here this week, and Troba in a juggling act gives some really wonderful exhibitions of this art. The Albano Troupe submit a clever musical act which wins approval; and Gus Harris scores in a Jew part. Sisters Brenton are refined duettists; and Tom Brenton is possessed of a rich baritone voice. Selby and Myers are original patter artists; and Oliver Conroy an eccentric comedian.

WARWICK.

CASTLE GROUNDS.—In connection with the local flower show, Mr P. Kirwan and company appeared in pastoral plays on Monday, to the delight of large audiences. Ashton's White Viennese Band was in attendance.

WEDNESBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr W. J. Cranston.—This theatre opened here on Monday evening after the summer vacation with Roy Jackson's No. 1 company, in The Hand of Iron. The company, which is an excellent one, includes Mr Roy Jackson, in the important part of Manuel Levigne, alias Mad Pierre. Mr Neil Smith as Edmund Singleton does some very good work, and as George Sutherland Mr R. Lawrence scores successfully; Mr Percy Stevenson gives a capable rendering of Solomon Isaac Silver; Miss Kitty Lawrence makes a charming and interesting Marie Duroque; whilst the part of May Sutherland is effectively portrayed by Miss E. Townend. The part of Nell Swift is well played by Miss Pratt. On Tuesday evening Quasimodo, the Hunchback of Notre Dame, was played.

WEST BROMWICH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Mr J. P. Moore has commenced his holiday season with the attractive drama, Why Woman Sins. Therein Mr Wallace Campbell and Mr G. Harris appear to great advantage. Miss Mildred Cottell in her original character is a star, and she has good support in Misses Preece, Merilese, and West. Mr Charles Herberte and Miss Georgina Thomas also do well. The whole of the parts are well cast, and the piece meets with deserved success.

WHITBY.

WEST CLIFF SALOON THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr Henry Walker.—This theatre opened on Bank Holiday with Mr Frank Curzon's amusing farce Glittering Gloria, a piece full of uproarious fun. There was an appreciative company present each evening. Mr Haughton Macaulay as Zebdee Poskett is highly successful; Mr John Campbell as Jack James and Mr W. Champney as Archie Toddleby evoked much laughter; Miss Mary Bune as Sarah and Miss Dorothy Duncan as Dorothy Kenworthy admirably portrayed their respective parts. Roltz's Troupe of American dancers contribute largely to the success of the piece.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; Manager Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident Manager, Mr Fred Conneaux.—Mr Arnold Bell's company is giving a very effective representation of Ben-My-Chree at this theatre this week, and, despite the hot weather, good houses are the order. Mr A. Bell himself gives a powerful interpretation of the leading character, Dan Mylrea, and Miss Francis Campbell charmingly portrays Mona Mylrea. Mr F. C. Robson is also a decided success as Ewan Mylrea; and Davy Fayle finds a really worthy exponent in Mr Wm. Reed. The vocal items by Miss Ada Barstow are most acceptable.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—The building hitherto known as the Gaiety has, after being thoroughly redecorated, upholstered, and altered, been reopened under its new title, and included in Mr Macnaghten's already extensive vaudeville circuit. Both houses on Monday were packed from floor to rafter, hundreds being unable to gain admission. The bill, a strong one, which is submitted for the opening week, is headed by Celina Bobe, expert violinist and xylophoniste, whose renderings hold the audience spellbound. Roze and Calvert, comedy artists, create much laughter in their sketch; the audience listen with enraptured attention to the singing of Stewart and Morgan; Hetty Devine renders some favourite ballads in pleasing style; the card manipulations of Carlton are performed with much dexterity; and other turns that meet with a gratifying reception are provided by the Carle and Carmencill Trio; Will Johnson, eccentric comedian; and Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Payne.—On Monday Messrs Dauncey and France's No. 1 company opened here in Whitewashing Julia. Miss Ruth Maitland made a charming Julia Wren; Miss Kate Bishop gave a remarkable and artistic interpretation of Lady Pinkney; Miss Mary Löhr was delightful as Trixie; Miss Kate Osborne is a decided success as Mrs Benbow; Mr H. Asheton Tonge gave a finished performance of Mr William Stillingfleet; Edwin Pinkney found an admirable exponent in Mr Willox Cadogan; Mr H. Carter Bligh also did well as Bevis Pinkney; and Mr A. M'Lean was praiseworthy as Mr Samways.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The Gaieties are paying a very welcome return visit here this week, and were greeted on Monday by a well-filled house. Miss Edith Trew sang with much expression "The Swiss Girl's Lament;" Miss Ruby Wilson was loudly applauded for her singing of "Little Miss Innocent;" Mr Wilson James was delightfully droll in his humorous songs, especially "Play ze game." In his humorous sketch, "Une Soirée Musicale," Mr Charles Conyers was a decided success.

WEYMOUTH.

JUBILEE HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. R. Wallis.—The holiday attraction here is Mr Geo. Edwardes's musical comedy company, in San Toy. An immense house attended on Monday and showed how greatly they appreciated the excellent company's acting. Unfortunately, Mr A. Beers, who was to have played Li, was so indisposed that a substitute had to be found for him in Mr Whyte Wentworth. Miss Alice Hatton was perfection as San Toy, and an excellent impersonation of Dudley was that of Miss Florence Arnold. Poppy's (Miss Mabel Lavelle) singing was very musical, Miss Beatrice Vaenor made a good Ko Fan, the part of Sir Bingo Preston was in the able hands of Mr G. J. Williams, and Captain Bobby Preston met with good treatment at the hands of Mr Edmund Sherras. Yen How by Mr A. W. Clarke and the Emperor by Mr Cliffe Davies were both well rendered. The chorus was very good, and an able orchestra was well managed by Mr Harold Lonsdale.

WHITEHAVEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Clark.—The theatre opened for the season on Monday evening, Mr Sydney Vereker's company being the attraction in the drama The Red Signal. Mr G. Langdon appears as Sir Otto Darkwood and as Jack Darkwood, and is successful in both characters. Mr S. Vereker is good as Sammy, and Mr F. Thorpe Tracy acts creditably as Peter Sorrell. Miss Norah Caronne wins applause as Florence Culver, and Miss Rosa Lehmann is capital as May Sorrell. The scenery is good, and during the intervals Miss Marion Edwards, gold medallist, gives selections from her répertoire.

WHITSTABLE.

TANKERTON PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs Royle and Mervin; Manager, Mr Gilbert Tankard.—An attractive programme is provided here, including Miss Marie Westcott, contralto; Miss Ada Wheeler, chanteuse; Mr Hickman-Smith, baritone; and Miss May Windsor, accompanist. Mr Wilmot Hastings, comedian, is a strong favourite, whilst Mr Gilbert Tankard scores a decided success in his humorous musical sketches.

WIGAN.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—This theatre has been repainted and decorated throughout, and several structural alterations made. The dressing-rooms have also been rendered more comfortable. The theatre was reopened after the summer vacation on Monday evening, when there was a crowded house. The play was A Modern Adventuress, a drama by Mr Lingford Carson. The staging of the piece is admirable, and Messrs Carson and Granville's company a strong one. Miss B. Anderson gives a forceful representation of the title-rôle, and Miss Alice Defoe as Vivette Delby plays the opposite type of character admirably. Mr Charles Stirling as the hero, Harry Delby, and Mr Leonard Aardale as Pietro Donelli are excellent. Mr W. H. Winning as Wallace Delby, the adventuress's accomplice, give a fine presentation of the character, and the fun of the play is supplied by Mr Frank Hill as John Crompton and Miss Fisher as Sally Hodges.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—The Lancashire comedienne, Miss Florrie Gallimore, is a very attractive artiste, and Cliffe Berzac's performing ponies, &c., give a capital entertainment. Harry Walker, comedian; Lily Sharplin, vocalist and mimic; Harland and Rollison, musical grotesques; and the Three Sisters Lee, acrobats, vocalists, and "terrific" dancers, are all extremely good in their respective turns. Brindall and Cooper, comedians and dancers; Duvanlos, contortionists; the Paragon Trio, vocalists; Coram, ventriloquist; and the Hippodrome pictures complete a satisfactory programme.

WINDSOR.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Governing Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry E. Rickitt.—For Bank Holiday and the rest of this week this theatre has been occupied by Mr Edward Neville's company with the stirring drama The Anarchist Terror, and a dramatic version of Miss Marie Corelli's celebrated novel "The Sorrows of Satan." The expectation of sensational incidents at once suggested by such a title as The Anarchist Terror is more than fulfilled, for this play abounds in harrowing scenes, blood-curdling situations, and diabolical deeds. Mr Edward Neville, who assumes several rôles, is a very devil incarnate in each impersonation, his Mephistophelian make-up, manner, and acting being "Good!" (to adopt his pet exclamation). His rendering of the half-mad, unscrupulous, blood-seeking anarchist is almost soul-freezing, and the final scene in which he, "The Terror," is electrocuted by the fearful machine which he has invented for the destruction of mankind is ghastly in the extreme. So startling is this conclusion that Mr Neville deems it wise to forewarn ladies and other nervous persons that, terrible and frightful as the dénouement may seem, there is no danger in it, and that it is merely "an effect." Capable and satisfactory impersonations were presented by, among others, Mr George Harvey as Silas Washington Goldstraw, a retired Yankee pork king; Mr James Turner as Lieut. Armstrong, Attaché to the Embassy at Rome; Mr Will White as Mikey Doolan, Mr Gus Bowerman as Ishmael, Miss Annie Brunette as Marita, Miss Frances Warring as Columbia Goldstraw, Miss Kate Carr as Fioretta, Miss Cecile Bryne as Zara, and Miss Loi Osmond as Kitty Malone. The Sorrows of Satan was set down for Thursday and Friday evenings.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

Grand Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Wilton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—This theatre was reopened on Monday. Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company presented The Midnight Mail, which was realistically and effectively staged. The company is a good one, and includes Mr George Harvard, who admirably acts the part of Harry Steyne; Mr Fred G. Evison, who is a capital Billy Brewer; and Mr Arthur Gilroy, who makes an excellent Hassan Padisha. Other characters are well handled by Mr Alec Alves, Mr Charles M'Cann, Mr R. Entwistle, Miss Ada Oakley, and Miss Mildred Carr.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Sole Lessees, Messrs Fred Benton and Fred J. Little; Manager, Mr Fred Benton.—The attraction here for the holiday week consists of The Two Hussars, which is being performed by Messrs Fred J. Webb and Wilson Bilge's company.

Empire Palace.—Managing Director, Mr Chas. Barnard; General Manager, Mr W. H. Lennon.—A good programme is headed by Max Renard's Dalmatian boar hounds, who give a clever performance; Henri Cazman is an admirable impersonator; Fred Terry, "the white Stratton;" George Rapley, comedian; Sisters Brand, comediennes and dancers; the Bros Brooks, comedians; the Three Sisters Parez, musicians; Hughes and Elliott, vocalists and sand dancers; Miss Florence Yaymen, eccentric; and Ruffle's Bioscope are also in the bill.

People's Palace (St. George's Hall).—Good houses have been the rule here this week The engagement of our popular local star Mrs Mac (Nora M'Evoy) has proved an immense success. The remainder of the company consist of Knotto, juggler; Lavelle, coster comedian; Helena Sleath, contralto; Will Beattie, comedian; Merry Mac, that man from Dublin; Sleath and Aldin, in a comedy act; and a stirring scena by the Ricardo company, entitled A Heart of Gold.

WORCESTER.

New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; General Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—Reorganised for the ensuing season, Messrs M. H. Glenville and F. Osmond's company commenced a new tour here last Monday in that favourite American sensational drama The Still Alarm. The piece was admirably mounted, while the steam fire engine (which is such an important adjunct) and the trained horses, Pegasus and Bucephalus, were also introduced with good effect. The part of Jack Manley, the hero, was finely portrayed by Mr Glenville, his partner, Mr Osmond, appearing in the humorous character of Doc Wilber. Mr Paul Lovett was a clever villain; Mr Tom Beasley was good as Jack's brother, Willie; Mr Lewis Gordon, Mr Dan Mining, and Mr Arthur Downs filling minor rôles. The ladies in the company are Miss Hettie Zillwood, Carrie Wilber; Miss Mary Lovett, Elinore; and Miss Mabel Veriton, Mrs Manley. They are all very good, and the first-mentioned affords much pleasure by her singing of "Good old summer time" and her dancing. The Central Brigade Quartet party, like Miss Zillwood, were enthusiastically encored, and the various effective scenes, culminating in a rescue from a burning building, were realistically produced.

WORKINGTON.

Queen's Opera House.—Lessee, Mr C. F. Porter.—This theatre, which has been renovated and artistically decorated throughout, was opened for the season on Monday, when there was a large house. Mr Osmond Tearle's company appeared in The Merchant of Venice. Mr A. Marsh gave a fine impersonation of Shylock, and Miss Carrie Baillie, whose excellent portrayal of Portia was greatly appreciated, was warmly applauded. Mr Wm. Lowe was forcible as Antonio, and quite satisfactory were Mr R. Seymour as the Duke, Mr C. Grier as Bassanio, and Mr J. Burton as Gratiano. Mr J. J. Gallier delighted the audience as Launcelot Gobbo, and Mr R. S. Innes was good as Old Gobbo. Miss K. Magee was sympathetic as Jessica. The play was well staged.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr Helsby Wright.—At the reopening of this theatre on Monday there was a crowded audience to witness Gipsy Jack by Mr H. Bedford and his company. In the title-rôle he played with vigour. Mr R. Seymour was capable as Sir John; Mr T. A. Plummer was effective as Skinner, the agent; as the son of Skinner Mr A. Alexander was good; and also Mr C. Nobes as the curate. Miss G. Gilbert secured applause as Dorothy. As the Romany Miss A. Antley was excellent, and equally so was Miss E. Trench as Nan. The cast was good throughout.

WREXHAM.

Empire Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr Herbert Nicholls.—This week good business has been done. The artists appearing are Mr Gus Balsiger, eccentric comedian and instrumentalist; the Bendons (Harry and Edith), Mr Walter Purvis, comedian; the Sisters Isabelle, characteristic vocalists and dancers; Miss Kate Donn, serio; and Miss Bessie Willow, ballad vocalist.

YORK.

Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—The Sign of the Cross drew a large and delighted audience on Monday night. Mr F. B. Woulfe repeated his masterly rendering of Marcus, rising to the height of eloquence when necessity demanded it. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy added much charm to the rôle of Mercia, and was warmly received. Mr Bernhardt Turner was sufficiently obnoxious as Nero; and Messrs Charles Aldred and J. Weatherhall were in every respect capable exponents of Tigellinus and Licinius respectively. Miss Alma Bolton made a handsome and attractive Lady Berenice, and Miss Ivy Millais ably undertook the rôle of Stephanus. The dresses and mounting were alike excellent.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—The Harry Alaskas are the attraction this week, and meet with great success. Leo Dryden's singing is a special feature, and Meier and Mora, Two Neros, Amy Height, Ryder Slone, and Flo Chevalier complete the company.

The stock season at the Empire Theatre, Dundee, having proved a splendid success, a complimentary benefit was tendered to Mr A. W. B. Kingston last Thursday week, with most gratifying results. During the evening Mr Frank Percival, acting-manager of the Empire, publicly presented Mr Kingston, on behalf of the theatre, Mr G. Brown, Mr C. Clark, and a few friends with a very handsome kit bag, Mr Tom Mortimer presenting on behalf of the company a splendid case of shaving and toilet requisites. Mr Kingston made a suitable and humorous reply, and after the performance a very social night was spent, the company breaking up in the early hours of the morning.

Advertisers and Subscribers who are moving about, and who have their Copy of "The Era" sent direct from this Office, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, are requested to forward the Addresses for their Papers not later than the Tuesday in each Week.

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR

LATEST FILM FROM THE FRONT.

7,411. ARRIVAL AT TOKIO STATION OF JAPANESE SOLDIERS WOUNDED AT THE BATTLE OF NAN SHAN.

A most interesting film of fine quality, showing wounded and disabled officers and men being conveyed from Tokio Railway Station in rickshaws and on stretchers, being welcomed home by relations and friends. Recommended.

Length, 150ft. Price, £3 3s.

HOLBEIN SWIMMING IN THE CHANNEL.

Splendid portrait, showing his different styles of swimming and method of feeding while in the water.

Length, 150ft. Price, £3 3s.

DON'T BE GREEDY!

A beautiful "Kiddie" picture of a little girl restraining a Persian cat from stealing fish off the table, and placing a "bib" round its neck. A perfect gem in Films.

Length, 125ft. Price, £2 12s. 6d.

GREAT MOTOR RACE OFF RYDE, I.O.W.,

JULY 30, 1904.

The only Film produced of this interesting event. The water effect is truly magnificent.

THE WINNING OF THE INTERNATIONAL CUP BY GREAT BRITAIN,

Represented by "NAPIER MINOR" (55 h.-p.), owned and steered by S. F. Edge, Esq. Making Ready. The Starting Gun on Ryde Pier. Starter on the Mark-boat. The Racers leaving the mark. The Finish and the Automobile Club Boat returning to Southampton.

Length, 200ft. Price, £4 4s. 0d.

Exceptionally steady for a film taken in the water. Practically no movement of the horizon whatever. Mostly taken from the Mark-boat.

THE PREMIER MOTOR-BOAT OF THE WORLD, "NAPIER MINOR." Winner of the Kaiser's Cup and the International Cup, racing over the Sea at the terrific speed of 25 knots an hour.

Length, 57ft. Price, £1 11s. 6d.

The Boat comes tearing straight up to the camera and wheels round right in front of our operator, completely filling the screen. Absolutely rock steady. No riding horizon. The occupants are shown full size, filling the picture.

NEW ELGE FILMS.

A HIGHLY SENSATIONAL PICTURE—THRILLING IN THE EXTREME.

SCENE 1: A COUNTRY LANE.—Two tramps are seen making their nefarious preparations for an attack on a motor, by means of the "garrotting" method. The rope being fixed across the road at a height which they think will "hold" the occupants of the car to the best advantage, the tramps sit down to a frugal meal. A motor-horn is soon heard, and the tramps, after placing the rope in position, conceal themselves. The car, which has three occupants, rapidly approaches. On reaching the rope the occupants of the front seat, a lady and the chauffeur, steer clear, but the lady's husband, on the back seat, is "caught," and hurled violently into the roadway. The car is stopped, and the lady and chauffeur come to the rescue of the injured man. They are assailed violently by the ruffians, but, owing in no small measure to the pluck of the lady, they get the worst of it—one being felled to the ground and the other bound to a tree with the rope which was intended for his victims. The chauffeur rides off for the police. When they arrive on the scene the ruffians are handcuffed after a desperate struggle, and when the injured man has been tenderly handed into the car the party drive off, the handcuffed ruffians being obliged to make the best of the journey on foot, being held by the policeman and literally dragged after the car when they get up speed. Length, 290ft. Price, £7 5s.

185. A RAID ON A COINERS' DEN.

BRIMFUL OF THRILLING SITUATIONS.

The Coiners at Work. The Secret Sign of Admittance to the Den Discovered by the Detective. The detective gains admittance to the den, but is overpowered and left gagged and bound. The coiners make their escape, but, after a desperate struggle, are captured and led into prison in view of the audience. Length, 460ft. Price, £11 10s.

177. A SMART CAPTURE

Of a Burglar by a Country Policeman. Funny from start to finish. Length, 190ft. Price, £4 15s.

194. MILITARY TACTICS.

The trooper outwits his lieutenant, and the servant girl hoodwinks them both. This is a really clever comic, and the ludicrous situations with which it abounds are simply side-splitting.

Length, 201ft. Price, £5.

CLARENDON FILMS.—Exclusive London Agents.

101. A RAILWAY TRAGEDY. 225ft.

102. OFF FOR THE HOLIDAY. 375ft.
Dangerous to those with any sense of humour. Side-splitting.

LOCAL WORK.—Operators with loaded Chrono Cameras sent out at an hour's notice. Developing and Printing at Lowest Prices, and all work of first-rate quality. A Local Picture is ALWAYS a Great Attraction.

THE "PROFESSIONAL" CHRONO, the King of Bioscopes, sustains its popularity—and the reason is not far to seek. Its construction and all-round reliability and durability have made it a HOUSEHOLD WORLD in the Cinématograph world. Wherever you go you will find a "CHRONO," and its owner is always a happy man. Come and see it at work if you are not satisfied with your present machine, or if you require another for the coming season.

No 639. OUT WITH THE FOXHOUNDS.

This is a picture in several short scenes, depicting various episodes of a Fox Hunt. The first view shows the M.F.H. surrounded by the fine pack of hounds all eager for the chase. He leads the way, and is followed by the other members of the party, while the hounds run swiftly about in dangerous proximity to the horses' hoofs. The party is followed by the camera, and a pretty panorama of some beautiful country is obtained. At another point the horsemen have to jump some hedges, and a fine exhibition of horsemanship is given.

Length, 75ft. Price, £1 11s. 3d.

No. 640. THE SPOILT CHILD.

The hero of this delightful little subject is apparently an only child, who has been considerably spoilt. The part is acted with wonderful naturalness, and indeed it is so thoroughly well done that it is very difficult to believe that the young scapegrace could possibly have been conscious of the presence of a camera. Reproved for some naughty trick, the little boy scratches his nurse, and is promptly "put in the corner" by her while she goes to get tea ready. The moment she is out of the room the youngster darts out, removes the middle leaf from the table, and spreads the cloth again so as to hide the gap. When the nurse returns she puts the tea-things on the treacherous place, and they are all smashed in the fall which results. The naughty child gets well spanked, but one supposes that he considers the game well worth the candle.

Length, 100ft. Price, £2 1s. 8d.

WE ARE NOW VERY BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR AUTUMN TOURS,
but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist,
WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are also very busy Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We still hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional Work takes Precedence over all other orders.

By Special Arrangement,

TOURING MANAGERS

can have their Wardrobes Cleaned between Shows, when in or near London.

COPY OF MR COLE'S LETTER.

Yarmouth, Aug. 10.

My Dear Mr Harris,—

Very many thanks for your wire. I would have replied only was, as you can imagine, very busy. We managed to open all right, as you are, no doubt, aware, and everything went off splendidly.

I cannot thank you enough for all the trouble you took on our behalf, and but for your prompt action I am certain we could not have opened on Monday.

With kindest regards and again many thanks,

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) HORACE COLE,
"Darling of the Gods" Company.

NEW FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for adaptation, we shall publish from time to time synopses of notable Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purposes. All particulars respecting "rights," &c., can be obtained of the International Copyright Bureau, 4, Eastcheap, London.

"MARIE ANTOINETTE."

Historical Play, in Five Acts, by Annie Neumann Hofer.

ACT I.

The play opens in the Palace of the Tuileries. Marie Antoinette and the ladies of the Court are talking of the terrible times, the antagonism of the people to both King and Queen, the revolutionary spirit, and the constantly recurring acts of cruelty. The King joins them, bitterly complaining of a new Act, hostile to the Church, which he is asked to sign but feels he conscientiously cannot. The Queen exhorts him to be firm and not to give way to the revolutionary party against his convictions. But he is weak, and on the arrival of Lafayette and his companions is easily led to sign when they assure him it is for the good of the people. Lafayette in a scene with the Queen advises her to leave the country. The opposition and hatred of the people is directed against her, not against the King. Should she not take his advice, the people will resort to violence. She indignantly refuses to leave the King. The Queen expects Mirabeau, who, though a leader in the revolutionary faction, is a believer in hereditary monarchy, and hopes to bring about a state of peace. In a long interview, in which many things are touched upon, Mirabeau begs the Queen to go with the King and Court to Rouen: to leave Paris quietly. He has chosen Rouen because it is not on the frontier, therefore the idea of flight is excluded, and it is sufficiently near the capital. The Queen, though not in perfect accord, trusts Mirabeau implicitly, and agrees to the plan, with which the King is sure to be in harmony.

ACT II.

The court is at St. Cloud, light-hearted, away from the turmoil of Paris, and the scene is gay and festive. Soon the conplexion of things is changed—Mirabeau, disguised as a monk, visits the Queen and tells her that the King has signed a decree dismissing some revolutionary members of the Chamber and has thereby much incensed the populace. Mirabeau is keenly disappointed in the King, who has promised not to take any important step without consulting him. He is afraid the mob will come to St. Cloud, and urges both King and Queen to take to flight. The carriages and horses are ready for the proposed journey to Rouen; why not leave at once? The King and Queen are reluctant. Whilst they still waver a courtier brings the news that a furious mob is marching on the palace. The Queen orders the gates to be opened wide to receive them; they, wishing to join in the festivities, are surely friends. Mirabeau, awake to great danger, causes the gates to be closed and guarded. Loud cheering is heard from the mob outside and soon after Lafayette appears. He tells the King that the people, incensed at the dismissal of the members of the Council and at the rumour of the proposed flight of their Majesties, have decided to storm the castle; he commands both King and Queen to let the mob see them on the balcony and then to return to Paris to pacify them. The King agrees and the Queen resigns herself to his decision. Lafayette accuses Mirabeau of treachery, and threatens to denounce him to the Council.

ACT III.

The Chamber of Deputies is the scene of this act. Several Deputies are eagerly talking of Mirabeau and his treachery, some defending his action, sure that it can only have been done in the interests of freedom. The hum of the populace outside is heard through nearly the whole of the act; it rises to a shout before Lafayette enters. He says there is great excitement in the streets, pamphlets and posters accusing Mirabeau are being sold and shown everywhere. Shots are heard; soon after Mirabeau enters, seriously wounded, leaning on the arm of Dr. Cabanis, and is led to a sofa. Still when he hears the debate in the adjoining room—only curtained off from the ante-room—advocating the abdication of the King and Queen, he pulls himself together, and when the curtains are drawn back and the deputies are all seated, stands ready to make his speech. He immediately gains the ear of the assembly, tries to vindicate the position of the King and Queen, is attacked by Lafayette, who denounces him as a traitor to the people. Mirabeau calls Lafayette a dictator and usurper, and demands that the command of the National Guards be taken out of his hands. There is a struggle between the two, Mirabeau is overpowered by his weakness, and whilst begging his friend, Barnave, to arrange for the flight of the King and Queen falls back dead.

ACT IV.

A room in the palace of the Tuileries. All preparations have been made for the flight of King and Queen, but the latter is undecided, thinks it would be better to remain at their post even unto death. She has sent an emissary to England to ask assistance, but he returns bringing a negative answer. News is brought that by morning twenty thousand of the populace intend to storm the palace and demand the expulsion of the Queen, whom they call the Austrian hyena. Still she intends to stay in Paris, and when the Court leaves her to make the last preparations for flight, she is still resolute. Unknown to the Court, the doors of the palace have been left unguarded, and a man has found his way into the apartments of the Queen. He tells her he is poor and hungry, and as she is giving him money, he attempts to assassinate her. She cries for help, and immediately King and courtiers appear. The man is taken prisoner. The Queen is not hurt, and explains to eager listeners what has happened; whilst relating the story Lafayette enters and is astonished at the news. He has a very unpleasant duty to perform, to tell the Queen she has assisted traitors with money and therefore herself become a traitress to her country; and he feels he must denounce her to the assembly. But if she and the King will promise to give up their flight and remain in Paris, he will keep her secret. The Queen, seeing that Lafayette's offer is prompted by hatred, distinctly refuses to give him the promise. After his departure she agrees to the immediate flight; she, the dauphin and princess are to go as Countess Korff and children, the King as their coachman.

The scene changes to a little country inn. Thirty six hours have elapsed since the events just recorded. The monarchs have been unable to proceed in their flight, and at the little inn are soon recognised. The populace are enraged at their trying to leave the country and wish to force them to return to Paris. Royalist friends who had failed to successfully carry out the flight, now arrive with a troop of soldiers, and with their help believe they can still save the monarch. But the soldiers, shouting "Long live the People," refuse to obey orders. In the midst of the turmoil Lafayette again appears demanding the return of King and Queen to Paris. The people in the capital are in a state of revolt, blood is shed on all sides, they must return to pacify the mob. When they refuse, he shows the order of the Assembly and insists. Seeing that there is no other course open, reluctantly they follow him.

ACT V.

Again the scene is a room in the Palace of the Tuileries. Friends of King and Queen are gathered together determined to defend them to the last; but there are no weapons in the Palace, and the National Guard had refused to give arms to the Royalists. King and Queen are intensely excited and know not what to do for the best. The King from the balcony shows himself to the troops, and is received with cries of "Long live the people"—"Death to the tyrant." The populace are heard shrieking like wild beasts. Lafayette implores the monarchs to hide; it is the only way to save their lives. He has command of the castle, his will is absolute, and he is eager to hide them in the cellars and at night conduct them to Fontainebleau or anywhere away from the frantic populace. The Queen does not trust him, and absolutely declines to follow his advice. Then, he says, they must be prepared for the worst. All through the act the excitement increases, the populace demand abdication or death of the King. The only course open to the monarchs is to throw themselves upon the mercy of the National Assembly, and this they ultimately decide to do. The King and Queen take leave of their friends, saying they will soon return. The Queen looking back as she leaves the palace, with a terrible shriek exclaims "Good-bye, we shall never return," and Petion, mayor of Paris, who arrives at the palace as they leave, looks back at the Queen with the words "No, you will never return, we will make sure of that; now the Austrian hyena is in our power we shall not loose our hold." The infuriated mob storm the castle, howling and shrieking, the courtiers with difficulty escape, and amidst tumult and hubbub the curtain falls.

"LIEBELEI"

("LOVE'S ETERNITY, OR; PLAYING WITH FIRE.")

A Play, in Three Acts, by Arthur Schnitzler.

ACT I.

The room of Fritz Lobheimer in Vienna. He and his friend Theodor Kaiser are just returning from the country, much refreshed after their outing. But as soon as Fritz re-enters his room the good effect which the balmy country air had on him is gone, the old restlessness returns, and he nervously glances over the letters that have been awaiting him. Among them is one from his father asking him to spend the Whitsun holidays at his country seat. Theodor watches his friend, and then begins to soundly lecture him. He must go away for a time to recruit his nerves—yes, by all means accept his father's invitation and make an end to this unfortunate love affair. For Fritz has a love intrigue with a married woman, and both he and the lady have lately been living in constant dread lest the husband may be watching them and find everything out. Theodor has done all he could to make his friend shake off his infatuation; he has introduced him to two charming girls of the Viennese middle-class, hoping by their means to distract his thoughts from the dangerous subject. And for one of them, Christine Weiring, the daughter of a musician, Fritz has conceived a genuine affection. The gentleness and purity of the girl, her sweet and loving disposition, act like balm on his aching heart. And yet he cannot give up his relations with the other woman. A bell is heard. Fritz starts, but Theodor reassures him: he has taken the liberty to invite the two girls to his friend's rooms; this must be they. He is not mistaken. The first to come is Mizi Schlager, a smart young milliner, merry, light-hearted, and good-natured, soon to be followed by Christine. There follows a delightful hour, Theodor and Mizi doing their best to cheer up Fritz and Christine. For Christine is sad; she is deeply in love with Fritz, and therefore feels that his love of her is not what she wishes it to be. He does not come to see her as often as she should wish; moreover, she has seen him at the opera the other day in company of a lady to whom he was paying marked attentions, and her jealousy is roused. Yet so irresistible is the merry mood of the others that both Fritz and Christine cannot help joining in. After supper, while music and dancing are going on, the general merriment is suddenly interrupted by a bell. Fritz asks the girls and his friend to wait in the adjoining room, while he himself goes to open the door to the husband of his mistress. Not many words are exchanged. The wronged husband returns the letters to his wife and brings the challenge to a duel. Now all is lost. When the visitor has left Fritz calls in Theodor and explains to him in a few hurried words who his visitor was; the duel is to take place in two days. Theodor is the self-same night to go and find out another friend who is to act as second. Theodor tries to make light of the affair, but Fritz knows that in two days he will be a dead man. Then the girls are called in; of course they are kept in ignorance as to what has occurred, and the happy evening is continued until the time has come to leave.

ACT II.

Christine's room. Christine, who is on the point of going out, is detained by Catherine Binder, a neighbouring hosier's wife, who comes to ask her to go out with them in the evening, but the girl refuses, for she knows quite well that Catherine's cousin will be of the party, and the young man being very much in love with her, Christine does not wish to encourage his advances. Their conversation is interrupted by old Weiring; his kindly face is beaming on his daughter while he hands her a spray of lilac and urges her to go out into the wonderful spring air. Christine leaves, glad to be able to get off. Her father's eyes follow her tenderly; though his child has not breathed a word to him he knows her secret and gladly allows her to live her dream of love. And to Mrs Binder's spiteful remark whether it is wise to let a pretty young girl go her own ways, unguarded, he simply answers by describing to her his late sister, whom he had carefully guarded from all temptation: "I still see her before me—how often she used to sit opposite me in the evening—in this room, the lamp between her and me, and she looking at me with her quiet smile, a smile so resigned as though she wished to thank me for something, and I—I would fain have thrown myself at her feet to ask her to forgive me for having shielded her so well from all temptation—and all happiness." Their conversation is interrupted by Mizi, who comes to fetch Christine, and a few minutes later Christine herself enters, looking very tired and depressed. She reassures her anxious father by saying that it is nothing but a headache, whereupon he leaves to attend to his orchestral duties at the opera. Left alone with Mizi, Christine confides to her that she had gone out to meet Fritz, but he had not come. While Mizi is trying to comfort her and convert her to her own opinion on men, Fritz enters. Christine is delighted, and Mizi leaves the two alone. It is the first time that Fritz has ever entered Christine's room; everything here surrounds him with an air of peace and love. He feels so happy and at home in her simple abode, and nearer and nearer does he feel himself drawn towards this gentle young heart. But it is not to be; his dream of love and life is over. To-morrow will find him a corpse. He gently tells Christine that he will have to leave town for a short time to go and see his parents. The girl's anxious forebodings he tries to calm. Then the hour of parting strikes. Theodor comes to fetch Fritz and the lovers part.

ACT III.

Christine is in a fearful state of excitement. Three days have passed, and she has not had a word from Fritz, nor have they seen Theodor since. She entreats Mizi to go and see if Theodor is back and try to get news about Fritz. Mizi promises to do it and leaves. Shortly after Weiring enters. He looks at his child; she does not know it yet. And gently and tenderly he tries to prepare the poor heart for the terrible blow that is coming. Christine, alarmed beyond endurance, tries to rush out to find out what it all means, when Mizi and Theodor enter. Their faces tell the poor girl the whole, sad truth. Fritz is dead, killed in a duel for another woman! Her love is dead and gone and she had not known it! She entreats Theodor to take her to him to let her have a last look at his face. It is too late, he was buried this very morning! Buried, and she had not been told! In wild despair she tears herself away from her father and rushes out; Theodor and Mizi rush after her. But the heartbroken father feels they will be too late, and he falls down sobbing: "She won't come back! She won't come back!"

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERDARE.

NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Z. Andrews.—Mr Oswald Cray is paying a welcome visit here with the capital comedy-drama entitled My Native Land. Mr Oswald Cray as Andy Blake plays with vigour and resource; Mr John Riley does well as Norry Boyle; Mr Lawrence H. Stevenson is very good as Dr. Magee; Mr Hubert Beresford is a clever Eardley Cunningham; Mr Joe English sustains the rôle of Solomon Moses in a lively and energetic way, fairly revelling in his part, which affords him the opportunity of displaying his skill as a clever step-dancer; Mr John S. Chamberlain is the best Irishman we have seen here for some time; Miss Cissy Vines acquits herself well as Winnie Blake; Miss Ivy Rochefort plays Nannie in a pretty and natural manner; Miss Maud Helsby is amusing as Rebecca; and Miss Ethel Whitely has an attractive presence, excellent self-restraint, and emotional power. The play is prettily mounted.

ABERDEEN.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore; Acting-Manager, Mr H. C. Cavanah.—Her Second Time on Earth is here. The part of Dora Grey is admirably suited to Miss Hilda Beverley's strong and emotional style. Captain Jasper Norman is well played by Mr Charles Franmore, and Miss Pollie Marsh is highly successful as Elizabeth Burke, while Beppo is done full justice to by Mr Walter J. Selby. All the other parts are well played.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Ernest Sheldon.—The Kings give a dashing and piquant performance, and the Hoopers, eccentric jugglers and hoop manipulators, are enthusiastically received. The Edwin Forrest Combination make a decided hit in a new comedy sketch, and other artistes included in a strong company who deserve to be mentioned are Miss Ida Kathleen and Miss Ethel Dove, sprightly comediennes; the Kimberley Boys, eccentric comedians and dancers; Black Apollo, a very clever musician; and Conan and Doyle, whose smart patter proves very popular.

ABERTILLERY.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr Fred Thomas.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week Mr Fred J. Kirke's No. 1 company, was here in the domestic musical comedy The Naval Detective. The rôle of Lieut. Jack Beresford is in the safe hands of Mr Arthur Hickman. His fine tenor voice is heard to great advantage in "The Last Watch," and his comedy also keeps the house amused. Mr Stanley Bedwell's delineation of Dr. Schreiner is very good; as Captain Hustle Mr Arthur Beaufort is received with enthusiasm; as the Hon. Bertie Padlex Mr Walter Langford evokes unstinted applause, his vocal contributions being quite up to date; Hans Winklepump as portrayed by Mr Fred Gresham is exceedingly good; Miss Edith Claris is eminently suited as Susan Scrubbs; Miss Iris Banfield scores as Lulu Kaufmann, her coon song being quite a feature; Miss Lily Seymour as Rebecca Gentle is satisfactory; Miss Mamie Walsh and Miss Elsie Paul as Pearl and Ruby, dancing girls, are charming. In the treble rôle of Phyllis Leslie, Mam'selle Lucette, and Bill Mainway Miss Louie Fountaine is vivacious, and her vocal efforts are much appreciated. On Thursday and Friday the same company appeared in the romantic musical drama In Old Madrid.

ACCRINGTON.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr J. E. Barnes.—On Monday this theatre was reopened by Miss Emma Litchfield's company, in A London Actress. Mr Stuart Cleveland was good as Clive Crawshaw; Mr Sam Wilford as Pat Maloney and Miss Louise Millward as Biddy Maloney were excellent in their respective parts; Miss Adele Wilford must be complimented on her Rosie Blythe; Moses Mendosa was a neat performance by Mr F. Tenaur; Mr Harry Barham scored as Lieut. Kingston; Miss Emma Litchfield was successful as Hilda Mannering; and Miss Elsie Roberts won favour as Phyllis Crawford.

ALDERSHOT.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr George E. Williams.—Admirably staged and played in as delightful a manner as could be possibly wished for is Kitty Grey, numerous new catchy songs, daintily executed dances, and witty sayings adding to the success of the performance most materially. Miss Hilda Guiver is an actress of exceptional ability, and her conception of the name-rôle is, with a fascinating personality, fine vocal attainment, and clever acting, the feature of the performance. Miss Eily Helene gives a charming portrayal of Lady Binfield, whilst an old favourite here is Miss Emily Stevens, who, as of yore, provokes almost endless fun as Mrs Bright. Miss Nancie Wood gives an excellent portrayal of Sadie. A fine impersonation of the King of Illyria comes from Mr Robert Whyte, jun., and Mr Robert Selby is certainly one of the most engaging Sir John Binfields it is possible to imagine. Mr Leslie is full of fun as Lord Plantagenet. He is, indeed, a clever comedian, and he and Miss Stevens are heartily received for their descriptive character duet. Mr Edmund Russell is good as Comte De Tremitz. The musical comedy is excellently staged. Mr Joseph Richardson is general manager of the company, and Mr Lindsey Edwards assistant-manager. The musical director is Mr Albert Vernon.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—The play entitled One Woman's Wickedness is here this week. Mr Charles H. Phelps, the author, sustains an important character in the drama with effect; while the wronged and suffering hero and heroine are ably interpreted by Mr Lawrence Brien and Miss Louie Davis. Miss Augusta Tullock scores as Janet Raymond, the wicked woman; and other characters are ably portrayed by Messrs H. Humphreys, George Byrne, Howard Ward, Misses Florence Lloyd, Ethel Asbury, and Florence M. Daly.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot.—This week's bill is headed by the comedy team, Ike Scott and Son. The Sisters Vane, vocalists, dancers, and musicians, give a really clever turn; and in the matter of expert athleticism Joe Hennessey, club swinger, commands the earnest attention of those who are interested in such vigorous exercises. Denby and Dent appeal to the lovers of absurdity in a little interlude entitled The Singing Barber. A novel act by the Bollingers deserves mention. Other performers are T. E. Hughes, character comedian; and the Victoria Troupe of international dancers, the whole concluding with a series of up-to-date pictures projected by the Hippo. Bioscope.

AYR.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Local Manager, Mr Harry W. Day.—This theatre, partially burned on Aug. 4, of last year, was reopened on Monday. Some very handsome improvements on the old interior have been made, and comfort is now a special feature. On the opening night, when the celebrated Milton Rays presented the musical comedy, A Hot Night, the house was crowded from floor to ceiling. The company is a really high-class one, every individual member being a host in himself or herself. The audience were treated to a series of continuous mirth-provoking incidents, and the Milton Rays' Hot Night will be long remembered as an exceedingly fitting presentation for the reopening of the Ayr Theatre.

ATTERCLIFFE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr Frank Macnaughton; Resident-Manager, Mr Claude Seaton.—Miss Gladys Silvester and Mr Fletcher Sansome's company is appearing here in Jack's Sweetheart. The part of Jack Tremayne is played in dashing style by Mr Cecil W. Parke, who has a fine voice which he uses with good effect. Capt. Dugard is admirably portrayed by Mr Murray Yorke. Smart comedians are Mr Michael Hasting as Sammy Spriggs and Mr Harry Hanley as Billy Buttons, their patter, singing, and dancing winning well-deserved applause. A great favourite is Mr Will Percy, who as Spotter causes unbounded amusement. Miss Emmie Clegg is good as Lady Dolly Darley. The title-rôle is effectively sustained by Miss Gladys Silvester, who sings charmingly. Mrs Hopkins is ably portrayed by Miss Madge Western. As Sally Miss Jennie Clare is greeted with rounds of applause, her clever singing and dancing being keenly appreciated. The rôle of the Hon. Bertie Babington is in the capable hands of Mr Fred Laceby.

BACUP.

NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr Richard Nightingale.—Mr John Morton's company is here on a welcome return visit with The Rajah of Ranjapore. There is a slight change in the cast since its last appearance, and some new songs are introduced. Mr W. C. Bland in the part of Horatio Chicks is the life of the comedy, and with his songs, dances, and quaint sayings keeps his audience in good humour, and he was ably assisted by Miss Carrie Nono as Eliza. Mr Charles E. Linney as Ernest Iraveris ably sustains his part, and his acting, as well as his singing, is fully appreciated by the audience. Mr Arthur Reid does full justice to the part of Captain Hertage. Mr Sydney Bryant as Mr Stubbs is all that can be desired, and Mr E. F. Welch and Mr Tom Breen as Ted Perkins and Thistles fill their parts well. Miss Nell Ascott as Primrose sustains her part well, and sings sweetly. The choruses are good, and there is some excellent dancing by the Verona Troupe.

BARNSLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell.—I Defy the World, a powerful new drama, is played here this week. The company is Mr Julian Malvern's, and the different characters are well represented. Foremost stands Mr Lewis Gilbert, who submits Leon Darville with rare skill; Count De Beaulieu is effectively acted by Mr Joseph Worley; Mr Chas. Conway is smart as Larocbe; Andre is capital in the hands of Mr Horace E. Herbert; Pauline is charmingly portrayed by Miss Guinevere Shilton; Miss Lina Nazeby figures well as Blanche Darville; and Little Dorothy undertakes the part of Fanchette with success. The humorous part is very prominent, the following artistes being responsible:—Mr Charles M. Julian, Mr Weedon Ross, Mr Alfred Shaw, and Miss Maud Lillian.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr G. E. Hoey.—Mr Jasper Redfern's pictures are still going strong, and the variety company this week is specially good. Les Barrs are clever acrobats; the Two Falcons show cleverness in a new comedy act; the Swift Trio are a trio of smart cyclists; and What Ho, ventriloquist; Grace Compton, vocalist; and Herbert Betts, comedian, make up a good bill.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr George Stone.—Mr Charles March and company, in The Priest of the Temple, are here. Mr Charles March as Valerius gives a fine impersonation, his acting being excellent and his elocution beautifully clear; Mr Ronald Bayne as Decus Fronto shows dramatic ability; the Applus Herdonius of Mr Henry Moran is a very clever impersonation; as Præstantia Miss Marie North is charming; and Miss Evelyn Hope as Potila gives a pleasing rendering.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi, Stage-Manager, Mr Tom Whiting.—The Trapnell Family are excellent in their different acts, which are performed very cleverly and gracefully; Billy Farrell does a capital turn, his witticisms and imitations causing roars of laughter; the Paragon Trio's refined singing is much appreciated; Tom Stewart's impersonations are very good, and are especially well received; Alice Golding sings delightfully; Lily Sharplin is a quaint mimic; and Ferris and Farnley's humorous patter wins applause.

BATH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long.—After a long absence Mr Milton Bode's company is playing a return visit in that stirring military melodrama Tommy Atkins. Mr Frederick Ross is well cast as the hero, Harold Wilson. Ruth Raymond is skilfully acted by Miss Lola Patey. Mr G. C. Doughty as Captain Richard Maitland is as cool a villain as one could find, his associate and dupe in crime, Private Mason, being well portrayed by Mr Charles A. Wenman. Two favourite impersonations are those of the young lovers, Captain Sparrow and Elsie Wilson, by Mr Reginald Holmes and Miss Florrie Vickers. Plenty of comedy acting is introduced by Mr John Nolan and Miss Ethel Tinsley as Paddy Molloy and Kate Perkins, and they receive much assistance from Mr Billy Norman as Ebenezer Skindle. A number of local auxiliaries as soldiers, with a military band, give much brightness to the scenes throughout the piece.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—After some highly desirable alterations to the entrances and exits of this now popular house, together with the placing of a new lounge bar at the back of auditorium on the ground floor, the decorations of which are in complete harmony with the rest of the building, the autumn season commenced on Monday, when a first-rate bill was presented, headed by those expert xylophone instrumentalists the Four Avolos, whose performance of standard and popular selections is accorded well-deserved applause. Carlton's skill as a card manipulator, as he himself says, is marvellous, while his patter throughout is truly funny. A good reception awaits Miss Dorothy L. Clark, whose powerful voice is displayed to advantage in some unhackneyed ballads. A novel and interesting turn is that of Cordite, the Australian bush girl, who, assisted by Wild Buffalo, spins ropes and lassos with wonderful freedom and ability. Reuben Hill is a good character vocalist; Master George, the boy soprano, is well received; Morny Cash, comedian and dancer, scores with his cake-walk ditty; and the Three Amerion Idols, speciality dance artistes, are paying a return visit. The orchestra is now directed by Mr Haydon Reano.

BEDFORD.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter R. Wilson.—A variety entertainment is the attraction here this week. Levano is a marvellous Arab tumbler, and his extraordinary feats surprise the audience. Hal Chapter contributes two songs in his well-known mirth-provoking style. Sam Ives, who claims to be the champion ball-puncher of the world, gives an uncommon performance; and Miss Lilian Rigby furnishes an excellent musical turn on the bagpipes, sleighbells, and cornet, besides executing some clever dancing. J. C. Manley, character comedian, is especially good as a coster. Miss Nell Richardson, who sings "Sammy," has had a good reception, and so, too, has Wal Robins, a clever vocalist and instrumentalist. One of the best turns on the programme is the acrobatic show by the original Fredericks Troupe. Amy Height, a coloured lady, highly amused the audience with her coon songs and patter. The comedy circus of E. R. Dainez, in which a donkey, pony, and dogs are made to perform in a surprising manner, brings down the curtain. For the end of the week an entire change of programme is announced.

BELFAST.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr J. M'Cann.—We are favoured here this week with a return visit of the ever-popular historical drama A Royal Divorce. The company, under the management of Mr W. W. Kelly, includes Miss Edith Cole, whose acting as the Empress Josephine is so remarkably clever. One could not desire a better impersonation of Napoleon than that furnished by Mr Frederick Victor. His skilful acting was thoroughly convincing, and he achieved a noteworthy success. Mr Claude Agnew was effective as the scheming Talleyrand, and that clever actor Mr Trevor Lowe assumed the rôle of Marquis De Beaumont with much credit to himself. Miss Ethyle Murray's fine acting as Marie Louise merits special praise, and Miss Helen Richmond furnished a vivacious and charming interpretation of Stephanie. Mr A. Grenville acquitted himself with distinction as General Augereau. Mr Denis Bryan as the drunken innkeeper Grimaud furnished a capital impersonation, and other rôles were interpreted by Misses V. Agnew, T. Gilmour, Doris Ivatts, B. French Steuart, and Messrs Ernest G. Batley, H. J. Powell, C. Stanley, T. C. Martin, G. Herrick, &c. On Friday a complimentary benefit was accorded Miss Edith Cole, when extra attractions were provided.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden.—Goldin is retained one week longer. His feats of illusion are certainly marvellous. Downes and Langford, the droll comedians, make a big hit, and a warm welcome has been extended to the Olympian Quartet, whose quaint coon songs, so excellently rendered, have delighted all. Messrs Ryan and Hall are an exceedingly funny duo, and Mr Harry Taft upholds his reputation as a siffleur. The Brothers Zenary appear to advantage in their act "A Meeting at the Club," in which they furnish a clever exhibition of head and hand balancing. The Bodmin Trio afford much satisfaction with their musical performance, and others included in this capital programme are Ivy Lorene, comedienne, and Minnie Channing, a cultured balladist.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—Mr Dan Crawley heads the bill, and this clever comedian has been successful with his humorous rendering of several songs. Walter Groves and company appear in one of their exhilarating sketches, capitally acted, which has created unbounded merriment. Professor Dunning is a humorous ventriloquist, and the Stella Troupe (eight in number), vocalists, delight all with their smart dancing. A big hit has been recorded by Kahn and Kahn with their wonderful feats of necromancy. Miss Lillar Bishop is a male impersonator of high excellence and a smart dancer, and the programme is completed by Miss Vi Holmes and Miss Nellie Young, comediennes and dancers.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—The Waldrons are the chief turn here, and this entertaining duo command much success with their droll comedy act. The Brothers Harrison are capital comedians and dancers, and Miss Emma Don and company appear in their attractive vocal scena Scenes of London Life. Mr George Rennie, the singing ventriloquist, amuses; and Mr Sam Shipley, eccentric comedian, possesses some good songs. The Knick-Knacks furnish a fine exhibition of the Terpsichorean art, and the new views exhibited by Wersker Brothers' Bioscope have been a source of attraction. Also appearing with great success are Mudge and Morton in their attractive and refined musical speciality, which is quite a feature of the programme; and Miss Beattie Worth, a vivacious comedienne.

BILSTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—The Hand of Iron is being played here by Mr Roy Jackson and his company. Mr Jackson's acting is of the most vigorous character, and he is ably assisted by Miss Kitty Douglas, who gives an excellent portrayal of Marie Durogue. Mr Neil Smith's voice tells well as Ned Singleton, and Miss E. Townsend is a gentle May Sutherland. The lighter rôles have hard-working representatives in Mr Percy Stevenson as Solomon Isaac Silver, Mr G. Sinclair as Hiram Lincoln, Miss B. Richardson as Hiram's wife, and Miss Pratt as Nell Swift, the last-named lady adding a coon song.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Mr Ian Maclaren's company in A Fatal Crown is an undeniable attraction. Mr Maclaren is prominent with a careful and effective rendering of Lord Dudley; Lady Jane Grey is admirably impersonated by Miss Margaret Saville; Mr Leonard R. Montgomery is a good hero; and Mr Henry Howard is efficient as Simon Raynard. Other parts are suitably filled, and the production is carefully staged.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—A good rendering of the popular drama Slaves of Passion is given here by Mr Vivian Grantham's combination. Mr Ernest E. Norris is particularly successful in the rôle of the hero; the villainies of Prince Mazaroff are painted in vivid colours by Mr Allan Wilkie; Mr Alfred H. Majilton is an excellent Paul De Beaupre; and a fine cast includes Miss Agnes Imlay, who achieves great success in a leading part.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—Miss Ethel Arden and Mr George Abel's sketch company, in Three of a Kind, heads a capital company, which also includes Mr Harry Clifford; Geoffrey and Benson, variety entertainers; Mdlle. Chalon, equilibrist; Two Countees, humorous duettists; Miss Lil Gorman, comedienne; and Mr Horace Wheatley, a clever comedian, and a great favourite here. Mr Will Hebden, in his comic effusions, is continuing a highly successful engagement.

BIRMINGHAM.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston.—A Doll's House was honoured with a fairly numerous attendance. Miss Janet Achurch secured a meed of sympathy for the distraught wife of the last act, and Mr Chas. Charrington as Torval Helmer depicts this unpleasant character admirably. Mr Arthur Curtis provides one of the best parts of the cast in Krogstad; Miss Millicent Curtis acts well as Mrs Linden; and Mr Athol Stewart fills the other important part, Dr. Rank. Miss Violet Myers is the Nurse; Miss Stella Myers plays the Maid; and the Misses Norah Darrah, Maudie Beech, and Master Leonard Evans are the children.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr V. Turner.—The Island of Pharos, which is presented here in the name of comic opera, partakes largely of the nature of musical comedy, and can be pronounced a success as such. The Harbour of Piræus forms the locale of the first act, where Mr Daley Cooper as William Sykes with many aliases proves himself a comedian of much ability. Mr Maitland Dicker as Henry Sykes is an able second, and Messrs A. S. Barber, F. Louden, and Leonard Russell (the latter a capital baritone singer) impersonate the lovers successfully. Miss Nita Clavering vocalises well and acts with spirit as the vivandiere, Antigone, and Miss Cissie Vaughan contributes some tuneful numbers as Lady Gladys. The second act, which takes place on the island, is well sustained, and Miss Dora Kennedy, in some clever solo dances, is applauded.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—The Life that Kills is exemplified this week in a most convincing as well as highly dramatic fashion by Messrs Moule and Nicholls' company. Mr E. D. Nicholls assumes a leading part, that of the Rev. Theo Rodney, Lord Kelmarch, successfully. Mr Hugh Metcalf meets with a true hero's reception as the brave sergeant, Hector Rodney. Mr Herbert Sidney as the exemplar of "the life that kills," Kendal Croat, is duly execrated; and Miss Cathleen Cavanagh as his fair accomplice in sin is likewise greeted. Miss Vyvyan Montgomery is successful as Laura Linden, Mr Morris Maud scores as Valentine Telford, and Miss Mabel Kessler, besides playing a double part well, further beguiles the audience with cornet solos. &c.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Hindle Taylor.—A Woman's Pluck has been tried here, and found not wanting in any detail whatsoever. Mr Jas. Willard is seen as Dick Darrell, and much satisfaction is expressed with his portrayal. Miss East-Robertson also fills her original creation of Grace Daremont, earning much praise thereby. Miss Jessie Yatman is popular in the sympathetic rôle of Jessie Pope. Mr Edward Ashby gains applause as Winston Dale, Mr J. P. Dryden contributes successfully in the double rôle, Mr Harry Emerson as Roger Pippin and Miss Agnes D'Aragon as Ophelia Pippin add to the fun of the fair; and a motor-car is exploited in several scenes.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—The Vengeance of Monte Cristo, adapted by Mr Arthur St. John, and played by himself and company, has proved an engrossing subject here. Mr St. John in the alluring part of Monte Cristo was the subject of much admiration. Mr L. J. Beecher played his villain's part with fine taste and dramatic expression. Miss Patey Trounsell as Mercedes was an admirable stage heroine. Mr Marmaduke Langdale gave a capital impersonation of the fop, Lucien Debray, and the Misses Vivian Hamilton and Rosalind Mainwaring were successful as the Baroness Danglars and Mdlle. De Villefort respectively. Messrs A. Ferneyhough, E. Bennett, and Jas. Dunlop also figure in the cast.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard. — Her Fatal Past has attracted the Aston folk in crowds, and the members of Mr T. E. Ward's company have received a cordial greeting. Mr Jackson Hayes reveals the good qualities of the hero, Mark Desmond, in a very taking manner. Mr Wilson Coleman is meritorious as Gilbert Fernside. Miss Helen Ingelow both as Ruth Fernside and Belle De Lara, a woman of pleasure, acts with conviction. Miss Dorothy Tully-Hole is apt as the boy, Leonard, and Miss Ward scores as the hospital nurse, Honor Symes. Mr T. Ed. Ward in a truly humorous part does well, together with the Misses Ettie Spalding, Marie Ault, Kate Newman, and the Messrs Algie Spalding and Arthur Leslie.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr A. W. Matcham.—The most popular of comedians, Dan Leno, with new songs and patter, is delighting large audiences; Alec Hurley remains another week, and is presenting "The Lambeth Walk"; a pair of clever comedians are the Poluski Brothers; Annie Casey is well received for her songs; as also are the Sisters Govell. Other excellent turns are Ross and Grayson, Ben Albert, Les Durvals, Captain Slingsby, and Charles Chard.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Albert Bushell.—Tom Edwards is presenting his ventriloquial entertainment, which has been slightly revised, and is well applauded; Tom Foy and company have a smart sketch, which causes continual laughter; the Eugene Family, in their aerial gymnastic performance, go through some difficult feats; Martinette and Grossie, in their eccentric musical act, have had a big reception; and the Sister Terry, Les De Breans, shadowgraphist; Vendome and Chase, society artists; Lade Henderson, and Bert Lytton make up an excellent programme.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford.—John Tiller's ballet Harvest Home, performed by a company of sixty strong, remains another week. The production is enthusiastically received. An exceedingly clever contortionist is Mdlle. Nadji, the Hindoo marvel, while the Jurgens Trio have a smart rolling globe act. Geo. D'Albert and Michael Nolan, comedians, are well applauded. The Boccaccio Minstrels are entertaining; Jenny Lynn, comedienne, has some good songs; while Marie Sennett is a comedienne of much merit.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr Geo. Foster.—The programme this week is headed by the Hadji Abdullah Troupe of pyramid tumblers, who are exceedingly clever; an entertaining performance is that of Charles Baron, with his lions (dogs in disguise) and well-trained cats; the Wappatangs, coloured comedians; Jack Lorrimer, Scotch comedian; Edie King, comedienne; De Kock Brothers, acrobats; Los Granados, comedy gymnasts; Clark and Argyle, dancers; Tambo and Tambo, tambourine manipulators; and the Maningos, in their balancing act, complete the programme.

CURZON HALL.—The New Century Animated Picture Co. are paying a visit here. The series include the Visit of the King and Queen to Rhayader.

BOLTON.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Kenyon.—The programme here is a very entertaining one, and is supplied by the Okito Family, who appear in a Chinese magical wonder act; Miss Maud Vera, serio and coon artiste; the Two Manzanares, speciality artistes on the balancing horseshoes; Oliver Conroy, eccentric character comedian; Torbay, comedy silhouettist; Joe Archer, comedian; Ella Delara, American comedienne; the Sylvines Trio, in their electric triple trapeze act; Bert Oakley and Polly James, vocalists, dancers, acrobats, and jugglers; Wal Pink and comedy company, in their novelty sketch Peggy; and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Mr Edward Terry and company are paying a welcome return visit here this week with a répertoire including The House of Burnside, which was chosen for staging on Monday. The rôle of Richard Burnside gives Mr Terry an opportunity for one of those finished and delightful studies for which he is so justly famous. Mr Arthur Cornell was excellent as Robert Parminter, Mr Allan Pollock was good as Mr Williams, and so was Mr A. Hylton Allen as Jack Morrow, while Mr Fred Knight made an amusing figure as John. Miss Daisy Murch was pleasing as Marion Burnside, and Miss Beatrice Terry and Master Roy Lorraine were capital exponents of Burnside's grandchildren, Margaret and Richard. Miss Kate Mills's careful study of the old housekeeper, Betty, was much appreciated. Bardell v. Pickwick was also presented the same evening, and Mr Terry's inimitable impersonation of Serjeant Buzfuz was well supported by excellent performances of the other rôles. Love in Idleness, The Passport, You Never Know, and Sweet Lavender were also staged during the week.

BURY (LANCS.)

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Mr C. Watson Mill's company is here with A Wrecker of Men. Miss Rosalind Tate plays Risca Mallinson in a capable manner. Miss Muriel Dean gives a pleasing portrayal of Doris Melville. Mr Alfred Maurice ably impersonates Guise Strange, and Mr C. Watson Mill is praiseworthy as Jim Murley.

OLYMPIA CIRCUS OF VARIETIES. — General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Mr Culling has provided a good company for the holidays, including Lockhart's Elephants, Gerrettos, Les Belles Americains, Violet Grey, John Clenpert, George Wyres, Gus Balsiger, and Weston and May.

BLACKBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr Reginald Yorke.—On Monday the autumn season at this popular place of amusement was inaugurated by the return visit of Mr William Greet's company in the musical comedy, The Lady Slavey. Mr Frank Sherlock was again heartily welcomed, and his performance as Roberts, the sheriff's officer, is as mirth-provoking as ever. Mr Walter T. Hybert creates roars of laughter with his eccentricities as Lord Lavender. Mr Allen Morris Morris, who is the possessor of a fine baritone voice, acquits himself capitally as Vincent Evelyn, and Mr Harry Walsh acts Major O'Niell in an efficient manner. Miss Addie Lennard endows the character of Phyllis with great verve and charm, her singing and dancing being exceptionally clever and attractive. Miss Millicent Marsden, with a fine stage presence, makes a brilliant appearance as Flo Honeydew, and Maud and Beatrice O'Niell are vivaciously portrayed by Misses Jean Van Dalle and Ethel Ashton.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. H. Page.—The Drama of Life, a realistic play presented by Messrs Carson and Granville's company, is the attraction here this week. Mr Jerold Ord is distinctly good as Harry Beech, and Mr G. H. Hooker gives a vivid impersonation as Walter Beech. As Sir Dobson Wilde Mr Owen Redmond is most effective, and Mr Walter Steele capitally portrays the rôle of Benton, while Mr Vernon Dalby submits a smart character sketch as the French count. Miss Cissy Bellamy makes a graceful and sympathetic Sylvia Beech, and Miss Muriel Inglis is a pleasing Lady Wilde. Miss Marie Murray is a winsome Master Robert Beech, and Miss Nellie Daby is all that could be desired as Betty Black.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Will Murray; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Drury.—The following artists provide the attraction here this week:—Frank Coyne, comedian; the Four Rosaires, acrobats; the Sisters Wingrove, comediennes; Harry Conlin, comedian; the Sisters Jonghmans, in their latest successes; Hill and Whittaker, in their speciality; the Boleros, Thomas Finglass, and Eowe and Ardie.

BLACKPOOL.

HIS MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr William Greet's company is here this week with The Earl and the Girl, which is meeting with the warmest reception. Mr William Stephens as Jim Cheese is extremely droll. Mr Percy Carr is responsible for Dick Wargrave, and Mr Bertie White is amusing as Crewe Boodle. Mr William Walsh as A. Bunker Bliss and Mr Tom Redmond as Mr Hazell also materially assist in the mirth providing. A charming Golphin Haye is found in Miss Aimee Grey, and Miss Dot Carey does well as Liza Shoddam. Miss Florence Imeson is a success as Daisy Fallowfield, and her "Sammy" song is received with rapture. The staging and dresses are positively sumptuous. Mr Richard Clarke, the erstwhile popular tenor vocalist, is the company's acting-manager.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Sergenson.—Cousin Kate is exactly the right fare for holiday-makers, and by the admirable interpretation which this delightful work receives here this week at the hands of Miss Emma Hutchison and Co. great crowds are attracted and show their intense pleasure at every performance. Mr Yorke Stephens may always be relied upon for a finished performance, and his Heath Desmond is no exception. Whether in gay banter or deep pathos he is equally successful, and the impersonation is that of a true artist. Miss Lilias Earle also scores a great success as Kate Curtis, and speedily establishes herself a warm favourite. Miss Hilda Honiss has caught the right spirit of Amy Spencer, whilst Miss Helen Leyton contributes a clever study of Mrs Spencer. Mr Walter Bingham is a typical representative of the Rev. James Bartlett, Master Vyvian Thomas is painstaking as Bobby Spencer, and Miss Betty Castle is amusing as Jane. A Case for Eviction is the curtain-raiser. Mr Sandon Perkins is very attentive in front of the house.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Signor Pepi and Co; Manager, Mr T. P. Duignan.—Miss Florrie Forde, who tops the bill here this week, is meeting with the most cordial reception, and her catchy songs exactly suit the palate of the holiday-makers. Alf Gibson is still retained, and sings some very humorous songs; Little Dando is a quaint comedian; and Kyoto astonishes the audience by his contortions. Agnes Krembser, the wonderful lady juggler; Bros. Winsford, barrel jumpers; Arthur Gill, vocalist; May Geraldine, dancer; Harry Weldon, mimic; Rose Tilley, comedienne; and Cassie Walmer, the dusky princess, are also in the bill. Two performances are now given here daily.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller. — The Seven Savonas, in their resplendent and wonderful musical turn, are still attracting huge crowds here twice daily. In the storm scene from William Tell over fifty instruments are utilised, and the effectiveness is enhanced by over a thousand vari-coloured electric lights. Nellie Wallace, the popular low comedy artist, is also still here; and Percy Farrimond, the singing collier, continues to win favour. Melot Herman is a conjurer in the very front rank; whilst Charlene and Charlene give a pleasing drawing-room entertainment, including musical selections and juggling feats. The Three Meers contribute a wire act; Claude Ginnett gives an equestian sketch; and William Lee, Helen Bentley and company appear in a farcical comedy. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope is always well received.

WINTER GARDENS PAVILION.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—There is no change in the programme here, and, judging by the large audiences that are attracted to the bi-daily performances, none is advisable. The ballet entitled Killarney; or, from Kerry Fair to the Gorgeous East, is a great success.

TOWER CIRCUS.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop.—"House full" is still the familiar notice found here at every show. The Colibris Midgets, the Novellos, Charles Matthews (the wonderful jumper), Moulier Sisters, Mdlle. Theresa Renz, and the Finneys are now great favourites. Hagedorn's wonderful grotto and fairy fountain, a combination of electrical and water effects, stands unsurpassed as a beautiful spectacle.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes.—Frank H. Celli, vocalist, scores heavily with his songs. Mdlle. Luba De Sarema, with her dogs, bull, ponies, &c., gives an amusing and clever exhibition; Frank Coyle, the well-known comedian, has some good songs. The song scena "Napoleon," by Amy Augarde, is much enjoyed. Others turns include Massona, a clever young juggler; Alexia Bassian, operatic vocalist; the Radium Girls, duettists and dancers; Henry Anthony, illusionist; and Kathleen Grey, comedienne.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr John Waller.—On Monday M. Van Biene and his capable company appeared here in The Broken Melody. In the character of Paul Borinski, M. Auguste Van Biene acted with his usual ability, and his clever playing called forth the excited plaudits of the audience. The wife of Borinski was represented by Miss Lena Burnleigh, an emotional actress of much talent. As the scheming Duchess Miss Ida Chapman was admirably cast, and the Mrs Dixon of Miss Avis Graham was all that could be desired. Mr F. B. Haynes was funny as Dudley Mortimer. Mr Arthur Bawtree made a dignified General Ivanhoff, and Mr Charles A. Morgan as the devoted Dixon did well.

BOURNEMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee, Mr Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Mr George Dance's company is paying a welcome first visit with The School Girl. The play is staged and dressed with the completeness which always characterises Mr Dance's productions. Miss Ethel Beech unites charm, grace, and piquancy in her impersonation of Lilian Leigh; Miss M. Sinclair is natural and pleasing as Cicely Marchmont; Miss Mollie Walbran is vivacious and spirited as Mamie; Miss Mildred King acts with refinement the part of the Mother Superior; Miss E. Sevesi is a sprightly Marianne; Miss Nell Hope as Saafreda makes a handsome and imposing model; Miss Grace Wixon is stately and impressive as Mrs Marchmont; Mr Leslie Holland works with unflagging energy, and is responsible for hearty laughter in his clever impersonation of Sir Ormesby St. Leger; Mr Cameron Carr is a marked success as Peter Overend; Mr Charles Adeson vigorously enacts the part of General Marchmont; Mr Alfred Leslie is immensely amusing as Tubby Bedford; Mr Frank Sutton creates laughter as the irrepressible Corner. The chorus are capitally rendered.

SHAFTESBURY HALL.—Mr T. J. West's living pictures, with constant novelties, continue to attract.

BRADFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Richardson.—The Money Makers, Mr George Rollit's new farcical comedy, with its striking, original, and uproariously funny situations, is serving this week to keep the audiences here in a merry humour. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company, which is engaged on the representation, is a very able one, and the comedy is staged in true sporting style. Dot and Mabel, the two unsophisticated girls whose tipping transactions are the cause of so much trouble, are parts very charmingly played by Miss Muriel Ashwynne and Miss Lorna Lawrence respectively, and their two impecunious lovers, Captain Archie Fitzgerald and Charles Clifton, have capital representatives in Mr Frank Lacey and Mr Edward Bonfield, who are responsible for much of the uproarious fun. Miss Frances Davie is good as the housemaid, Bella, who is so well versed in the tipster's devices; and we have an old favourite in Mr Allen Thomas, who is capital as Uncle M'Dougall, and who also scores a distinct success as Captain O'Brien in a breezy curtain-raiser, Newspaper Nuptials, in which Miss Nita Alexander, Miss Lawrence, and Mr Lacy ably support him.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—Mr E. Hill-Hitchelson's stirring drama, Rogues and Vagabonds, with hotly spiced situations and incidents dear to the hearts of the patrons here, forms the present strong attraction. The play is presented by Mr Harry Esden's company with much vigour, and it is capitally staged. Hilda Jeffries, the wrongly accused heroine, who wins the sympathies of the appreciative audience, is well portrayed by Miss Lizzie Webb. Miss Billie Doyle looks the character of the adventuress, Vera Laverne, and her acting is powerful and convincing. Mr Ellerslie Pyne invests the part of the accomplished scoundrel, Fernand Delair, with power and force, and a capable effort is Miss Marjory Armstrong's Boy Ben. Mr J. C. Carlyle is effective as the young artist and good genius, Harry Stamford; Mr Frank Howard fills the part of the Chief Inspector well; and there is a fund of humour in Mr John Cullen and Mr Edward Swinton's acting as Nathan Baxter and John Lamb, the escaped convicts.

EMPIRE. — Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr P. A. Lennon.—Steve M'Carthy, comedian, opens an excellent programme here this week, followed by the Petras, a diverting pair of jugglers, who do some clever things. The Two Romers, who follow, are well known here as duettists. Chris Richards is next, and anything more diverting than his comedy and clever and eccentric dancing we have seldom seen. Marie Kendall's Coster girl's christening song is well sung, and then we have Jack Camp's funny burlesques and humorous songs, which elicit roars of laughter. Miss Amelia Lagreze is distinctly a vocal prodigy, and the lady is followed by that prince of "coon" vocalists Eugene Stratton, whose reception has again been of the most cordial description. Georgina Leonard's turn as a comedienne is acceptable, and the Venola Bros. conclude the evening's amusement with a smart and amusing turn on the flying rings.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr F. Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr E. Harrison.—There is a strong attraction here this week in John Marx, the modern Hercules, whose wonderful feats of strength command unstinted applause. Prevost and Prevost supply rollicking fun with their capital Turkish Bath sketch, and an enjoyable turn is provided by Edie Gray and her "white coons." In a comedy juggling turn, "The Waiter and the Tramp," Amber and Alber divert the audience considerably. Fred Herbert, vocalist, makes a welcome return visit, and so too do the comical Leotard Brothers. E. W. Selman's comic vocalism forms a pleasing item of the evening's entertainment, to which Bennett and Martell contribute their capital and familiar crazy comedy turn.

BRIDLINGTON.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Chas. Palmer.—Mr Charles Macdona's company, under Mr W. Payne Seddon, opened here on Monday in that amusing farce Are You a Mason? Mr Edward Thirlby as Amos Bloodgood was always well received. The George Fisher of Mr William Pringle was smart, and his impersonation of the French dressmaker Franchon was a clever piece of work. Mr Arthur Clement as Frank Perry gave just the right tone to the part, as did Mr T. B. Elliott to the character of John Halton. Mr Geo. De Lara scored as Travers, and Mr Stanley Bell gave a talented rendering to the part of Morrison. Miss Augusta Dewsnap was a capital Miss Bloodgood, and Miss Marie Clayton a charmingly sweet Eva. Miss Nell Douglas gave full effect to the part of Lottie; Miss Bertha Payne and Miss Lottie Maud were good as Annie and Lulu, and Miss Lillian Elen also played the part of Mr Halton very well.

SPA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Henry Hague.—That charming musical comedy A Country Girl opened here on Monday, Mr Charles Macdona's company giving an acceptable rendering of this popular piece. Mr Percy Davidson's Geoffrey Challoner was a most admirable one; Sir Joseph Verity was in the capable hands of Mr Jack Fortescue; the Rajah was carefully acted by Mr Jack Parsons, and the Douglas Verity of Mr Philip Howlay was also good. Mr H. Stone as Granfer Mummery, Mr H. Standing, jun., as Lord Anchester, and Mr C. Rickards as Rube were very good; and as Barry Mr Harry Emerie delighted the audience with his clever and mystifying changes of character, especially in the great ballroom scene. Miss Clare Judge shone in both acting and singing in the part of Marjorie; and the Nan of Miss Lily Shaw showed talent of a high order. Miss Winifred Croft as the Princess and Miss Marjory Moore as Sophie both sang remarkably well, and the other characters were in capable hands; whilst the chorus and band lent good aid to a well acted and staged representation of this popular musical comedy.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—The season is now at its height at this fashionable resort, and crowded audiences listen to the promenade concerts of Herr Winternitz's talented orchestra and the humorous programmes of the Flockton-Foster entertainers. A good baritone vocalist, Mr Darren Llewellyn, is delighting all with his singing, and Mons. La Grillière's 'cello solos are always redemanded, as also are those of Mr Flynn on the cornet.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Henry Hague.—Madame Conley, the Australian soprano, is gaining fresh laurels here, the crowded audiences being delighted with her fine voice and artistic rendering of her songs. Mr Surrie Lindon's London Pierrot Team are constantly introducing fresh items in their popular entertainments.

PEOPLE'S PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr William Morgan.—The new turns at the Palace this week include Barton and Franklin, vocalists, dancers, and instrumentalists; the Weimars, comedians and comic duettists; C. Gray, pedestal performer; Fenton Cross, a clever cartoonist and smoke picture artist; Ravel, juggler; and Zenora and Foden, a couple of good hand-balancers. Miss Kate Kildare's Princess Orchestra give some capital selections.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs Beanland, Bath, and Danton.—Fresh programmes and sketches are being constantly given by the excellent company engaged here. Wednesday was set apart for a special benefit to that amusing and talented comedian C. Beanland, when a host of talent assisted the regular company, and the Waterloo Pierrots appeared in a varied programme of songs, concerted pieces, and the ever-green farce of Box and Cox.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company opened here on Monday with The Two Orphans. Mr Henry Neville as Pierre (his original character) gave a masterly impersonation; Mr L. Cory Thomas was highly successful as Jacques; and Mr William Devereux made an admirable Armand. Miss Evelyn Weeden achieved conspicuous success by her charming representation of Louise; Miss May Congdon was a pleasing Henrietta; and Miss Emma Victor was powerfully effective as La Frochard. Able support was also given by Mr William Mallalieu, Mr F. G. Thurstans, Miss Lily Bertram, and Miss Barbara Gott. The programme for the week also included The Ticket-of-Leave Man.

AQUARIUM.—Manager, Mr W. J. Hardy; Secretary, Mr S. H. Andrews.—Miss Rita Tomkins, soprano vocalist; Mr Harry Lennox, entertainer and ventriloquist; and Mr Charles Conway, character actor, are specially engaged here this week. The American Bioscope, descriptive of "The Rise and Fall of Napoleon," is an additional attraction.

GRAND THEATRE.—Under the control of Mr Ernest Carpenter.—Mr G. M. Polini and Mr Austin Melford's company is here this week with The Silver King. Mr Austin Melford displays finished acting in his admirable impersonation of Wilfred Denver; Miss Emilie Polini imparts great feeling to her enactment of Nellie Denver; Mr C. C. Grattan is very effective as Jaikes; while Mr Charles Levey as "the Spider," Mr James L. Power as Corkett, Mr Arthur H. Rooke as Coombes, and Mr C. P. Amalia as Cripps also merit warm praise. The drama is admirably staged.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr Ernest Lepard.—The following are here this week:—Joe Elvin and company, in the farcical sketch Deaf; Sam Mayo, comedian; Jean Seul, "the Indian Mystery;" the Mezzettis, in their comedy gymnastic act; Vernando, ventriloquist; the Gibson Girls (Gladys and Jane), duettistes and dancers; Stella Stanley, comedienne; Johnny Alexandre and company, in Our Lodger; Ted Cowan, comedian; Lena Verdi, mimic and dancer; Rose Elliott, "singer of sensible songs;" and Victor Travers, eccentric comedian.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—Tschernoff's ponies, dogs, and pigeons; Tom Leamore, comedian; George W. Leslie and company, in Chums; Gladys Mavius, Canadian coon; Charles Hera, juggler; Felton and Manley, in their athletic scena A Rural Relative; the Fedoras, operatic duettists; Lottie Lennox, comedienne; the Judges, comedy acrobats; and animated pictures.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr C. Thompson Ford; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—If I were King occupies the boards here this week. Mr Frank Fenton is distinctly successful as François Villon; Miss Marion Grey makes a delightful Katherine De Vaucelles; Mr Clive Currie as Louis XI. is very effective; and Mr Noel M'Guckin makes an admirable Noel De Jolys. The remaining characters are in able hands.

WEST PIER PAVILION.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company is here this week with The Prisoner of Zenda. Mr Mark Blow achieves much success in the dual part of Rudolph V. and Rudolph Rassendyl. Miss Ida Molesworth is a graceful and charming Princess Flavia; Mr John Nesbitt is well suited as Colonel Sapt; Mr Harley West's Fritz von Tarlenheim, Miss May Pardoe's Antoinette de Mauban, and Mr Charles D. Pitt's Michael are well played; and the remaining characters are satisfactorily sustained.

BRISTOL.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—Messrs Murray King and Clark's company is here with the interesting play Sweet and Twenty. Miss Rosalie Jacobi presented a charming impersonation of Joan Trevelyan, acting the part in an earnest and natural manner which was highly effective; Mr Lionel Glenister was admirable as Douglas; Mr Robert Milsted displayed much ability as Eustace; Mr George Miller was kindly and sufficiently dignified as the Hon. and Rev. James Floyd; Mr Murray King was amusing as Prynne; Master Willie King presented a very enjoyable performance of Chris; and the small part of Trehearne was satisfactorily sustained by Mr Walter Cranch. Ellen, the housekeeper, was cleverly taken by Miss Lilias Waldegrave (by permission of Sir Charles Wyndham), and Miss Edith McClure scored a success in her long speech in the first act as the somewhat frivolous Mrs Trevelyan. The play was staged with much taste. The performance commenced with the new musical farce You and I, which was capitally played by Miss Rosalie Jacobi, Miss Eva Weston, Mr Murray King, and Mr Walter Cranch.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—Messrs Darcy and Little's company is here with the sensational drama The Executioner's Daughter, which is well staged and effectively acted. Miss Dorothy Riddell presents a good sympathetic rendering of Annette; Mr Wilson Howard is a manly and convincing Paul Rouel; Mr George Beverley acts with considerable power as Felix Marius; Mr Edward M. Hamilton displays much ability in his impersonation of Roche; Miss Carlotta Anson is effective in the difficult part of Felice; Miss Beatrice Moore is sufficiently sympathetic as Christine; and the characters of Tom Holmes and Vivian Ormonde are capitally sustained by Mr E. W. Avery and Mr Sinclair Holden.

PALACE.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr Welchman.—Miss Harriett Vernon heads the bill. Her songs are all well rendered, and obtain the approval of all parts of the house. George Mozart, comedian, is also popular, his one man drama, Blue-Eyed Susan, being well received. Other good turns are provided by the Brothers Onda, in their pantomime sketch A Quiet Night; the Two Anartos, smart musical comedians; Charles Deane, an amusing comedian; the Sisters Morgan, very acceptable duettists and dancers; the Wedburns, in their smart musical turn; Robins and Collier, in their funny sketch The Photographer and the Lady; Baroni and Kemp, clever protean artistes; and George Rapley, an amusing burlesque comedian. The performance concludes with Vernon's well-produced animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The sensational act, "Looping the Loop," is very cleverly performed here by Miss Madeline, a large and enthusiastic attendance being attracted by the novelty of the show. Harry Roches presents a clever and interesting act with his well-trained ponies and dogs; Yamamoto and Koyoshi do an exceptionally good turn as expert Japanese equilibrists; Mdlle De Rose, lady baritone vocalist, sings well and is appreciated; the Three Brothers Huxter are smart acrobats, &c.; Passmore Brothers amuse as eccentric knockabout comedians; the Cullane Trio do a good song and dance turn; the Brothers Donar present a clever acrobatic equilibrist act; J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, obtains applause; and George Bendon sings coon songs in approved style. The performance concludes with animated pictures.

CARDIFF.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Radford.—Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr Charles V. France's company is presenting here for the first time the successful comedy Whitewashing Julia. In the hands of Miss Kate Bishop the exacting part of Lady Pinkney is invested with strong artistic vividness. Miss Ruth Maitland gives fresh proof of her power and versatility in her charming impersonation of Julia Wren; and Mr H. Asheton Tonge displays masterly ability in the chief male rôle of William Stillingfleet. Mr Archibald M'Lean is exceptionally good as the lawyer Samways; Mr Willox Cadogan and Mr H. Carter Bligh give clever portrayals of Edwin and Bevis Pinkney; and Miss Marie Lohr deserves special mention for her natural and vivacious rendering of the wilful Trixie Blenkinsop. The piece is preceded by a comedietta entitled Six and Eightpence, in which Mr Percy Crawford as Cyril and Miss Mary O'Neil as Grace particularly distinguish themselves.

KING'S THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General-Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—Messrs Haddon and Loader's company occupies the boards here with the domestic melodrama The Greatest Scoundrel Living. With an effectiveness which only comes from long experience Mr Jack Haddon acts the part of Percival Hayes. Mr Norman Overton makes an excellent hero as Frank Fielding, and is rendered substantial assistance by Miss Nellie Hallam as Rosa Moulton. A word of praise is certainly due to Miss Marie Rayner, who, with a fine stage appearance, invests the character of Mabel Cross with exceptional interest. The comedy and minor parts are in capable hands.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—The popular mimic Harry Tate is again with Cardiffians, attracting good houses with his amusing scene Motoring. Millie Hylton's charming songs procure her a warm reception; Leonard Barry and Co. still present with success The Moocher's Walk; and the Imperial Aschi Troupe of Japanese equilibrists give a performance which should not be missed. In addition there are Peggy Pride; who is always sure of a hearty welcome; Jules Keller, the human enigma; the Wartenberg Brothers, clever foot jugglers; Charles Vincent, a good comedian; and May Evans, a clever character singer.

CARLISLE.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of Mr R. Stuart M'Kim; Manager, Mr Stanley Rogers.—Mr John Cassidy's company is here this week in Muldoon's Picnic. Mr Edwin Garth, a clever and versatile comedian, is responsible for most of the fun, his patter is comical and distinctly smart. Mr W. G. Wesley scores at every opportunity. Mr Leo Whamboult is excellent as Mr Muldoon, and Miss F. Mandeville contributes several popular songs and dances cleverly.

CHATHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr George G. Ridley.—Mr W. H. Kirby and company are presenting The New Mephisto here, Mr Kirby appearing as Dick Pilgrim and Mr Fred Lyne in the title-part.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr L. B. Barnard.—Admirers of successful animal training should not miss seeing Mdlle. Alice Lorette and her white canine friend, whose representations of living statuary are very striking. The Lintons open with an acrobatic act; Coram proves a smart ventriloquist and mimic; Lacey's Erascope gives some familiar pictures; Charles Somers contributes comic songs; Geo. M. Marriott and company are staging London After Dark; and abundant applause is given to the Jackson Troupe of Eight Lancashire Lads, in From London to Tokio.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr Frank J. Donne.—At the top of the bill here we have the Caledonian Boys, who give a very attractive turn. Very entertaining, too, are Lester and Bain, trick pianists; Mdlle. Thelma, modeller; Eunice Young, comedienne and dancer; the Lingards, duettists; Flo Morton, comedienne; Harry Bancroft, vocalist; and pictures projected by the Edisonograph.

CHELTENHAM.

OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr H. Oswald Redford.—In the Ranks drew a popular house on Monday evening. Mr Bernard Copping's impersonation of Ned Drayton was refreshing and manly; and Miss Edith Staples proved a charming heroine. Mr Herbert Cecil as the villain roused the audience to fever heat; Mr Cecil Clayton was good as Joe Buzzard; Joe Belton was admirably portrayed by Mr Leon Ainscliffe; and the Captain Holcrott of Mr Archie W. Chappell was well received.

CHESTER.

ROYALTY.—Proprietor, Mr Milton Bode; Resident-Manager, Mr H. Burgess Harries.—Messrs Carson and Granville's company is this week presenting A Modern Adventuress, which has been favourably received. The company is a capable one, among the most prominent members being Mr Arthur Fredericks, Mr Charles Stirling, Mr W. R. Winning, Miss Beatrice M. Anderson, Miss Alice Defoe, and Miss Mimi Fisher.

CHESTERFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr Holbery Hardy.—Mr T. Morton Powell's excellent company is appearing here in The Greed of Gold. Harry Hood as played by Mr Carthage Caldcleugh is all that can be desired. Miss Edith Wallace in the part of Dora is seen to advantage. Mr Wilson Summers makes an excellent Arthur Errol. Mr Hyland Shea in an Irish part and Mr Walter M. Cameron, the racing tipster, infuses plenty of merriment into the piece.

SUMMER PAVILION.—Messrs John Walters and H. B. Levey's al-fresco summer entertainers are nightly presenting their Pierrot performances, which are in no way offensive or vulgar.

COLCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Chas. Macdona; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Graham Macdona.—Sapho opened here on Monday, played by a company including Miss Annie Bell as Fanny Le Grand. Jean Gaussin was very effectively enacted by Mr Horatio Sinclair, and the other leading characters were sustained by Mr. G. Antley, Césaire; Mr Douglas Clifford, Eugene Flamant; Mr J. A. Storey, Father Legrand; and Miss Lottie Ray, Machaume.

CROOK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Wallace Davidson.—Miss Rose Faith's company, No Cross, No Crown, is here this week. In the character of Sir Frances Luttrell Mr Ernest Lodge is a manly hero, and Miss Jennie Lodge is remarkably good in a dual-rôle. As Clare Miss Rose Faith acts with passion and telling effect. Mr Herbert Clifton is a quaint Dr. Ashby, and Mr C. George a commendable Haimes.

CHORLEY (LANCS).

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr G. T. Santé; Secretary, Mr J. Clay.—Miss Olga Audre and company are here with the capital drama The Mockery of Marriage. Miss Audre undertakes Alva Kenyon with exceptional skill and dramatic power, and is capably supported by Mr A. Winpenny, who is good as Dick Kenyon. Mr James Dalton is successful as Seth Pearce, Mr Will Skelton capitally undertaking the part of Toby Wright. Miss F. Zillwood excellently portrays Rose Vernham, Mrs S. Halling assisting materially as Mary Ann Barnicote. The Four Aces are still with the company and contribute an artistic acrobatic performance. The New East Lynne is billed for three nights, with Miss Audre as Lady Isabel.

CONSETT.

New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr Lloyd Clarence. — This theatre was reopened on Monday with Mr Fred Cooke's company, in The Brand of Shame; or, the Winner of the Grand National. Mr Fred Cooke as Barney O'Moore was quaint and comical, and won hearty welcome; Mr J. O. Stevenson was very good as Adam Fairfax; and as Abel Fairfax and Kane Fairfax Messrs H. Edward Cecil and Dane Farrough acquitted themselves creditably. Mr Ada Frank as Nat the Nipper was very pathetic; and as Constance Hethington Miss Davidge Hender did well; Miss Nelly Kinnaird was pleasing as Molly Malloy; and as Yanette Zola Miss Gladys Gilchrist was quite effective.

CORK.

Opera House.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—Why Smith Left Home was performed here this week by the Strand Comedy company. Mr Horace Lingard appeared in the part of John Smith, and was most cordially received. He entered into the spirit of the part, and displayed great energy. Miss Hilda Stericker as Mrs John Smith, Miss Vere as Julia, Miss Dorcas Corsbie as Mrs Billetdoux, Miss Ethel Russell as Miss Smith all filled their respective parts capitally. Miss Constance Stephens as Lavinia the cook was most diverting. Mr Robert Grey as a German count and Mr Herbert Dickeson as a French general created much laughter. The one act farce The Admiral preceded.

COVENTRY.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—A pleasant change is provided at this house in The Girl from Chicago, played by Mr Henry Hare's powerful company. Mr Buckstone Clair makes a capital "Judge" Ananias Hussell; Mr Edwin Dodds appears as his clerk Billy M'Guffin, and contributes some clever dancing. Mr Henry Hary is very good as the blustering General Bloomer. Mr Douglas Vigors fills the part of the dude Percy Montmorency with effect. Mr Clarence Ibbotson is entrusted with the rôle of Obadiah Caccles. Miss Lily Beverley is successful as Flora Bloomer (the Girl from Chicago). Miss Nellie Vicott takes the part of Lucreta Flatfoot in a successful and very funny manner. Miss Lucy Beaumont is good as Mrs Sweetlove. The Daffodils, speciality dancers, are introduced with marked success.

CREWE.

Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry Taylor.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company paid its first visit to Crewe on Monday, and presented The Plucky Nipper with Miss Bonwin in the title rôle. The company also included the author, Mr Edward Surrey, who successfully appeared as Bill Burgess. Miss Fanny Morse played Ina Fenwick (with songs), and Miss Esther Lamonte essayed the part of the blind girl Daisy Paget. Mr Ernest Regent undertook the character of Colonel Fenwick, and Mr Douglas Campbell was in the comedy part of Tommy Atkins. Mr Edward Fryer was the villain of the play, Richard Vanbruh, and Mr Harry Marks lent assistance as Silas Moseltoff. The piece was effectively staged.

CROYDON.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr H. D. Lyle.—The drama The Heart of a Hero is quite to the taste of Royal patrons. Mr Fred W. Goddard gives a scholarly rendering of Jem Resdale; Mr A. D. Mackay is excellent as Mark Marl; Mr Charles E. Johnson is forcible as Wilfred Marl; Mr Allen Carruthers as Timothy Helghno is responsible for the comic element; Mr G B. Wright submits a polished impersonation of Jack Colinson; Mr P. G. Beresford deserves congratulations as Dave Pritchard; Mr J. Harold gives point to the rôle of Henry Barker; Mr Harry Scrathard contributes an accurate portrayal of George Winston; Miss Beatrice Hudson is a stately Mrs Barker; Miss Laurie Pardy wins sympathy as May Ryder; Miss Ida Mackay is invigorating as Susie Slack; and Miss Cissy St. Elmo is effectual in the arduous part of Nell Resdale.

Palace Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—At this popular house George Neno, character comedian, scores a triumph; Les Sprays are dancers of considerable merit; the Collinson Combination are greeted with applause in sensational sketch, A Club Raid; Charlton gives a novel musical turn; the Danbys (Charles and Arthur), eccentric comedians and dancers, make a big hit; Lily Foy is a fascinating comedienne; Callie and Walker cause mirth in a funny comedy act; Jack Mansfield is a painstaking vocalist; Agnese and Arthur Lynch, "American song illustrators," are well received; the Bransbys are clever character duettists; Harry Royde is an excellent comedian; Minnie Molan is a neat comedienne and dancer; Harry Lane, comedian, is smart; and Carl Howard is a conjuror worth seeing.

DOVER.

Theatre Royal.—Mr Stanley Drewitt's company appeared here on Monday in The Parvenu and Grégoire. In the latter play Miss Alice Arden acquitted herself admirably as Loyse, and Mr Drewitt gave a remarkably fine performance in the title-rôle. Nicole was played with conspicuous success by Miss Mildred Howard Jones, who must also be commended for her admirable elocution. Mr Michael Sherbrooke gave an effective study as King Louis XI, while Mr Ben A. Field as Simon Fourneiz and Mr Cyril Cattley as Olivier De Dain are also worthy of special mention. The Parvenu was particularly well received, the name-rôle being played in an able manner by Mr Ben A. Field. Mr R. Halford Foster deserves to be complimented on his masterly portrayal as Charles Tracey; Mr M. Sherbrooke gives a capital embodiment of Sir Fulke Pettigrew; and Claude Glynne has a sympathetic and consistent exponent in Mr Stanley Drewitt. There was a distinct charm in Miss Rona Merrick's rendering of the part of Gwendolen Pettigrew, and Miss Alice Arden made a bright and winning Mary Ledger, and Miss Gladys Bartle-Frere gave an excellent performance as Lady Pettigrew. The Gay Parisienne is billed for the latter part of the week.

DUDLEY.

Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr J. W. Tilley.—The Days of Cromwell is here for the first time, and has created a good impression. Mr F. H. De Quincey gives a powerful rendering of Ironhand the Avenger, and Miss Sime Seruya gives a graceful and artistic performance as Ruby Avondale. Mr J. Fernandez acts the part of Sir Wilfred Avondale with distinction; Mr Francis C. Coates is successful as Oliver Cromwell; the villainous characters are in the capable hands of Mr R. Robinson and Mr Geo Child as Sir Marsden Mardyke and Matthew, hison; and all the remaining parts are adequately acted.

Empire.—Managing Director, Mr Tom Prichard.—The Moxons give a clever musical and acrobatic display; Elsie Clare, vocalist, sings in a charming manner; and Chummie La Mara is a good comedienne. Other turns are given by Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian; Marcus Boyle, quaint comedian; Will Sergeant, and Edie Endon. The Empire Bioscope is still proving a big attraction.

DARWEN.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr E. L. Ormsby.—During the summer vacation considerable alterations and improvements have been effected in the theatre. The auditorium, cloak-rooms, dressing-rooms, &c., have been renovated and redecorated; an additional cloak-room for ladies and another smoke-room have been provided; the pit and upper circle has practically been reseated, giving an uninterrupted stage view from every part of the house; the stage has also been flanked with private boxes. This, with attention to the heating and lighting of the theatre, corridors, &c., will add much to the comfort of Mr Ormsby's patrons, and should prove remunerative. The reopening took place on Monday evening of the present week, the attraction being Miss Cissie Moxon's company in the well-known musical absurdity A Trip to Rum-Fum. This piece has been several times played to Darwen audiences, and has invariably been a good draw. Many of the artists who are appearing this week are particularly well known, and their reception has been very cordial. First there is Miss Moxon in her old part of Flossie, the "artist from the halls," which provides much opportunity for her versatile abilities in duologue, dance, and song. Mr Willie Garvie is another favourite, and he makes a capital Larry Hooligan, brimming over with mirth and song. Another clever impersonation is that of Mr W. S. Hutchinson, Larry's sister, quite an enjoyable feature. The company also includes Miss Kathleen Kemp as Thady Clancy, Miss Kitty Jones as Peggy, Miss Elsie Parker as Angelina Toft, and a host of others, who successfully combine to make laughter continuous from the rise to the fall of the curtain.

DERBY.

New Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr T. A. Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr Charles Denley.—Mr and Mrs Wm. Maclaren's company is paying a return visit here this week with Proof. Mr Wm. Maclaren in the rôle of Pierre Lorance repeats his success of two years ago, while Miss Lily C. Bandmann's presentment of Valentine is both charming and sympathetic. Mr Richard Fulton as the villainous Lazare is successful; Mr Ardene Linden's impersonation of Chamboran well merits commendation; Miss Gertrude Evans makes a good Adrienne; and Mrs S. Hay acquits herself capably as Madame Deprets. On Friday night Miss Bandmann took a benefit with The Lady of Lyons.

Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. A. Edwardes.—The Four Burgatiles head the bill here. They are correctly described as musical pantomimists, and provide a turn that is as novel as it is acceptable. A clever juggling act is supplied by Prince Ishmael, who has previously appeared here, and the manner of his reception shows that he has not worn out his welcome. Almon is a wonderfully skilful hand-jumper, and the Sivronis furnish a diverting turn, Opera Gone Mad, which fairly convulses the house. The Karno Trio's sketch, The Travellers' Rest, serves as a vehicle for some clever ball-punching and knockabout business; the Sisters Hypatia are excellent dancers and agreeable vocalists; Harry Walker is a capital comedian; and Charles Russell's vocal contributions, including "The Messenger from Mars," are also well worthy of mention.

DONCASTER.

New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Limited.—Managing-Director, Councillor J. W. Chapman.—Much satisfaction was expressed with Mr Henry Swinerd's company, which opened here on Monday evening with Dare-Devil Dorothy. Mr Walter Boyce gives an interesting and artistic touch to General Garston. Messrs W. F. Green and H. C. Ward both show undoubted abilities as Capt. George Fielding and Edward Dudley respectively. Mr A. Stratton gives a vivid interpretation of Hawkins, and Mr Arthur Verne displays a pungent humour as Silas Crump. A meed of praise is due to Mr W. G. Hearson, who is an ideal footman; Miss Lillie Blake is an engaging Rosy Ann; and Miss Nellie Harcourt's handling of Judith secures warm applause. Miss Kathleen Garnon's assumption of Ruth Montrose is admittedly a triumph, and the title-rôle is admirably embodied by Miss Marjorie Cecil.

DOUGLAS.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, the Grand Theatre Co., Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr T. R. Wood.—The audiences at the Grand Theatre have been large and appreciative. The pièce de résistance has been Florodora, acted by Mr Tom B. Davis's company, under the direction of Mr F. Martin Morris. Mr Edward Lewis is once more a tower of strength as Tweedlepunch. Miss Lena Maitland invests Dolores with a foreign charm, and sings her solos with skill and sweetness of voice. The Lady Holyrood of Miss Isabel Dillon is pleasing; Mr Leslie Gaze is a picturesque Frank Abercoed; the Arthur Donegal of Mr J. Paul Collan is excellent. The scenery is all that could be desired, the dresses are extremely beautiful, and the chorus quite admirable.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Limited; Manager and Secretary, Mr Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Brittain.—Mr George Edwardes's company is here in The Toreador. Miss Daisy Stratton as Susan plays with unflagging abandon; the Donna Teresa of Miss Alice Oppitz is well within the picture; Miss Langtyre is excellent as Nancy Staunton; the Sammy Gigg of Mr Lionel Victor is laughter provoking; that excellent actor Mr T. W. Volt does all that is possible as Sir Archibald Slackett; Mr Fred Fowler, a quaint comedian, makes the Governor of Villaya an amusing personage; and Mr W. H. Powell is all right as Pettifer. The solo dance of Miss Bessie Maddox secures enthusiastic applause. The scenery, dresses, and appointments are of the quality which Mr George Edwardes's name on a daybill guarantees.

Palace.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Limited; Secretary and Manager, Mr Chas. Fox, jun.—The attendance at the Palace during the week has been large even for the height of the Manx season. The dancing, under the capable direction of Mr W. J. Fell, and to the excellent music of Mr Harry Wood's orchestra, is of course the supreme attraction, but the management have, in addition, provided a most interesting variety programme. Shang Hai, who hails from the flowery land, is an expert prestidigitateur. Mr Ernest Shand is an original and witty raconteur; Miss Esta Stella, a smart comedian and dancer, is a general favourite; the ventriloquial turn of Mr W. H. Clemart is clever; the Three Donals give great satisfaction with their gymnastic speciality; and Messrs Radford and Valentine, in a burlesque juggling turn, are entirely successful. In the afternoon Mr George Burton's Bohemian serenaders presentan al fresco entertainment which is particularly pleasing, and the orchestra plays.

Derby Castle—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr Alfred Kelly.—The bright particular star at Derby Castle this week is Mr Charles Coborn. His reception is most enthusiastic, and his songs go to the pleasant accompaniment of boundless applause. Then Messrs Spry and Monte are clever people; Mr George Adams can deliver the popular baritone song of the day with real effect; and Mr Rex Fox contributes a daring wire-walking interlude. In addition the Bonhair-Gregory are a great draw, and the animated pictures are quite up to date and find many admirers.

Hippodrome.—Directors, Mr C. H. Powell and Mr F. J. Connor.—The patrons of this circus of varieties show no falling off, either in numbers or recognition of an excellent entertainment. Phedona presents a novel musical act; Jacko, the man monkey, is interesting in a bizarre and abnormal manner; Gillin is a modern Valentine Vox with the resource of an actor; the Grovinis continue to please; so does Cattle, the ladder king, De Carteret, in his equestrian turn, and the stallion Kentucky Beau in the cake-walk. There is also played a quaint and really funny sketch, His Lordship. This evokes peals of laughter. Then there is a strong contingent of clowns, jugglers, gymnasts, and Mr Tom Royal, vocal comedian and clog-dancer. The Hippodrome is quite a feature in the Douglas amusement world.

The Empire, with two houses nightly, also does well. The star turn this week is Mr Harry Bent in a monologue entitled A Peep into the Music Hall. This vehicle enables him to give imitations of popular artistes of the variety world. Mr John Matthews, a clever actor and singer, also appears. Miss Carlotta Lunn is a pleasing descriptive vocalist. Mdlle. Rosella gives a graceful performance on the trapeze. M. Arnold is a smart disciple of the Cinquevalli school, and Les Alessors, comedy gymnasts, are successful.

Mr George Burton's pierrots attract fine audiences with a most excellent performance.

Mr Charles Dare's burnt cork comedians draw many thousands to Douglas Head.

DUBLIN.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr C. Hyland.—Messrs E. A. Coventry and John R. Collins's company is here in the sporting farcical comedy, Thoroughbred. Mr Percy Bell gives an amusing impersonation of John Rimple, and Miss Mary Smith scores in the rôle of Mrs Rimple. The Lord Sandacre of Mr Richard Boleyn is an admirable performance, and Miss Katharine Parry is excellent as Delia Rimple. Mr Edward A. Coventry gives a capital portrayal of the Hon. Blenkinsopp Carlingham, and Miss Hilda Stewart is charming as Wilhelmina Carlingham. Mr Allan Cunard meets with approval as A. M. Dicker, and Miss Beatrice Egerton is effective as Miss Pallington. Mr John R. Collins makes the most of the part of Claude Nizril, and the same may be said of Mr George Elliston as Jebb Tosh. Mr C. Frere as Jennings and Mr Harold E. Wadley as Wokeham are both satisfactory in their respective parts. The curtain raiser, Cutting Out a Prize, precedes, and meets with success.

Theatre Royal. — Managing Director, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong.—The New Barmaid is being played here this week, and is meeting with a cordial reception. Mr Joseph B. Mantague in the part of Bertie White causes no end of laughter, and Mr Alexander Loftus is a capable William White. Miss Gladys Elvey gives a delightful rendition of Ethel Joy; Mr Harrison Brockbank acts the rôle of Captain Lovebury cleverly; and Miss Hilda Blanche plays the part of Brenda Louth with credit. Mr Herbert Cottesmore ably sustains the rôle of Colonel Claymore, and Miss Jean Gilmore is acceptable as Lady Moulton. Mr Albert Weston is capital as Mons. Bonsor, and Miss Bessie Pelissier makes an adequate Dora Heather.

Queen's Royal Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—Miss Blanche St. Alban's company opened here on Monday in the emotional drama Her One Great Sin. Miss Blanch St. Albans gives a most effective portrayal of Grace Warhurst, and Mr Sam Arthur is a creditable Reuben Warhurst. The rôle of Arnold Thornhill has an able exponent in Mr J. Leicester Jackson, and Miss Nellie Lambert is successful as Nancy Winpenny. Jerry Jumble is capitally played by Mr Fred Hodson, and Miss Phyllis Damian ably represents the rôle of Charlie. Mr Charles E. Lambert well sustains the part of Dan Hundle, and Miss Maudie Lambert is very good as Little Gracie. Mr Harold B. Ford scores as Jack Hundle, and Miss Loule Walton makes a lively Bet Hundle.

Empire.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—The attraction here this week is A. C. Lilly's military sketch Drummed Out, which is nightly applauded. The Hartley Wonders make a decided hit in their jumping speciality, and Maggie Walsh, the singing mill girl, has many admirers. Foreman and Fannan, the "millionaires," are cordially received, and Bert Brantford is a smart singing comedian. Mabel La Blanche makes a good impression with her capital songs, and Frank Seeley, comedian, seems to have "caught on." The singing of Alexandra Edwin meets with appreciation, and Dot Hardy, comedienne, scores a success. Geraldo, American club juggler, is a clever turn, and the Empire pictures are still showing.

Tivoli.—General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.—Topping the bill here is Brun in his extraordinary performance, "Pastime on a Battleship," which is well received. Francis and Melli, in their musical act, meet with success; and Millie Denham is a dainty comedienne. Ralston and Frances, in their nautical musical entertainment, are a capital turn; and Esman is an expert juggler. The marvellous performance of Aga, the suspended maiden, is highly appreciated; and the Five Clevelands are pleasing versatile entertainers. The Athlones are a clever pair of athletes, and Francis and Melli do well in their musical entertainment. Eric Graham, comedian, and Sheila Deans, comedienne, also contribute.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr C. A. James.—The artistes engaged here include Van Gelder, conjuror; Lillie Hustler, comedienne; Tony Merriott, actor-vocalist; and Lizzie Hayden, descriptive vocalist.

DUNDEE.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Kade Montefiore.—For the reopening of this house The Dandy Doctor has been performed with signal success. Mr James Danvers has a great amount of work, and is indefatigable in his merrymaking efforts; his song entitled "Longing" is most amusing. The Dandy Belles are charming dancers, and a cake-walk is excellently done by Miss Holden and Mr Ben Rowe.

People's Palace.—Acting-Manager, Mr Will Parker; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alf Ross.—A wonderful performance is given by Shicklay's bears. A clever comedy act is introduced by Rose and Calvert, and Chas. Ernest proves himself a skilful mimic. Queenie Palmer is a fine singer, and a capital turn is done by Mdlle. Violi. Atroy shows great dexterity in his juggling, and Charles Paver is as successful as ever. The Padleys, comic boxers, and Rippin with his "Nippers" create much amusement.

Empire Theatre. — Proprietors, the Dundee Empire Co., Limited.—The Unknown is here this week, with that powerful actor, Mr J. D. Stewart, as Jack Salt. Mr Clarence Temple makes an excellent Harold Merrybright, and Mr Sydney Felton as Albert Stormking creates a deep impression. The other parts are in capable hands.

EASTBOURNE.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—Mr Wentworth Croke's No. 1 company is here with The Christian. The part of Glory Quayle is admirably filled by Miss Grace Chalmers. The Hon John Storm is impersonated with striking earnestness by Mr Harry Scott, whose admirable work carries conviction; Mr Stanley Radcliffe's Father Lamplugh is most impressive. Miss Lily Crammond (Polly Love) plays effectively. Mr Charles B. Bedells emphasises the villainy of Lord Robert Ure, and Mr Jackson Wilcox interprets the part of Horatio Drake with success. Mr Charles E. Dering does not minimise the unpleasant characteristics of Archdeacon Wealthy. Miss Clara Nicholls is seen to marked advantage as Mrs Callender, and praise must be accorded to Messrs Bert Conway (the "Faro" King) Oswald Marshall (Mr Lorrimer), Wilfred Blumberg (Brother Paul), and Miss Bella Moody (Letty) for capital work in smaller parts, the cast being completed by Mr A. E. Kingstone, Misses Dorothy Clifton, Gertrude Homewood, and Edith Huntley.

Devonshire-park Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr A. Standen Trigg.—Mr George Dance's company is this week presenting A Chinese Honeymoon to delighted audiences here. Miss Gwennie Harcourt gives a screamingly funny impersonation of Fi-Fi, scoring a particularly big success with the new number "I'm glad I'm not Methuselem." Mr Frank Wood presents a well-considered portrayal of the autocratic Hang Chow; and Mr Harry Brayne, a big local favourite, creates roars of laughter as the much-married Mr Pineapple. Miss Alice Drummond is a sufficiently awe-inspiring representative of Mrs Brown, Messrs Allerton Turner and Leonard May satisfactorily filling the respective parts of the Court officials, Chippie Chop and Hi Lung. A bright and vivacious interpretation of Mrs Pineapple is the contribution of Miss Jose Collins; and Miss Marie Adair, a charming and sweet-voiced Soo-Soo, and Mr Percy Yorke, who does much with the few opportunities afforded him as Tom Atherton, with the able support of Misses Ruby Garman, M. Kersey, Lucia Collins, F. Maxwell, Annie Crisp, Edie Ross, and M. Ormonde, complete a cast of all-round excellence. Messrs Jacques Bruske, B. Ralland, and P. Allerton Turner have charge of the musical, business, and stage arrangements respectively.

New Pavilion, Limited.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—For the first half of the week Mr Mouillot's company, by arrangement with Mr George Alexander, has presented Old Heidelberg here. Mr George F. Tully as Karl Heinrich played with marked success; Mr Clifford Bown's Dr. Juttner was excellent; and Mr Lionel Gadsden did well as Lutz. The Kathie of Miss Irene Lavington was an impersonation of much charm, her more serious work being worthy of warm praise. Mr Eric Phillips was appropriately cast as the Staatsminister; Mr Alec Murray repeated his thoroughly amusing impersonation of Kellermann; Mr Wallace G. Court was a good representative of Graf Von Asterberg; and minor parts were quite satisfactorily filled by Messrs Frank M. Cross, Alexander Shinnie, W. Prince Wells, Percy Madgwick, A. M. Moore, Herbert Ravensberg, Bevan Lorimer, Fred Thomas, Ivan Ewart, Ivan Mavis, Arthur E. Bowers, and Miss Gwelma Court.

EXETER.

Theatre Royal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—The visit of Mr F. R. Benson and company is always looked forward to by local playgoers, and, judging by the hearty reception which greeted the production of Richard the Third by Mr Benson's company on Monday, this week's visit should prove an unqualified success. Mr Benson is eminently well suited in the rôle of Richard, and his depiction of the varying moods and passions of the "bloody Duke" surpassed the most sanguine expectations. The two young Princes were effectively represented by Miss Dorothy Green and Miss C. Laws, and a fine piece of acting was contributed by Mr A. Whitby as Duke of Clarence. Miss M. Caskie's reading of the Lady Anne was an excellent one, and as Elizabeth Mrs Benson left nothing to be desired. As Henry of Richmond Mr Bernard Limpus was well placed, and the other subsidiary characters were all in excellent hands. The company is also presenting during the week Merchant of Venice, Hamlet, As You Like It, Macbeth, The Rivals, and The Taming of the Shrew.

EDINBURGH.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—The second and concluding week of the special revival of Rob Roy opened on Monday with a capital audience, and the performance again gave complete satisfaction. Mr Hedmondt's appearance as Francis Osbaldistone has been a great success, and his singing of such favourite ballads as "O'a the airts," "Auld Lang Syne," and "Annie Laurie" is received with rapturous applause. Mr Edmund Tearle makes a most effective Rob Roy, and Mr Edmund Grogan gives valuable support as Captain Thornton. We cannot sufficiently praise Mr T. W. Benson's most meritorious and amusing impersonation of Bailie Nicol Jarvie, while the Rashleigh of Mr W. J. Miller and Dougal of Mr W. H. Monte are both specially good. Of other characters, the Sir Frederick Vernon of Mr Clifford Marle and the Mr Owen of Mr Neil Fitzwilliam were notable performances, while the favourite vocalist, Mr Tom Walker, invested his clever representation of Major Galbraith with many droll characteristics, chanting "A famous man was Robin Hood" in jovial fashion. Mr Frederick Barlow also deserves a good word for his first-rate acting as Andrew Fairservice. Miss Kate Clinton has been very popular with all sections of the public as Helen Macgregor, and Miss Lilian Coomber has excelled herself this week in "Cam ye by Atholl," also taking an effective share in the duets with Mr Hedmondt, both artists being in splendid voice. Highland pipers and Highland dancers lend a picturesque feature to many of the scenes, and the stirring broadsword combat between Captain Thornton and Dougal "Cratur" has been cheered to the echo nightly. The costumes are striking and correct, and have been supplied by Mr James Carr, Liverpool.

Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—A company that comes by special arrangement with Mr George Edwardes commenced a short engagement at this house on Monday evening, when San Toy was presented. There was an excellent house. The performance was an admirable one and received with every evidence of favour, nearly everything being encored. The Li of Mr E. Statham Staples was full of quaint humour, and he kept the audience in a high state of merriment while he was on the stage. Mr Stratton Mills gave a highly comical rendering of Sir Bingo Preston and Mr John Humphries was a diverting Yen-How. Mr Colin Coop made a feature of the Emperor; and Mr Harry Claff, who had a hearty welcome, acted with power and sang with dramatic effect as Fo-Hop. Mr Reginald Kenneth was an agreeable Captain Preston; and Mr F. Jocelyn Hope appeared as Sing-Hi. Miss Fanny Dango was delightful in the name-part, and Miss Louie Collier sang brilliantly as Chu-San. Other leading parts were satisfactorily filled by Miss May Francis (Poppy), by Miss Maud Darling (Dudley), and Miss Eva Wright (Ko-Fan); while the six wives of Yen-How had attractive representatives. The stage pictures, produced under the direction of Mr J. A. E. Malone, were very fine. The chorus sang with notable spirit, and Miss Alice Lethbridge danced a pas seul in the second act with pre-eminent grace and skill, earning a well-merited encore. Mr George M. Saker conducted admirably.

Empire Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss. — Supported by numerous assistants, the Chinese conjuror, Chung Ling Soo, who heads the bill this week, presented a number of remarkable tricks on Monday, all of a very mystifying character. Two of the most astonishing were the firing of a girl from a cannon and the catching on a plate of a number of marked bullets fired by five men stationed in the body of the house from old muzzle-loading guns. There is no greater vocal favourite here than Mr Albert Christian, and his spirited delivery of a couple of well-known compositions was warmly applauded. Mr Harry Sheldon rendered tenor songs with much acceptance, and Miss Katie Cohen charmed a well-pleased audience with her cultured ballad singing. The M'Connells, who stand high in favour, and are well-known as vocalists, appeared with immense success in their new sketch The Airship, which is a perfect screamer from start to finish. Mr Fred Poplar gave examples of his powers as a character comedian, and Bard and O'Brien exhibited unusual skill as balancers in their comedy wire act. Miss Kitty Wager, a graceful and accomplished artiste, sang with much ability; Miss Elly Adair proved a sprightly dancer; and Stelling and Revell, from last week, repeated their comical evolutions on the bars. A musical extravaganza by the Kreegers concluded a most enjoyable entertainment.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West.—After a wonderful week at Glasgow, where the attendance exceeded that of every city in the world except Chicago, this remarkable exhibition opened in Edinburgh on Monday afternoon before a vast assemblage of sightseers. The management submitted a gigantic programme that was gone through with astonishing spirit. The cowboy cyclist's aerial leap through space was wonderful, while the movements of the large body of North American Indians, the marvellous performances of the Imperial Japanese troupe, the realistic attack on the Deadwood stage coach and that tragic spectacle Custer's Last Stand evoked enthusiastic applause.

FALKIRK.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt.—This theatre was reopened on Monday evening, when a capital representation of Walter Melville's A Girl's Cross Roads was given in the presence of a large and appreciative audience. The success of this piece—which must rank among the moral plays—depends principally upon three characters, Barbara Wade, John Meadows, and Constance Cornell, and each of these received intelligent treatment from Miss Beatrice Homer, Mr Edwin J. Wilde, and Miss Constance Symonds respectively. The acting of Miss Homer was remarkably clever, and her portrayal of a woman in the varying stages of drink, from the imbibing of the first glass till the horrible finale, could scarcely be excelled. Mr Wilde was truthful in his representation of the fond but broken-hearted parent. Miss Symonds acted her part of self-sacrifice very pleasingly. Mr Chas. Terry was a refined and sensible Dr. Weston; Mr Wingold Lawrence was successful as Jack Livingstone; and Miss Octavia Noel as Nellie Meadows, and Mr H. K. Ayliff as Cuthbert Lumley, in conjunction with Mr John Brooks as Luke Ramsden, provided the "villainy." The humour of the piece was fairly well supplied by Miss Emily Custance and Mr John Hitchins.

FARNWORTH.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell.—Glittering Gloria is here this week, presented by Mr Frank Curzon's company. As Colonel Pasguall Gallegher Mr R. S. Trelawney is most popular. Mr Haughton Macaulay is effective in the part of Zebedee Posket, whilst Mr W. Champney as Archie Toddleby and Mr John Campbell as Jack James are admirably suited to their respective parts. Mr Gerald Clark is clever as Algernon Entwistle; Mr Charles Williams causes roars of laughter by his portrayal of Mr Griddletop; Miss Lilian Williams is successful as Mrs Jack James; and Miss Eva Bertram is charming in the title-rôle. Very acceptable is the dancing of Roatz American dancers. The other parts are in capable hands.

FOLKESTONE.

Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—Mr Tom B. Davis's company, in The Medal and the Maid, is here. Miss Rita Leonhardt, the Merva Sunningdale, is a dainty vocalist and dancer; Miss Maude Lake as Josephine is charming, her singing being extremely good; Miss Edith Blanche as Mrs Habbicomba is very amusing; Miss Lillie Leroy is efficient as Elsie; Miss Cissie Sephton acts well in the rôle of Miss Ventnor; Mr Tom Fancourt as Simon Pentweasle proves himself a smart comedian; Mr Tom Graves as the Frenchman Levanter scores a great success, his songs being encored again and again; Mr William Bland makes a powerful Darien; Mr Cecil Kingsley is well cast as Allen Blythe; and Mr Campbell Bishop gives a good portrayal of Admiral Lord Belton.

Victoria Pier.—Lessees, Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., Limited; General Manager. Mr H. De Manche.—Miss Stroud Wilson, an excellent soprano, is here; Mr Edward Davis, tenor, is the possessor of a good voice; Mr J. T. M'Cullum, comedian, is a great favourite; and Mr Patrick Kirwan's "Idyllic Players" still continue to please. At the café chantant Harmon's Punch and Judy and Marionettes are performing to appreciative audiences.

Leas Pavilion.—Manager, Mr A. Sitter.—Miss Marian Pilcher, contralto; Mr J. H. Fozard-Harding, prestidigitateur and chapeaugraphist, are providing excellent entertainment here this week; Mr Finlay Dunn, humourist, is paying a welcome return visit. The Ladies' Salon Band and animated pictures complete the programme.

GLOUCESTER.

Theatre Royal.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—The drama, entitled A Fight for Millions, is this week being played by Mr Robt. Perris's company. Mr Robt. Perris acts the part of Tom Manley in telling style, and Richard Dudley is powerfully played by Mr W. S. Stephenson. Mr Fred Acton in his impersonation of Solomon Moses is very successful, and shares the comedy with Mr Harry Clement, who is prominent throughout as Willie Neverwork. Mr J. Newton Cowling capably plays the part of the millionaire, Hudson Rivers. Pearl Rivers has an accomplished exponent in Miss Eva Purcell, and Miss Evelyn Robson wins the audience by a sympathetic rendition of Helen Dudley. Miss Winnie Acton shows much promise as Little Madge. Miss Gertie Douglas cleverly doubles the characters of Betty and Mag Brady. Mr Nicholas Conway is good as Harold Hobbs, and Mr George Hodges is noticeable as Robt. Mackenzie, a warder. Miss Fannie Williams delineates the character of Mrs Hudson Rivers with ability. The chief sensation is the submarine boat, which is effective.

GREAT GRIMSBY.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—The nautical drama The Mariners of England has appeared here this week, played by Mr Ernest R. Abbott's company. Mr Abbott himself appears as Lord Nelson, his make-up presenting a wonderfully accurate portrait of the character. Mr W. T. Riley gives an excellent representation of Harry Dell, whilst Miss Ada Abbott is all that could be desired as Mabel Talbot. Mr W. H. Garbois has an eminently suitable part in Captain Lebaudy; Mr W. H. Davis-Brown accomplishes good work as the French spy, Marston; Mr John Lester admirably realises the historic character of Captain Hardy; and Mr Clifford Clifford does well as Admiral Talbot. Miss Linda Riley sustains the part of Nelly Dell with credit. The comedy portions are satisfactorily undertaken by Mr Edwin Keene as Tom Tripp and Miss Isabel Singleton as Polly Appleyard.

Hippodrome.—Mr J. K. Reynolds's company has presented the miniature drama Conscience at the Hippodrome this week. This includes a very exciting scene, in which the contents of a drawing-room are wrecked. Hanvarr and Lee have appeared in a speciality, "The Golfer and the Maid," in which some smart juggling with golf clubs, &c., is accomplished. The Two Zampas, duettists and dancers, have gained much applause for their graceful dancing. Lillie Lassah has also won good opinions for good dancing, in addition to which she has sung some pleasing songs. Lomas has proved a clever and amusing monkey impersonator; Alec Thomas, the black-faced philosopher, has caused a good deal of fun; and others who have contributed to the programme have been Chas. Gardener, comedian, and the Sisters Hall, descriptive vocalists.

Empire, Cleethorpes.—Rose Hamilton, the popular burlesque artiste, has supplied a pleasing principal turn at the Empire this week. She has given a number of good songs, together with some really amusing patter. Miss Essie Andrews, contralto vocalist, and Miss B. Freeman, violin soloist, who scored big successes here earlier in the season, have again appeared, their performances being greatly appreciated. Alec Aubrey has given a skilful and agile display on the silver chains; Alec Kennedy, actor-vocalist, has contributed some interesting dream scenas; R. C. Note, comedian, has given several popular songs of varied styles; and other turns have been Gusto, comedy cyclist; Ern Vesta, eccentric comedian; and the Maddison Girls, singers and dancers.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Scott Phipp.—That fascinating play The Darling of the Gods, interpreted by Mr Tree's company, is drawing large houses this week. Mr G. W. Anson gives an effective rendition of the rôle of the villain Zakkuri; Kara is admirably presented by Mr Gerald K. Souper; Mr A. P. Kaye is earnest and artistic as Saigon; Mr P. R. Goodyer displays true comedy as Tanda Tanji; Miss Nora Kerin is excellent as Yo-San; Setsu is brightly enacted by Miss Irmi Foldi; Miss Augusta Haviland acts with passion and intensity as Rosy Sky. In spite of the loss of costumes caused by fire in transit to Yarmouth, others were despatched in time from London, and the piece was beautifully dressed and the scenery rich and artistic.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale.—Miss Louie Freear and company occupy the boards with the military play, Boy Bob. In the title-rôle Miss Freear is quaint, yet natural and winsome; Mr Slaine Mills is good as Colonel Vincent; Mr Stephen Bond is manly and effective as Captain Winters; Captain Fisher and Lieutenant Herrick are well represented by Mr Francis Hawley and Mr Brisco Owen; Sergeant Field is capitally played by Mr A. T. Hendon; Mr B. Soane Roby gives a clever study as Sergeant Daniels; Lottie Brenton is acted with dramatic force by Miss Marie Rignold; Edith Vincent and Dora Herrick are charmingly portrayed by Miss Dora Rignold and Miss Jessie Burgwitz; Mrs H. A. Saintsbury is very successful as Mrs Caudraugh.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr George Gilbert.—Fresh arrivals this week are Mendel, the blind pianist, who gives a really wonderful exhibition of skill; Salvas and Manza, who contribute a clever turn as equilibrists; the Donatos, the marvellous one-legged gymnasts; and De Gracia's performing elephants, who exhibit exceptional docility and prove themselves highly trained and obedient animals. The great hunting spectacle, Tally Ho! continues to elicit hearty applause, and Parke's Eton Boys gain nightly encores. Other items in a capital programme win favour.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION.—Managing-Director, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr Edward Gray.—The Jackson Family give an excellent turn, and are able to extract music from all sorts of instruments; J. W. Rowley is a capital comedian, and each evening wins encores; Sydney Lee well deserves his title of Prince of Magicians; the Patty Frank Troupe of acrobats contribute an exceedingly clever performance; fresh pictures are shown by the American Biograph; Madame Angless's ladies band plays effectively, Miss Maud Nina giving violin solos in finished and artistic style.

WELLINGTON PIER PAVILION.—Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr Harry Tunbridge.—Terry and Bentley in a new comedy, The Hunt, and Manning's entertainers in a humorous sketch, The Bathroom, keep the house merry with laughter; Miss Beattie Bloom and Miss Maudie Ford please in their respective turns as comediennes. Other artists appearing are Hector and Paulus, comedy equilibrists; Arthur Dynham, tenor vocalist; George Antill, the evening "shadow;" the Great Marconis, in a wireless telegraphy act; and Whisper, comedy tourist juggler.

GORLESTON PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr Bertram Knight.—Mr D'Arcy Clayton's Gipsies continue their capital entertainment as humorous musical entertainers, and fesh songs, &c., have been introduced. Mr Fred Milner jokes and jests with zest and humour; Miss Florence Croft and Miss Barbara Antoine sing charmingly; Mr Robert Tattersall mystifies and amuses his audience; Mr D'Arcy Clayton and Mr Eric Davidson please with their effective vocalisation.

GREENOCK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alexander Wright; Managers Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr John Clyde's company is playing Jeanie Deans here. Mr John Clyde appears as the Duke of Argyll and counsel for the defence, and gives fine impersonations of these characters; Mr R. S. Dorincourt's Geordie Robertson is an effective study; Mr Chas. Aitken is convincing as David Deans; Mr H. Lester ably fills the rôle of Reuben Butler; Mr N. Forrester is a dignified Lord Justiciary; Mr Craighall Sherry appears as the Laird with much comical ability; Mr H. R. Young as counsel for the Crown shows marked cleverness; and Mr R. Robertson is a capable exponent of Jamie Ratcliffe. Miss Fanny Wright scores as Margory Murdockson, and Miss Florence Lambeth as Madge Wildfire deserves praise. Effie Deans is well played by Miss Isobel Falconer, and Miss Belle Cecil submits a fine piece of acting as Jeanie Deans. Miss Edith Wilton makes an excellent Queen Caroline, and Miss Arnold Lindsay does well as Lady Suffolk.

HALIFAX.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co.; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—A remarkably clever young lady juggler, Selma Bratz, is at the head of a good bill this week, and evokes great applause by her dexterity with a variety of apparatus; Jenny Belmore can always rely on a good reception here, she sings with spirit and is always effective; the O'Learys perform their clever acrobatics to the evident satisfaction of all; the Bros. Artois are comedy bar performers par excellence; J. Carroll gives a novel and clever show with tambourines; Walker and Lane do a lot of cross-talking, which contains some smart and original passages; E. J. Sheldon, song and dance artist; Archie Glen, vocalist; and the Biograph complete the bill.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil.—The Karnos remain over from last week, and are performing another laughable comedy sketch Jail Birds. In addition, Charles Mildare, a wonderfully expert whistler and bird imitator; Carle and Carmenelli, musical comedians; the Brontes, in a laughable sketch; and Lily Turner, a taking vocalist, all do well.

HARROGATE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr R. Hullah.—Mr George Dance's company is here in The Orchid. The play is well performed by a thoroughly competent company, which includes Mr Bertie Wright as Meakin; whilst Messrs Page, Burnaby, and Darrell, and Misses Ethel Bryant, Madge Lucas, Eva Melville, and Poppy Wilkinson are very clever in their respective parts. The chorus is good, and the dresses pretty.

KURSAAL.—Manager, Mr H. J. Dacre.—On Monday Dr. Coleridge-Taylor conducted a programme of his own works, which were performed by the municipal orchestra. During the week Tschaikowsky, Gounod, and Wagner programmes have been submitted and appreciated by large audiences. Mr Leslie Harris is the entertainer this week.

HANLEY.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone.—This house was reopened on Monday, when a packed house greeted Mr John Leopold's company in the evergreen piece, Frivolity. Mr John Gerant as Oliver Buckwheat is exceedingly funny. Jules Vermiglio has a smart representative in Mr Wilfred Vaughan. The specialities introduced are good, including a clever song and dance by Miss Amy Wall and Mr John Leopold, jun. Madame Nanoni sings her cuckoo song admirably.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—Mr Charles Prelle with his wonderfully trained dogs heads the bill in a most entertaining turn. Harland and Rollison are musical grotesques of ability; Burns and Evans in the sketch Funnibalism are exceedingly smart; Spring and Spring as barrel jumpers have but very few rivals; the Five Olracs, comedy gymnasts, contribute a really clever turn; Harry Lawson is a comedian with capital songs; Miss Florence Hall also meets with much success; and Charles Vandyke and company appear in a funny absurdity, which is much appreciated.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs.—The Young American Quintet, which is conducted by Miss Mattie Boorum, heads the exceptionally strong bill that is submitted this week; their performance, which consists of song and dance, is one that brings forth a double encore. The Clarks are expert banjoists, and they too are persistently recalled. Two old favourites whose popularity is further increased are Harry and Fanny Dent, who are provocative of much laughter in their sketch Mary and the Squire; the Wallys receive a well merited encore for their clever exhibition of juggling; and the remaining turns, all of which are flatteringly received, are Maude Nichols, comedian and dancer; the Phillipi Bros. in a pantomimic absurdity Shunting; and Edgar Budden, an expert bone soloist and roller-skate dancer.

HASTINGS.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr George H. Gaze.—An exceptionally brilliant entertainment was provided here on Monday by Mr George Dance's company on its initial performance in this borough of the musical play The Girl from Kay's. Under the direction of Mr Harry L. Whittaker the augmented orchestra gave an excellent rendering of Ivan Caryll's tuneful music; the chorus was of notable efficiency, and the dresses, hats, properties, and scenery were of the highest order of artistic merit. Miss Lily Lingard has a fine stage presence, and submitted a thoroughly good impersonation of Winnie Harborough, her singing being much appreciated. Miss May Marton gave full effect to her songs, and with Mr Garnet Wilson gained much applause for the duet "Semi-detached." The latter's presentment of Harry Gordon's embarrassments was diverting, and his song, "I don't care," was well rendered. Miss Polly Prim gained well-deserved distinction as Ellen; her dancing was very pleasing and her lightness of foot and vivacious style were greatly commended. Miss Trissie March as Nancy Lowly gained distinction for her song "Sambo" in the second act. An exceptional reception was accorded Miss May Wiltshire for her song in the third act; she has a voice of great range and power, and sang brilliantly, associated with Miss Adelaide Chadwick and Mr Walter F. Bates as pierrots in the Hotel scene. A host in himself was Mr Johnnie Schofield, whose drolleries as Max Hoggenheimer kept the house in continual laughter. Mr Tom Shelford provided much fun as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle. A thoroughly good impersonation of the hall-porter, Joseph, was supplied by Mr Charles Goold. Miss H. Champion was effective as Mrs Chalmers, and good assistance was rendered by Messrs Sam Lysons as Uncle Theodore, T. Reynolds as Mr Chalmers, and Louis Du Cane as Pepper, a waiter. The bridesmaids and shop assistants were provided by a brightly vivacious bevy of young ladies.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. H. Hawker.—The programme rendered of late by Ashton's orchestra here has been of a popular character, and with it is associated this week Miss Kate Rooney, the Australian contralto, whose singing is much admired, and Mr Arthur Helmore, who proves a versatile humourist and entertainer. On Thursday (matinée) Signor Bocchi conducted a special classical concert.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Local Manager, Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—A return visit is paid here this week by Mr Clifford Essex, who is supported in his entertainment by five other artistes as pierrots. Of exceptional merit is Miss Frances Roscorla, a thoroughly refined comedienne, and Mr Walter Walters, whose humour is thoroughly pleasing. Mr Algernon Newark and Mr Joe Morley contribute greatly to the evening's success, and Miss Ella Barkley, A.R.A.M., exhibits much skill in her accompaniments.

HIPPODROME.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—A bright and varied entertainment is provided here this week. The Two Bells open with some pleasing songs, and prove a pair of graceful dancers. They are followed by Walton and Lester, whose quaint business keeps their audience convulsed with laughter, and their imitation tricks are smartly performed. The humour of Ernest Rees amuses the majority. Harry Tate is seen in his amusing motor-car sketch; Billy Hobbs appears as a Negro comedian; Collins and Rice gain a good reception for their comic speciality, which is broadly humorous; Rosie Lloyd arouses much enthusiasm by her songs; and Cooke and Clinton (Pauline and May) prove themselves "dead shots" in their clever rifle shooting, and organise a shooting competition, which is well supported. Not the least enjoyable item is the Bioscope pictures shown by Mr Dalmayne.

BEACH CONCERT PAVILION.—Manager, Mr Geo. Blackmore.—Mr Wallis Arthur and his company continue with attractive songs. Miss Edith Blanchard's contributions are greatly appreciated; Mr Edgar Edwards's fine baritone voice strongly appeals to his audience; and Messrs Wallis Arthur, George Blackmore, and Tom Nelldon are a trio of excellent comedians of distinctive styles.

CORPORATION FETES.—The Amusement Committee of the Corporation has organised a four days' fête this week, opening on Monday with a children's sports on the beach, attended by the Old Town band. On Tuesday an al fresco entertainment in the Gensing Gardens was attended by the band of H.M. Scots Guards. On Wednesday, the occasion of the annual flower show was followed by an evening fête in the Alexandra Park; the Scots Guards band played at each function, and also performed in the band kiosk on the baths in the morning. On Thursday was given a grand military tournament, followed by a marine fête and battle of confetti on the St. Leonards Pier.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson.—Mr Sydney Spenser's company, in The Hero of the Flag, occupies the boards here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Lizzie Hall, a smart and clever actress, leaves nothing to be desired. Mr William Hielbronn shows great ability in his impersonation of Jack Lawrence, and Mr Sydney Spenser as Paul Mansfield also accomplishes his work in fine style. Stephen Clifford is successfully portrayed by Mr T. G. Bailey, and the Captain Hilliard of Mr Bryce Methven meets with due credit. Mr Basil Hobson embodies the rôle of Mark Forrester with satisfactory results. Mr Urwin Crafton capably sustains the part of Blue Jake, and Mr A. Horton is effective as Frank Granville. Mr Arthur E. Andrews does well as Johnny Truckle. Mr Herbert Scott makes an impressive Puncher Hincks, and Miss Maude Yorke as the discarded Ruth Clifford and Miss Maude Le Ray as Jenny Stubbs are also excellent.

HORWICH.

NEW PRINCE'S.—Manager, Mr Arthur Sandiford; Stage-Manager, Mr Alfred Holles.—Mr R. S. Gresham's company in The Thieves of London is the attraction here. The company is a strong all-round one, and includes Mr John Power, whose impersonation of the Rev. Eustace Hardy is very carefully worked out; Mr R. S. Gresham as Jack Mansfield is very sympathetically received; Mr Montague Corri's Nosey Jacobs is capitally rendered; and Mr F. W. Chapman as Slippery Jim does full justice to the rôle of Hardy. Mr Horace Buckley and Miss Nell Ingram as Sammy and Sally Slapcabbage introduce some genuine low comedy; Miss Ana Corri as Sybil Keane plays with much feeling; and Miss Dolores Hope's rendering of Bess Allison is artistic.

HULL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; Local Director, Mr W. F. Morton.—Mr Wilson Barrett's Golden Ladder company is here this week. In the rôle of Lillian Grant Miss Austin has a part that suits her admirably. The heroic missionary, Frank Thornhill, is ably represented by Mr Harry Cullenford. The play has lost none of its interest. The Bioscope fills in the interval pleasantly.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr J. Hart; Local Manager, Mr H. Esden.—The Houp-La Girl is a go-as-you please musical play, full of gaiety and very merry music. The Houp La Girl allows Miss Margaret Wilson, a very capable artiste, gifted with a most pleasing speaking and singing voice, ample opportunity for her powers.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Sole Owner, Mr W. Morton; Manager, Mr George Morton.—Gipsy Jack, with Henry Bedford in the title-rôle, requires no words to praise it, so well known is it on the road. The play has so many elements that tend towards success.

PALACE THEATRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Manager, Mr A. Graham.—Mr George Gray's great sketch party in The Fighting Parson is receiving a big welcome here, and deservedly so, for it is well written and full of life and vigour. The Glenroy Troupe are likewise an attraction, and Jenny Hart and Beatrice Leo in their scena and song "Follow the crowd on Sunday" are a draw.

ALHAMBRA.—Resident-Manager, Mr C. J. Bartleet Perry.—The Morton Trio top the bill here, proving themselves favourites. Bertha Winder makes a welcome reappearance in her speciality dancing; Polk and Kollias render harmonious duets on banjos. Bogg and Bogg, Sinclair and Whiteford, the Pictures, and Zarmo complete the bill.

ILKESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr L. F. A. Rogers.—At War with the World is being played here by Mr George Lyttleton's company. Mr Lyttleton ably undertakes the part of Tom Redfern, and Mr Geo. Lyttleton, jun., is seen to advantage as the Squire. Mr Darcy Salter is a painstaking Farmer Maddox; Mr Alec Mayhew is excellent as Thornton Westmeare; and Mr F. J. Lewis is genuinely humorous as Gregory Blotts. As Edna Maddox Miss Lillian Beaumont is interesting; Miss Theodora Hendies makes a pathetic Mabel Leslie; and Miss Jane Massey plays Mrs Leslie with quiet dignity.

POPLAR PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Jabez Barber.—A sparkling entertainment is given here by the Two Macs, comedians and dancers; Bob Gardner, Milanese piper; Fred Ray, vocalist, comedian, and dancer; Natt Raynor, comedian; and Lilian Clarke, soprano.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr Joe Richards.—Varieties are supplied here by the Rushfords; Joe Richards, jun., tenor vocalist; Professor Howitz Dunn, shadowgraphist; and King Leo, ventriloquist.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. Fisk.—Uncle Tom's Cabin has been played here during the week by Mr John Tully's company of American artists, comprising actors, singers, and dancers. The familiar plot and incidents of Mrs Harriet Beecher Stowe's book were once again strikingly represented, and evidently well appreciated. Uncle Tom was effectively represented by Mr Kora Deanrajah, while the part of George Harris was a striking impersonation by Mr E. Aldworth. Such characters as Simon Legree, Haley the slave dealer, Eliza Harris, and Aunt Ophelia had adequate representatives, while Miss Kitty Wood as Topsy and Little Marie as Little Eva were each warmly greeted in their respective rôles. In the plantation festival Lillian Francis and C. H. Smack contributed effective Negro songs, &c.

JERSEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. Robt. Perkins.—The New Clown opened here on Tuesday for four nights, played by Mr Stanley Cooke and company. Mr Cooke, who undertakes the rôle of Lord Garston, is the life and soul of the performance. Mr Herbert Greville makes a hit as Dixon, and Mr Fred Paul, who plays Capt. Trent, is good. Miss Evelyn Maxwell and Miss Violet Greville sustain with credit the rôles of Maud and Winnie Chesterton, and Miss Katie Yates makes a piquant Rosie Platt. The mounting is excellent.

LEAMINGTON.

CORPORATION MUSIC SEASON.—Whit Cunliffe stars a troupe of Messrs Adeler and Sutton's pierrots which is augmenting the band performances this week, and he is as well received as ever. Other old favourites in the shape of Maynard Dakin, comedian; Erroll Stanhope, a charming sufflette; and J. W. Hughes, baritone. Mr Gordon Stamford is the pianist.

LEEDS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—This week we are favoured with a first visit of the new comic opera Amorelle, presented by Mr C. P. Levilly's powerful company. Mr Eric Thorne as Dr. Crow is responsible for continual hilarity; in the title-rôle Miss Stella Gastelle is admirable; Mr Phil Carlton is gifted with a pleasant voice, and ably fills the rôle of Jules; Mr Newton Ide is also successful as Francois; Miss Kitty Cavendish is a dainty and pleasing Lesbia; and Miss Madge Avery fills with distinction the part of Marina. Old Father Dotard is a clever conception by Mr Fred Seymour; Mr Gerald Clifford and Mr Maurice Carlton are noticeable for excellent work; and success is also achieved by Mr Robert Fairbanks and Mr William Griffin in leading parts. The piece is exceedingly well dressed and staged.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—An attractive military drama, The Two Hussars, is being presented at this theatre by Messrs F. J. Webb and Wilson Benge and their powerful company. These gentlemen enact the two leading rôles in effective style, and receive capable assistance from Mr Louis Manton, Mr G. Paradise, Mr James Stuart, Miss Lallah Price, and Miss Danvers Smith.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. Bush.—A capital presentation is seen here this week of the popular play Defending His Honour, by Messrs Carson and Granville's company. Mr John Davidson evinces high ability in his portrayal of Douglas Bryce, and is winning the approval of large audiences. Miss Florence M. Millet plays her part of Ethel Bryce in sympathetic style. Mr T. L. Arthur works a welcome humorous vein into his portrayal of Richard Verison, and good work is noticeable allround.

EMPIRE PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr Gerald Morton.—Julie Mackey, the popular comedienne, fills the top place here, and renews previous local successes. A most interesting and entertaining turn is that done by Mark Melford, depicting the K.C. in a breach of promise trial, and a second episode by Mr and Mrs 'Gene Hughes, entitled A Model Husband, is also thoroughly enjoyed. Arthur Reece's vocal contributions are well received, and the comedy artistes, Spry and Austin, enjoy a considerable share of favour. Dome combines expert clay modelling and comic business successfully. A novel and expert gymnastic display by the Max Welson Troupe is followed with interest, and a clever comedienne is appearing in Nellie Coleman. The programme is completed by Wilson Hallett, mimic; the Four Elysians, coloured vocalists; Tatten Hall, comedian; and Amy Sullivan, comedienne.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr Thos. Barrasford; General Managers, Messrs Edgar O. Waller and Chas. Weldon.—A varied and attractive programme is presented here, Rudolph's elephants doing some remarkably clever feats. A high-class turn by Mr and Mrs E. H. Lucas, consisting of sketches from Dickens, is thoroughly appreciated; as also is a fine gladiatorial exhibition by the Three Romas; Paul Vandy renews acquaintance with clever juggiery; and the Three Rickards display much ability in an expert acrobatic display.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Jones.—The local juvenile vocalist, Willie Haigh, returns here after a successful tour, and is enthusiastically welcomed. Other turns include the clever comedy pair, Starr and Leslie, in the usual smart act; the Zaros, acrobats and tumblers, in an effective performance; and Flo Challis, a vocalist of considerable merit. Other clever speciality business is done by Stanley and Vandyke, also by Dale and Vale, and the entertainment is completed by Herbert Rule, comedian; and Luis Hardt, a youthful strong man.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr C. D. Leigh.—An interesting engagement is being filled here this week by Mr Norman M'Owan's company in the costume drama Monsieur Beaucaire. The play, seen for the first time locally, is followed throughout with keen interest, and the beautiful costumes of the period of 1735, and the admirable stage sets add to its attractiveness. Mr Norman M'Owan thoroughly realises the possibilities of the name part, and he scores a conspicuous success. Miss Violet Sterne as Lady Mary Carlisle gives a delightful portrayal. Mr F. Stuart Wilson is prominent in the part of the Duke of Winterset. Others who are responsible for well-played embodiments are Mr Herbert Cornish as Major Molyneux, Mr P. Ramsey Forman as Captain Badger, Mr H. A. Young as Beau Nash, and the Misses Millie Hamer as Lucy Rellerton, Miss Florence Lincoln as Mrs Mabsley, Miss Lillian Holbrook as Lady Rellerton, Miss Gladys Milnes as Miss Prestburg, Miss Evelyn Victor as Miss Paitelot, and Miss S. Izzard as Countess of Greenbury.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—The attraction here this week is Mr Henry Furnival's company in the new play The Harvest of Sin, by George Daventry. Mr Charles H. Lester in the dual-rôle of Harold and Arnold Mainwaring is in every way excellent, and Mr Sidney Compton is also good as George Mainwaring. Mr Edward Valentine as Paul De Brisionere and Mr J. Fulton Mill as Silas Logan do well. Miss Louisa Paach is most successful as Grace. Miss Pattie Hastings is a satisfactory exponent of the part of May Mainwaring, and the same remark applies to Miss K. Willoughby as Gladys Mainwaring and Miss Alice Oliver as Margery Grey.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—George Robey holds pride of place in this week's excellent programme, and well maintains his position by keeping the audience in a continual roar while he occupies the stage. Charles Morritt, the well-known illusionist, is filling a successful return engagement, his tricks being done with a deftness that quite bewilders the audience. He also introduces a gentleman, whose name, unfortunately, does not appear on the programme, who is possessed of a remarkable memory, and answers readily any question put to him by the audience. Ethel Haydon gives a delightful turn, her songs being rendered in charming style. The Three Sisters Sprightly are vivacious young ladies who at once captivate the audience, their singing and dancing being much above the average. Marguerite and Handley are prominent with some clever balancing and other daring feats. The Hulines and the Phydoras are responsible for novel musical turns, which are heartily appreciated. George Newburn is successful in his mimicry of music hall stars. The Haywards, in their original act, A Dress Rehearsal, are good, and George Formby, comedian, also scores.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—The Watson Family of musicians, vocalists, and comedians score their usual success, their turn affording the greatest delight. Lavers and Lake's combination, in their speciality scena, The Spectre of Mildew Chase, are very funny, and cause great laughter. Adelina, the accomplished lady facial artist, in her speciality, "Famous Faces: or, Britannia's Levée," impersonates a number of prominent persons with a vividness that is remarkable. Other artists appearing with success are Carlotti, equilibrist and juggler; Connie Milton, versatile comedienne; Ryder Davis, comedian; J. P. Boston, vocalist, stick manipulator, and dancer; and Eva Ward, vocalist.

LLANDUDNO.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr R. Bellis; Acting-Manager, Mr C. Payn.—Ben Greet's company is here this week in The Belle of New York. Mr Edward Chester is excellent as Ichabod Bronson; Harry Bronson is ably impersonated by Mr Edward Crosland; Mr Jos. R. Tate as the polite lunatic, Karl Von Pumperknick, is very amusing; Miss Cecily O'Nolan is well placed as Violet Grey; whilst Miss Daisy Baldry gives a good account of herself as Cora. The chorus is excellent.

GRAND THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr C. A. Hutton.—The D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire opera company is the attraction here. On Monday night The Mikado was staged. Mr Albert Kavanagh undertakes the title-role successfully; Mr Pacie Ripple is well placed as Nanki-Poo; Mr C. H. Workman is quite in his element as Ko-Ko; and Mr Fred Billington scores as Pooh-Bah. Miss Norah Maguire, Miss Jessie Rose, and Miss Mabel Burneze are charming as Ko-Ko's three wards, whilst Miss Theresa Rassam is effective as Katisha. The chorus is good and the staging effective.

PIER PAVILION.—Secretary, Mr Saml. Hughes.—Mr Nelson Jackson is a big success here.

LONGTON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr H. Sherriff Howard.—Messrs J. A. Atkin and Walter Howe presented their new venture, A Victim of Villainy, to a provincial audience for the first time on Monday, who thoroughly endorsed the favourable London opinion. It being "Wakes week" here an exceptionally crowded house gave the play a most cordial reception. An exceptionally clever company has been secured, headed by Miss Eileen Concanen, who gives a finished performance of the part of Mary Manton, and Mr Frank Lister, who is admirable as Stephen Cavanagh. The author, Mr Walter Howe, as Frank Manton is successful as the hero, and other prominent members of a long cast are Miss Helena Walbran, Miss Sophie Shenton, and Miss Marjorie Carrol, Messrs Arthur Staples, Edward Fielder, and Fred Grove.

LOWESTOFT.

MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Ernest A. Smith.—Amorelle is being performed here. Miss Empsie Bowman sustains the leading part in a charming manner. Her sweet singing and sprightly acting materially help the success. Mr Leon Simkin as Dr. Crow creates hearty laughter. Jules has a fine representative in Mr Arthur Cozens, and Lupin is carefully embodied by Mr J. Redmond. Messrs Harry Newman and Horace Manger appear successfully as Francois and Alphonse, and Dotard is ably enacted by Mr F. Carrington. Miss Belle M'Kenzie is a charming Lesbia. Mr W. H. Davis conducts an efficient orchestra.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Geo. Gilbert.—The company here includes the great Caban, with his performing ponies and dogs; the Okimato Troupe of Japanese gymnasts; the Sisters Devona, a clever "turn" as gymnasts; Bert Woodward, the cycling coon; Kloof and Ramsey, musical comedians; Mendel, a blind pianist, who gave a fine rendering on Monday of the last movement from Mendelssohn's Concerto No 1, for which he was recalled again and again. His imitations of a street organ proved highly diverting. A word should be given to Mr Pearse Butler (Mr Gilbert's manager) and Mr Stanley Steeds, his aide-de-camp. Mr Tidswell as usual efficiently conducts the orchestra.

MACCLESFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr W. K. Gatley.—During the week Mr J. Wilton Richards' company is here in The Broad Arrow. Mr J. Binns as Frank Medwin, the persecuted brother, shows undoubted ability as an actor; Mr A. Mervyn as the crafty Philip Medwin is much appreciated; Mr W. Wilby as John Medwin has a very difficult part to perform but manages it very creditably; Mr Bob Bartram is ably portrayed by Mr M. Core; Mr C. Frank as Cory Crampton creates roars of laughter; Mr J. Derby as Varges submits a part with is well liked. Miss Rosie Mervyn gives a capital impersonation of Grace Melrose; Miss Wenie Wevans makes a vivacious Julie Colliver; Miss Nellie Navared as Maud Shaw is also good. Other minor parts are well sustained.

MANCHESTER.

Prince's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—Frequent visits of The Belle of New York (Mr George Musgrove's company) do not in the least diminish its popularity with Manchester playgoers, and the audience at this theatre on Monday enjoyed the piece as heartily as the most expectant management could desire. Many of the old favourites retain their parts in the cast, notable among them being Mr Harry A. Meymott as Ichabod Bronson and Mr Frank Lawton as the whistling pugilist. Mr Max Copland has also been seen here before as the Polite Lunatic, a part admirably done. Miss Beatrice Lamotte is again in the title-rôle, which she renders charmingly; while Miss Lillian Digges is pleasing as Fifi Fricot and Mr Philip Leslie is quite satisfactory in the part of Harry Bronson. The remaining members of the cast are thoroughly capable, and the presentatation is assisted by a full chorus and an augmented orchestra.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A very attractive variety programme is offered here this week, one of the principal items being Tom Cannon, the 12st. champion wrestler, who offers a £10 note to any wrestler who succeeds in holding out against him for fifteen minutes. This turn includes an open wrestling tournament, with substantial prizes for the winners. Prominent also on the bill is a comedy-drama episode, From Scotland Yard, which is played excellently by a company under the direction of, and including, Mr C. Finch-Hatton. Other capital turns are the Itrams, in their continental act: Andy Fagan, comedian and dancer; Earle and Earle, American banjoists; the Kausmanns, speciality artistes; Ada Seale, the singing mill girl; Len Lever, sand dancer and coon vocalist; and the Marvellous Steens, illusionists.

Metropole.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A good programme is provided here, as usual, including Fred Karno's comedians in Hilarity, a piece which is very amusing and very well received. A very successful turn also is that of the Four Maisanos, in their eccentric musical show, while Coverdale, a droll comedian and mimic, the Freans, in an entertaining comedy act, and Caselli and James, banjoists, are all prominently appreciated. Other good turns are Oma and Calderon, comic acrobats and trampolin tumblers; Steely and Dowton, in a comedy act; Circe, the Eastern mystery; Wal Croft, the Hieland laddie; Edie Anderson, a very smart dancer; and a series of animated pictures to complete the programme.

Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—Messrs Hardie and Von Leer present here this week an emotional drama entitled A Path of Thorns, by Arthur Shirley and Sutton Vane. The story, though much upon the usual lines of melodrama, is handled with undoubted skill, never falling in interest and stage effect. Monday's audience watched the play with sympathetic appreciation, according ample applause to the more prominent members of a thoroughly capable cast. The principal parts are in the hands of Mr Cyril Mackay, Mr Claude King, Mr Alfred Lester, Miss Winifred Pearson, Miss M. Stanley Burt, Miss Amy Rogerson, and Miss Violet Luddington; while Little Mabel May gives a nice delineation of the inventor's child, Lucy, and Mr Walter L. Rignold causes some amusement as one of the burglars who make an attempt upon the Rev. Selby's house. The staging of the play is admirable.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Mr J. Rice Cassidy and his company are here this week in Dan the Rake, after a successful week at the Royal Osborne Theatre.

Queen's Theatre.—Manager, Mr Richard Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Berry.—Mr Flanagan's production of Joan of Arc (noticed at length in last week's issue) is attracting good houses to this theatre.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Carl Mysto, "monarch of manacles," heads the bill here this week, and succeeds in mystifying the audience with some smart feats of handcuff breaking. Excellent turns also are the Walads, in a novel comedy act; Harrigan and Holt, comedians, who please with their singing, patter, and dancing; H. O. Wills, a capital eccentric comedian; and the Seabornes, in a remarkably clever acrobatic act. Other enjoyable items are the Phœnix Troupe of gymnasts, in their latest novelty, "The Human Windmill;" Sisters Clement, pleasing juvenile artistes; Parez Trio, in musical act; Will Godwin, dramatic vocal actor; Rutland and company, in sketch, Winning a Wife; and the Hippodrome pictures. Mr and Mrs Clifford Bronte figure on the programme, but on the night of our visit did not appear.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The veteran actor-vocalist, Phil Herman, is here this week, and receives an enthusiastic welcome from delighted patrons. The Scottish Meisters evoke much applause with good singing and mirth-provoking antics, and Cristo mystifies with some clever feats of legerdemain. Continuous laughter greets the comedy sketch of Hill, Barry, and Lang, the comic duets of Chump and Chant, and the drolleries and singing of Law and Norman. The eccentric manner of Charles Dixon, the "crazy comedian," and the songs contributed by Marion Rene, male impersonator; Sid Bandon, character comedian, and Kate Lynd, comedienne, also receive their share of appreciation; whilst the graceful dancing of Ida Grahame meets with warm recognition.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—George Leyton, the popular actor-vocalist, is here this week in his successful military scena, Waterloo, and is loudly applauded. Daisy Jerome, a dainty and pleasing comedienne, sings several taking songs, and is greatly appreciated. The Brothers Sylvester are very clever acrobats and balancers, and Alf Chester is a first-rate versatile comedian. Other good turns are the Sisters Bartholomew, delightful duettists and graceful dancers; Lilian Doreen, a charming vocalist with good songs; Tom O'Neill, comedian; Nellie Navette, burlesque actress and speciality dancer; and Rose Newport, comedienne.

Grand.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—A big attraction here this week is the Tom Davies Trio, including Tom Davies, in his sensational cycling act in mid-air, "Whirling the Whirl." Souplessi is a wonderful contortionist, and does some astounding things on the silver rings. As a novelty juggler and equilibrist Friscari is very good, and the Three Sisters Anderson are clever feet equilibrists. Victor Newman, character actor, is seen to advantage in sketches from the late Charles Dickens and a dramatic monologue, "Peter, the Miser." James Devoye introduces a well-trained pony, Bill, who goes through a clever performance, and well received are Tom White's Arabs, including the famous Pimple, in their unique show. Tom Collins is a capital character comedian, and the New York Quartet, vocalists and dancers, come in for plenty of applause. Other pleasing items are those of Lena Brunton, impersonator of music hall stars; Beatie Kent, comedienne and dancer; and a series of excellent animated pictures.

Palace.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—Endless amusement is caused here this week by the renowned Boisset Troupe, in their well-known Bricklayers sketch, which goes with a rare swing. Charles R. Whittle is an excellent comedian, and makes a hit with his song, "Nothing like this in America." Milner Verren, the popular tenor, scores a success with "The Playground in the Sky," and Orpheus gives a delightful musical performance. Well-received and amusing turns are those of Palles and Cusick, burlesque boxers; Fred Fox, a quaint comedian; and Fred Curran, the peculiar comedian. Amy Anderson and company appear in a novelty, A Coster Incident, and Nellie Randall, comedienne and dancer, gives a pleasing turn. Remaining from last week are the excellent and much appreciated turns of W. C. Fields, the unique eccentric juggler; and J. W. Rickaby, comedian. An enjoyable selection by the orchestra, and the Palace pictures up to date, complete the programme.

Ardwick Green Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—Minnie Palmer is prominent on the bill here this week, and is seen to advantage in a burlesque comedy sketch A Husband's Diary, in which Sidney Harcourt renders valuable service. Frank and Jess Latona are also here, making a big hit in their speciality The Musical Slavey. No less successful are the Lyons Trio of pantomimists and dancers; and Hume, Ross, and Lewis, in an eccentric comedy act; while the Damm Brothers give a fine acrobatic performance; Bonnie Goodwin and her picaninnies contribute some excellent items in the way of song and dance; Rodolfo and Carola, a boy and girl, are much applauded for their clever and daring business on the rings and trapeze; Lucy Clarke uses her fine contralto voice with capital effect in a couple of taking songs; and Little Fred and his acrobatic dogs come in for their share of favour. Besides these, the American bioscope shows a series of entertaining pictures, the whole forming a really elaborate and satisfactory programme.

LINCOLN.

Royal.—Sole Manager, Mr Frank King.—This week the show is That Woman from France, in which Mr Bert Wentworth's company appear to advantage. Mr Jerold Heather does extremely well as John Beaumont, and Miss Marie De Roos reveals her great powers as a character actress in the title-rôle. The other characters are all well taken, and the staging is particularly good.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur.—Leo Dryden, in a selection from his répertoire, is gaining high encomiums from local audiences. His Garrick scene goes extremely well. Celina Bobe, violinist and xylophonist, pays a welcome return visit; Stewart and Morgan as harmonising vocalists create a great impression; Nelson and Thomas produce roars of laughter with "On the Ra-Ta;" and Dale and O'Malley, Flo Morrison, Cameron, and Rita and Roma are the other contributors to a strong programme.

LIVERPOOL.

Royal Court Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—The very welcome production of Arthur Law's A Country Mouse has been given here this week by a first-class company belonging to Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison. The pretty comedy with its racy dialogue, smart repartee, and crispness has been enjoyed to the full, the many ludicrous situations scattered throughout it provoking much laughter. Miss Annie Hughes as Angela Muir gave a clever performance, Miss Dorothy Drake was a successful Lady Sylvia Bowlby, Mr Sydney Stirling an excellent Archibald Vyse, and Mr Charles Harley presented a dignified John Bowlby, M.P. Mr Arnold Lucy proved very humorous as the Duke of St. Kitts. The scenic effects were very pretty. The comedietta The Rising Sun, also from the pen of Mr Law, was a curtain-raiser.

Shakespeare Theatre, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Gaffney.—For notice of new play see another column.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun.—The Octoroon has been given here this week to delighted audiences. Mr J. F. Elliston's company is responsible for the production. The popular work was received with great heartiness, and new interest was introduced in the form of American Negro speciality artistes, including the Dahomian cake-walk "champions," Misses Nellie Shannon and Alice Smith, and Messrs Gibbs, Perkins, and Harris. Mr Frank Strickland was the George Peyton, Mr Eric Hudson the Jacob M'Closky, Mr Stephen Ewart the Salem Scudder, and Miss Ada Elliston a capital Zoe. The scenery was picturesque and appropriate.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—The redecoration throughout of this popular north-end theatre (without interference to or stoppage of any performance) has been carried out in a most artistic manner. The foyer, in pale blue, and the dress-circle, in dark red with plush curtains and coverings to match, look very cosy and were much commented on. The predominant colour around and about the stage is pale yellow, supported with cream colour in various shades picked out in pale blue and gilt, the whole being surmounted with pale blue to match the ceiling, the dome of which is pale blue with gilt touches not too lavish but effective. The electric lights are prettily distributed. The programme this week is topped by the Harmony Four, who create roars of laughter besides interesting all with their singing, dances, and instrumental items. Atlas and Vulcana, in their heavy-weight lifting act, are loudly applauded; Lottie Siegenberg delights everyone with her prettily rendered songs and artistic quick changes in her sketch The Lazy Slavey; Howard and Collinson are decidedly laughable in the sketch The Porter and the Parcel; Sid Doody and Edie Wright are clever in their eccentric comedy act; Fred Collins has some good Scotch songs; Onda and Artell are smart gymnasts; and the Three Sisters Leigh are neat dancers.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—Here this week is Mr Edward Marris's company in As Midnight Chimes. Included in the cast is a great Liverpool favourite, Witty Watty Walton, who, as a tender-hearted railway porter, creates uproarious laughter whenever he puts in an appearance. Mr Melville Bickford is also in the company, and gives a powerful performance as a dealer in contraband goods; Mr Frank E. Petley plays his part well as the hero, the heroine being ably portrayed by Miss Gertrude Price. Other artistes who afford much assistance are Mr Henry Beaufort and Mr Percy Maitland. The scenery and effects are on a liberal scale.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville; Business-Manager, Mr Guy Morville.—The attraction here is Walter Melville's powerful drama, The Female Swindler. The work has many exciting situations and much genuine humour, and its reception has been a hearty one, the principal artistes of a good company being Mr Luke Foster, Mr W. S. Harford, and Miss Violet Ellicott.

Empire Theatre, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; General Manager, Mr F. Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Cook.—A big item here this week is Speedy, a runner, who introduces a revolving track, and offers to wager £25 with anyone capable of beating his time on it. During the week, a number of local men have made attempts to secure the prize, but without success. Miss Lil Hawthorne, a prime favourite in Liverpool, returns with a budget of new songs, which she renders in her own attractive style. She met with a good reception. The Five M.I.'s give a vocal sketch, Ten Minutes Before Lights Out, their harmonious singing being very pretty; the Outlaw Trio do surprising feats of strength and agility on the wire; the Rafayette performing dogs go through a clever performance; and others in the programme are Mr and Mrs Findon, with diverting sketch, A Desperate Remedy; the Haytors, comedy item, A Hot Time; the Barowsky Trio, with their gymnastic scena, In the Forest; Fred Zola, comedian; Howard and St. Clair, American comedians; Alf Holt, mimic; and the New York Nippers, with their speciality, Bed Time.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—At the top of the bill here this week is Miss Ida Rene, with a delightful drawing-room representation of "A Rake's Progress," and humorous songs. Yukio Tani, a clever Japanese wrestler, remains for another week, and his challenges have been unsuccessfully taken up by local men. Mr J. P. Dane makes a hit with his "Cake-walk Round the Workhouse Door;" Mr G. Grahame, jun., and Miss Zerlina Harrington submit a one-act drama, A Daughter of Pleasure; and others engaged are Clifton and Gibson, comedians; Bros. Landolf, miniature muscular marvels; Carabet's dog wonders; Creo Brothers, acrobatic comedy artistes; Marie Elsie, "the French flirt;" Steel and Laing, acrobatic singing and dancing; Great Scott, musical juggler; and Baker Belphor, baritone.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—The Two Macs are prominent on the programme here this week, and provide a really good turn as eccentric knockabout comedians and dancers; the Bros. Hayes are "funny little men" with their cross-talk and dancing; and the remainder of the artists who appear comprise Miss Connie Nicholl, comedienne; Harry Zetter, dancer; Willie Lambert, comedian; and the Sisters Dorrell, duettists and dancers.

New Parthenon.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin W. Smith.—For the first time in Liverpool we have here Johnson and Bert, American comedians and tumblers, who provide an excellent turn; Bonnetti, comedy juggler; Professor Hermann Stark, illusionist; Connie Nicholls, vocalist and burlesque actress; Arthur M'Nab, boy vocalist; Sisters Charnley, duettists and dancers; and Fred Dunston, comedian.

Paddington Palace, Limited.—General Manager, Mr J. Kiernan.—A neat and clever performance is being given here this week by the Ringlands with their motors and cycles; Mr Henry Carlton and his comedy team provoke much merriment with the sketch Obliging a Lady; Dale and D'Argon are a couple of expert acrobatic conjurors, and their act "Le Café Magique" is very funny; Mdlle. Lillian Doril performs some neat acts on the trapeze; and others are Miss Bessie Willow, burlesque actress and vocalist; Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers with smart patter; and John Karnell, vocalist.

Westminster.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery.—Vasco, who describes himself as "the mad musician" and plays over thirty instruments, is here this week, and gives a good show. Another acceptable item is provided by Mdlle. Alexandra and Mons. Bertil with their gymnastic aerial act, "Apré le bal," and the remainder of the programme is supported by Walter King, comedian and dancer, who has a welcome return; Halsey and Bowers, with their comedy act; Master Harry, boy juggler; and J. W. Cosgrove, comedian and dancer.

Park Palace.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—A good item in the programme presented here this week is Mr Howell Webb's company in the comedy The Ship on Fire, which has drawn large and appreciative audiences. Other good turns are provided by Harry Wilbury, actor-vocalist; Emily Huby, elocutionist; Ivy Graham, vocalist; Bella Tilbury, entertainer; Lewis Thomson, comique; Maud Hastings, soubrette; Edwin Turner, burlesque artiste; Dan Clifford, comedian; Kitty Marion, burlesque actress; and Henry Howard.

MARGATE.

Grand Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr F. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr C. F. Bawtree.—The Country Girl has been played here by Mr Geo. Dance's company. Mr Harry Buss has found special favour as Barry, and has spared no effort to keep things moving briskly. Miss Nellie Cozens has made an excellent Nan, has acted the part with a full appreciation of its possibilities, and has sung charmingly. Miss Ernestine Desborough, who appears as Princess Melaneh, secures cordial recognition; and Miss Kathryn Comber is a graceful and sympathetic Marjory Joy. Mr Francis Ludlow appears with success as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr H. C. Morton extracts great fun out of the rôle of Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr F. W. Patrick as Mr Raikes has two especially successful numbers. Mr Ernest Cresfan makes an incisive Lord Anchester, and Miss Rosie Begarnie contributes a very bright rendering of the part of Madame Sophie. The remaining parts are all well filled, and the chorus is entitled to praise.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr E. Macknight; Business-Manager, Mr Chas. E. Hardy.—Mr Norman V. Norman's company is playing Nell Gwyn and David Garrick here. The first-named was in the bill for Monday and Tuesday, and Mr Norman V. Norman enacted Charles II. with his accustomed success. Miss Beatrice Wilson as Nell Gwyn was earnest, buoyant, and vivacious; Mr Reginald Croft did well as the Earl of Rochester; Mr Robert J. Danson was good as Lord Delane; and Mr Robert Hilton was excellent as Master Ralph Curafter. Miss Lilian Nevill Davies, as Lady Castlemaine, did all that was required; Miss F. Glossop Harris played with care as the Duchess of Portsmouth; Miss Kathleen Rind made a successful Mistress Betty Arndale; and Miss M. E. Ellis was capable as Nell Gwyn's maid. On Wednesday evening David Garrick was given, with Mr Norman V. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson in the principal parts, and in which they were well supported by the members of the company. The comedy was preceded by the balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet, with Mr Robert Hilton as Romeo and Miss F. Glossop Harris as Juliet.

Hall by-the-Sea.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr Charles Evans.—The week's company includes Ned Graydon, in his musical speciality; Winnie Derson, comedienne; and Hector, the "wire prince." George Belrose and Maud De Velin, in their operatic répertoire, are successful. The Brothers Attilla give a clever exhibition of feats of strength, and Harry Anderson's songs take well. Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope is a decided attraction.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—Messrs Paumier and Howard's company opened here on Monday with Why Men Love Women. Mr Alfred Paumier gave an admirable impersonation of the hero; Miss Annie Saker supplied a clever and convincing portrayal of Violet Livingstone; and Miss Beatrice Sinclair was well suited as Marcel Zoluski. Mr S. Herbert Humber as Sergeant Staniloff, Mr W. S. Hardy as Tommy Herbert, Mr Edwin Lever as the Maharajah, Mr Arthur Radford as the Rev. Edward Grey, and Mr Chas. H. Williams as Chundra Singh filled their parts in excellent style. The humorous element was well sustained by Mr Harwood Roberts, who as Orlando Figgins was ably supported by Miss Marie Glynne as Matilda Figgins. The play was capitally staged

MIDDLESBROUGH.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Theatres, Limited; Managing-Directors, Messrs Geo. and Chas. Imeson.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's No. 1 company, in A Beautiful Fiend, is here, and is meeting with a hearty welcome. Miss Sidney Crowe, in the title-rôle, gives a fine study of the part; Ivan Paulovitch is in the capable hands of Mr Montague Beaudyn; and Mr A. F. Dudley's Sergius Strogoff is a faithful portrayal of the character. Mr Charles Kean is admirable as Christopher Crackles; Captain Hardy is well impersonated by Mr John Keane; Miss Irene Munroe as Nadine Karateff displays great emotional power. Miss Annie Clunn, Mr Vicars Rees, Mr B. Ridoon, Mr J. Sidney, Mr R. Elsie, and Mr Elliott impersonate other characters very ably.

Grand Opera House, Limited.—Licensee and General Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—At the Grand this week Mr E. Oswald Brooke's No. 1 company in The New Housemaid occupies the boards. Mr Ralph Roberts as the Hon. Bertie Rashleigh is a complete success, and he is responsible for a good deal of merriment; Mr Somers Bellamy does well in the part of Peter Pinkerton, J.P.; the Rev. Stephen Stingles is excellently portrayed by Mr Charles Calvert; "Arthur" is done justice to by Mr Arnold Austin; whilst as a detective Mr Pan E. Draco is deserving of praise. Miss Ella Edgar as a housemaid is capital.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—Seeley and West, instrumentalists, are the principal turn here. Miss Tiny Arnold sings well and dances prettily; Morris and Morris create much merriment in their sketch Fun on a Broom Handle; Davis and Davis are smart dancers and speciality artistes; Joe O'Gorman makes a great hit, keeping the audience in continuous laughter; Frank Maura, the Mexican wonder, is a favourite; Miss Jessica Grace contributes songs; and Miss Edie Rivers, comedienne, is good. Some capital films are shown on the Bioscope.

Oxford.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr William Ainsworth.—Fred Ginnett and company, in a sketch, Rejected Remounts, is here, and is very amusing, the troupe of cleverly-trained horses winning general admiration; Ryder Sloane contributes several songs effectively; Jack and Evelyn, comedy duettists, are an acceptable turn; Miss Annie Reid, comedienne and dancer, makes a favourable impression; James Brady, comedian, sings capital songs; Dan Filmer, comedian, is laughable; the De Laies, "Gymnastics on the Lawn," receive well-earned applause; and the "Bio" is also an attraction.

NELSON

New Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs T. Greenwood Croft; Acting-Manager, Mr George E. Mudd.—This place was reopened on Monday after a seven weeks' vacation. Many improvements have been effected in the meantime, most important being the installation of electric light. Consequently a great crowd assembled to see Mr Douglas Bruce's company in A Girl's Cross Roads, in which Mr W. E. Griffiths makes a typical old farmer in the character of John Meadows, while Nellie Meadows, who meets her death at her own father's hands, finds a powerful exponent in Miss Kate Walfred. Mr George Galsford in the character of Jack Livingstone, the man who married the wrong girl, makes a fine hero. Mr W. Fraser Brunner scores in the rôle of Cuthbert Lumley, the villain. Mr E. Eardley Howard as Dr. Weston and Miss Ethel Bracewell as Constance Cornell are admirable. Miss Lily Hammersley appears in the exacting rôle of Barbara Wade, bringing out vividly all the various phases in a drunken woman's miserable career.

NEW BRIGHTON.

Tower Theatre.—Manager, Mr Albert Bulmer.—Alma Obrey, character comedienne, stars here this week and proves a popular turn. The other items include Arthur Weber, basso; J. H. Kisby, eccentric comedian; The Call Boy; Roma Piccaninies with their latest success My Palm Leaf Maid; Mollie Doon, dainty comedienne and coon songstress; Merton and Ryder, vocal speciality artistes and dancers, and Lee and Kingston, in their comedy act The Soldiers.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

Tyne Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr Chas. Frohman presents Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company in Little Mary, described as an "uncomfortable" play, but perhaps a "personal" play would be more to the point, and audiences have followed with amused interest the plot development of Mr Barrie's latest novelty. The personality of the Earl of Carlton is indicated by Mr A. Holmes Gore with his customary ability. A clever jeune premier in Mr Arthur Kightley supplies some spirited and agreeable acting as Lord Rolfe. Mr A. W. Baskcomb doubles the parts of Terence Reilly and Earl of Plumleigh, and whether as the aged chemist or the stolid schoolboy he gives equally truthful impersonations. A finished piece of acting is given by Mr George Mudie as Sir Jennings Pyke. Miss Christine Silver is signally successful as Moira Loney, acting with a girlish impulsiveness in the prologue which is as acceptable as her charmingly staid and reserved demeanour in the later scenes. The Countess of Plumleigh has a good exponent in Miss Elspeth Dudgeon, and Miss Evelyn Neilida as Lady Milley and Miss Beatrice Kelston as Eleanor Gray are also seen to advantage. The Bugle Call precedes.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham.—A worthy example of Mr Henry Arthur Jones's skill as a comedy author is forthcoming this week in Joseph Entangled, which is performed by an excellent company under the direction of Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr M. V. Leveaux. Mr H. B. Warner is quite successful in giving effective expression to the emotions which stir Sir Joseph Lacy in the perplexing predicament in which he finds himself involved, and an easy, natural manner adds to the enjoyment of his performance. As the suspected wife, Lady Verona Mayne, Miss Mona K. Oram acts with distinction and considerable charm, and is not lacking in imparting strong feeling to the rôle when necessary. The position of the husband, Hardolph Mayne, is not an enviable one, and the doubts and fears of the character are ably presented by Mr Stanley W. Ashworth. The blundering Harry Tavender is depicted with a degree of cleverness by Mr Horace Lane, and Mrs Harry Tavender has a pleasing exponent in Miss Shelley Calton. A performance of much merit is to be noted in favour of Mr Lawrence Grant as Jermyn Pyecroft, and good impersonations are those of Mr Arthur Bell as Gerald Fanmere and Mr Cecil Brooking as Professor Tofield. Miss Rosamund Bury does well as Lady Fanmere, and the inquisitive servants are safely entrusted to Mr Everard Digby and Miss Claire Cavendish. The curtain-raiser is Papa's Wife.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—A drama which has previously been seen here in No Man's Land is again being presented by Miss Ida Millais and company. A realistic effect is secured in the scene depicting a downpour of rain in the tropics, and a further sensation is the rescue from drowning incident in the last act. The leading rôles of hero and heroine are capitally acted by Mr Henry Herne and Miss Ida Millais respectively, and they are well supported by a capable company.

New Empire Palace.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—The act presented by Staley's novelty and transformation company is a marvellous illustration of what can be done in the way of quick change. Lilian Lea compels admiration by her artistic vocalism, and she gives different songs each evening. The skilled acrobatic work of the Pantzer Brothers is loudly applauded; and high kickers extraordinary are the Sisters Caselli. Carrie Laurie's Juveniles afford pleasure by their songs, dances, and comedy business. Paul Conchas' dexterous manipulation of heavy shot and shell is again a feature; and the Brother Edgar score readily with funny patter. Two Love Birds is a sketch presented in acceptable style by Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford; and the company is further strengthened by the performances of James Grant, eccentric comedian; Gus Garrick, character comedian; Harry Hayton, comedian; and Clown Ferreros.

Pavilion Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—Mons. Segommer remains for another week, and his sketch, Half an-hour in a Continental Health Resort, serves to display his cleverness as a ventriloquist and quick-change artist, while his exposé of certain conjuring tricks is much enjoyed. Vansart, the man with the grip of iron, demonstrates that he is the possessor of remarkable finger strength, and Nelson's Newsboys, in songs and smart dancing are well received. Brothers Pim on the horizontal bar give an excellent and amusing display, and the speciality acrobatic tricks performed by Andreason Brothers are decidedly clever. Dan Thomas is meeting with well-deserved success in his songs embellished with funny patter. Mae Turc as a comedy juggler, and Ward Brothers, eccentrics, are favourably received, and animated pictures are exhibited at each performance.

Olympia.—Lessees, Messrs Richard Thornton and Sidney Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—In furtherance of their policy of providing appetising dramatic fare the management have this week procured a visit from Messrs E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company in The Traitor, a drama in which certain phases of life in Russia are presented with due regard to their effectiveness for stage purposes.

Grand Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Limited; Managing Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—The bill here is headed by the Royal Tokio Troupe of Japs, whose wonderful performance arouses enthusiasm. Fatmah Diard, an American prima donna with a particularly refined voice, has met with great success. One of the cleverest of sketches is that of Muir and Bartlett in A Clerical Complication, which has aroused uproarous mirth. Carr and Rose are successful in a vocal sketch; Judge's performing cockatoos give their usual clever performance; whilst Troba, a juggler, arouses considerable excitement with his juggling with the cannon balls. Other turns are those of J. H. Cavanagh (comedian), De Bessell (a clay modeller), Baroux and Bion (acrobats), and Annie Laurie (comedienne).

NEWPORT.

Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—Mr A. B. Cross's company has presented The Manxman to appreciative houses here this week. Mr Cross's impersonation of Pete is a strong and telling piece of acting. Miss Minnie Watersford makes an ideal Kate Cregeen. Philip Christian is well played by Mr Richard Vane, Mr Edward M'Lean's Ross Christian is a good example of natural acting, and Mr Sidney Rennef's Caesar Cregeen is an artistic portrayal. Miss Rosie Kearns makes a sympathetic Nancy. The play is well staged, and the company is heartily applauded.

Empire.—Moss's Empires, Limited; Managing Director, Mr O. Stoll.—Kelly and Gillette provide a humorous turn here. The Herald Comedy Four, in their sketch The Indians and the Sailor, cause great amusement. Cliff Ryland, a quaint comedian, is warmly received, and Rousby's "In Paris" is picturesque and interesting. J. C. Jimson and his talking pig give a clever performance. Carlotta Levey, a charming comedienne, has a fine stage presence, and Helen Charles's singing is deservedly applauded. Conway and Leland, "merry monopedes," do a smart turn. James Kurry is extremely funny, and the Tally Ho Trio earn well-merited recognition.

NEWQUAY.

Victoria Hall.—On Tuesday Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company appeared here in Cousin Kate. Miss Edith Walker won the admiration of the hour by her impersonation of the title-part, and Mr Cecil W. Standing as Heath Desmond gave a careful study of that character. As the Rev. James Bartlett, a painstaking performance was given by Mr Herbert Young, and Bobby Spencer was cleverly embodied by Master Lionel Edwards. As Mrs Spencer Miss Amy Coleman was characteristic, and Miss Howard Medley portrayed Amy Spencer with success. Miss Enid Wildes' efforts as Jane were appreciated.

Mr Charles Saunders, the celebrated Cornish tenor, with the aid of other talented artistes, gave a concert here on Monday, amongst the first items of which special mention should be made of Miss Mary Thynne's pleasing execution of the violin solo "Canzonetta," after which Mr Charles Saunders, whose appearance elicited prolonged applause, sang "The Message" (Blumenthal) in excellent voice, and, reappearing with Miss Cora Robson, contralto, these two accomplished vocalists beautifully rendered "The Sailor Sighs" duet. Madame Mary Poole, soprano, was heard to advantage in Gounod's "Waltz Song." By his skilful treatment of "To Arms!" "Sound an Alarm," Mr Saunders brought down the house, and gave a masterly interpretation of "The Death of Nelson."

NORTHAMPTON.

Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews.—Once again The Swiss Express is running here with successful results. New songs, duets, and dances are introduced, and bring the merry piece up to date. Of course, the Brothers Charles and Frederick Renad are the mainsprings of the fun, but they have gathered round them first-class artists, and the Express now goes as well as ever it did since it first started on its voyage. Mr Wilfred Bailey is the Dr. Gondimar Gull, Mr George Martin is the lover, Bob Rollingstone, Mr Alec Wylie is Dudley Green, Mr George Power is Rhino, Mr H. Alexander is Mr Septimus Squeeze, and Messrs Harwood Cooper, Cecil Barrett, Fred Stratcham, Joe Clark, J. Oliver Russell, Miss Nellie Fern, Miss May Cornish, Miss Rose Chandler, Miss Hetty Coventry, and Miss Dolly Payne also contribute largely to the fun. Miss Marie Millward as the Bride is charming, and renders a coon song very sweetly, assisted by the Four Brighton Girls, vocalists, dancers, &c.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting Manager, Mr Robert Barton.—Mr Johnny Holland and company are here in a farcical absurdity, entitled My Friend Boots, in which Miss Rita Warne, Mr E. W. Edmonds, and Mr Holland are highly successful. The Evalos are very good in a mélange of comic juggling and gymnastics; the Two Marks also provide a clever show; Mr E. is a provider of up-to-date jokes, and his quaint description of the various pictures shown are received with much laughter; the musical show of the Bendons meets with a good reception; Wallau, the boy juggler, is a marvel for his age; Miss Florrie Claribell is a charming vocalist and top-boot dancer; and Tell and Tell are comical in their original table act.

NORTH SHIELDS.

Borough Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—Mr Fred Bulmer's company is presenting Sentenced for Life with great success here this week. Captain Paul Derrick is in the able hands of Mr Ernest Vaughan, who gives a capital impersonation. Mr Harry Lloyd does well as Roy Stillwell, and Mr Charles Whitlock is clever as Rev. Martin Orris. Mr Richard Bosco scores as Sir Wallace Stillwell, and Mr Hallwright Clifford makes the most of Harry Beckworth. Mr E. D. Allen makes quite a hit as Percy M'Gentle, Mr Arthur Marchant as Bill Sharkey and Mr Edward Finlay as Toby the Tadpole cause hearty laughter. Adelaide Grey finds an able exponent in Miss Georgina V. France. Miss Mary

Dalby acquits herself satisfactorily as Lady Stillwell, and Miss Madge Douglas's Kate Rennel is well played.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr William Mould.—Mr Gus Barra, the comic musical motorist, is the star here this week, and has made a great hit. Mr Harry Allan and Miss Rose Hart, speciality artistes, are clever, and Messrs Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists, come in for a hearty reception. Miss Nell Colverd, serio; Prince Casson, wire walker; Messrs Hassan and Mahomed, Arabian tumblers, &c.; and the Bio-Photoscope, all meet with favour.

NORWICH.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—Mr William Greet's No. 1 company, in The Sign of the Cross, is appearing here this week to appreciative audiences. Mr F. B. Woulfe acts with much force as Marcus Superbus. Mr A. Bernhardt Turner as Nero is most successful. Mr Chas. Aldred as Tigellinus, Mr J. Wetherall as Lucinius, Mr Frank Wood as Glabrio, and Mr Rob Hare as Favius are exceedingly good in their respective parts. Miss Ivy Millias as Stephanus acts well. Miss Alma Bolton as Berenice and Miss Cissie Carlton as Dacia deserve much praise. Miss Ethel Land ably fills the part of Poppæa, whilst Miss Evelyn D'Alroy charmingly performs the rôle of Mercia. The dresses and staging were excellent, and the musical numbers pleasingly rendered.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt.—Mr Woodward's sea-lions and seals are here this week, and their wonderful performance is watched with keen interest. George Brooks, comedian, is received with much favour. Bob Hanlon's troupe, including "Little Eddy," the boy wonder, are clever acrobats. W. H Downs, coloured Australian ballad vocalist, sings with much taste and feeling. Sadie Simpson, comedienne and coon artiste, is a pleasing turn. James Ferguson, comedian, is very successful. The Three Sisters Silcott, vocalists and dancers, deserve praise for their coon dancing, whilst the Five Musical Zerbinis meet with much approbation. Walter Henriott and Victor Sauvien create amusement with their burlesque conjuring.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Professor Richardson is here, and the artists, Tom Willett, comedian; Professor Cole, ventriloquist; Miss Gertrude Gray, vocalist; and Nomus, musical expert, are pleasing variety entertainers.

NOTTINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—There is this week a welcome return of Are You a Mason? played by Mr George Edwardes and Charles Frohman's company. Mr Anthony Fawcett as George Fisher is very good, and Mr Stephen Wentworth as Frank Perry is quite at home in his part. Mr Harry Ashford and Miss Harriett Trench make an excellent pair as Mr and Mrs Bloodgood, and Mr Tom Mowbray could not easily be surpassed in the rôle of John Halton. As the broken actor Hamilton Travers Mr Frank Ridley finds ample scope for his abilities, and Mr Valentine O'Connor makes a pleasing Ernest Morrison. Miss Violet Graham is admirably suited in the part of Eva. Miss Lily Beagle and Miss Isla Glynn look and act the parts of Annie and Lulu excellently, and Miss Lucy Edwin is admirable as Lottie. The play is preceded by the little comedietta entitled Hushed Up.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Chas P. Cooke.—The company specially organised by Messrs F. A. Scudamore and Arthur Richmond for the production of The Beautiful Avenger occupies the stage here this week. Miss Daisy Scudamore and Mr Algernon Syms in the respective parts of Vashti Volta and Cyrus Telford are excellently suited; Mr Lionel Gillet finds a part congenial to his powers in Zadok Foxbane, the money-lender; and Mr William Diamond scores as the latter's son. Miss Mabel Scudamore as Edna Volta is seen to great advantage, and Miss Nannie Meade is good as Arabella. Mr Fred Rolls makes an admirable detective, and all the other parts are in competent hands.

KING'S THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr George H. Beagle.—An admirable company, under the direction of Mr Edward Neville, is presenting here the successful drama The Anarchist Terror. Mr Neville himself sustains with great skill several parts, including that of "The Terror," and is to be complimented on a very clever performance. Mr J. Nelson-Turner is well received as Lieutenant Armstrong, and Mr George Harvey hits off the vagaries of the retired wealthy Yankee Silas Goldstraw in admirable fashion. Mr Will White as Mikey Doolan creates a good deal of mirth, and is well supported by Miss Loie Esmond as Kitty Malone. Miss Cecile Byrne makes an excellent gipsy girl, and Miss Annie Burnette deserves special mention for her excellent representation of the Italian Jewess.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins make a welcome return visit in their comical absurdity, Mashing the Missus. The Langdons give an excellent turn in the shape of songs with coloured pictures thrown on to a screen to illustrate their incidents. Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq evoke roars of laughter by their absurdities in the sketch, A Dark Night Before Us, and the Missouris are funny in their acrobatic turn, which aims to show the vagaries of the renowned Captain Kettle. Inventions, a sketch creation by the Americans, Booker and Narbis, is well received, as is also the comedy sketch, Our Suite, presented by the Smythsons. The Corty Brothers, besides being comical, are at the same time very clever on the bars, and the Imperial Quartet provide a number of songs and dances. Madame Emmy's pet fox terriers are well trained.

NUNEATON.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, LIMITED. — Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager Mr Walter J. R. Bryan.—Messrs Marston and Buckstone's company is here this week with The Silver Cross. The piece is very ably presented. Mr Syd Bazley as Tomkyns Quinton is very popular, and Miss Poppy Danby as Sally Beedles does exceedingly well, her clever dancing being applauded. Miss Maud Western is a pleasing Ida Adams, and Mr Frederick A. Marston is particularly good as Ben Adams. Mr Cliff Allen is a capable Arthur Merton, and Mr H. Gleny is a typical Philip Frewin. Mrs Ada Davidge Hender is fitted in every way for the character of Laura Beechcroft, and all the other parts are in good hands.

OLDHAM.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—The Silver King is here this week, ably presented by a good company. The title part is cleverly interpreted by Mr Lauderdale Maitland, who takes every opportunity the part affords; Mr Edward George, as Jaikes, is successful; Miss Lilian Bethel is very satisfactory as Nellie Denver; and the Spider of Mr W. V. Garrard is convincing. Mr Arthur Wright is excellent as Eliah Coombe, and the Henry Corket of Mr Philip Renouf is clever.

OXFORD.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr J. Leicester Jackson's company is here with Dishonoured. Mr P. Ballard gives a most effective rendering of Philip Cunningham; Mr Frank Stuart is good as Sir Wm. Cunningham, and Mr Wm. Bradford is forcible as Captain Peyntland. Mr Sidney Palfrey is a favourite as Captain Cholmondley, and Messrs A. W. Thompson as Stokes and Jack Bigwood as Jem Stokes cause a great amount of fun, and Mr Cecil Morand acts well as Mike Farthing. Miss Winifred Stuart is graceful and sympathetic as Leslie Maynard; Miss Violet Crauford is a charming Sybil, and Miss Belle Russell is natural as Lady Cunningham. Miss Marion Mayne is bright as Ann Maria, while Mrs Thompson as Mrs Stubbs and Miss Allen as Katie Stubbs are both highly successful. The play is well mounted and well received throughout.

PAISLEY.

PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile.—This house has reopened with Mr Frank Stephens's company in Because I Love You. Chief characters in the drama are finely interpreted, notably Nemo by Mr Cowell Clarke, Captain Stirling by Mr Richard A. Greene, Norina Chandos by Miss Madge North, and Lady Ursula Milfoil by Miss Florence Trevoir. The humorous element is excellently sustained by Miss Minnie Leslie as Cleopatra Cotton and Mr Herbert Boyle as Nebuchadnezzar Moke. Mr Walter Raynham furnishes a capable embodiment of Christopher Chandos; Mr Alfred Sefton sustains with success the part of Prof. Predate; that of Mrs Puplett has a good exponent in Miss Agnes Stinton, and Mr Leonard Maitland is meritorious as Eddie Puplett.

PENZANCE.

ST. JOHN'S HALL.—Mr Chas. Macdona introduced Miss Emma Hutchison's Cousin Kate company here this week. The comedy was thoroughly enjoyed, the acting, mounting, and detail being notably good. Miss Edith Walker as Cousin Kate, by her natural and highly effective assumption of the title-part, won unstinted approval. The remainder of the cast was quite capable, Mr Herbert H. Young as the Rev. James Bartlett, Mr Cecil W. Standing as Heath Desmond, and Miss Amy Coleman as Mrs Spencer, with Miss Howard Medley as Amy Spencer, all being well suited.

PERTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Mr S F. Cody is here this week with a powerful American company, including cowboys and specially trained ponies, in the drama The Klondyke Nugget. Mr Edward Leroy as Sam Deats, the heavy villain, acts his onerous part with force, whilst Mr Bob Thop as Bill Sykes, Deats' pal, ably assists Sam in his villainy. Mr Vivian Cody as Joe Smith, the hero, has a good reception throughout, as has also Mr Leon Cody, who assumes the rôle of Waco, an Indian chief, and Joe's friend. Messrs Doc Horstall and George West are seen to advantage as Tom Lee, an old trapper and guide, and his son, Ted Lee, respectively. Mr Tom Gillmore creates considerable amusement as Dr. Paddy O'Donohue. Messrs Arthur Moreton as Judge Matherson, George Leith as Jim Wilson, Albert Hendly as Steve Grey, Hal Du Cain as the Court Usher, Russell Southgate as Henri Gascon, A. E. Duke as Raven, an Indian chief, Graham Hart as Captain Barnes, and Arthur Black all render valuable assistance towards success. Miss Florrie Gilmore as Nellie, the bar girl, is quite entertaining, whilst Miss Mumford scores as Rosie Lee, Joe Smith's sweetheart. The ponies are marvellously well trained, and the scenery is worthy of note.

PORTH.

POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE. — Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—This week Miss Frances Delaval's powerful company is here in The Biggest Scamp on Earth. Mr Percy Carne Waram is an able exponent of the part of Derrick Knight; Mr Douglas Hutchins gives a capital rendering of the rôle of Sir Aubrey Knight; Miss Dorothy Mahomed is well cast as Irene May; Miss Doris Denman is decidedly good as Bobby; Mr G. G. Eddes is well suited as Napoleon Hawk; Miss Pattie Groves causes much amusement as Mother Hawk; and Miss Frances Delaval is seen to advantage as Naomi Belvedere.

PRESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt—On Monday Trooper Hunt's Widow was presented here by Mr Frank Nelson's company. Mr Howard Cridland gave a most amusing impersonation; Mr Roy Milton was well suited in the part of Mr Richard Hunt; Mr Edward Kent commendably delineated Harry Frazer; and Newman had a capable representative in Mr Geo. M'Closkie. Gordon Ryder and Nathaniel Sapp in the hands of Mr Henry Osman and Mr Cecil Fowler were very amusing; Miss Amy Edmonds was a pleasing exponent of the rôle of Frances Gresham; Miss Susie Oak merited praise for her embodiment of Bessie Wood; and as Jane Watson Miss Ella Kitson contributed most acceptably to the fun.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Mr James Stillwell and company are here with the melodramatic Queen of the Night. The play abounds with startling incidents, and the interest of the audience is sustained during the four acts. Mr Jas. Stillwell has a congenial part as Philip Stoneleigh. Miss V. St. Lawrence as Paulina works hard and succeeds admirably in the difficult title-rôle. Messrs A. E. Campbell, F. Thorpe Tracey, E. Morgan, R. Webb, Paul E. Teulon, Chas. Graham, Harry Clifford, and Richard Newbury, with Miss K. Barnett, Miss N. Cameron, Lizzie Lennon, Jenny Risley, and Evelyn Chester, complete a lengthy cast.

ALDERSHOT THEATRE STAFF OUTING

Perhaps there is no one who believes more thoroughly than does Mr G. E. Williams, the Aldershot manager of Mr Clarence Sounes's Theatre Royal, in the truth of the old saying that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. He goes a step farther, however, and sees that once a year, at all events, those who serve him and through him his chief, Mr Clarence Sounes, shall enjoy a little of the sweets of life. This comes once a year in the form of a most enjoyable river trip, and in this respect the management and staff are extremely well served, having invariably placed at their disposal a beautiful steam launch by one of Aldershot's most popular residents, Mr T. F. Wells. With the full concurrence of Mr Sounes, Mr Williams made adequate and most successful arrangements for the treat to come off on Sunday last and the accompanying photograph will speak for itself of the happy character of the gathering. Of a verity a happier party did not ride on the bosom of Father Thames on Sunday than the staff of the Aldershot Theatre. For once the ladies were left at home, but their turn has to come another day. Sunday was husbands' day out, and they took full advantage of their opportunity—of course, in a legitimate degree. The party numbered over forty, and in the most delightful summer morning weather left Aldershot town station in special carriages for Reading in full charge of the highly popular resident manager, Mr G. E. Williams. The company included Mr Wiley and his orchestra, the whole of the indoor and outdoor staff of Aldershot's popular playhouse, and it need scarcely be said that the short spell of railway journey from Aldershot to Reading was happily improved upon. At Reading the company was joined by Mr Clarence Sounes and by Mr Jack Gladwin, the resident manager of the Woolwich playhouse, and a right loyal welcome they received. Mr Wells lost no time in conducting the party to the boat-house, and in a very short space of time The Countess had received her guests, steam was up, and then began what proved one of the most delightful river trips so far enjoyed. There was plenty of river traffic, and the scene with the scores and scores of houseboats, together with the charming scenery on either side, made the hour a happy one indeed. It need be scarcely said that a piano and pianist were on board, so that from a musical point of view nothing was left wanting to ensure success. When near the Henley Regatta Preserves, a brief disembarkation took place, and there, amidst charming al fresco surroundings, Mr Wells caused to be served a recherché luncheon. To this repast every possible justice was done and afforded nothing but complete satisfaction to all present.

Thoroughly well did Mr WILLIAMS at its conclusion voice the feelings and sentiments of all when he proposed the health of Mr Sounes, who, as he always does, had sent a most acceptable cheque towards the necessary expenses of the outing. They also appreciated the fact, Mr Williams declared, that Mr Sounes should have set aside one or two personal and important engagements so that he could spend the day with them. They were also delighted with the presence of Mr Gladwin. The health of both gentlemen was received with musical honours and a hearty "Hip, hip, hurrah!"

A neat little reply was forthcoming from both, and Mr SOUNES expressed himself as having been delighted to be their guest, and he was well pleased indeed that they should have been able to participate in so happy a day. It was good thus to meet and to lay aside for once the worries that did, and must, assail them in everyday life. He trusted that they would each and all of them be spared to participate in their annual gathering for many long years to come.

Before the party re-embarked Mr WILEY, the leader of the orchestra stepped forward and asked the acceptance by Mr Williams of a little souvenir from the members of the Aldershot theatre staff. They gave it to him as a small token of their thorough appreciation of all that he did for them The present was a solid silver card-case in high bas-relief, with the monogram, "G. E. W," and the inscription, "From the Aldershot Theatre Staff, 1904."

Mr WILLIAMS, who was absolutely taken by surprise, thanked Mr Wiley and the staff most sincerely for their token of appreciation of his efforts, and assured them that their interests would be ever his own. Nothing gave him so much delight in the conduct of the Aldershot work than the knowledge that they were all so unanimous in their efforts to promote the interests of the whole. These were sentiments also acceptable to all, and soon after the happy party had recommenced the journey up the Thames, but not before there had been some flat races and, what was more exciting still, a couple of wrestling matches. The honours of racing lay with Mr Jordan, and in wrestling with Mr Hughes, Jordan was also successful. In another wrestling match Goodrick was defeated by Bennett, who also placed Friday hors de combat in a wrestling match. By half-past three the party were well on their way to Marlow, the afternoon being delightful, and the Aldershot trippers might be said to have attracted n their elegant boat no small amount of attention, f not envy. The journey continued right up to Boulter's Lock, and just about this time tea was served on board and heartily enjoyed under the delightfully cool pink and white awning. Before Reading was reached on the homeward journey a vote of thanks to Mr Wells for his kindness was unanimously accorded, and it can be safely said that not one stepped ashore with anything other than feelings of regret that so happy a day had reached its terminus. Reading, as a matter of fact, was left at 8·40, and Aldershot town safely reached two hours later.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

The announcement was made in the advertising columns of Liverpool newspapers that A Man and His Wife, which during the week has been given at the Shakespeare Theatre in that city, made its first appearance "for the first time on any stage." That statement was not correct, because, according to "Who's Who," the well-known annual biographical dictionary, the work was primarily submitted to the public at the Empire Theatre, New York, in the year 1897. However, a capital company, under the control of Mr E. H. Kelly and Mr C. M. Hallard, brought it forward on Monday evening for the first time in the British Isles. The authoress is Miss Constance Fletcher, better known as "George Fleming," creator of The Canary and adapter of The Light that Failed.

The story opens with Roger Ainslie, who is concerned in mining operations in Australia, and his wife being about to depart from England for that country. A secret interview takes place between Mrs Ainslie and another mining speculator named Sir Noel Drage, who, as a close friend, had saved Ainslie, who trusts him implicitly, from financial difficulties. The result of the alliance is that the woman partially consents to the overtures of the false friend.

The third act brings all the characters in a strange manner to the mines in Australia. Here the husband announces his knowledge of Drage's liaison with his wife, but suddenly the dispute is interrupted by the report that men's lives are endangered by the flooding of one of the mines, and both go to the rescue. The false friend is drowned, and the husband and wife strangely reconciled. The scenic effects were good, and the artistes did their best to infuse life into a weak and somewhat unsatisfactory work. The first act consists of a deal of unnecessary talk, and time is wearily occupied with friends, whose existence has no bearing on the plot, bidding the voyagers farewell; the second act is taken up with confessions between Drage and Mrs Ainslie, matters which have already been made plain; but the third act, by its quick, powerful situations, helps in some degree to arouse interest in the conclusion of the story. The curtains at the close of the first two acts were not at all strong.

Miss Nina Boucicault was the Mrs Ainslie, and made the most of the part, displaying at times high dramatic power. To that reliable actor, Mr C. Aubrey Smith, every praise is due. He was certainly the mainstay of the comedy. Mr C. M. Hallard fulfilled the difficult rôle of the deceitful friend with effect, Mr E. H. Kelly distinguished himself as Lord Francis, and the remainder of the company, whose places in the plot were extremely subsidiary, acquitted themselves as far as they had opportunities for so doing. The audiences of the week were only fair, but this was due, no doubt, to the fine warm weather that prevailed. No doubt the play may prove acceptable when some portion of it, especially the first act, is reconstructed, and stronger situations created.

AT the Crown Theatre, Peckham, on the 5th inst., Back to the Stone Age, a musical play, in two acts, book by George Jervis, music by A. N. Yone, was produced for copyright purposes.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of Brown's Bronchial Troches. People troubled with a hacking cough, a slight cold, or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections. AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Humphrys.—The Cherry Girl has been here. Miss Elsie Molloy as the Queen sings and dances acceptably, and acts with much vivacity. Mr Frank Lincoln as the White Pierrot supplies lots of humour in every scene, and his various songs are heartily received. Mr W. H. Walker is duly dramatic as the Black Pierrot. Miss Katie May is a winsome Pansy. Snowball and Dimples, by Master Louis Victor and Miss Rosie Campbell, are cleverly played children's parts. The monkey Esau in the first act, and the horse in the second, are a couple of wonderful animal studies by Mr Albert Felino. Mr Charles Danvers and Mr Alfred Ibberson are a humorous pair of courtiers. Master Sidney Grata gets a lot of fun out of the recitation "King Bruce and the Spider." The Steinway Quartet contribute some excellent vocal quartets. The chorus and dancers ably sustain their parts, and the play is mounted with much picturesque effect.

ROYALTY THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr H. Macfarlane.—This week we have a return visit from Mr Eugene C. Stafford's company, in The Private Secretary, which does not seem to have lost any of its popularity, and still continues to draw good houses. Mr Donald Price Evans in the leading rôle of the Rev. Robert Spalding is inimitable, and gets a great reception. Miss Dora Gray, who makes a most graceful Edith, is well received, as also is Miss Mary E. Deverell as Eva Webster, and the two of them make a very lively and entertaining pair. Mr Fred Inwood as Douglas Cattermole and Mr Vivian Gilbert as Harry Marsland both make a good impression. Mr Raymond Chester and Mr W. Hargreaves as Mr Marsland and Mr Cattermole respectively are really good, and contribute much to the fun. The aspirations of Mr Sydney Gibson (Mr Wilfrid Compton) are very amusing, and as Mrs Stead, the landlady, Miss Cissie Wade leaves nothing to be desired. The spiritualistic attempts of Mrs Alfred Davis as Miss Ashford cause much amusement. Mr D. Benford as John and Mr John Macready as Knox, the writ server, complete a strong company. The piece is preceded nightly by the one-act comedy entitled Good for Nothing.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr Hugh Murdoch.—Mr Morton Powell's company is appearing here for six nights in Bigamy, this being the first visit of the play to Glasgow. The company is under the direction of the author, Mr Fred Moule, who also acts the part of Rufus Cherrybull in hearty, good-humoured style, finding a valuable ally in Mr Francis Searle, whose comic Frenchman is a good impersonation of its kind. Diane De Courcelle, the bigamist, a strong part, is played with telling effect by Miss Eugenie Magnus, while the contrasting character Sylvia Dresden has a sympathetic representative in Miss Elsie Capell, the Lilian Lambkiss of Miss Lydia Mannington being also a clever performance. Mr Charles Burdon gives a spirited impersonation of Frank Merrivale, and the parts of Lionel and Edgar Craven are strongly depicted by by Mr Wilfred N. Benson and Mr E. S. Earle respectively. Mr Colin Hazlewood enacts the part of Sir Charles Dresden with dignity, and Miss Edith Fleetwood is amusing as Esmeralda Grapes.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Mascard.—Man to Man is being presented here this week by Mr William Bourne's company. As the hero, George Gordon, Mr Charles Boult plays very effectively, and Miss Maude Buchanan ably undertakes the trying part of Ethel Maythorn. Mr J. Royland gives an admirable account of Richard Ellerton, the evil genius of the play. Mr Will Clement is extremely funny as Samuel Plumtree, and Mr E. J. Preston is also amusing as Bill Burkley. Miss Lydia Hart in the dual-rôle of Ned Doyle and Mary gives good impersonations. Mr Frank Liston is an impressive Rev. Philip Ormond, Miss Amy Vennimore acts cleverly as Gipsy Madge, and Miss Clarrie Ash is equally successful as Miss Lavinia Dove. The staging of the play is effective.

METROPOLE, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—A Royal Divorce is very popular at this theatre, and Mr W. W. Kelly is again managing on the present tour. Capital audiences give the interesting historical drama a splendid reception. Miss Amy M'Neill repeats her well-known and highly finished impersonation of Josephine. Mr Geo. W. Cockburn gives a telling rendering of the rôle of Napoleon the First, and with Miss M'Neill repeatedly shares in the honours of the evening, while Miss Lilla Wilde as Marie Louise is equally well favoured in the matter of applause for an effective study. Miss Beatrice Webb scores as Stephanie; Miss Doris Fitzgerald makes a deal of the small part of the young King; Talleyrand is a dignified Minister of State in Mr H. Dexter; and the Marquis De Beaumont, General Augereau, Dr. Corvisart, and Admiral Lord Keith all find fitting exponents of interesting parts in Messrs Frank Stone, Walter T. Clifford, C. Allison, and Charles West. As Grimaud, the innkeeper, a typical roysterer is found in Mr Arthur Wellesley, who seems to revel in the part.

LICEUM.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden.—Mr Waldon's stock company are this week presenting The Mystery of a Hansom Cab, in which Miss Grace Lester gives a vigorous rendering of the outcast Sal Rawlins Miss Margaret Frame as Madge Frettleby, Miss Bessie Douglas as Dora, and Miss Jessie Leslie as Kitty give pleasing delineations of their respective parts. Miss Jenny M'Intyre as a lodging-house landlady is humorous and natural, while Miss Marie Harcourt as Mother Guttersnipe gives a strong impersonation of a less attractive character. Mr Lewis Leslie as Brian Fitzgerald gives a fine manly rendering of the falsely accused young lover. Mr Jos. Barker and Mr Robb Harvey as rival detectives, with Mr R. B. Drysdale as Rolleston, give a spice of comedy to the play, as does also Mr J. Blair in his inimitable representation of the cabdriver. The villainy is well depicted by Mr Hugh Montgomery as Roger Moreland. Mr T. J. Ashmore as the heavy father is quiet and dignified, and the other parts are all in able hands.

ZOO-HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and Thos. Barrasford.—Miss Annie Purcell, deserting musical comedy for the nonce, is starring here, and her charming voice and dainty style as a comedienne make her a first favourite. John L. Shine and company appear in that clever playlet, Hogmanay, which takes well. The Frantz Troupe give a wonderful acrobatic turn, full of difficult feats. Louie Lynton and her Pierrots contribute a clever song and cake walk. Cyrus Dare's stories and impersonations of little children are very smart. The Penstones are seen in a varied turn, including conjuring and smoke painting. Alethea, a clever lady gymnast and contortionist; Fred Walker, eccentric comedian; the Three Dagmars, equilibrists; and the animated pictures complete a first-rate programme.

FIVOLI.—Proprietors, Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong, Limited; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred C. Ewing.—The programme provided here this week is well chosen and varied. Neil Kenyon, of pantomime fame, is the principal attraction, and made a good appearance. An interesting item was the sketch The Last Temptation, provided by Mr Percy Murray, who was well supported, among others, by Mr T. F Benson. The other artistes completing the entertainment include Lilian Morgan, comedienne; Guy Ryder, vocalist and bird mimic; Mdlle Klöet as an artist's model; Beattie Renee, comedienne; Brothers Allison, comedians and dancers; M. Gintaro, Japanese juggler; and Prince Bendon's Bioscope.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Theo Kremer, entitled "THE FATAL WEDDING."

Comparatively few theatrical ventures achieve more than a passing popularity, and are then consigned to cold oblivion, but the above drama which Mr Bert Coote is touring seems likely to be one of the few examples that can claim to go on for ever. At any rate, this play is a striking testimony to the fact that it is the fireside drama which makes the most successful bid for popular favour nowadays, for, though this is the third visit to this theatre, there was just that same amount of interest manifested in the play as characterised the previous ones, and the cordiality of its welcome was equally vociferous. Of the inherent qualities of Mr Kremer's work it is superfluous at this period to make any further discriminating remarks, except to notice one or two signs of revision in the third and fifth acts that strengthen the whole appreciably. The great draw of the evening is undoubtedly the children's scene in the third act, the clever youngsters who perform in it showing in all cases signs of precocious skill and careful training. Mr Wilfred E. Payne in his old rôle of Howard Wilson played the part of the too easily duped husband excellently, showing much artistic restraint and discrimination in his handling of the difficulties of the rôle, and his performance was received with great favour. Mr Leyton Cancellor as Robert Curtis acted with great force, particularly in the first act, and soon gained the usual polite attentions of the "gods" for his reward. Mr Charles H. Kerry as Toto, his original rôle, once again presented a thoroughly amusing performance as the Butler, and caused much laughter. Mr Fred Dobell as the German janitor proved an excellent foil to the former, and is to be congratulated on a sound portrayal of the character. Mr Henry Welbeck as the Policeman has a short part, but in his experienced hands everything possible is made out of it. Mr Arthur Law Raynor lends due dignity to his reading as the Rev. Dr. Lanceford. As for the ladies, Miss Marie Houseley now appears as the long-suffering Mrs Wilson, and in a part that lends itself completely to the sway of sympathetic emotion Miss Houseley makes a deep impression, and soon gains the entire commiseration of the audience. Miss Beatrice De Burgh as Cora Williams, a part in distinct contrast to the former, does not spare herself in portraying the entire harshness of the character, and in an effective performance calls down the full measure of indignation upon her head from the incensed occupants of the popular portions of the house. The performance which undoubtedly commends itself most to the favour of the audience is that of Miss Ida Valli as the Little Mother. This young lady, who has been here with each visit of the company, still exhibits that singular precocity which makes her performance so attractive, and we have again to compliment her on the success she achieved. Miss Harriet Clifton as the Irish cook was in all ways excellent, the character study meriting warm commendation. In the children's scene, in act three, Miss Addie De Wing danced with neatness, and Miss M. Barker and Little Norah sang with great success the interlude, concluding with an excellently danced cake-walk by Miss Ida Valli and the whole crowd of children. Every item was warmly encored, particularly the last one, which was repeated several times. The dresses and mounting of the play are again as complete as before, the scenery being especially effective, and a special word is due to Mr W. Irvin for his direction of the incidental music, and to Mr Raynor for his smart stage-management. A capital house was present on Monday, and the drama received a particularly hearty reception.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Play, in Four Acts, entitled "EAST LYNNE."

That the popularity of the dramatised version of Mrs Henry Wood's novel "East Lynne" has not waned is evinced by the enthusiastic reception the production is gaining at the Standard this week. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Miss Marion Denvil for her admirable impersonation of Lady Isabel. She displays great emotional power, and at the death-bed of little Willie she acts with great intensity and feeling, and thoroughly deserves the rounds of applause which from time to time reward her efforts. A sincere and effective portrayal of Archibald Carlyle is supplied by Mr Ashley Page. His reading of the rôle is natural and convincing, and he acts throughout in an artistic and finished manner. The villainy of Francis Levison is clearly painted by Mr Felix Pitt, who wins the appreciation of the audience in the form of complimentary hisses. The part of Justice Hare is capitally sustained by Mr Ernest Munro, whilst Richard Hare receives suitable and careful handling at the hands of Mr Phil Harper. Mr Charles Langley is a satisfactory Earl Mountsevern, and Mr David Barone supplies a creditable delineation of Lawyer Dill. Mr Andrew Emm is a highly amusing John Wopps, and in the guise of a policeman performs his duties extremely well. Miss Cornelia Carlyle is fittingly played by Miss K. Pitt Bright, Miss Marie Jones is good as Joyce, and Miss W. Webster and Miss E. Wills are well placed in the parts of Wilson and Susanne respectively. Miss Lily Rosenburg scores as the child Willie, whilst Miss Rosemary Rees contributes a charming and most acceptable impersonation of Barbara Hare.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Frederick A Stanley and A. F. Henderson, entitled "A SAILOR'S SWEETHEART."

Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company is fulfilling an engagement here this week with A Sailor's Sweetheart, and is doing good business. As the title implies there is a breezy air pervading the piece, which has a charming story full of exciting incidents and tender romance. The hero, Lieutenant Charles Clive, R.N., is admirably played by Mr Alfred Goddard. By his fine presence, manly bearing, and repressed, yet effective, display of emotional acting, Mr Goddard makes a remarkable success. Mr Robert Faulkner plays incisively and with excellent restraint as the adventurer Philip Pemberton, and Mr C Douglas Carlisle gives a good impersonation of the scheming solicitor, Stephen Lucas. Mr Charles Stafford makes a dignified Admiral Sefton, and Mr William Stoneham deserves commendation for his impressive presentment of Captain Mayland. Mr Edwin Mullins gives a capital embodiment of the jolly seaman, Tim Kelly, whilst Mr A. C. Blunt's picture of John James, otherwise Mr Pinkson, is full of genuine and amusing comedy. Mr C. A. Johnstone is a good representative of the cleric of St. Faith's, the Rev. Robert Clive, and Mr Charles Trevelyan causes much fun by his portrayal of the bailiff, Moggins. As Prentos, King of Kassalis, Mr Dan Shields presents an admirable character sketch, being well supported by Mr Thomas Miller as Nicoya, Mr E. R. Wyvers as Ashwah, and Mr A. B. Cuncliffe as Sinfallah. Miss Adah Barton as Grace Mayland makes a charming Nursing Sister, and displays considerable power in her several difficult scenes. Mrs J. W. Braithwaite deserves high praise for her extremely entertaining interpretation of Mrs Pembury, the landlady of the Jolly Tars, and keeps the house in one continual roar of laughter while she is on the stage. Miss Evelyn Shaw is well suited as Phœbe Pembury, and acts with much vivacity. The other members of the company who add materially to the interest of the play by their capable acting are Mr William Shaw as Tom Duff, Mr H. Reed as Stokes, Mr J. Graham as Bodkins, Mr H. Martin as Sheriff's Officer, and Mr Gaffney as orderly. The scenic effects are good, notably the Rescue at Sea and the Bamboo Swamp, whilst a feature of the production is some excellent music by the company's naval band, which is much appreciated.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, by Arthur Shirley, entitled "THE GRIP OF IRON."

The dramas coming under the description of sensational which have taken a strong hold upon the playgoing public are very limited in number, but amongst them may certainly be included Mr Arthur Shirley's play, which, founded upon Adolphe Belot's famous Porte St. Martin drama, was originally produced at the Surrey Theatre under the title of The Stranglers of Paris in the autumn of 1887. Mr George Conquest, sen., then played the part of the cunning murderer Simmonet, and added to his reputation as an actor of strong character parts. When the piece was revived at the same theatre five years later the part was sustained by the present secretary of the Actors' Association, Mr Charles Cruikshanks. Since that date the drama has, with only brief intervals, been constantly "on the road," and it is quite an "old friend" in the estimation of the regular playgoer. Both in town and the provinces it continues to exercise all those qualities of fascination which from the very first were to be noted in this thrilling piece of stage work. In the leading character there is a remarkable combination of the grotesque and the horrible which never fails to make a deep impression when the part is in the hands of an actor who possesses all the physical as well as histrionic qualifications for the role. At the West London, where Messrs E. H. Knight and George Denham's company is in possession this week, the unravelling of the plot has been followed with as much interest as if the play were a new one, and the final defeat of vice has been received with shouts of approval. Certain it is, too, that the startling incidents have lost nothing of their original effect, and there is no reason to doubt that the same remark will be found just as applicable another ten years hence. In Mr Fred Powell is seen a powerful exponent of the all-important part of Simmonet. He is quite successful in several of the scenes in impressing the spectators with a sense of the terrible, and this particularly applies to the thrilling situation at the end of the first act, where Simmonet strangles Captain Guerin in a horribly realistic manner. Mr John Brittain gives due prominence to the part of Dodot, the detective; and Mr Harry Agar Lyons is well placed as the other "tec," whose name is De Coucou. Mr George Denham plays with earnestness and sincerity the part of the wrongly-convicted and badly-used Paul Blanchard, and the scheming and unscrupulous Lorentz de Ribas, cleverly represented by Mr Chas Grant, is naturally a very unpopular personage with the audience. Mr J. E. Stevenson deserves commendation for his able embodiment of Robert De Belfort. Miss Florence Nelson wins everybody's warmest sympathies by her thoroughly womanly portrayal of Sophie Blanchard; Miss Nellie Grant scores as Marie Guerin, and Miss Georgie De Lara makes good use of her opportunities as Cora Simmonet. Good work is also done by Miss Hilda Baynton as Babette and Miss Mabel Middleton as Mdlle. Delaney. Mr John Coghlan plays carefully as M. De Blaudin, of the Secret Police, and Mr Andrew scores as Loustalot, the Smiler. The scenery and staging are all that can be desired.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, by Frederick Melville, entitled "HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

Mr Frederick Melville's company is appearing for a second week at this handsome theatre, and large audiences nightly crowd the house. Enthusiastic applause greets the efforts of the principal performers, and the production of the drama is highly successful. Mr Horace Hunter continues to sustain the part of George Madison in a manly and vigorous fashion, and Mr Clarence Hague plays Charles Devereux in a polished and refined manner. Mr Gilbert Heron is good as the Rev. Mr Dean, and as Dr. Fenwick Mr W. Browning is quite efficient. The rôle of Joe Lampkin is humorously sustained by Mr Edgar L. Hocking, and the comicalities of Mr Harry Elliston are responsible for much laughter. Mr Elliston is ably assisted in his efforts by Miss Marie Kildare as Pattie Lovejoy. Miss Isla Garnet Vayne makes a charming and fascinating Lucy, and as Lady Lucretia Lancaster Miss Doris Brookes gives a well-studied performance as a deceitful wife. A clever piece of acting is Miss Emily Hughes's Lady Superior. All the minor characters are intelligently treated.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Aug. 8, "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

Mr Charles Harrington's original No. 1 great American combination is at the Coronet this week in Uncle Tom's Cabin. This "old favourite" is attracting excellent houses, and the plantation songs and dances have been vigorously encored. Mr J. Carr plays Uncle Tom with great earnestness and good taste, and his touching scenes with Little Minnie as Eva are much appreciated. The escape of George Harris (Mr Henry W. Hargreaves) and his wife, Eliza (Miss Hettie Johnson), from the rascally slave-drivers causes tremendous excitement, and as the villain, Legree, Mr John Henry Rogers is vigorously hissed. Miss Emma Stewart is a graceful Emmeline, and Mr Charles Harrington and Mr B. Lenton are commendable as Phineas Fletcher and Mr St Clair. Miss Sylvia Stella scores a success as Topsy, her singing and dancing being excellent. Minor rôles are well filled by Messrs John Gibson, J. H. Renney, J. Martin, and Misses Hero Hathaway and Mabel Bowman. Miss Zerlina Zerbini makes an attractive Cassy.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, by Joseph Arthur, entitled "THE STILL ALARM."

Messrs Glenville and Esmond's company is appearing here this week in that stirring drama The Still Alarm. Mr Matthew H. Glenville as Jack Manley gives a sound impersonation of the character; Miss Mary Lovett makes an exceedingly good Elinore Fordham, and wins full sympathy for the heroine by clever acting; the unscrupulous John Bird is capitally embodied by Mr Paul Lovett, who thoroughly understands the requirements of the part, and plays it well; Mr Fred Osmond as Doc Wilber is most amusing manner, and causes great diversion; Willie Manley has a good exponent in Mr Tom Beasley; and Mr Arthur Downes does well as Jenkins. A bright and attractive Carrie Wilber is Miss Hettie Zillwood, who scores in her songs; Mr Dan Mining makes an excellent impression as Joe Jones; and Master Walter Turner is a smart messenger boy. Miss Mabel Veriton is very good as Mrs Manley. The other characters are well played, and the singing of the Lyric Comedy Four is greatly appreciated. The play is capitally put on, and the introduction of the trained horses in the Fire Station scene causes keen enthusiasm.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Play, by William Gillette and A. Conan Doyle, entitled "SHERLOCK HOLMES."

For the reopening of the King's after the summer vacation Mr J. B. Mulholland had been fortunate enough to obtain Mr Charles Frohman's strong attraction in the shape of the Lyceum Theatre success, Sherlock Holmes. That the play still continues its powerful hold on the audience was fully evidenced on Monday evening, when the exciting and thrilling situations with which the drama is so well provided won universal approbation. The company, too, deserves a large share of the praise. Mr H. A. Saintsbury, in the title-rôle (which he has performed over 650 times), is clever and convincing, and his make-up is capital. Dr. Watson finds a very agreeable impersonator in Mr Lawrence Leyton. The Detective John Forman is excellently represented by Mr Jas. F. Anson. Mr W. F. Stirling gives an exceedingly powerful rendering of Professor Moriarty, "the King of Crime." The James Larrabee of Mr Leslie Carter is a well emphasised performance. Sidney Prince is amusingly portrayed by Mr Legal Robinson, and Mr J. Poole Kirkwood is a capable Bassick. Jim Craigin, Thomas Leary, and M'Tague are ably played by Mr Douglas Munro, Mr E. H. Fairburn, and Mr Harold Boughton. As Billy, the precocious boy in buttons, Master Cedric Walter soon becomes a favourite. The rôle of Alice Faulkner is pleasingly undertaken by Miss Vera Longden, and Miss Maud Linden's rendering of Madge Larrabee is quite successful. Miss Rosalie Notrelle is smart as Terese. The scenery and electric lighting arrangements are commendable.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, entitled "EAST LYNNE."

On Monday Mr Henry Dundas presented here East Lynne, which has lost none of its old charm and interest. The company supporting Mr Dundas and Miss Lilian Dundas is a good all-round one. The members work well together and thoroughly merit the applause bestowed upon them. Miss Lilian Dundas's portrayal of Lady Isabel merits high eulogy; she acts throughout with skill and finish and wins the sympathies of the audience. Mr Dundas makes an exemplary Archibald Carlyle. Misses Marion Ryder and Daisy Cooke play the children intellegently. Mr Percy Rhodes renders valuable assistance as Captain Francis Levison. Mr Geo. H. Harker gives a finished rendering of Lord Mountsevern, his elocution being particularly good. Richard Hare has a capable exponent in Mr George Franklin. Two clever character sketches are furnished by Miss Esther Carthew as Miss Corney Carlyle and Mr Sidney Young as Lawyer Dill. Mr Reginald Weighill's Justice Hare is distinctly good. Mr Harry Kettle gives valuable aid as Obadiah Stiggins. Miss Elsie Batho Griffiths is a pleasing Barbara Hare, and Miss Rose Helene does well as Affy Halijohns. The part of Jim Parsons is in the capable hands of Mr O. F. Jameson. Minor rôles are efficiently filled by Misses Magdalene Douglas, Jessie Goodman, and Pauline Garside, and Mr James Jarrett. The piece is thoroughly well mounted.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Gordon Holmes, entitled "THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER."

This thrilling melodrama has been drawing good audiences at this comfortable and richly appointed suburban playhouse. It stirs the gallery and pit especially to a high pitch of excitement. The scenery, by Tom Bogue and W. F. Morton, is good, and the situations are highly dramatic. Mr Frank Bertram's company is a strong one, and the play has been rehearsed and produced by Mr Oswald Brand. The part of Michael Graham, the escaped convict, falls to Mr Frank Bertram, whose interpretation is masterly. Mr J. K. Watson is good as Frederick Neville, and Mr G. Moreton Williams as the villain, Jasper Thorn, proves himself an actor of ability. Mr T. W. Hurst acquits himself well as the hero, Harold Trevelyan. Mr Lawrence as Frank Harper, Superintendent of Blackmoor Gaol, and Mr Alfred Terriss in the humorous part of Patrick O'Laragan deserve praise. Miss Maud Osmond captures her audiences as the injured heroine, Edith, and Miss Julie Alexander as Betty Hyne, the saucy maidservant, and Miss Maud Osmond as Marion Thorn win warm favour. In subsidiary rôles necessary support is ably rendered by Messrs Fred Facer, H. B. Henderson, P. Grisdale, W. Hunt, and H. Lee.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, in Four Acts, by William P. Sheen and Fred S. Jennings, entitled "WHY WOMAN SINS."

Why Woman Sins, by William P. Sheen and Fred S. Jennings, has been presented at the Alexandra during the present week by Messrs George Harris and Fred Terriss. There is plenty of exciting incident distributed throughout the four acts in which the story is told; murder, both attempted and accomplished, being a prominent feature of the production. The leading character is a woman with a past named Ida Valette, who seems to revel in crime, in which she is usually assisted by Captain Herbert Carlton, one of the most thorough and uncompromising villains ever seen, even in melodrama. Miss Milored Cottell gives a very striking performance of the former part and proves herself an actress of undoubted power. Mr Fred Terriss works hard and convincingly as Carlton, and his rendering of the part is no half-hearted one. Mr Wallace Campbell is a vigorous, manly, and earnest Lieut. Harry Maxwell. The Jim Rainbird of Mr Lionel Ellis is as good as anything in the play, being a well-thought-out and consistent character study. Miss Hilda Merilese looks well as Nell Desmond, and the comedy scenes are contributed to by Messrs George Harris, Austin Linton, F. Mewburn, and Forbes Harrison; and Misses Winifred Preece and Marie West. Jack Smith is played by Miss Georgina Thomas, and Mr Cecil Churton appears as Captain Algie Steward.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Farcical Romance, in Three Acts, by Captain Robert Marshall, entitled "HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR."

Messrs Percy D Standing and Monckton Hoffe's company has been appearing at the Holloway Theatre this week in the above most amusing play, and has given a very effective representation it. The single scene is prettily set, and the performance of the piece by a well-selected cast is bright, lively, and amusing. Mr Percy D. Standing plays Sir Montague Martin with a combination of affability and dignity which is quite suitable to the character, and makes all his points with artistic moderation and skill. Mr Monckton Hoffe gives an entirely original reading of the rôle of the Right Hon. Henry Carlton, M. P., whom he represents as a dry and grimly cynical personage without much official pomp or presence. This view of the character may easily be defended; and Mr Hoffe works out his idea of it very successfully. Mr Frank Stanley makes a handsome and soldierly Carew; and Mr William Allison creates intense amusement by his droll impersonation of Baverstock. Mr Harold Sims is efficient as Captain Rivers; and Mr Edward Roberts does well as Major Kildare, Mr A. Davenport displaying humour in the little rôle of the Sentry. Miss Isabel Grey enacts Mrs Wentworth Bolingbroke with all the necessary comic dignity; and Miss Joan Ellis is agreeably fresh and natural as Ethel Carlton. Miss Nora Hoffe is the life and spirit of the performance as Stella De Gex, and acts throughout with sustained animation and piquant vivacity. His Excellency the Governor was preceded on Monday evening by the new one-act play, by Monckton Hoffe, entitled

"THE LADY WHO DWELT IN THE DARK."

Sir James Kelway ..... Mr Percy D. Standing
Dr. Frederick Pym, M.D. Mr Harold Sims
Gerald Sevening ..... Mr Monckton Hoffe
Minnie Sevening ..... Miss Joan Ellis

A great deal of earnest feeling and affectionate interest has been compressed by the author into the limits of his little piece. Minnie Sevening, a charming girl, is the wife of Gerald Sevening, who has married her in peculiar circumstances. She believes him to be a different person altogether, and as she is entirely blind he is able to maintain a deception which is the source of great happiness to them both. Sir James Kelway, a great London oculist, comes down to the Sevenings' place in Surrey to "diagnose" Minnie's case, and decides that he can restore her sight. But Gerald tells him all, and Sir James, convinced that Minnie is far happier in her blindness and her ignorance, refuses to consent to an operation, though he is urged to do so by the local doctor. The piece was carefully and well played. Mr Percy D. Standing endowed his embodiment of Sir James Kelway with commendable solidity and balance; Mr Harold Sims enacted Dr. Frederick Pym naturally and soundly; Mr Monckton Hoffe was expressive and deeply earnest as Gerald Sevening; and Miss Joan Ellis as Minnie Sevening acted in a sweet and simple style which won for the blind young wife the warm sympathy of the audience. The Lady who Dwelt in the Dark was cordially received, and formed a suitable prelude to Captain Marshall's clever comedy.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Play, by the late Wilson Barrett, entitled "THE NEVER-NEVER LAND"

All the members of Messrs John Hart and Harry Armitage's company who are playing in The Never-Never Land at the Dalston Theatre this week are to be congratulated on the amount of earnestness which they throw into their work, the result being a very faithful representation. Mr George M'Kenzie takes the part of Jack Landale, the man out in the New South Wales Settlement, who is never seen after the first act, but, dying, leaves his friend and very passable double, Jack Mowbray, to come over to England and impersonate a long-lost son to a doting mother, and, finally, having declared his real identity, to marry the sister of his late companion in the goldfields. Mr Edmund F. Kennedy represents Jack Mowbray, the fortunate friend, and the audience seemed pleased with his good fortune. Mr Stanley Harrison is Tom Hewley, his friend. Mr Edward Rochelle's portrayal of Nat Rudder is that of a hardy, but at the same time amusing scamp, and his companion in deceit, Sal Berker, is effectively portrayed by Miss Julie Kennard. Lady Walgrove, Jack Landale's mother, finds a sympathetic representative in Miss Marion Fawcett, and Miss Caroline Barrett as Sybil, her daughter, establishes herself a favourite. Miss Margaret Parker gives a vigorous rendering of a remarkable character, Smudgee, daughter of the ill-starred Sal Berker. Mr Benson North's Lawyer Wolff is a decidedly careful and effective study; and Mr Cecil Elgar's Lord Thorland is also a part which has thought bestowed upon it. Mr Simon D. Ord as Caerwon Moody, a minor poet, is a quaintly humorous character. Mr John Hart's representation of Brudds, a veteran gardener, is the best study of real character in the play. Mr Selby Burrell as Dan Murphy, Mr Sidney Drayton as Wong, a Chinaman, Mr Stephen Bancroft as Spurdy, a butler, and Miss Blanchette Grand as Lorna Mannerley each do well, and the remainder of the cast includes Miss Kathleen Barrett, Miss Ida Say, Mr Legarde, Mr W. Stayton, and Mr Caunt.

EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama in Five Acts, by G. Carlton Wallace, entitled "THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH."

This drama was produced at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, last week, and a full notice was given in our columns. Messrs Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey have an excellent company, and leave nothing in the management to chance. Mr Sam Livesey as John Strong plays the rôle with considerable power, and makes a fine blacksmith; Mr Joseph Carter scores as Captain Leo, supplying an impressive rendering of an unpopular personage; Miss Ethel Kay wins favour as Kate Strong, and gives a sincere embodiment of the blacksmith's wife; and Miss Maggie Edwards is sympathetic as Ruth Parkins. Mr Thomas E. Marshall supplies a careful and effective representation of Jeremiah Parkins, and Mrs T. C. Livesey is to be congratulated upon her clever and capable impersonation of the tinker's wife, Sal Parkins. Mr Frank Harrison loses none of the opportunities offered him in Lucas Marler, and the rôle of St. John Harman is in the good hands of Mr Geo. Edwards. Billy Twigg is comically depicted by Mr Geo. V. Campbell, who creates roars of laughter, and is ably helped by the fascinating Miss Edith Giddens, who acts with commendable energy. Little Christobel is remarkably good in the child's part. The scenery and mounting deserve warm praise.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, by William Hibbert, entitled "WHEN WOMAN HATES."

Miss Nettie Ware's company entered upon the second week of its initial tour with the above drama here on Monday, when a well-filled house testified to its appreciation of the thrilling situations in the play and the capable all-round work of the company. Mr William Dempsey is a dignified General Rokeby, and Lieutenant Fred Rokeby is represented in dashing fashion by Mr John B. Shinton. Mr Oscar Adye's polished method is brought to bear upon the part of the villainous Godfrey Lawton with excellent results. Mr William Wallace works hard as Col. Vancutson. Mr Willie Scott extracts considerable fun from the doings of Patrick O'Brien. The eccentricities of Alphonse Picolot are capitally portrayed by Mr Lionel West. Mr Richard Hodden is sound and careful as the Hon. C. Fenchurch. Mr Charles Watson is good as Dr. Horten. Mr Eric Campbell, huge of stature and resonant of voice, gives a fine character sketch of the terrible convict, Bill Smasher. Mr H. Brown is a capable Warder Dickeson. Miss Jennie Hughes is pleasing as Marie Rokeby. Dramatic power is displayed by Miss Violet Carlyle as Edith Rokeby. The amorous yearnings of Mrs Potts are humorously depicted by Miss Lila More, and Miss Ida Cunard is smart as Sally. Miss Sybil Newman is acceptable as Mrs Growler. Little Kathleen A. Crook plays prettily as Nellie Rokeby, and as Cora Daintry Miss Nettie Ware meets with much success. Several smaller parts are capably filled, and the mounting of the piece is admirable.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH-END.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Play entitled "QUALITY STREET."

This week Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's No. 1 company is appearing in the Vaudeville play, Quality Street. The principal rôle, Valentine Brown, is presented with artistic effect by Mr George A. Brandram, whose versatility is highly commendable. Mr Arthur C. F. Lysons makes the most of Ensign Blades. Lieutenant Spicer is safely entrusted to Mr Herbert Chown, and Mr Dan Dyer in the small part of the Recruiting Sergeant is very amusing. Master George Hollow, in the boy's part, is well to the front. Miss Grace Edwin portrays Miss Susan Throssell with commendable self-sufficiency. Miss Willoughby, Miss Isabel Merson, Miss Fanny Willoughby, Miss Marie Dennett, Miss Henrietta Turnbull, Miss Frances Leslie, Miss Charlotte Parratt, and Miss Lilian Rogers are all able contributors to the success of the piece. Miss Gwynneth Galton submits a droll and resourceful impersonation of the servant Patty. Isabella, Miss Violet Hollow, and Harriet, Miss Beryl Burnie, also command attention. As Miss Phœbe Throssell Miss Florence Jackson has made a good impression, her acting being marked by intensity and passion. The band, under Mr Phil Davis's leadership, plays some excellently chosen selections.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled "A DISGRACE TO HER SEX."

The latest dramatic production from the fertile pen of Mr Walter Melville is being staged at the Stratford Borough Theatre this week, and is proving a potent attraction to the patrons of the cheaper portions of this commodious playhouse. Miss Grace Heywood as Hilda Valley, "a disgrace to her sex," acts with all the coolness, suavity, and self-possession as becomes a woman of such strong personality, and is duly tender and emotional as occasion requires, withal allied to a most attractive stage presence. Mr Augustine Knight has made a very fine character study of the part of Jules Delarnet, a foreigner of the servile, blackmailing order, at whose discomfiture the audience are ever ready to rejoice. Mr Eugene Santley plays in very effective and convincing style as David Carrington; Mr Cecil Klein is a painstaking representative of Jack Dawes; and Mr David G. Noble is a manly and earnest Arnold Travers. Miss Kate Tempest acts with expression and much feeling as Mabel Valley, and Miss Nellie Lucas is charming as Mildred Carrington. The utterances of Mr Julian Baimbridge as the detective Dexter always carry conviction. Mr Arthur Byron as Barnaby Mugg, a dog fancier, whose every appearance is denoted by a different dog, is always droll and amusing, and together with Miss Madge Yates, a very sprightly Bella Mugg, is responsible for most of the comedy.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Clara Dillon and Mrs F. G. Kimberley, entitled "A FIGHT FOR LIFE."

Mr and Mrs F. G. Kimberley's company, in A Fight for Life, commenced a week's engagement at the Stratford Theatre Royal on Monday night, when the many thrilling incidents and exciting situations which the piece contains proved just to the liking of those present. Mr T. Parker-Royston acts with dignity and expression as Count Adrian; Miss Clara Santley draws a vivid picture of La Cardell, acting throughout with much dramatic power; the swarthy Carlos Cardell is realised in sinister style by Mr Harry Lyndon; and the weakling Jean Cardell has an earnest exponent in Mr Bert Morley. Mr Edwin Kisby does exceedingly well in the somewhat uneven part of Miser Ferrand; Miss Frances Waring contributes a sympathetic embodiment of Marie; Mr Tom Lisbourne provokes plenty of mirth as the free-and-easy servant, Dan Murphy, and is rendered able assistance in the plentiful comedy scenes by Miss Edie Macklin, very bright and vivacious as Suzanne, these two further contributing vocal efforts, which are much enjoyed. Minor parts are intelligently played.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Play, in Four Acts, entitled "THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

Those lovers of melodrama who have not yet seen The Midnight Mail have a treat in store, for Mr Arthur Shirley has written a play that should appeal strongly to their dramatic instincts. The story concerns itself mainly with the struggle of Harry Steyne against his arch enemy drink, and the clever acting of Mr George Harvard in the part should enforce the moral in the best of all ways. Harry pulls up in time and redeems his past, but Billy Brewer may be said to show what might happen if over-indulgence is persisted in. Mr Fred G. Evison is excellent in this part, contributing a powerful portrayal of the character and winning deservedly unstinted applause. Mr Alec Alves plays Leonard Royle well, and stage-manages the performance. Mr Arthur Gilroy impersonates Hassan Padisha, an infamous Turk, with proper emphasis; and Mr Charles M'Cann utters the words of wisdom on the subject of strong drink put into the mouth of Donald Craig well. Miss Ada Oakley is a capital Mary Steyne; while Miss Mildred Carr plays Nancy Brewer with a broad touch, and Miss Millie Stevenson contributes a satisfactory embodiment of Lady Phyllis Eustace. The minor parts are all creditably sustained, and the big sensation, a fight on an express engine travelling at full speed, is excellently contrived, its realism evoking tremendous applause.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Musical Farce, entitled "HIS MAJESTY'S GUESTS."

The Woolwich theatre-goer who enjoys a good laugh owes a hearty vote of thanks to Mr Fred Karno's company, whose every performance here this week of His Majesty's Guests has been provocative of uproarious and continuous merriment. Mr Harry Roxbury as Sergeant Lightning proved himself a comedian of the first water, and was soon such a favourite with the house that his every entrance was a signal for a round of applause. His power of facial expression is wonderful, and, while his absurd posturings and gesticulations seemed to give point to the most inane remark, the many good lines allotted to him received an added zest from the extremely clever way in which they were delivered. Miss Jessamine Newcome was very successful as Lady Maud Essem, the "heaviest" of "heavy" ladies, the business of stealing the keys of the safe and the tragic interruption of Lord Essem's schemes for flight being an admirable parody of modern melodramatic acting. The last-named character was well sustained by Mr Frank Morton, who, besides living up to his reputation as "Flash Jack," also sang some good songs in a style which won great approbation. Miss Edith Ager was a fascinating Dolly Miffin and sang nicely, while Miss Jenny Bolton's caricature of a "new woman" was very amusing. Mr E. De Vere worked hard as Mr Miffin, and Mr Sidney Russell as Bunker, with the help of Mr Harry Howe as Selina, was the cause of much laughter. Mr Henry Richter was comical as Fritz the doorkeeper, and the smaller parts were ably filled.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, in Five Acts, by George R. Sims and Arthur Shirley, entitled "TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

After an absence of five years this popular production returned to Kingston on Monday in response to a generally-expressed desire, and has been played to numerous and appreciative audiences during the week. Hardie and Von Leer's company is appearing in the play, and the combination is a powerful one all round. The two little vagabonds are portrayed by Miss Dorothy Marsden (Wally) and Miss May Hart (Dick). In the latter rôle Miss Hart gives evidence of remarkable histrionic powers, and quite captivates the audience by her assumption of juvenile manliness, whilst the more pathetic part of Wally was admirably impersonated by Miss Marsden. Mr Alfred Russell made a capital Gaffer, and the part of his Irish helpmeet, Biddy Mullins, was capably acted by Miss Marie Pritchard. Mr J. W. Henson proved himself a capable exponent of the part of George Thornton, whilst the sympathies of the audience never deserted Miss Laura Hansen in the part of Marion Thornton, which she filled with a powerful pathetic interest. Others in the company deserving of a word of commendation were Mr Selwyn Seymour as Captain Darville, Miss Nell Oliver as Barbara Scarth, Mr Basil Hillier as John Scarth, Mr Leslie Parker as Dido Bunce, Mr Fred Archer as the Cough Drop, and Mr Hugh Holliman as Joe Gargoyle. The play is produced under the direction of Mr James M. Hardie.

Through the sad death of Mr Wilson Barrett Madame Bernstein, who has been for many years costumier and entire and responsible wardrobe mistress to the late actor-manager, is at liberty to accept an engagement as costumier and wardrobe mistress.

On Tuesday evening a concert was given in the Winter Gardens, Great Yarmouth, when Madame Ella Russell delighted her hearers with the expressive and finished style in which she sang the songs allotted to her. Karasay's violin solos were much appreciated; Mr Overton Meglo's songs were well received; and Miss A. G. Eyre's pianoforte solos were ably executed.

SARAH BERNHARDT IN LONDON.

Madame Sarah Bernhardt, in the instalment of her "Memoirs" in the Strand Magazine for August, describes, with great gusto, her first visit to England, and her arrival at Folkestone. She says:—"We passed on through a crowd offering us flowers and shaking hands, and I soon saw that I was more favoured than the others. This slightly embarrassed me, but I was delighted all the same. One of my comrades, who was close at hand, and with whom I was not a favourite, said to me, in a spiteful tone,—

"'They'll make you a carpet of flowers soon.'

"'Here is one,' exclaimed a young man, throwing an armful of lilies on the ground in front of me.

"I stopped short, rather confused, not daring to walk on these white flowers, but the crowd pressing on behind compelled me to advance, and the poor lilies had to be trodden under foot.

"'Hip, hip, hurrah! A cheer for Sarah Bernhardt!' shouted the turbulent young man.

"His head showed above all the other heads; he had luminous eyes and long hair, and looked like a German student. He was an English poet, however, and one of the greatest of his time, a poet who was a genius.

"The crowd responded to his appeal, and we reached our train amid shouts of 'Hip, hip, hurrah for Sarah Bernhardt! Hip, hip, hurrah for the French artistes!'

"When the train arrived at Charing-cross towards nine o'clock we were nearly an hour late. A feeling of sadness came over me. The weather was gloomy, and then, too, I thought we should have been greeted again upon our arrival in London with more 'Hurrahs!' There were plenty of people—crowds of people—but no one appeared to know us.

"On reaching the station I had noticed that there was a handsome carpet laid down, and I thought it was for us. Indeed, I was prepared for anything, for our reception at Folkestone had turned my head The carpet, however, had been laid down for their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, who had just left for Paris.

"This news disappointed me and even annoyed me personally. I had been told that all London was quivering with excitement at the very idea of the visit of the Comédie Française, and I had found London extremely indifferent. The crowd was large, but cold.

"'Why have the Prince and Princess gone away to-day?' I asked M. Mayer.

"'Well, because they had decided beforehand about this visit to Paris,' he replied.

"'Oh, then they won't be here for our first night?' I continued.

"'No; the Prince has taken a box for the season, for which he has paid £400, but it will be used by the Duke of Connaught.'

"I was in despair. I don't know why, but I certainly was in despair, for I felt that everything was going wrong.

"A footman led the way to my carriage, and I drove through London with a heavy heart. Everything looked dark and dismal, and when I reached the house—77, Chester-square—I did not want to get out of my carriage

"The door of the house was wide open, however, and in the brilliantly-lighted hall I could see what looked like all the flowers on earth arranged in baskets, bouquets, and huge bunches. I got out of the carriage and entered the house in which I was to live for the next six weeks. All the branches seemed to be stretching out their flowers to me.

"'Have you the cards that came with all these flowers?' I asked my man-servant.

"'Yes,' he replied; 'I have put them together on a tray. They are all from Paris—from madame's friends there. This one is the only bouquet from here'

"He handed me an enormous one, and on the card with it I read the words: 'Welcome!—Henry Irving.'

"I went all through the house, and it seemed to me very dismal-looking. I visited the garden, but the damp seemed to go through me and my teeth chattered when I came in again. That night when I went to sleep my heart was heavy with foreboding, as though I were on the eve of some misfortune.

"The following day was given up to receiving journalists. I wanted to see them all at the same time, but Mr Jarrett objected to this. That man was a veritable advertising genius. I had no idea of it at that time. He had made me some very good offers for America, and, although I had refused them, I nevertheless held a very high opinion of him, on account of his intelligence, his comic humour, and my need of being piloted in this new country.

"'No,' he said; 'if you receive them all together they will all be furious, and you will get some wretched articles; you must receive them one after the other.'

"Thirty-seven journalists came that day, and Jarrett insisted on my seeing every one of them. He stayed in the room and saved the situation when I said anything foolish. I spoke English very badly, and some of the men spoke French very badly. Jarrett translated my answers to them. I remember perfectly well that all of them began with:—'Well, mademoiselle, what do you think of London?'

"I had arrived the previous evening at nine o'clock, and the first of these journalists asked me this question at ten in the morning. I had drawn my curtain on getting up, and all I knew of London was Chester-square, a small square of sombre verdure, in the midst of which was a black statue, and the horizon bounded by an ugly church.

"I really could not answer the question, but Jarrett was quite prepared for this, and I learnt the following morning that 'I was most enthusiastic about the beauty of London, that I had already seen a number of the public buildings,' &c., &c.

"Towards five o'clock, Hortense Damain arrived She was a charming woman, and a favourite in London society. She had come to inform me that the Duchess of ——— and Lady R——— would call on me at half-past five.

"'Oh, stay with me, then,' I said to her. 'You know how unsociable I am. I feel sure that I shall be stupid.'

"At the time fixed my visitors were announced. This was the first time I had come into contact with any members of the English aristocracy, and I have ever since had a very pleasant memory of it. Lady R——— was extremely beautiful, and the Duchess was so gracious, so distinguished, and so kind that I was very much touched by her visit.

"A few minutes later Lord Dudley called. I knew him very well, as he had been introduced to me by Marshal Canrobert, one of my dearest friends. He asked me if I would care to have a ride the following morning, as he had a very nice lady's horse which was entirely at my service. I thanked him, but wanted first to drive in Rotten Row.

"At seven o'clock Hortense Damain came to fetch me to dine with her at the house of the Baroness M———. She had a very nice home in Prince's Gate. There were about twenty guests, among others the painter Millais. I had been told that the cuisine was very bad in England, but I thought this dinner perfect. I had been told that the English were cold and sedate; I found them charming and full of humour. Everyone spoke French very well, and I was ashamed of my ignorance of the English language. After dinner there were recitations and music. I was touched by the gracefulness and tact of my hosts in not asking me to recite any poetry."

THE Commissioner of Licences in New York has classified actors as "helps," and has issued regulations for their employment under the same rules that apply to labourers and servants.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. FREDERICK LOYD.

MR FREDERICK LOYD was originally destined for a commercial career, and was apprenticed to a firm of merchant shippers, but finding City life entirely uncongenial he relinquished it in favour of the arts, and entered upon a course of training at Heatherley's Art School, where he studied black and white drawing, afterwards turning his knowledge to account by drawing for the late Henry Blackburn's Academy Notes. Having, however, always a strong inclination towards the stage, he became a pupil of Henry Neville, from whose studio he made his first professional engagement, appearing in October, 1891, under Mr George Brydon Phillips, at the Parkhurst Theatre stock season, his first important part being Captain Holcroft, In the Ranks. The twelve years that intervened between then and now have been filled with varied experiences including a tour with Mr A. E. Drinkwater, in Two Christmas Eves; several tours with Mrs Dalmaine, in Arthur Shirley's drama The Cross of Honour, and a short season at the Royalty Theatre, when the latter play was produced in London, followed by a tour with Mrs Kennion's répertoire company, undertaking acting-management and playing such diverse parts as Macari, in Called Back, and Bullock, in East Lynne, returning to town to play Francis Levison, on Mdlle. Florelle De Provence's suburban tour of the latter play. Then came an appointment as stage-manager at the Princess's Theatre during Mr Tyrone Power's season, a tour with Mr W. W. Kelly's A Royal Divorce; after which Mr Loyd took out Captain Swift for a few weeks, playing the title-rôle himself. Later on came a tour with The New Barmaid as advance-manager, a tour as business-manager with the Drury-lane drama A Sailor and his Lass, and then a long engagement, lasting nearly three years, as business-manager for Messrs E Hill-Mitchelson and Tom Jennings's Death or Glory Boys company, also playing the light comedy part of Lieutenant Duff. A stock season, playing Duke of Mull, Moths; Arkwright, Shadows of a Great City; Levison, East Lynne; Captain Molyneux, Shaughraun; George Peyton, The Octoroon, was followed by a tour with Mr Henry Swinerd's Dare-Devil Dorothy company, playing the heavy part, Captain Dudley. He was then re-engaged by Messrs Hill-Mitchelson, Dottridge, and Longden, as general manager for their revival of The Terror of Paris, returning at the conclusion of a most successful tour to once more take up the part of Captain Dudley. Next came in the order named a tour as general manager for Mr Swinerd's Justice at Last company, also playing the juvenile part; a tour with Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.'s, Life's Handicap company; a répertoire tour, playing Dr. Daubigny, A Woman of No Importance; Simeon Strong, The Idler; Lord Augustus Lorton, Lady Windermere's Fan; and Marshall, Captain Swift. More recently Mr Loyd concluded a tour as business-manager for Miss Maud Hildyard's A Beautiful Fiend company, his wife (Miss Florence Creagh) playing the part of Nadine Karateff.

MR FREDERICK LOYD.

MISS BEATRICE MARSDENE.

MISS BEATRICE MARSDENE made her first appearance at the Prince of Wales's Theatre as one of four dancers when Mr and Mrs Arthur Bourchier produced Donna Diana for a couple of matinées. She was at that time a pupil of Mr Ernest D'Auban for dancing and was also studying music at the Guildhall School of Music. Then followed a pantomime engagement at the West London Theatre, 97-98. Mr Percy Murray engaged her after this for a tour with Poor Old Perkins. In the autumn of 1898 she had a delightful tour with Mr R. A. Roberts, the well-known protean actor's concert party, playing in sketches and doing solo dances. The Christmas of '98 she was engaged for pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh. On returning to town Miss Marsdene was engaged by Mr Tom B. Davis for one of the dancers on tour in Little Miss Nobody. Forsaking the theatres for a time, she went on the variety stage, appearing with two other ladies as the Auroras. They used to do an illusion mirror dance and a sunshade dance. She stayed with them for sixteen months. After this in 1901, she had a tour with The Wedding Guest from the Garrick Theatre. After this she had a very happy engagement as Amy in Mr W. S. Penley's No. 1 Charley's Aunt company lasting nearly a year. In the spring of 1903 Mr Claude King engaged her to play Bonita, in Arizona (the part she likes better than any she has played. Last Easter she was engaged by Mr Sidney Cooper and the author to play the juvenile lead in the new drama As a Man Soweth in her native town of Newport. Miss Marsdene has also had engagements with Mr Horace Lingard as Rose, in Why Smith Left Home; Mr Charles Carey, as Cissy, in What Happened to Jones; with Mr Charles Otley, as Mary, in Our Boys; and has played in sketches at several of the music halls with Mr Edward Cranston, Mr Frank Gerald, Mr Frank Bertram, &c.

MISS BEATRICE MARSDENE.

MISS MILLIE HENDERSON.

MISS MILLIE HENDERSON is the daughter of the well-known stage and general manager John Henderson. When Miss Henderson was a baby in long clothes, a few months old, J. B. Hewett, a favourite comedian, well-known in Brighton, at the Theatre Royal under the late Mrs Nye Chart, took her from her mother's arms on the stage of the Bijou Theatre in the old Swiss Gardens, Shoreham, Sussex, and, rubbing the little bundle up and down the O.P. wing exclaimed "There, I've christened her; she's an actress now." As the incident was quite "early," Miss Henderson does not remember it. Neither did she ever see her stage sponsor; for the same year he went down in the ill-fated s.s. Clan Macduff in the English Channel. Her first appearance before the public was in the Theatre Royal, Dumfries, owned by the late Alex M'Neil, of Rob Roy fame, in a pantomime of Cinderella. She was then a "wee dot" of some two and a-half summers.

MISS MILLIE HENDERSON.

MR. S. H. HUMBER.

It was thought she would look well on a swing in the fairy Rose Bower surrounded by nymphs (Dumfries mill hands), but, when the band struck up and the fairies began to warble the result was disastrous She yelled to be taken off. It was not till her sixth year that Miss Henderson again faced the footlights, this time in the Theatre Royal, Cardiff under the wing of the late Edward Fletcher, when she danced a sailor's hornpipe in the first scene of Sinbad the Sailor. Twelve months later, while playing Eva in her father's popular version of Uncle Tom's Cabin, in the Victoria Theatre, Newport, Mon., a couple of curious and unrehearsed effects were introduced by the animal performers. It is well known that bloodhounds and donkeys are frequently used in this piece, the bloodhounds to intensify the slave hunt, the donkey to emphasise the comic entrance of Lawyer Marks in the Rock of Freedom scene. The Marks on this occasion was Edmund Payne. The bloodhounds, slipping the leash held by the coloured man and taking a particular liking for Teddy's white spats, chased him off the stage and up the prompt fly ladder. It has never been satisfactorily cleared up whether he or "greased lightning" was the quicker; any way the audience hugely enjoyed the affair, thinking it all a part of the play. Incident number two had even a more hilarious effect on the good people in front. The aforesaid donkey after his one and only nightly appearance was always kept in a passage leading off the stage into the front of the house—because of an awkward stage exit down a flight of stairs—thence taken to the stables after the act was over. In the next act, the third, it may be remembered, Eva dies. The lad who looked after the animal must, it is supposed, in the excitement occasioned by the bloodhounds, have fancied they intended devouring the donkey and afterwards, perhaps, make a meal off him. The donkey remained in the passage—he forgot it. Miss Henderson remembers she was dying on her little cot bed surrounded by St. Clair, Aunt Ophelia, Topsy, and the crowd of kneeling coloured folks to the accompaniment of audible sobs from the women in the auditorium. All was hushed. Eva had fallen back lifeless. St. Clair had just finished his speech with "and thou gone for ever." The clear notes of the leading soprano coloured vocalist trilled out "Eva!" but the chorus never got any further that night, for the donkey in the passage came in on that note with a first "He-Haw!" The effect was electrical and startling. "He-haw!" came at regular intervals of a few seconds and kept on until the curtain had to drop. Eva has never died before, nor since, to such shouts of laughter either on the stage or off. Miss Henderson had to rough it in the provinces in a whole round of child parts, notably, Paul, Alone in London, Pierre, Crimes of Paris. She was the original Paul in the provincial tours organised by J. F. Elliston. As a child she played in several pantomimes, such parts as the Old Man of the Sea, in Sinbad; Jenny, The House that Jack Built. Her last engagement as a child was at the Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool. She then went to school and did not return to the stage till she was eighteen. During the short time since her return her best work has been done in comedy and pantomime, in parts of the Belinda type and principal girls and boys. She has a well-trained mezzo voice, dances well, either skirt, coon, or step. She has played the following parts:—W.G., Walker, London; Belinda, Our Boys; Nan, Good-for-Nothing; Margery, Rough Diamond; Nelly O'Neil, The Green Bushes; Sam Willoughby, Ticket-of-Leave Man; Moya, The Shaughraun. Pantomimes, principal girls, Cinderella; Polly, Robinson Crusoe; principal boys, Robin, Queen of Hearts; and Aladdin, last Christmas at the Alexandra Palace.

MR. S. HERBERT HUMBER.

MR HUMBER was originally intended for a solicitor, his father's profession, but having a great liking for all things dramatic he studied elocution under several different masters in London, and finally became a master of that art himself at the London School of Voice Cultivation, under Josiah Richardson, then held at Exeter Hall, Strand. After teaching there for about a year he received his first offer to go on the stage in the autumn of 1890, and started by playing in a répertoire of three pieces, viz., Our Boys, David Garrick, and Faust, after which came a tour with the late Mr Richard Edgar, Mr Humber playing Arthur, the juvenile lead, in The Other Fellow. Then followed several years of touring engagements, Mr Humber gaining valuable experience in a round of leading and heavy leading parts in numerous pieces, including Under Remand, Mizpah, &c. He afterwards toured with Mr W. S. Penley's Charley's Aunt company, appearing as Sir Francis Chesney, and also playing the leading part in the one-act piece entitled Confederates. Then followed a starring engagement as Harry O'Mailley, in The English Rose, and Captain Chandos, in Mr Henry Dundas's A Life of Pleasure company. He was specially engaged by Messrs Connor and Hildyard to create the part of Count Karateff, in A Beautiful Fiend, after which came a tour with Mr J. F. Elliston's Absent Minded Beggar company, Mr Humber playing Carl Van Buren, the heavy lead, and on a long tour with Mr J. Pitt-Hardacre's East Lynne company, Mr Humber was the Sir Francis Levison This was followed by a tour with his own company of For Love and Money, a play written expressly for him by Mr John J. Stanfield, which Mr Humber produced at the Comedy, Manchester, and in which he played the star part of Philip Mordant. Next came a tour with Messrs Paumier and Howard, Mr Humber playing Michael Romanoff, heavy lead, in Under the Russian Flag Another engagement with Mr J. F. Elliston followed, Mr Humber sustaining the leading part, George Patterson, in Little Jim. More recently he concluded a long tour with Mr Bert Coote, Mr Humber appearing as Howard Wilson, lead, in The Fatal Wedding. Mr Humber adds that he has never regretted adopting the dramatic profession. He dearly loves it and is proud of being a member of it.

THEATRE "PATENTS."

The Solicitor-General sat on Monday, in the Council Chamber, Dublin Castle, to renew the hearing of the applications for patents for theatres.

The first matter taken up was the application of Miss A. E. Horniman, of London, for a patent for the premises in connection with the Mechanics' Institute, Lower Abbey-street, for the purpose principally of the production of Irish plays by the Irish National Theatre Society.

Mr O'Shaughnessy, K.C., said that Mr Blood, acting for the Queen's Theatre, had drawn up the following:—

The patent shall only empower the patentee to exhibit plays in the Irish or English language, written by Irish writers on Irish subjects, and selected by the Irish National Theatre Society under the provision of Rule 7 of the society's rules.

He thought that would carry out the idea, and also that when the theatre was not used for such plays it should be used for no others, but concerts and lectures, and that the patent should cease if the society should be dissolved. It was stated that there was no intention to make an individual profit out of the theatre, but he felt it was difficult to draft any clause that would carry that out.

The Solicitor-General said he did not think that would be necessary, having regard to the dimensions of the theatre and its objects. Besides lectures and concerts, the theatre might be used for social entertainments and matters of that kind.

Mr H. Wilson, K.C. (for the applicant), said that since Thursday they had been considering a suggestion that had been made by the Solicitor-General as to the difficulty of Miss Horniman being a non-resident. Miss Horniman would consent to Lady Gregory being the patentee. Lady Gregory would accept it. She was a resident of this country, the wife of a late Governor-General of Ceylon. He thought the clause read by Mr O'Shaughnessy was a little too restrictive, and, therefore, it was proposed to add to it—"All standard dramatic works in any language written not less than fifty years before the date of the patent." They had no objection to the condition that the theatre should be used only for concerts and lectures when it was not used by the Irish National Theatre Society.

The Solicitor-General reserved his decision.

The application of the proprietors of the Kingstown Pavilion for a theatre licence was then taken up. Mr Matheson, K.C., for the proprietors of the Kingstown Pavilion, said the building for which the patent was wanted was well known to most of the residents of Dublin who visited Kingstown. It had been built in 1903, and had been carried on most successfully up to the present as a place of entertainment, such as concerts and light variety entertainments. Nothing in the nature of theatrical performances had as yet taken place there. The ground on which the building stands is held under lease for an unexpired term of fifty-nine years from Lords De Vesci and Longford. The lease contains a covenant that no intoxicating drink shall be sold upon the premises. The company expended on the actual building a sum of over £10,000, and had spent altogether, as appeared from their last balance-sheet, a sum of £14,288 in respect of building, furniture, fittings, &c., and the ground connected therewith. The capital of the company is £12,000, and of that sum 8,699 shares had been taken up, and there were debentures to the amount of £5, created and issued pursuant to the powers of the company. The application had the assent and concurrence of the Kingstown Urban Council, and the Councils of Dalkey, Killiney, and Blackrock were in favour of it. In his judgment, so far from injuring the Dublin theatres, he believed that a theatre at Kingstown would benefit them by cultivating theatrical tastes.

Sir Thomas Robinson, chairman of the Pavilion Company, in reply to Mr Matheson, stated that, according to the last balance-sheet, the entire expenditure on the undertaking was £14,288. From a financial point of view it had been working very successfully. Last year nearly 2,500 people were entitled to come in on the tickets issued The average attendance was from 6,000 to 12,000 per week of those who paid for admission. The very lowest attendance at any performance would be about 600. The charges varied in accordance with the attractions.

To Mr O'Shaughnessy, K.C.—At one performance in the Pavilion, at which there were high prices for seats, when Miss Marie Hall performed, they made a profit of £28 10s., and Miss Hall was given twice that in fees. They did not propose to spend anything like as much as £1,000 on structural alterations. The Royal Marine Hotel supplied the refreshments.

Mr Frederick M'Crea, director of the company, said he considered the Kingstown Pavilion thoroughly suited to the class of dramatic entertainment that was proposed.

Mr O'Shaughnessy, K.C., on behalf of the proprietors of the Theatre Royal, said that in order to comply with the requirements of the local authority £55,000 had been expended on that theatre on a patent renewal in 1895, and, notwithstanding that large expenditure, it was found necessary to expend a further sum of £7,000 in order to make the theatre at once safe and effective and suitable. There was an excellent service of trains to bring the Kingstown people to the Dublin theatres. It would be extremely unfair and unjust if after the expenditure of all this money by them, and the great expense that they were at for the maintenance of the theatre as a first-class theatre for the citizens of Dublin, they should have to face competition by a building on which only a trifle was proposed to be expended, and which was neither suitable in size, in shape, or in other ways. The class of entertainment proposed to be given in it was not the class contemplated by the Act; for the Act spoke of raising the standard of dramatic art, which this would not do. One witness had described this project as an experiment. He submitted that this was an experiment that ought not to be tried at the expense of the proper theatres properly equipped and properly carried on.

Mr F. Mouillot, managing director of the Theatre Royal Company, stated that the working expenses of the theatre were about £217 a week. They employed on an average about seventy hands in front and behind, and sometimes the number went up to 100 or 120 Except when they engaged big stars, or at Christmas, or with the Moody-Manners company, they hardly ever had the theatre absolutely full. They had nearly always plenty of room. A great many of those who booked seats came from the Kingstown district and down the line. Two theatres were closed recently in Liverpool, as variety shows appeared to be the fashion of the day. To present a musical comedy, or a Gilbert and Sullivan opera, the companies that came to the Royal had from fifty to sixty members as a rule. No. 2 companies would have about thirty to thirty-four. He did not think that it would be possible to decently accommodate No. 2 companies in three dressing-rooms. A No. 2 company presenting The Geisha or San Toy, to pay, would require to take £300 in the week as gross receipts. The categories of companies were first-class, second-class, third-class, and "fit up" companies. A No. 1 company for light opera would require to take £550 a-week. The artists who took part in "fit-up" companies might be very clever, but they were usually only beginners, and they comprised from twenty-three to twenty-nine members. The English theatre managers usually had a clause inserted in their agreements with companies stipulating that no No. 2 company of the same class should visit any other theatre in the town, and the Dublin managers would have to adopt this clause if it was proposed to bring any to Kingstown.

The inquiry was adjourned.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr George Alexander is an excellent golfer. The Maloja links are situated at the extreme south end of the Engadine Valley, about 400 yards from the top of the Maloja Pass, the main route from Italy to Switzerland. Very beautiful are the surroundings, the snow-topped Alps towering high above the Lake of Maloja close by, and a delightful view is gained of the Valley of the Engadine. It would hardly occur to anyone to think of finding golf links in such country and at such an altitude, 6 000 feet above sea level, but Nature has provided a most excellent piece of ground on which golf can be played, with some very fine turf, considering that for five months of the winter snow lies thick upon it to the extent of four to five feet, and no care or attention is paid to it at any period of the year. There are nine holes of the most sporting kind. The golfing season at Maloja is a short one—not two months—from the middle of July to the beginning of September; and there being no residents the committee, secretary, and other officials are elected from and by visitors at the one hotel—the Maloja Kursaal.

This year a meeting was held in July, and Mr George Alexander was unanimously elected to the captaincy of the club, which office he, to everyone's great satisfaction, accepted. Mr George Alexander is not only a good player, but a keen and enthusiastic supporter of the game. His influence as captain of the Maloja Club soon made itself felt. M. Pierre Deschamps, president of La Boulie Club, Paris, the latest and biggest of French golf clubs, happening to be at St. Moritz, and hearing of the progress and success of the Maloja Golf Club under its new captain, offered to bring a team of the La Boulie Club to play against Maloja, and the event came off on the 6th inst. The two captains led off, M. Pierre Deschamps being no mean player, but Mr George Alexander, to the great satisfaction of every member of the Maloja Club, played a good and most plucky game, for, after being four down at the ninth hole, he halved the match, and thus gave victory to his side. The greens were in perfect order, thanks to the energy of Colonel Woodward, the popular honorary secretary of the golf club at Cannes. The remainder of the team followed their captain's lead, playing good golf, the result being a win for the Maloja Golf Club in their first match of the season, and great encouragement for the future.

The new Waldorf Theatre, which is being erected from the designs and under the personal superintendence of Mr W. G. R. Sprague, is progressing rapidly, and Messrs Shubert, the lessees, will have one of the most beautiful and commodious houses in London. The auditorium consists of three tiers, the stalls and pit on lowest level, the dress circle, which is entered practically direct from Aldwych, and a fine family circle and gallery. The stage is of ample dimensions, being about 75ft. wide and 40ft. deep. The auditorium is designed on the most approved lines, the curves of the fronts of the several circles and formation of the main ceiling being graceful and effective. The auditorium is, of course, entirely fireproof, and is being constructed without the use of columns, the sight lines from all parts being quite uninterrupted. The building will have a fine bold, classic frontage, in white Portland stone, of 70ft. to Aldwych, directly facing the Strand, with a return frontage of about 160ft. to Catherine-street. The internal decoration, upholstery, and fittings will be tasteful and luxurious, and every modern convenience will be supplied.

The funeral of the late Walter Pallant took place on Saturday last at Brompton Cemetery. Besides Mr Sam Pallant, the brother of the deceased, his sister, and his faithful nurse, many intimate friends were present, including Mr George Edwardes, Mr George Dance, Mr Sark, Mr Ivan Caryll, Mr Lionel Monckton, Mr Gatti, Mr Arthur Collins, Colonel Newnham Davis, Mr E. W. Bayly, Mr W. Abingdon, Mr Paul Arthur, Mr James Sullivan, Mr John Hawkins, Mr Walter Dixon, Mr J. Partridge, Mr E. Marshall, Mr Ernest Wells, Mr Jack Angle, Mr E. W. Silverthorne, Mr Mike Lehmaier, Mr W. Day, and others. The flowers and wreaths not only covered the coffin, but also filled a couple of carriages. Amongst the wreaths was one from the trustees and directors of the Royal General Theatrical Fund, of which Mr Pallant was a director.

Mr Charles Rock, who has been engaged to play Malavolti to Mr Oscar Asche's Scorla, in The Prayer of the Sword, is spending a few weeks at a quiet little place near Dover, prawning and swimming. He was recently sustaining a round of Shakespearian rôles at the Court Theatre, and appeared in the chief part in Twelfth Night. At the last performance, in breaking Malvolio's wand of office, Mr Rock had the misfortune to cut his left thumb so severely that he wore his arm in a sling for a fortnight. He has been nineteen years on the stage, and has acted no fewer than 217 parts. Mr Rock is the husband of Miss Cybel Wynne. Mr and Mrs Wynne are the possessors of several "well-bred mongrels," and their pets include a tame seagull. Many well-known members of the profession have a liking for strange animals and birds. Mr Mark Melford's fondness for ravens is well known, and Mrs Melford is just as deeply attached to a jackdaw, as solemn and wise as its namesake of Rheims. Miss Millie Legarde possesses a little smooth-skinned dog that is so tiny it can sit in the palm of her hand. Mr John Beauchamp's fox terrier is so intelligent that it can well be classed as "strange," accompanying its master to the theatre every evening and showing no inclination to leave his dressing-room until the end of the performance.

Mr C. I. Coltson, the indefatigable secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, is pleased to report that the "autograph taxes" continue to flow into the Fund. Remittances have been received for the autographs of Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr H. Beerbohm Tree, and Miss Mary Moore. Mr Lewis Waller has sent a remittance for £4 1s. 1d. and Mr George Alexander has forwarded £1 11s.

Mr Beerbohm Tree, who has returned from his visit to Marienbad, has begun rehearsals at His Majesty's Theatre of his autumn production of The Tempest. Mr Tree, it is stated, has secured a new poetic play by Mr Stephen Phillips, in which the leading character is Nero. It is difficult to see how that Roman "atrocity" could be made sympathetic; but perhaps Mr Phillips is taking a "new view" of him.

It has been decided to postpone the London season of Wilson Barrett's latest play Lucky Durham, and to produce it with most of the original company in New York this autumn, if the negotiations now going on for a theatre there prove successful, failing which it will be seen in the spring.

Mr Willie Clarkson, Mr George Robey, and Mr Herbert Sparling are the winners of five shillings each and a fountain pen from the Daily Illustrated Mirror. It appears that the three gentlemen, in addition to Mr Robey's little son, were bathing at Margate and a snapshot was taken of the whole quartette. On Monday last the photograph was reproduced in the paper, and at the foot of the picture it was stated that the money and the fountain-pens awaited the party on their calling at a bookstall.

Mr Edward C Silverthorne, the surviving trustee of the Nellie Farren benefit, in accordance with an agreement entered into with the late Miss Farren, dated March 31, 1898, and with the consent of her family, has sent to the Royal General Theatrical Fund a cheque for £500, to be invested for the Fund at the directors' discretion, and has also sent the Actors' Benevolent Fund a cheque for the same amount to be similarly disposed of.

Several popular actors and actresses have been giving a daily paper their notions of an ideal holiday. Mr Walter Passmore says:—"Southsea is my beau ideal of a holiday resort. I have been there many times, and only once have either my wife or myself felt a little bit down in the dumps, and that was when every room in the town was taken." Miss Agnes Fraser's favourite resort is Avranches, "the sweetest little place you can imagine." Mr Henry Lytton says: "Lake Clunie is the happy hunting-ground of my holiday dreams," and Miss Zena Dare likes to get right away into the wilds of Wales, at the foot of Cader Idris.

A writer of short stories complains that "one of our most popular young actors" has the misfortune to resemble him so closely that mistakes occur. "Nice people, whom I do not know from Adam," says the author, "come up and speak to me, no matter where I go, and they invite me to their houses, and their charming daughters are most delightful to me, simply rushing to welcome me." It is pleasant to learn that this is the way in which our young histrions are received in Society. In such circumstances no one need grumble about the "actor's social status."

Mr Reginald Kennedy-Cox has altered the title of his new play from The Passing of a Dream to The Chetwynd Affair, and it will be produced at the Royalty some time this month—if possible on the 25th inst. The author is an Oxford man and an old O.M.D.S. Miss Jennie Lee, of "Jo" fame, will make her reappearance in London in the piece, and Mr Arthur Bertram, who has been associated with the Royalty Theatre as manager for the last ten years, has been engaged to look after the business arrangements, leaving later on to join Mr John Hare for his Little Mary tour.

It has been stated that the Theatre Metropole "will be opened by J. B. Mulholland as a variety theatre on the two-houses-a-night plan on Sept. 12." This statement, however, was entirely erroneous, and we have much pleasure in giving the fullest publicity to this correction. Mr Mulholland has not, and never has had, any intention of being responsible for the running of a music hall.

The estate of the late Mr Walter Pallant, chairman of the Gaiety Theatre Company, Ltd., and of the New Gaiety Restaurant and Hotel Company, Ltd., has been valued at the gross amount of £40,545.

Mr E. S. Willard's second provincial and suburban tour will commence at Blackpool on Aug. 22. His repertory will consist of The Middleman, The Cardinal, Tom Pinch, and The Professor's Love Story.

Mr John Billington's birthday was on the 4th inst. The many greetings the veteran actor received were most gratifying to him in his present state of health. Foremost, as usual, was his old friend John Toole. The good wishes of Mr Billington's friends made a deep impression on him, and he sincerely thanks them all.

Mr George Davey has arranged that all the scenery for his next season's pantomime of Babes in the Wood shall be painted in the Grand Theatre itself, his idea being that Islingtonians like to know that some portion of the money lavished on local theatrical productions is spent in the neighbourhood. Mr Davey tells us that no less than three tons of glass is at present stored, and will be used in the transformation scene in his forthcoming Christmas "annual."

Miss Susie Vaughan, after a long absence from England, has returned from Australia, and has been engaged for the part of Lady Chelmer, an impecunious society lady who runs rich people with a longing for acquaintance with the nobility, in Mr Zangwill's play, Merely Mary Ann. Miss Susie Vaughan is so universally popular, that her reappearance on the English stage will be warmly welcomed.

Mr Richard Badger writes:—"The latest phase respecting the national statue to Shakespeare is an official communication from the London County Council expressing full concurrence in the scheme, and offering to provide a site; but, to my disappointment, they are unable to take any part in the collection of the requisite funds. I may add that as an initiative, I am still prepared to give £500 down towards the expenses of the appeal for funds, and an additional £2,000 in aid of the cost of the statue, provided the result of the appeal is sufficient to raise one commensurate with the vast debt the world owes to Shakespeare's memory. My difficulty now is finding an influential representative committee to make the appeal for funds."

The London Academy of Music bronze medal for pianoforte playing, counterpoint, and harmony, has been awarded to Max Darewski, an eight-year-old composer, who is the youngest who has ever entered for the medal.

The number of theatrical performances witnessed by the King since the commencement of last season is twenty-three. The list includes three visits to His Majesty's, two each to the Haymarket, the Gaiety, the Prince of Wales's, Criterion, the Garrick, and the Imperial, and appearances at the Duke of York's, Wyndham's, the Lyric, the New, Daly's, the St. James's, Apollo, and the Adelphi. His Majesty also attended the opera at Covent-garden nearly twenty times.

The late Mr Davenport Adams had, at the time of his death, nearly finished his "Dictionary of the Drama," and Messrs Chatto and Windus will issue the first volume of the work in the early autumn.

Mr Welton Dale, the popular lessee of the Tunbridge Wells Opera House, who is a Lieutenant in the 1st Cinque Ports Rifle Volunteers, has been attached to the School of Instruction at the Guards' Barracks, Chelsea, during the past month, and has qualified there for the rank of Captain.

In the course of a recent theatrical performance at the Apollo Theatre in Berne an actor was supposed to be blown out of a cannon over the heads of the audience. For this purpose cables were stretched across the auditorium, on which a kind of perambulator ran. When the actor was at a height of 16ft. the cables broke, and he fell, breaking two stall seats, and injuring himself severely.

An advertisement in a Windsor paper having announced the production at the Theatre Royal of The Sorrows of Satan, Miss Marie Corelli's celebrated play, the distinguished authoress at once wrote from Stratford-on-Avon requiring the announcement to be corrected and addressed the following severe letter to the editor of the paper:—"Sir,—My attention has been called to an announcement in your columns of a dramatic performance to be held of The Sorrows of Satan at the Windsor Theatre. This announcement describes it as 'Miss Marie Corelli's celebrated play, in four acts.' I wish most emphatically to state that it is not my play at all, and that I have nothing whatever to do with it, either in authorship or collaboration. It is an adaptation by others from my novel of that name, and I regret exceedingly that owing to the insufficient protection afforded by the law to the dramatic rights of authors I am unable to stop what I have every right to consider a most unfair and garbled representation of my book. All I can do is to impress on the public mind the fact that I, personally, have nothing whatever to do with it, and I ask the courtesy of your columns to further this end. Marie Corelli." The drama in question is the work of Mr Hal Collier and Mr Edward Neville.

Messrs Harrison and Maude's cast for the new farce, in three acts, called Beauty and the Barge, by W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker, which will be produced at the New Theatre on the 30th inst., will include Mr Cyril Maude, Mr Kenneth Douglas, Mr H. Marsh Allen, Mr Edmund Maurice, Mr Lennox Pawle, Mr Robert Bottomley, Mr Frederick Volpé, Mr E. M. Robson, Miss Adela Measor, Miss Jessie Bateman, Miss Rita Jolivet, Miss Mary Brough, and Mrs Charles Calvert.

Mr James Welch, who has just returned to London, had some agreeable experiences on his recent tour in South Africa. At Cape Town Mr Rudyard Kipling came round to Mr Welch's dressing-room and congratulated the company on the performance of When We Were Twenty one. He seemed charmed with the piece, and was much interested in its construction. When Mr Welch arrived in London he had a terrible shock in the news of the death of Mr Wilson Barrett. "It was in Liverpool," says Mr Welch, "that I first met him, when he played Claudian. I saw him in his dressing-room, and he asked me what I could do. I told him when I was born, that my father was an accountant, that I had worked in his office, and that I had spent my spare time with some friends in an amateur dramatic club. I added that I did not want to play Claudian at the outset, but was willing to go on as a super at 18s. a week. He seemed amused at my candour, and gave me an engagement in a pantomime at Leeds."

Mr Charles Fry's Shakespearian matinées will be given this season at the Royal Court Theatre on Saturday afternoons in November.

Mr Clement Scott has left property valued at £4,484 17s. 2d. gross and £2,748 16s. 1d. net. By his will, made on a piece of note paper and dated May 30, 1894, he left everything of which he should die possessed to his wife, Mrs Constance Margaret Scott, she knowing well his views in regard to charitable bequests and the disposal of his dramatic library.

Miss Fay Templeton has brought an action for £4,000 damages against the Onarga Sigaret Company, an American firm of tobacconists, for placing her photograph on their advertisements, showing her smoking a cigarette.

In The Hero of the Flag is introduced the Jack Crawford incident of nailing the colours to the mast-head. In Mowbray Park, where there is a monument to the memory of Jack Crawford, Miss Lizzie Hall, of The Hero of the Flag company, at the Theatre Royal, Sunderland, recently crowned the statue with a laurel wreath. A ladder had been requisitioned from the park-keeper, and Miss Hall ascended, and placed the wreath on the nail which the hero of the Camperdown is represented to be hammering in.

"Your most sweet voices!" says Coriolanus. At Turin, in opposition to the Socialist candidate, the Monarchists have put up the great tenor Tamagno, who will sing an air at each of his political meetings.

The New Grand Theatre, Nelson, Lancs, was reopened on Monday, after a seven weeks' vacation, during which time the place has been thoroughly overhauled and some 1,000 electric lights installed. No expense has been spared that would tend to the general comfort of the company and audience, and the manager, Mr George E. Mudd, is to be warmly congratulated on his untiring efforts on behalf of Mrs T. G. Croft and the public of Nelson and district.

Messrs Harcourt Williams and Garnet Holme have concluded their sixth annual pastoral tour. It has been the most successful they have ever had, and they are already booking dates for next year. Meanwhile Mr Harcourt Williams returns to Miss Ellen Terry and Mr Holme to his post at Cumnock Hall, Los Angeles.

The King and Queen, with the Prince of Wales, Princess Victoria, and the Duke of Connaught, witnessed the performance of Véronique at the Apollo Theatre on Monday evening.—His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and suite visited the Gaiety Theatre last Wednesday evening, and witnessed the performance of The Orchid.

Cardinal Vannutelli, the Pope's Legate, paid a visit to the Italian Exhibition, at Earl's court, on Wednesday afternoon. He was received by Mr R. C. Garnett, one of the managing directors, and Signor Della Vecchia, representing the Italian Chamber of Commerce in London. His Eminence was accompanied by Archbishop Bourne, and the suite with them consisted of Monsignor Ciocci, Canon Bernardini, Marquis M'Sweeny, Mr M'Nutt, and the Rev. A. Jackman (private secretary). The Cardinal took a trip in a gondola through the canals of "Venice by Night," and had tea at the Old Welcome Club.

On the last night of the Foresters' Congress, held at Southampton last week, the Mayor and Mayoress (Sir George and Lady Hussey), the chief officials, together with about two hundred delegates and their wives, were invited to the Prince of Wales's Theatre by the lessee and manageress, Mrs J. W. Gordon. They duly attended with their regalia, the theatres being prettily decorated for the occasion with flags, &c. During an interval in the performance of The Grip of Iron, by Messrs E. H. Knight and Geo. Denham's excellent company, the High Chief Ranger and the ex-High Chief Ranger stepped on the stage, and presented Mrs Gordon with a handsome bouquet, at the same time thanking her for the much-appreciated dramatic treat she had so kindly afforded the delegates. It was mentioned that this was the first occasion that the Foresters as a body had been entertained by a member of the theatrical profession, and the compliment was highly appreciated.

Mr H. A. Saintsbury has played Sherlock Holmes over 650 times. His popular impersonation of the great detective reached that high total last Tuesday evening, when he had among his audience, at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who had never seen him in the part before. Mr Saintsbury is not only a popular actor of seventeen years' standing, but a playwright of considerable ability. His intense admiration of the genius of Dumas has induced him to dramatise many of his famous novels, and during the "boom" of The Three Musketeers some years back, he had the satisfaction of knowing that his version was the first of the fourteen that were produced on the stage.

Mr Saintsbury started his career by supering at the Opera Comique in the days when it was under the management of Mr George Edwardes and Miss Kate Vaughan, but after a fortnight he entreated Miss Vaughan to give him an opportunity to prove that he was wasted on "thinking parts." He ultimately became her assistant-stage-manager, and this good beginning in London was followed by provincial engagements in every style of play and rôle that it was possible for an actor to attempt. Mr Saintsbury's favourite part is the subtle character of King Charles IX. of France in his own historical drama called King of the Huguenots. His versatility is shown by the fact that Triplet, in Peg Woffington, is another of his performances that have been most successful. Described among his friends as "the man with the pipe," Mr Saintsbury received the appropriate gift from the management, on the 500th night of Sir Conan Doyle's play, of a meerschaum pipe, the bowl having been carved in Paris to represent his own head in the character of Sherlock Holmes.

Mr Weedon Grossmith, who for the past eight months has been appearing in The Duke of Killicrankie at the Criterion Theatre, is to have a leading part in Mr Pinero's new play, which is to be produced this season at Wyndham's Theatre, and Miss Dorothy Grimston will also be in the cast.

Mr Willie Clarkson's staff did some smart work on Monday. At 9 30 he received an intimation that all the wigs and props of The Darling of the Gods company had been burnt on the railway line, and by 11 30 he had despatched a fresh and complete set of wigs to the company.

Miss Irene Hentschel, daughter of Mr and Mrs Carl Hentschel, is already developing a taste for the drama. At a recent amateur performance of The Rivals at the Queen's College School, Harley-street, she doubled the parts of Captain Absolute and Julia—certainly an arduous and courageous effort.

Ibsen is writing a new play, in which he will expound his views on war, and will express opinions that are diametrically opposed to those of Tolstoy. Ibsen will attempt to prove in his piece that war is useful and even necessary for the development of the human species, because it sustains ideas of discipline, courage, will, and personal action.

Madame Calvé has signed a contract with M. Schurman, the impresario, for two tours. The first, beginning on Oct. 25, and lasting until Christmas day of the present year, will include Germany, Austria, and Roumania, and in the second, which will only last from the 1st to 31st of January, Madame Calvé will sing in France and Belgium. She will appear only as Carmen, Ophelia, and Santuzza.

Mr Frank Bertram obtained a fine advertisement by the big timber fire at Battersea this week. The building was destroyed except a small wall, and on this a big bill announcing The Convict's Daughter at the Shakespeare Theatre was left in full view. When not appearing in The Convict's Daughter Mr Bertram books his sketch, The Chaperone, at music halls. Unfortunately for himself, he made a double booking for next week, The Convict's Daughter being announced at the Grand Theatre, Birmingand The Chaperone at the Tower, New Brighton. Mr Bertram has therefore engaged Mr Julian Cross to play his original part in the former piece at Birmingham, Mr Bertram appearing in The Chaperone at the Liverpool watering-place.

The old Morgue in Dublin is, it is proposed, to be turned into a home for the Irish National Theatre, of which Mr W. B. Yeats is president. The money is being found by a London lady. There is to be no refreshment bar and no orchestra. The selection of the building is not without a certain appropriateness.

Miss Edith Wynne Matthison has been engaged for two years by Sir Henry Irving to play important parts in England and America.—Mr Felix Edwardes, who has been engaged to support Mr Nat C. Goodwin during his forthcoming American season, sails per s.s. Celtic from Liverpool on Aug 19, and will appear in a strong character part in a new play. This will be Mr Edwardes's third season in America, having for the last two years been stage-director for Mrs Langtry.—Mr Whitford Kane has been engaged by Mr Louis Calvert for the part of Jacky, in his autumn tour of Sunday (North company).

Mr J. Dewhurst, the well-known actor-manager, will have a complimentary benefit on Tuesday at the commencement of his seventeenth year of management of the Theatre Royal, Leigh, Lancs, and his fortieth year as actor-manager. Messrs Chester and Co., the well-known agents, are booking the turns for Mr Dewhurst, and everything will be done to make the benefit very successful.

Mr T. Edgar Pemberton has finished a "Life of Sir Charles Wyndham," which will shortly be published by Messrs Hutchinson. It will contain reproductions of some rare photographs of the distinguished actor, besides Pettie's portrait of Sir Charles as David Garrick, and several likenesses of Miss Mary Moore.

Miss Eleanor Robson, who played the heroine of Merely Mary Ann when the piece was produced at the Garden Theatre, New York, in January last, and who has been secured to sustain it at the Duke of York's, has only had a stage career of three years and a half. She made her first appearance in New York as the heroine of Arizona, afterwards performing here at the Adelphi. She next appeared as Constance, in In a Balcony, and subsequently with Mr Kyrle Bellew in A Gentleman of France, enacting Mdlle De La Vire.

Mr Esmonde Bramley's Shakespearian and old English comedy company will "go off the road" to-day, and, as will be seen from a notice in another column, all contracts for dates from and after that date have been assigned to Mr Herbert J. Montague, proprietor of the Osmond Tearle Répertoire Company, which now includes in its ranks all the sons of the late eminent tragedian. Mr Alexander Marsh and Miss Carrie Baillie are engaged by Mr Montague for leading business for a term of years.

Messrs J. and F. Coulson, the popular lessees and managers of the South Shields Theatre Royal, had a complimentary benefit on the 5th inst. under distinguished patronage. In addition to the performance of The Indian Mutiny an excellent variety entertainment was given, and concluded with a brief speech by Mr John Coulson on behalf of himself and brother.

"The Girl from Bond-Street," a new musical comedy by Roland Oliver, will shortly be toured by Messrs Woodbridge and Rondelle, under the business management of Mr John Mitcheson. The music is by Mr Louis La Rondelle, who was for several years musical conductor at the Surrey.

Mr John F. Asche, by an oversight in typing the copy of a paragraph which he sent to us recently, caused us to state that he had secured the entire rights in the Drury-lane drama The World. It should have read "the provincial and suburban rights." Mr Asche has requested us to make this known, as the paragraph might be misleading. The autumn and spring tour of the drama will commence on Oct. 31 at the Lyceum Theatre, Ipswich.

Miss Beatrice Lamotte, the young Canadian prima donna, who has been so successful as Violet Gray, in The Belle of New York, has been secured by Mr George Musgrove to sustain the part for the farewell tour.—Mr Robert Forsyth, so long associated with the part of Professor Moriarty, in Sherlock Holmes, under the management of Mr Charles Frohman, has been engaged by Stanley Hope to play the title-part in The Master Criminal, on tour.

Agnes Prinderille, a servant girl, was at West London Police-court, on the 5th inst., sent to prison for three months for stealing an ivory powder-box, a leather belt with silver mount, and a purse from her mistress, the late Miss Nellie Farren.

At the Grand Theatre, Islington, a ticket benefit commenced last Monday in aid of the widow and children of the late Mr Albert Billingsley, who died last November. The benefit is under the auspices of the Printing Trades' Union, who will be allowed a certain number of tickets weekly for a further period of three weeks—a month in all.

"AN ACTOR'S ROMANCE."

We warmly admire the energetic and able manner in which Mr Theodore Kremer, the author of the very successful Fatal Wedding, has remodelled his play An Actor's Romance, which was produced at the Camden Theatre on Feb. 8 last. In the original version, the earlier acts were simply tolerable preparations for the famous restaurant and theatre scenes. Now the piece is a strong, well-knit, sensational drama from beginning to end. As the plot of the new version was given in extenso in our last issue, we need only indicate the alterations. There is a certain Black Gang of thieves and murderers; and Robert Livingstone, a comparatively mild villain in the original version, is promoted to the position of Machiavelli and Mephistopheles combined, which is usually occupied by the evil-doer in all successful melodramas. The members of the "Black Gang" murder the actor's father-in-law, and carry off his little girl, who is placed in the charge of a La Frochard-like hag. All this gives "body" to the play, and dovetails in capitally with the effective situations in the three-roomed restaurant, and with the clou of the drama—the shot fired by the jealous adventuress from a private box at the actor on the stage. An Actor's Romance was always certain of success—those two acts were sure to "pull it through;" and, now that its weaker points have been strengthened, it is one of the most effective and thrilling dramas "on the road."

Mr Cecil Barth's company is good all round. Miss Bertha Northam plays Louise Davenport with tender grace and refined delicacy, and wins warm sympathy for the gentle heroine's troubles and anxieties. Mr Guy Hastings enacts Harold Davenport in quite superior style, his method being excellent and his well-controlled vigour being especially commendable. Miss Connie Leon is animated, artless, and amusing as Dottie Dillingham, and is delightfully unrestrained and spontaneous. Mr E. H. Dobell is still the representative of Charlie Cummings; and Mr Barth may be congratulated on retaining so clever a comedian in the cast. Mr Ernest Ruston represents Robert Livingstone with a deadly earnestness and a cool subtlety that are very impressive. The intensity of Livingstone's villainy is indicated to the fullest extent without exaggeration or caricature. A polished and vivid depiction of Jack Woodford is supplied by Mr Percy Marmont, whose manner and appearance are very suitable to the rôle; and Mr John Detliv is light, bright, and comical as the Frenchman, Isidore De Valois. Mr Albert Wainwright's John Lennon is real and incisive; and Mr Tyrone Power supplies a sound and smart impersonation of Police Constable O'Hara; Mr J. C. Croudace being characteristic as Bill Skulkum. A word of warm praise is due to Mr W. S. Herbert, who makes a palpable hit in the small part of a Scotch stage-door keeper. Miss Marie Ada Dowsing is pathetic and unaffected as Phyllis Davenport; Miss Annie Travers gives a graphic portraiture of the heartless and brutal Sal Wiggins; and Miss Alice Esden puts a remarkable amount of intensity, energy, and ability into her bold embodiment of Florence Hastings. Messrs Hicks and Banks's scenery is excellent; and the piece, produced under the able superintendence of Mr Bert Coote, is still at the height of its success.

ENERGY EXTRAORDINARY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—It may interest your readers to have particulars of the alarming accident which happened to The Darling of the Gods company on Sunday last.

When en route from Buxton to Yarmouth, and when passing near to Stamford station, just outside Peterborough, a smell of burning was noticed by the manager (Mr Horace Cole) and Mr Hubert Druce, who were travelling in the front part of the train, and it was observed that a large covered truck was on fire. Those gentlemen immediately endeavoured to stop the train, which was just entering a tunnel, but although the engine-driver acknowledged their appeal he could not pull up until he had gone through. By this time the fire had got such a hold on the truck that nothing could be done to extinguish it, so after separating it from the other part of the train, which had to be done by the members of the company, as no officials beyond the guard were about, the truck was left to burn out. It contained the entire wardrobe, several valuable properties, and much private luggage—in some cases the "little all" of the unfortunate owner. Without any delay Mr Horace Cole rushed back through the tunnel to the nearest signal-box and despatched telegrams to the headquarters in London; and after the truck had been clewed away and Peterborough reached, he left the company in charge of Mr Standley Wade, the stage-manager, and luckily was able to catch the Leeds express for London, where he set to work to get a fresh supply to enable the piece to be played at Yarmouth on Monday night. This really marvellous feat he completed, and left London at 10 o'clock with a complete new set of wardrobe, properties, wigs, and other accessories. On his arrival he was met by Mr Wade, the stage-manager, and special staff, who had everything ready to receive him and convey the stuff to the theatre. The play was performed to an enormous audience, who had felt keen excitement about the accident. When we realise that the accident occurred on Sunday (not the best day for getting things) and the extent of the production, this may be almost considered a "theatrical record."

Yours faithfully, STANDLEY WADE.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

For promenade concerts to start on Aug. 6 is an unprecedented thing. Generally speaking they are much later. But late or early it was evident that London was ready for them, and long before eight o'clock Queen's Hall presented an animated appearance to lovers of music, and by the time the National Anthem began loyal visitors cheered vociferously and even joined in the chorus. Mr H. J. Wood had a reception which proved how enthusiastically the musical public welcome a man who knows his own mind and is ready to run any risk rather than sacrifice good music. He has had great difficulties, but, like a skilful general, on Saturday easily led his forces to victory Those forces were, it is true, newly organised, but the fresh performers showed themselves admirably qualified although those who had quitted the ranks were instrumentalists of the greatest distinction. We need not mention names, but they are well known, and have on more than one occasion distinguished themselves. But the new comers who have enrolled themselves under the banner of one of the great conductors of Europe—for that is what we consider Mr Wood to be—appeared determined to do all in their power to make the present series of promenade concerts as successful as ever. The programme of the first night was largely made up of works familiar to lovers of music, and wisely so, for as a rule these patrons of the art are very conservative. Wagner's overture to Rienzi opened the proceedings, and was finely rendered. At the present day people scarcely accept Rienzi as a representative work of the "master," but in the letters of Liszt and Wagner we see what an important influence Rienzi exercised on the future career of the great Bayreuth composer. The opera was founded on Lord Lytton's romance, and the libretto owed much to the dramatic ability of the composer. For Wagner was nothing if not a great dramatic musician. We find this quality in The Flying Dutchman, in Tannhäuser, in Lohengrin; in fact, the drama in these works is almost as important as the music. But Wagner insisted upon a "combination of all the arts," and dismissed the term "grand opera" in favour of "music drama," which fully and finely expresses what he achieved in Tristan und Isolde. Rienzi was first given at Dresden in 1842 but the opera only reached England in 1879. But Wagner met for a time with great opposition in this country, his style being the very opposite of the ballad operas of Balfe and others of that type. "The music of the future," as it was then called, has become "the music of the present," and needs no further eulogy or description. But an extreme contrast on Saturday night was afforded in the overture to William Tell, by Rossini, which, old-fashioned as it may seem, was rendered with such fire and animation as to evoke the warmest enthusiasm, the violins being particularly excellent in the rapid passages, and Mr Wood's conducting being as brilliant as the popular overture itself. Grieg's Peer Gynt music, always much admired, especially the famous "March of the Mountain King," was greeted with absolute thunders of applause. To show the difference between past and present promenaders we may mention that Bach's Gavotte in E and the old master's favourite air, so often played as a solo, found as much favour as the lightest of modern compositions. The only novelty was an organ concerto by Signor Enrico Bossi, director of the Bologna Conservatoire, which German critics would, perhaps, describe as "Kapelmeister music," but the Adagio has merit, and Mr Tonking, the organist, displayed great ability in playing the work. Miss Lillie Wormald and Mr John Harrison were the vocalists, the lady being very successful in the "Bell song," Lakmé, by Delibes, and Mr Harrison winning great favour in "Onaway, Awake," from Mr Coleridge Taylor's popular Hiawatha. So with the fullest promise of a brilliant season the Promenade Concerts began, and will last for more than eleven weeks. When the cooler evenings come we expect Queen's Hall will be even more crowded than it was on Saturday.

Mr Henry Wood, who conducts foreign masterpieces so splendidly, is not unmindful of English musicians, and on Tuesday a new Concerto for the violin by Professor Stewart Macpherson, an esteemed musician of the Royal Academy of Music, appeared in the programme. Violinists often complain that while good works for the pianoforte are produced by thousands, violin solos are frequently poor, thin, and flimsy. We are not forgetting that beautiful piece, the "Benedictus" of Sir Alexander Mackenzie, which deserves to be named with the "Elégie" of Ernst, the "Reverie" of Vieuxtemps, and the "Elégie" of De Beriot. The slow movement of Mr Macpherson's solo is masterly, full of grace and expression, and well adapted to bring out the talent of a capable violinist. Mr Spencer Dyke, the player, has won most cordial recognition as a student, but he must now be regarded as an excellent professional player. Both the violinist and the composer were twice recalled with enthusiasm. Other items of interest were the overture to Egmont by Beethoven, Wagner's famous prelude to Die Meistersinger, and Mendelssohn's exquisite "Spring Song" and "Bees' Wedding," from the "Songs Without Words," arranged for the orchestra by Ernest Guiraud. Miss Ethel Weatherley and Mr James Davis made first appearances. The lady is a soprano who has studied under Madame Marie Roze, and profited thereby. She sang "Nobles Seigneurs," from Les Huguenots, and Mr Davis displayed a charming tenor voice in "O Vision Entrancing," by Goring Thomas. He was called upon to repeat the graceful melody. On Wednesday Tschaikowsky was the musical star, and Mr Wood never appears to greater advantage than when he conducts the music of the delightful Russian composer. He shines especially in the Pathetic Symphony, that noble work in which the Russian musician almost approaches Beethoven. The newly constructed orchestra gave a fine performance finely directed, and appears likely to make the Promenade Concerts as successful as they have ever been. The vocal items were greatly to the taste of the enormous audience. Miss Hope Morgan sang the "Ave Maria" of Max Bruch so well that she was twice recalled, and Mr John Harrison was successful in two songs of Tschaikowsky. A solo for the harp by Mr Alfred Kastner was another welcome item, and the second part, conducted by Mr H. Lyell-Tayler, included a brilliant fantasia on Wagner's Tannhäuser.

THE seventeenth annual outing of Carl Hentschel, Limited, process block engravers, took place on Saturday last, when over 200 of Mr Hentschel's employés travelled down to Windsor by train. On arriving at the Royal borough, coaches and brakes were in readiness to convey the party for a drive through the beautiful avenue of beeches in Windsor Park and thence through Virginia Park, by the margin of the lake. At the village the party were photographed by the side of the waters, and then drove back to Windsor to lunch at the White Hart. Mr Carl Hentschel, the popular head of the firm, who presided, referred in an interesting speech to the fact that, whereas seventeen years ago he started with five men and a wages bill of £8, to-day he employed nearly 400 men and boys. He paid a warm tribute to the loyal support and sympathy of his employees, without which, he declared, the firm could not have prospered as it had done. One of the most gratifying features of the business was that no less than 130 of the men had shares in it. He alluded with pleasure to the rapid growth of the colour department, and mentioned that when last Christmas a colour proof of the King's portrait, printed by Carl Hentschel, Limited, was submitted to His Majesty he was so pleased with it that he sent it off to the German Emperor as a Christmas card.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. CHARLES HOWITT.

MR CHARLES HOWITT entered the profession about twenty-one years ago. Previously, like many of his confrères, he served a useful probation as an amateur, and was one of the organisers and controllers of the Ixion Amateur Dramatic Club, which had for its president the late Lord Randolph Churchill, and for its vice-president Mr George R. Sims. His resolution to adopt the stage as a profession was viewed with considerable apprehension by his family, but opposition and persuasion proved in vain. The discovery, however, on the part of an aunt that he had a habit of contracting his eyebrows, which put her very much in mind of Phelps, probably assisted in some measure to dissipate their misgivings, for they all turned up in force on the occasion of his début, which was in the part of Ludovico, in Othello, a part which did not afford him much opportunity of indulging his Phelps-like facial peculiarity. The year 1885 saw him under the management of the late Mr Walter Gooch, supporting Miss Fannie Leslie in the original production of Jack-in-the-Box, in which Miss Ada Reeve, then a child, played the part of a little Italian organ-grinder. After this came stock seasons in Glasgow, Paisley, Yarmouth, &c. Then Mr Howitt secured an engagement with Messrs Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett, an invaluable one for experience. Their répertoire was extensive and varied, involving as it did a fresh part nearly every night with a farce or two thrown in during the week. With all this work nothing of a slovenly nature was tolerated, and the result is some artistes who have achieved foremost positions can look back with gratitude to their early association with that firm. As a proof of their popularity Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett could visit a small town like Stroud, near Gloucester, and play for eight consecutive nights to packed business. Mr Howitt ventures to think that the advent of a few répertoire companies of this description would afford the best education for the young actor, and would dispense with the necessity of instituting such unsatisfactory substitutes as dramatic schools. Another useful experience was with Mr Fred Wright, and Mr Howitt recalls vividly how many a time and oft his villainous head was banged upon the stage by Mr Huntley Wright, to the uproarious delight and approval of pit and gallery. After this followed engagements too numerous to mention; amongst them being Simeon Strong, The Idler; heavy lead &c., with Mr Ernest Dottridge; Mr Robert Arthur, Trumpet Call; Miss Mary Austin, Passion's Power; Miss Emma Hutchison, Squire of Domes; and Mr Henry Dundas, Cheer, Boys, Cheer, in support of Mr Henry Neville. Following these Mr Howitt played Harry O'Mailly, in The English Rose. This led to an offer from Mr H. C. Arnold for another of Mr Boyne's parts, Capt. Harry Vernon, in The Prodigal Daughter, which he played for two tours. An engagement with Mr W. W. Kelly ensued, as Archibald Carlyle, in The New East Lynne, followed by one with Mr J. F. Elliston (one of many, by the way, stretching over a period of years), as Richard Redcliffe, in Alone in London. Then came an offer from Mr Leonard Rayne for South Africa. This was in 1900, and since then, till the latter part of last year Mr Howitt was entirely associated with that gentleman, who proved a friend as well as manager. His appreciation of Mr Howitt's work took the form of (on an average) four benefits a year, and a cheque for a hundred guineas at the end of his engagement. During two visits to South Africa, Mr Howitt has produced, stage-managed, and played principal parts in something like forty pieces, including A Royal Divorce, Prodigal Daughter, Message from Mars, Mariners of England, Paul Kauvar, Little Jim, Under Two Flags, English Nell, Lord Fauntleroy, English Rose, Jack-in-the-Box, Two Orphans, Rob Roy, Master and Man, Two Little Vagabonds, Pair of Spectacles, Oh! Suzannah, &c. Mr Howitt's most recent successes, some of which aroused little short of enthusiasm with South African playgoers, are Baron Bonelli (The Eternal City), Charles Surface, Captain Kettle, Convict (Bishop's Candlesticks), Captain Hawtree (to the Sam Gerridge of Mr Harry Nicholls), Sir Brice Skene (The Masqueraders), Lord Robert Ure (The Christian), Hursher (Sherlock Holmes, Private Detective), Cardinal Richelieu, and Chim Fang (The Cat and the Cherub). Upon his return from South Africa he was engaged by Mr H. Beerbohm Tree as stage-manager, and to play Pope Pius XI., in The Eternal City. Anent his performance of this part he recalls with pride a high compliment paid him by that consummate artiste, Mr Albert Chevalier. It certainly redounds to his versatility that he was able to achieve a distinct success in two such dissimilar parts as Bonelli and the Pope. Mr Howitt married Miss Mary Ford, a leading lady well known to the profession as an actress of great emotional ability. During her recent temporary retirement she has devoted herself to playwriting with no inconsiderable success. Mr Howitt also pleads guilty to being the author of two plays, several recitations, a collection of theatrical parodies, &c. He is also very fond of portrait painting in oils.

MISS TESSA MYERS.

MISS TESSA MYERS was originally intended for the concert platform, receiving her musical education at the Royal Manchester College of Music, her singing masters being Messrs Andrew Black and John Acton. Her voice, however, not fulfilling its early promise, Miss Myers decided to adopt the stage as a profession, being emboldened to do so by the encouragement held out to her by press and public on her appearance as Puck, at a reading of A Midsummer Night's Dream by students of the College. In the spring of 1901, after some preliminary experience on the concert platform, in costume recitals, "Quarrel" and "Screen Scenes," &c., with Mr Ryder Boys, Miss Myers obtained her first engagement, playing Afy Hallijohn and Joyce, in East Lynne for a special week. She was then engaged by Messrs Maclaren and Furnival for a tour of Sir F. C. Burnand's Proof, to play Martha and Julie and understudy the leading part of Adrienne, which she played several times with success. During this engagement, which lasted ten months, Miss Myers also played Lizette, in a revival of the costume play Life and Honour. Mr E. Van Biene then engaged her for a tour of Tom, Dick, and Harry, to play Isabel Howard, Miss Myers afterwards playing the more important part of Molly Somers, "the girl with the laugh." A summer tour then followed with Mr Reginald Dartrey as Salome, in Pinero's delightful comedy, Dandy Dick, Miss Myers also playing Ninetta, in a revival of The Woman in Red, and Barbara Hare, in East Lynne. At the conclusion of this engagement Miss Myers joined Mr Herbert Greville's company, playing Dora Brasket, in the late Walter Lonnen's comedy, Too Many Cooks, and Margaret, in Hogmanay. Then followed several special engagements, notably as Myrine, in Pygmalion and Galatea (supporting Miss Mary Austin as Galatea), and with Miss Molesworth and Mr Blow in Under Two Flags. Miss Myers had arranged to play her old part of Salome, in Dandy Dick, this summer, under Mr Dudley Clinton's management, but was unfortunately unable to do so owing to a slight illness.

MISS LUCY WILSON.

MISS LUCY WILSON when only in her seventeenth year made her first professional appearance as a member of Mr Wallace Erskine's répertoire company, playing in Niobe, Jane, &c. She then went to the Strand Theatre for a short season under the management of Mr Willie Edouin. After that she appeared at the Opera Comique and the Prince of Wales's Theatre, and then started on tour again, being engaged to play the Queen, in La Tosca. During the illness of the leading lady she played the title-rôle several times. Wishing to gain experience she next accepted an offer to play in a stock season at Paisley, sustaining, amongst other leading parts, Camille, Ophelia, The Lady of Lyons, Helen, in The Hunchback; Mercy Merrick, in The New Magdalen; &c. Then followed a short tour with the latter play. Mr William Greet next engaged Miss Wilson to play Stephanus, in The Sign of the Cross, which she played during the spring and summer tour, and Mercia on the following tour. During the vacation she accepted an engagement from Mr Gordon Craig to play Juliet and Ophelia in the suburbs. Then followed several leading parts at the Lyric, Hammersmith, during a stock season, and an engagement with Mr J. L. Shine, playing lead. Miss Wilson was next engaged by Mr Charles Lander to play the Comtesse De Candale, in A Marriage of Convenience. Then Miss Wilson appeared for a season at Bath, playing Camille, Lady Isabel, Pauline, Called Back; and Lucy Sacheverell, in Mr Laurence Irving's play Richard Lovelace, &c. This was followed by a year's starring engagement as Paula Tanqueray, Leslie (The Profligate), and Camille (La Dame aux Camelias), these pieces being under the management of Mr Eade Montefiore. It was on the Camille tour Miss Wilson met Mr Gordon Bailey, to whom she was married at the end of the tour. Since her marriage, with the exception of a few months, Miss Wilson has been acting abroad. In Australia she played Lady Delilah (Sorrows of Satan), Vere (Moths) and Marita (A Royal Rival), and in America Gervaise with Mr Charles Warner in Drink. Miss Wilson has but shortly returned from America, and in June she and Mr Gordon Bailey commenced a summer tour with Mr A. W. Pinero's Second Mrs Tanqueray and The Profligate. Among the many parts Miss Wilson has played—a number of which have not been mentioned—her favourites are Juliet, La Tosca, and Paula Tanqueray.

MR JOHN CABOURN.

MR. JOHN CABOURN.

MR JOHN CABOURN played a fair round of parts as an amateur, both in the provinces and in London, in connection with the Irving Dramatic Club and also with Mr Charles Fry, with whom he had the privilege of appearing in many of his costume recitals. It was in the spring, 1895, that he took his first salaried engagement, playing Harker, in A Bunch of Violets. After some experience in the "smalls," he was engaged by Messrs Abud and Yorke Stephens to play Jeffreys and Lord Topham, in The Prisoner of Zenda, under whose management he remained eighteen months. Then followed an engagement with Mr W. S. Penley to play Dick, in A Little Ray of Sunshine. After that, juvenile lead in a drama entitled The Cross of Olga, and Captain Crosstree, in Black-Eyed Susan, the latter under the management of Miss Kate Phillips. Farcical comedy followed, with a tour of Mr George Arliss's A Wild Rabbit, and afterwards A Brace of Partridges, in which he originally played Lord Wallerton, and subsequently the dual rôle. In the spring of 1900 Mr Cabourn was engaged by Mr Charles Cartwright to play the late Mr Terriss's part in a version of The Lyons Mail; Bassanio, in The Merchant of Venice; and Captain Chandler, in The Middleman. After a short tour with Jedbury Junior in the summer of that year he was once more with Mr Abud to support Miss Esme Beringer in a play written by her mother entitled Jim Belmont. For eighteen months he played Sir Chichester Frayne, in The Gay Lord Quex, and then the heavy lead, Lord Carford, in English Nell, supporting Miss Florence St. John. In the autumn of 1902 Mr Cabourn was under the management of Miss Madge M'Intosh and Mr C. V. France, playing Mr Bishop's part in The Case of Rebellious Susan; and the Rev. Dr. Daubeney, in A Woman of No Importance. The spring of 1903 found him playing the American, in Brown at Brighton, under the management of Mr John Donald. After another season under Miss M'Intosh and Mr France, playing the Colonial Secretary, in His Excellency the Governor, and Canon Chasuble, in The Importance of being Earnest, he went to the Court Theatre appearing in The Tempest, Romeo and Juliet (Tybalt) and as a young Scotch laird in a play produced there entitled The Question, written by John Strange Winter.

MADAME SARAH BERNHARDT has signed a contract with the Director of the Berlin Theatre, by which she agrees to give eight performances in that city at the end of October.

PARIS THEATRICAL NOTES

(FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT).

IN spite of the heat Mons. Claretie treated us to a new production last week. Le Père Lebonnard, by Jean Achard, first saw the light in 1886, and was actually put into rehearsal at the Comédie-Française by Got, who was anxious to play the title-rôle. But something happened, no one quite knows what—either Got cared less for the part when he began rehearsing it or the play itself did not suit the members of the company; at any rate, it was shelved. Antoine played it later, but his performance was not so satisfactory as might have been expected, as in his fear of appearing to imitate Got he erred in the opposite direction. Ernest Novelli has made the play one of the most popular in his répertoire in Italy. Sylvain has had his eye on the piece for some time, and last year when he went on tour he took the play with him and produced it at Asnières (an outlying suburb of Paris), where he created such a success that Mons. Claretie promised to produce the play for him this summer. This was successfully done last week. As for the play, it is a domestic drama of the most pronounced type, but strangely enough it is in verse, which by no means helps the action of the play. Lebonnard is a kindly old clockmaker, with a son who is engaged to a young lady of the aristocracy, whilst his daughter is engaged to a young doctor, of whom the mother disapproves. The daughter, disappointed in love, takes refuge in bed and in tears. Her brother disputes with Père Lebonnard, who, becoming angry, tells the youth that he is no son of his. The mother weepingly admits the truth, which so stuns the son that he relinquishes all opposition, and all ends happily. The play is not "the thing" in this case; it has nothing new, either in construction or idea. All its success, if it has any, will be due to the magnificent acting of Mons. Sylvain as the father. He was ably supported by Madame Sylvain as the erring mother, and Mdlle. Géniat as the timid, loving girl. Mitzi Dalti had a hard task in the unsympathetic rôle of Blanche, but she played so well that she conquered the dislike of the audience for her part. The play may suit the management's purpose for these dead weeks of summer, and doubtless the provincials who are in Paris will enjoy the performance.

THERE is matter for a pretty little quarrel in the dispute between Porel of the Vaudeville and Bernstein the author. The latter was commissioned by Porel to write him a play for next season entitled Rafale, a comedy; but at the time that the play should have been read to Porel Bernstein said he had not yet started on it, and offered another in its place. This latter was to have been read on July 23, but when, after many delays, author and manager met in Paris, Bernstein demanded the cancelling of his contract and, further, the breaking of Madame Simone Le Bargy's engagement also. The couple parted in mutual wrath. Later, however, Porel cancelled the engagements of both author and actress. It is now rumoured that, in all probability, Bernstein's play will be produced at the Renaissance with Madame Le Bargy in the leading rôle. But yet again we hear that Franck, the manager of the Gymnase (where Madame Le Bargy made her great success in Le Retour de Jerusalem), having read Bernstein's play Bercail, will produce it as the second attraction of his autumn programme, for which he has specially engaged Madame Le Bargy, as also Tarride (who has just returned from his successful engagement at the Avenue Theatre, London) and André Calmettes. But in the meantime all is not plain sailing at the Gymnase. For the original intention of the management was to have given Le Friquet, by "Gyp," as the opening attraction, a French version of the popular story having been arranged by Willy for Mdlle. Polaire (quite a different play to the dramatised version by Pierre Berton which Charles Frohman has secured). But George Ancey, the author of Ces Messieurs, the piece which for so long the Censorship refused to permit to be performed, has a contract also with a time limit of Oct. 31; therefore, if Franck is going to do Bernstein's play, Bercail, and Le Friquet before Oct. 31, one of the two plays will have a very limited number of performances; and neither author will be likely to agree to such a limit. When Ces Messieurs is produced Jane Hading will appear in it, and Tarride will play the Bishop. In the meantime Madame Hading is on the look out for a theatre for herself.

MADAME BERNHARDT proposes reviving Victor Hugo's Angelo, which was first performed at the Comédie-Français in 1835. Bernhardt will play the part originally created by Mdlle. Mars, whilst Max, whose reconciliation with the great actress is complete, will essay the title-rôle created by Beauvallet. But Madame Bernhardt will commence her season by an adaptation of Sienkiewicz's Fire and Sword, which her son Maurice is preparing for her. This will be followed by Sleeping Beauty, a fairy play in verse from the pens of Jean Richepin and Cain. The music is to be composed by Massenet.

THIS has been the season of trials and examinations at the Conservatoire, and much interest has been manifested in the aspirants to dramatic, vocal, or Terpsichorean fame. It is a curious fact that those who gain the first prizes seldom rise to any great rank. Many are lost immediately in oblivion; whereas those who have merely passed have risen to the highest ranks. Take, for example, Bernhardt, Croisette, Caron, Réjane, Bartet, Le Bargy, Mounet-Sully, Coquelin aîné—none of these ever obtained better than second prizes. It was with difficulty that Guitry and Tarride carried off first prizes, whilst the winners of the same years with these stars are never even heard of.

MISS DOLORES MACLEAN, a young American girl who hails from New York and who has only been in Paris for the last six months, has been engaged at the Gymnase, where she will make her début at the revival of Maurice Donnay's great success, Le Retour de Jerusalem.

BROADWAY THEATRE, NEW-CROSS.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Play, entitled
"THE HAPPY LIFE."

A great treat is provided by the energetic management of this theatre in the engagement of Mr Herbert Waring, who, supported by his clever company, is appearing in Louis N. Parker's delightful play The Happy Life. Mr Waring's own performance in the part of Cyril Charteris is beyond praise, it is so perfectly natural and human. He is admirably supported by Mr Arthur Hardy as Jimmy Pastor and Mr William Sauter as Prince Szczepanowski, and a word of praise is due to Mr J. W. Lawrence as Harold Boughton, whose appearance and make-up remind one strongly of a popular living playwright. Mr F. H. France is very good as Vyvian Pettigrew Smith. Mr Harry Cane gives a remarkably good impersonation of the American millionaire, John Charteris; this gentleman's performance is clever and unexaggerated. Mr George Ward gives a lifelike representation of the crushed and disappointed Dicky Smith. Other smaller parts are well acted. Miss Maude Hoffman is a pathetic and altogether charming Evelyn; Mrs Russ Whytal plays Maggie very pleasingly; Miss Mabel Knowles is a delightful Halcyon; and Mrs. H. Cane is excellent as Mrs Pettigrew Smith.

MR WILLIAM MAFFEY, who very gallantly rescued a boy from drowning at Portsmouth the other day, has for a considerable time been a very valuable officer of the Musical Copyright Association. Mr Maffey rushed, fully clothed, into the sea, and swam out to the lad, who had got out of his depth.

White, F. Egerton, Two Bostons, Mr Collins, Thomas and Miss Maggie Duggan, together with artistes appearing last week at Birmingham Empire.

CRICKET.

Professions v. "Barnes-ites"

On Tuesday an interesting twelve a-side cricket match was witnessed on the Barnes Cricket Club ground between teams chosen by Mr Will Evans and Host Garrett, of the Bull's Head Hotel, Barnes. Mr Evans's team was made up of brother professionals, and Mr Garrett's of members of the Barnes Cricket Club and local tradesmen. The home team went to the wickets first, but owing to the excellent fielding of their opponents had only compiled 100 runs at the fall of the tenth wicket. A stand was then made, and 63 were added before Loader was smartly stumped by Knowles, Tolkein carrying out his bat for 61. As will be seen by the score, Will Evans made a couple of runs and M'Naughton a "duck." Scores:—

Mr Garrett's XII.—A. Stevens, c Knowles, b Wright, 5; T. Manders, c Horace, b M'Naughton, 28; F. Bird, c Farrell, b M'Naughton, 1; E. Sale, c Horace, b M'Naughton, 2; H. A. Busher, st Knowles, b M'Naughton, 2; J. H. Tolkein, not out, 61; W. Barker, b Holland, 28; J. Abbot, b Cobra, 4; R. Sudds, b Cobra, 0; R. Meredith, b Holland, 0; C. Cray, b Cobra, 1; B. Loader, st Knowles, b M'Naughton, 3; extras, 28; total, 163.

Mr Will Evans's XII.—A. Wright, l b w, b Barker, 28; Holland, c Tolkein, b Barker, 12; Walker, b Tolkein, 5; Farrell, b Tolkein, 0; Crozier, run out, 8; Cobra, l b w, b Tolkein, 18; T. M'Naughton, by Tolkein, 0; Will Evans, b Manders, 2; Knowles, b Barker, 29; Lidden, b Manders, 12; Jackson, l b w, b Barker, 0; W. Wright, not out, 0; extras, 20; total, 134.

At Kempton-park on Wednesday the Greenwood Handicap Plate of 300 sovs was won easily by five lengths by Mr George Edwardes's five-year-old, Pollion, by Ermak out of Pomponne.

Colonel Bordaverry, the crack marksman, whose long visit to the Alhambra is drawing to a close, opens at the Folies Bergère, Paris, on Sept. 1, when he will introduce an entirely new feature into his clever turn. It is even more difficult and effective than his present successful attempt to play tunes on the piano by means of shooting at the wires.

Mr Eustace H. Jay, of the National Palace, Croydon, writes:—"Allow me, through your valuable paper, to thank those ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted me in securing Mrs Jay's admission to the Anti-Vivisection Hospital, Albert-bridge-road, where any visitors will be gladly welcomed by her. I should like also to contradict the rumour that I had an anniversary performance on Monday last."

HISTORIC PROVINCIAL PLAYHOUSE.

By T. H. Barrow.

In history and associations no theatre outside London possesses greater interest than the Theatre Royal, York. It occupies a site in the very heart of the ancient city, and here has enjoyed an unbroken career for nearly 140 years. The history of the drama in York is unusually rich in two particulars, its religious and its secular aspects. Religious plays were, of course, specialised in the quaint periodical celebrations of Corpus Christi, otherwise known as the Feast of the Blessed Sacrament, instituted about the middle of the thirteenth century and continued down to the Reformation. The supercession of the Roman Catholic religion by the state recognition of Protestantism had much to do with the gradual transition of the religious to secular plays; and in taking a brief survey of the drama and its changes one is bound to recognise the obvious fact that in the earlier times the public pageants in the larger cities not only formed part of the religious and communal life, but enjoyed the personal recognition and support of even royalty. For example, in the year 1397 King Richard II sojourned at York. In honour of his presence at the Corpus Christi Festival the theatre (then a portable structure, by-the-bye, moved at convenience from street to street) was newly painted, four new scenes and a banner were provided, and the players and minstrels received additional rewards. I should here explain that the pageants were produced by the various trade guilds, of which two—the Merchant Adventurers and the Merchant Taylors—exist in York at the present day.

The Guildhall, behind the Mansion House, completed in 1461, was at once used for dramatic purposes, and thus commenced the decline of the hitherto popular portable wooden theatre. In 1483 the Gredo Play was presented in this edifice in the distinguished presence of King Richard III, the Queen, Prince Edward, the Court, and the Lord Mayor of York and civic dignitaries. An attempt was made in York after the Reformation to revive the religous plays; but it was ineffectual. Interludes then became the fashion, and were very popular. They were for the most part half religious, half secular. So far as I can ascertain, the earliest record of the secular drama in York was in 1541, when King Henry VIII introduced to the citizens for the first time his Company of Players. Eighteen years later Lord Robert's Players visited the city, bearing a letter of introduction addressed to the Earl of Shrewsbury, the Lord President of the North, who was then presiding at the Manor House, now the Wilberforce Memorial School for the Blind, close to the theatre. In 1565 came Lord Scrope's Players, who received (possibly from the civic purse) 13s. 4d.; then the servants and players of the Earl of Bedford, who received 10s.; then Lord Ryche's Players, who were rewarded with 6s. 8d., most likely on account of a short season; then the Earl of Leicester's Players, whose fees amounted to 13s. 4d. James Burbage, the originator of permanent theatre buildings in England, was a member of this company.

In June, 1584, John Grafton, a local schoolmaster, obtained from the Lord Mayor and Common Council permission to "set forth certain compiled speeches" in one of the portable machines at Midsummer Show. Later came the Earl of Oxford's company, who received 20s., and the Corporation went to the expense of 16d. for torches for the due presentation of a play in the Guildhall.

Amateur theatricals in York date from June, 1584, for in that month the boys attending the Dean and Chapter's Grammer School performed in the presence of the Dean and the clergy, and received 20s. out of the Chapter Funds. A year later they again appeared with a play and were given 40s., therefore it is reasonable to presume that they had made some advance in histrionic exercises. Guy Fawkes, then aged about fifteen years, was one of the pupils, and doubtless took part in the piece.

THE OLD CRYPT,

In 1587 came players who appeared under the patronage of Lord Essex (30s.), the Lord Admiral (30s.), Lord Shandos (20s.), Lord Sussex (30s.), and Lord Stafford (6s. 8d.) About the same time came the Queen's Majesty's Players, who appeared in the royal livery in the Common Hall, and received for their services £3 5s. 8d. About 1590 the Guildhall was for some reason abandoned, and the St. Anthony's Hall in Peaseholme-green, now used as a blue-coat school, was for a long period the popular theatre. In 1705 the Market House in Thursday Market was completed, and plays were given in a spacious upper room. This building no longer exists.

Mary Davies, the daughter of a clergyman, wrote in 1716, the comedy The Northern Heiress; or, the Humours of York, which was acted in London and York. Some of the scenes depicted the manners and customs of York society of that day, hence the piece drew for a time large audiences. After the accession of George II, stage plays were given in Mr Bank's cockpit outside Bootham Bar. The manager was Mr Keregan, whose enterprise in the city was so successful that he built a new theatre in my Lord Irwin's yard on the north side of the Minster, probably without the city walls, and in the thoroughfare now known as Gillygate. Shakespeare's Henry IV., with the humours of Sir John Falstaff, was given on Oct. 1, 1734, with new costumes and new scenery from London. In 1737 John Arthur, probably a member of a stock company, produced at this theatre an original opera, The Lucky Discovery; or, the Tanner of York, he himself taking a principal character. In 1738 Arthur's piece was honoured with a presentation at Covent-garden Theatre, London, where he rose in popular favour as clown in pantomime. Joseph Peterson, a colleague of Arthur, produced in the York Theatre, in 1739, an opera, The Raree Show; or, the Fox Trap't, he himself playing the character Sir Fopling Conceit.

Keregan, who was obviously and admittedly "demonetized," seems to have relied to some extent on public subscriptions, for he periodically made his patrons acquainted with his balance sheet, in his case the deficit being about £100 a quarter. The enterprising impresario who had given Arthur and Peterson their chances died in 1740 or 1741, whereupon Arthur issued a proposal for a new and commodious theatre for York, to be constructed on a London model. He hoped to maintain the house by quarterly subscriptions, and promised an attractive programme of plays, operas, farces and pantomimes, but his project was not warmly received, and he soon afterwards transferred his energies to the Theatre Royal, Bath, where, after being for some years "directing manager," he died amid the regret of a large circle of theatrical and other friends.

The York Theatre Royal stands upon a site formerly occupied by ecclesiastical (probably monastic) buildings, and there still remain an interesting crypt (to the right of the pit stalls entrance) and some original masonry at the back of the stage which must be many centuries old. In an excellent little brochure—"A Brief Historical Sketch of the Drama in York"—published in 1885 by Mr George Benson, of York, appears this brief reference to the origin of the present theatre:—"Subsequently (circa 1756) a small theatre was erected by Joseph Baker, under a lease of the ground from the Corporation, upon the present site, and over an ancient stone crypt, supposed by some to be part of the remains of St. Leonard's Hospital and by others to be one of the crypts of St. Peter's Church, which was destroyed by fire in King Stephen's reign in the year 1137. This was 767 years ago, and assuming that the hospital or church was actively devoted to religious purposes for say 200 years, the ancient crypt of the theatre will be nearly 1,000 years old. The crypt is in an excellent state of preservation. The roof is groined, the material used is Yorkshire stone (with a liberal supply of mortar), and the structure is apparently as strong and durable as at any period of its history. In the section of old masonry still remaining at the back of the stage the character of the work is very similiar to that of the crypt, and there is an archway which would point to the conclusion that the wall marked a passage from a yard to some interior part of the hospital, as there still exists in it a large arch with keystone surrounded by a broad ledge.

AMUSEMENTS IN BELGIUM.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 8.—The tropical heat that has passed over our little country has emptied our towns, and our seaside places have become the centre of attraction as well as of attractions. Entertainments are just now plentiful in Ostend, and the Kursaal, the Scala, and Eldorado are doing their utmost to draw the crowds of visitors who, though gambling has been put a stop to, are parading this beautiful resort.

At the Kursaal symphony concerts, with the assistance of well-known opera singers, are given every day. The Opéra Comique of Paris has sent Mdlle. Margyl and M. Dufranne this week, and Tamagno is coming next week. At the Theatre Royal they have been performing in succession Bisson's comedy Jalouse, De Berr and Gavault's vaudeville L'Enfant du Miracle, Decourcelle's Abbé Constantin, Valabrègue's farce Le Premier Mari de France, and Dumas's fine comedy Denise.

At the Scala may be seen the marvellous juggler, Severus Schaeffer, Rosita and Herrera, kikapoo dancers; Alba and Arnold, American bakers; Miss Flo Thropp, and the Eight Sisters Ruby, acrobatic dancers, besides other interesting turns.

The Eldorado is scoring with the revue, Ostend, Forward! in which can be seen and heard our best comic artists from Brussels, such as Jane Valda and Madame Deltenre; Messrs Liesse, Léopold, and others—the dancing part being entrusted to the Three Victorias, from the Alhambra, London. A special mention must be made in the first part of the programme of Me Next, Leo Montague, English comedian and dancer, who has made a decided hit.

Blankenberghe, further along the coast, although not so important as Ostend, has its share of amusements. Mr A. Ghilardi-Hanssens, the manager of the pier, is presenting a very decent programme to his numerous audiences. Among the fine turns introduced we have remarked Malto, in his imitations; Carliny, a swell juggler; Brice Bolton, a clever ventriloquist; and Mdlle. Tourjanne, from the Théâtre de la Monnaie.

In Brussels the Waux-Hall concerts being given by the fine orchestra from the Monnaie, and in the open air, are drawing very good audiences, and are patronised by the élite and specially by the English colony. Last Thursday the big garden was literally packed, the attractions of the evening being a young singer, Mdlle. Berthe Seroen, and Mons. Delgay, the manager over here of the Æolian Company of New York, who most artistically rendered on the pianola a few choice pieces, and had a big success.

The only theatres open at present are the Olympia, where a touring company is performing one-act pieces of the usual modern Parisian style, and the Théâtre Molière, where the old Cloches de Corneville are merrily ringing this week.

The Scala has just commenced its season with a varied programme of French music hall singers, the eccentrics, Lorenzo and Vos, Mdlle Dziria, a dancer from the Scala, Paris, Mdlle. Delmora, in plastic poses, modern jewellery, and the comic performers on the bars, the Brothers Michoe.

The Palais d'Eté, always cool in spite of the heat, and more patronised by foreigners than any of our places of entertainment, has secured a most excellent combination of artistes. Carmen Mahy, chanteuse de genre; the Two Whites, eccentric dancers; the Minellis Famille, in an original acrobatic act; Ricardo and Salving, quick and neat hand-to-hand balancers; Bergeret, instrumentalist and bird imitator; Chinko and his little sister, the world-renowned boy juggler; the Trio Wania, in their sclavonic dances; the Brothers Schwartz, the funniest of parodists; the Cherton gymnasts; and last, but not least, Anne Dancrey, the star of the evening, a splendid singer and a most graceful dancer, whom we remember as the pretty and clever partner of the Dantes.

"THE WORLD."

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—Referring to the paragraph in your last issue re The World, we notice that you state that Mr Asche has secured the "entire rights" of this drama. This is somewhat misleading, as the play has only been let to him for twelve months for the provinces and the London suburban theatres.

Yours faithfully, for Self and Co., exors.,
p.p. FRANK RENDLE,
Exor. of the late Sir Augustus Harris.

Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—Mr George Edwardes's company is here with The Cingalee, under the direction of Mr C. J. Abud. The mounting and dressing are most elaborate, and the company is of high excellence. Mr Frank Danby's Chambhuddy Ram is a finished performance, and his Baboo English convulses the house. Mr Harold Thorley is a manly Harry Vereker, his singing being well received; Mr Leedham Bantock as Boobhamba gives a capital personation; the quick-tempered Sir Peter Loftus finds an able exponent in Mr Fred Kaye; Miss Florence Smithson is very sweet and winsome as Nanoya, and sings her numbers delightfully; Peggy Sabine is played by Miss Eva Sandford in a charming and vivacious manner, her "Monkey" duet with Mr Frank Danby evoking great applause; and Miss Lydia Nervil is a characteristic Lady Patricia Vane. The augmented orchestra, under the bâton of Mr Harold Vicars, is deserving of all praise.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—We have here this week the powerful drama Between Two Women, presented by Mr Frederick Melville's company. Mr Alfred Ward gives an admirable rendering of the Rev. Philip Carton; Mr Fred Morgan is an excellent James Durwood; Mr Fred Sandy ably portrays the part of Dick Burgess; Miss Marie Robson is a piquant Violet Thornton; and Miss Morita Valda an acceptable Carmen De Savereaux. Miss Alice Bower's Blind Boy is a very pathetic piece of work. Mr Sydney Price and Mr Harry Marlow are good as the Earl of Millard and Harry Millard. The lighter touches are given by Mr Tubby Edlin as Jack Pringle and Miss Sybil Hammersley as Polly Popp. The other characters are well sustained.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—At the top of the bill here is G. H. Chirgwin, the white-eyed musical Kaffir; his turn is much appreciated. Tom Lloyd, eccentric comedian, is amusing; Zaro and Arno, in their farcical bar act, are clever, and create roars of laughter; Maud Mortimer, characteristic vocalist, is in great demand; Hudson Trio, musical comedy artists, are a good turn; as is also Mdlle. Roza's dog circus and hippodrome. Charles Lilburn, versatile comedian; Idalia May, international dancer; and Swann and Stanley, facial entertainers, complete the bill.

RADCLIFFE.

Grand Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—Messrs Imbert and Wright's company is this week playing Mr F. A. Scudamore's drama First Class. Much of the success of the piece is due to Mr Imbert's acting in the part of Dan, the miser. He has a rôle which suits him exactly, and he makes the most of it. Mr C. W. Hulse does well as "First Class;" Mr Gerald Nolan is seen to advantage as Mr Franklin; the part of Jack Stroud is capitally embodied by Mr L. Clarke; Mr C. M. Davidson acts capably as Philip Roscoe; and Peggy has a good representative in Miss Ellen Armour.

RAMSGATE.

Amphitheatre.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr Henry Bowman.—The Fatal Wedding, staged finely by Mr Bert Coote's company, has given great satisfaction here this week. Miss Helen Russell artistically plays Mabel Wilson to the Howard Wilson of Mr Ernest Owttram, a clever actor. Mr Wallace Stranack is capital in the rôle of the odious Robert Curtis. A marked success is the pretty and natural child actress Miss Maidie Andrews as Jessie. Miss Marie Hassell is amusing as Bridget, as is Mr E. Morgan as the Gallic Toto. Miss Doris Gilham is an admirable Cora Williams, adventuress. The other parts are all, without exception, in capable hands; and the children engaged in the production are most successful.

Victoria Pavilion and Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Herbert Jay; Acting-Manager, Mr N. Arthur Hornby.—On the first three evenings of the week Mr Charles Macdona's company staged The Gay Parisienne with distinct success. Miss Jennie Richards appeared as Mdlle. Julie Bon-Bon, played with charm and vivacity, and sang excellently. Miss Madge Souttar's Ruth was much appreciated, and Miss Gwen Clifford did well with the part of Mrs Honeycombe. As Norah Miss Ethel Ward played with pleasing effect, and Mr T. May's Ebenezer Honeycombe pleased the audience greatly. As Major Fossdyke Mr Arthur Watts contributed considerably to the success of the piece.

RAWTENSTALL.

Grand Theatre.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—Mr Beresford Innes's company in The Black Mask opened here on Monday to a good house, the performance meeting with a favourable reception. As Henry Lenoir Mr Beresford Innes gave a powerful interpretation, and as Walter Blackmore Mr Charles Coleman was very successful, whilst Mr Harry Cornwall made a thoroughly capable Philip Cunningham. Miss Barbara Allison was excellent in the exacting part of Nellie Cunningham and Little Rose Stevens capital as Philip Lenoir. Miss Ethel Condor and Miss Parkes Sutton were good as Emma Burt and Stella, and the other characters were impersonated in a satisfactory manner.

Royal County Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr Reginald Taylor.—Mr Bode's own company is here this week in the highly realistic drama Women and Wine. Mr Frank R. Robertson acts very efficiently as Dick Seymour; Mr Fred Mace is excellent as Hugh Seymour; Mr Walter Thornton as Alphonse Beaudet and Mr Tom Tindal as the Professor are both good; Mr Percy Dawsone affords amusement as Charles Sawter; Miss Edith Blande gives a powerful rendering of the exacting part of Marcel Rigadout; and Miss Nellie Lauraine is equally successful as La Colombe. The marvellous Edene Troupe of lady dancers introduce some agile and sprightly dances. The scenery and mechanical changes are very effective.

RHYL.

Queen's Palace.—Manager, Mr P. J. Ashfield; Secretary, Mr E. W. Parry.—Flora Lumiere dances prettily in a fairy grotto, the electrical effects being extremely beautiful. Goliath and Walford do some surprising heavy weight-lifting, and others appearing are Allis and Cassati, comedy artistes; James Dubois, a clever monkey impersonator; Esme Gordon, comedienne; and Mabel and Esther, child dancers.

The popularity of E. H. Williams's Merrie Men increases each week; Alf Walker is an excellent dancer; Charlie Drew and Robb Gilmore are very smart; Bert Seroni's comic songs are appreciated; and Mr William's as interlocutor is up to date.

RUNCORN.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr H. W. Caddick.—Messrs Perry and Stanton's company is on a return visit here with The Sporting Girl. Mr P. Watson is still to the fore as Jack Garling; Mr J. H. Stirling does well as George Drewitt; and it is superfluous to enlarge upon the excellent efforts of Mr G. Derry as Denton Hook and Miss Maggie Stanton as Kitty Fitzroy. Mr Marcus Grey as Marco Castellino and Mr Horace Mosley as Rev. John Bunyan also put in good work. Miss Clara Knowles is a faithful Amy Beddoe; Miss Marjorie Tennant is responsible for an exceedingly clever interpretation of the mysterious Mrs Owen; and Martha has an exponent of taking character in Miss Gladys St. Ledger. Some pretty dancing is also introduced by Miss Lily M'Rose and Miss Lily Matthews.

ROCHDALE.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr Charles Clucas.—The Triumph of Truth is the attraction here this week. Mr Edward E Louis submits a robust impersonation of Captain Jack Eversleigh; Mr R. Arlington ably sustains the part of Sir Charles Eversleigh; Mr T. Renaud Lockwood cleverly portrays the villainies of Count Raoul D'Orville; Mr Frank Radcliffe is all that could be desired as Pierre Choppard; Mr Charles Herrick, as Vitto Mascagni, is prominent; Mr John Clegg affords much amusement as Tommy Woodenhead; Miss Rosabel Dodd finely portrays the part of Blanche Le Croix; Coralie and Katie Bright are in the safe hands of Miss Lilian Ramsdale and Miss Lily Rogers; Little Lena is sweetly enacted by Little Nellie Kennet; and Miss Marie Auckland acts with skill and effect the dual-rôle of Violet and Lillian Anstruther.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Hargreaves.—On Monday evening the Patty Brothers gave an astonishing display of head balancing here; Katie Kemp sang with pleasing effect; Bill Bailey was very funny with his patter songs; the Brothers Lloddge, on the silver chain, evoked well-merited applause; Olive Vane, male impersonator, scored a success; Kitty Gower, character danseuse and lightning change artiste, was successful in her efforts; the Gregsons created roars of laughter with a sketch entitled The Dummy; and Post Mason fairly brought down the house with his fine baritone voice in his well-selected songs.

ROCK FERRY (CHESHIRE).

OLYMPIAN GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr Victor Wallace.—Messrs Adeler and Sutton's entertainment is an attractive one. Mr Hal Forde has made a favourable impression; Mr W. H. Atkinson's cultured singing is always enjoyable; Mr Julian Mack has a droll style; the Solari Duo show ability as vocalists and mandolinists; and Mr Victor Wallace is humorous, sentimental, and patriotic in turn.

RYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Bannister Howard; Business-Manager, Mr Herbert Leonard.—That charming comedy Little Lord Fauntleroy, presented by Mr Chas. Carey and his company, formed the attraction at the theatre on the first three nights of this week. Mr Chas. Carey is capital as the Earl of Dorincourt, and Mr Walter Russell as the lawyer, Mr Havisham, is also good. Miss Alice Chapin scores as Mrs Errol, and Miss Elsie Chapin, the bright little girl who represents Mrs Hodgson Burnett's young hero, quite wins the sympathies of the audience. Mr Herbert Vyvyan as the Yankee storekeeper cleverly introduces some touches of humour. The Lights o' London was performed on Thursday and Friday.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—John F Preston and Patrick E. Doherty's company, under the direction of Mr F. B. Woulfe, is this week presenting Lady Godiva, by Max Goldberg. Miss Hilda Shirley in the title-rôle makes a good impression. Tom o' Coventry is excellently portrayed by Mr Alfred D. Adams. Miss Georgie Walton as Lady Aldyth and Miss Nina Westerleigh as Elfrida are charming. Mr Dan F. Roe as Robin Shacklebolt and Mr Ernest Hamilton as Unwolf cause much laughter. Mr Jo Monkhouse as Leofric and Mr Lionel D'Aragon as Algar give good support.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr O. Shaylor.—An excellent exhibition is given by Richard Sawade, with his lions, tigers, bears, and dogs. A clever musical act is performed by Simms and Simms. Ray and Calden are much appreciated for their refined amusing act. Other excellent turns include the Brooklands, comediennes and dancers; Little Barney, Scotch comedian; Madge Daley, comedienne; Olympian Quartet of vocalists and dancers, and Johnny Worman, comedian.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—Percy Houri heads this week's bill with a masterly performance on the concertina. The feats of Josberthos (a lady and two gentlemen), athletes, are well received. The Brewster Troupe of acrobatic dancers also win much applause. Among the other clever turns are George Edney, comedian; York, Mac, and York, in comedy act, "The Widow's Worries"; Dwight and Son, comedians, instrumentalists, and expert dancers; Dot Stanley, comedienne; Wetherley and Ellis, refined duettists; Helene and Emilion, Continental novelty gymnasts; Harry Meir, comedy juggler; and Ray and Rodney, eccentric comedians.

L. AND N.W. PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietress, Mrs S. A. Higham; Manager, Mr Sam Higham.—This week's bill includes Mr Cliff Carter, comedian; Miss Lillian Gilbert, contralto vocalist; and the Sisters St. John.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—A Woman Adrift forms a pleasing attraction here this week, as presented by Mr Sanderson Moffat and his No. 1 company. Mr Moffat appears in the dual-rôle of Ferdinand Castro and Don Leo Castro—characters in which his fine dramatic powers are seen to great advantage. Sir John Ingleby is embodied in manly style by Mr Leslie Beaufort. Dennis, Roderick, and Jibbs, played respectively by Mr Watson Hume, Mr W. A. Mackersey, and Mr Charles Wilson, serve to keep the house in the best of humours. Miss Phyllis Hamilton as the wronged Cora Leigh artistically plays the part. Rupert Ingleby is pleasingly played by Miss Phyllis Graham in the drama and by Little May Tickell in the prologue. Others of note who appear are Miss Maude Merrick, Miss Violet Keand, Mr Norman Kinnell, Mr S. Williams, and Mr Ainsley Linton. The piece is admirably mounted.

SHEFFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S. Carter.—When the Lights are Low, a conventional but interesting domestic drama, was played to a good audience on Monday by Mr Henry Eglington's company. Miss Kate Froud, an artist favourably known to local playgoers, made a graceful and dramatic representative of the heroine, Nancy Christie; Miss Cissie Williams was successful in the rôle of the blind child; Miss Alicia Raleigh cleverly impersonated the character of the scheming Violet; and Miss Maud Leonard made a pretty and vivacious Kathleen. Mr Horace W. Booth acted earnestly as Guy Goldsworthy; Mr T. R. Seymour was funny as Ikey Isaacson, and other parts were played by Mr Willie Roberts, Mr Fred W. Mussett, Mr Dick Seddon, Mr F. Carlton, Mr William J. Gardiner, Mr Fred Magilton, Mr R. C. Gear, Mr Ernest Couch, and Mr Haughton Macauley.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Temptress, a drama full of thrilling episodes and comic interludes, was played for the first time in Sheffield on Monday by Messrs Gordyn and Gelling's company. Some artistic new scenery added to the realism of the dramatic situations, and the artists all worked with praiseworthy esprit de corps. A powerful impersonation of the wronged husband, Gonzales, was given by that excellent actor, Mr Henry W. Hatchman. Mr George Dalper made a good-looking and dashing Philip Welford; Mr F. D. Davis was firm in the rôle of Denbigh, the mesmerist; and Mr Herbert Williams caused general hilarity as Bob Tanner, a seedy circus clown. Miss Grace Leslie was a handsome and alluring Stella; Miss Ada Collins was refined and sympathetic as Madge, and good work was done by Mr Johnny Chippendale, Miss Mattie Everett, and Mr Will Gelling.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—Mr Henry Johnston's company opened to a good house on Monday in Max Goldberg's successful drama, The Bank of England. The piece is full of absorbing interest, and is effectively staged. In the fascinating character of Sherlock Holmes Mr George Henry made a striking appearance in the characteristic dress of the famous detective with appropriate sang-froid. Mr Charles Nialan was good as Isaacs. Mr Edwin Watson did well as Sir Sydney Barraclough. The part of Stephen Hartley was well played by Mr Juan D'Albert. Miss K. Gough was pleasing as Sylvia, Miss Marie Loreth made a dashing American widow as Mrs Bean, and the character of Margaret Dane had an excellent exponent in Miss Amy Ellam. The other parts were all creditably played.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—R. G. Knowles, the well-known humorous story-teller and comedian, is the star this week, and the other artists are charming. Maud Ross, comedienne; Will Mitcham, an old Sheffield favourite; Harry Coates, vocalist; Woodhouse and Wells, comedians and dancers; M. Stave, electric comedy artist; Alice Maple, serio and dancer; the Three Sisters Chester, in a delightful entertainment; Mason and Keeler, in a "smart society" skit entitled Hooked by Crook; Jessie Burnette, comedienne; Little Ganty, comic; and Les Brunins.

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr W. C. Burns.—The Peckham fat boy; Gus Le Dial, entertainer; Daisy Martell, comedienne; Pallister's bioscope, with up-to-date films; Will Johnson, comedian; and Musical Silvo, in his clever and refined musical act, are drawing large houses nightly.

SHEERNESS.

SOUTHAMPTON.

GRAND.—The attraction this week is Mr Fred Mouillot's company in A Greek Slave and The Geisha, both of which are excellently staged and played under the direction of Mr J. R. La Fane. In the former Miss Aimee De Leska is delightful as Maia and Miss Florrie Saunders a sparkling Iris. Mr Arthur Cartwright sings and acts admirably; Mr Edward Carlton gives a distinctly humorous portrayal as Heliodorus; Miss Aubrey Ashton is successful as Melanope; and Mr Edward Granby a capital Archais. The remaining parts are all well played, and the visit is a most successful one.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs J. W. Gordon; Acting-Manager, Mr Dudley Colwyn.—Mr J. F. Preston's company is here in Rogues of the Turf. Four racehorses are introduced with considerable effect, and "Bill Bailey" is entreated to come home by Mr Harry Benson.

PALACE.—Pride of place is this week occupied by the Pender Troupe of pantomimists, who appear in a laughable absurdity entitled Hands Up; or, the Bold, Bad Highwayman. Mdlle. Eldee scores a great success in her artistic entertainment, "Pose Plastique;" Queenie Lawrence is a dainty comedienne; and other capital turns are given by Rich and Rich, Arthur Gilbert, Lieut. Travis, Lily Flexmore, and the Continental Troupe of stilt walkers.

PIER PAVILION.—The Japs, masked singers, have been scoring a great success here. Indeed, these talented and beautifully dressed ladies have created quite a furore. All the items are artistically rendered, and the performance from start to finish is distinctly pleasing. In addition, Mr Wensley Russell, well known here as an entertainer, gives his clever imitation of a 'cello, and sings a number of humorous songs, which are always received with approbation.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, A Country Mouse was presented here by Miss Emma Hutchison's capital company. Mr Charles Esdale is excellent as the Hon. Archibald Vyse; John Bowlby, M.P., is capitally impersonated by Mr Fred Annerley; Mr Evelyn Vernon and Mr Duncan M'Rae as the Duke of St. Kitts and Lord Robert Wykeham are good; Miss Helen Haye gives an excellent portrayal of Lady Sylvia Bowlby; Miss Ida Richardson is well suited as Violet Aynsley; Miss Minnie Griffin makes a humorous Mrs Cropper; and Miss Dido Drake is especially clever as Angela Muir.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—La Poupée is being presented here by Mr E. Lockwood's company. Mr T. A. Shale as Lancelot acts and sings well; Mr Eliot Skinner is well cast as Father Maxime; Mr Fred Walsh gives prominence to the character of Baron Chanterelle; and Mr W. Bink is effective as the Notary. Mr Arthur Reynolds is very funny as Hilarius; and Madame Hilarius is successfully embodied by Miss Lily Leigh. Miss Midge Clark contributes a charming portrayal of Alesia, and her singing wins for her great favour.

KURSAAL.—General-Manager, Colonel Blair Staple.—The management have now combined the circus and variety entertainments in the large theatre. Rozel, "le roi de l'air," meets with a hearty reception for his sensational performance, terminating with the leap for life from his giddy swing in the roof of the building; Zidney is a clever equilibrist, Pharos gives a good exhibition of billiard ball manipulating, Miss Alice Mahew gives a song and dance turn, and Mayo and Solo are two clever characters in their comical sketches and songs; while the Cotton Coons are well received.

SOUTHPORT.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Opera House and Winter Gardens Company, Limited; General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming.—The Duchess of Dantzic, played by Mr George Dance's company, has been very successful here. Mr Frederick Moyes makes a heroic Napoleon, reaching a very high level of excellence. Miss Rita Presano as the Duchess of Dantzic gives a very animated and interesting representation, her vocal efforts eliciting much applause. Mr Albert Chapman as Marshal Lefebvre is seen to considerable advantage. The Empress Josephine is admirably embodied by Miss Mabel Bailey, and Miss May Harriss and Miss Edyth Carlyle have very suitable parts as the sisters of the Emperor. Mr T. Maxwell as Vicomte De Bethune is very successful. The augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr B. J. Paterson.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—Life's Sweetest Sins has been presented here by Mr T. Arthur Jones and company. Mr T. Arthur Jones acts with ability as Captain Harold Marston and Mr A. Bartlett Garth makes a capital Dr. Colbrooke. Mr Harry C. Momber is amusing as Bob Tanner, and Miss Sara Dudley is very pleasing as Bess Grayson. Miss Madge Morley acts charmingly as Doorin Rivers, and Miss Amy Rudd is delightful as Fay Colbrooke.

PRESENTATION.—On Monday, at the Palace Theatre, Blackburn, Mr George Clough, undoubtedly one of the most popular of musical directors, was presented with an ivory and silver mounted bâton, suitably inscribed, and a purse of gold, by a few friends as a token of their appreciation of his untiring efforts and zeal as conductor. The members of the orchestra also gave him a gold-mounted ebony stick; while Messrs H. Sharples and Son, a local firm of musical instrument dealers, presented him with an upright grand piano.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY

ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright, and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901.

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.

The veteran J. L. Toole has a good story in "The Era" Annual (49, Wellington-street, Strand) a publication which is highly valued by all who have anything to do with the stage. He says:—I was once playing in "Dearer than Life" with Irving and Billington at Leeds. After the performance several gentlemen were in the general room of the hotel where we were staying, and among them a certain Mr Jones, who professed to have a large acquaintance in the profession, and who appeared to have a local reputation as a judge of ages.

"Well, how old," said someone, "would you take Mr Toole to be?"

"Well," said he, "sixty-five, if he's a day."

"Do you know him?" I asked.

"Oh, yes; I know him very well indeed."

"Ah! and how old should you take me to be?"

"Well, I should take you to be forty, if you're a day."

Irving asked Mr Jones if he did not think Mr Toole was nearer seventy-five than sixty-five. "No," he said; "sixty-five, if he's a day," and the company present seemed to put it down that that would be my age. They had most of them been to the theatre and seen me—for the first time probably—playing an old man; and as it was my first visit to the town, and we were going on by the mail train that night, I had a fancy not to go away and leave them under the impression that I was this very old gentleman. I found that Jones was a decent sort of fellow, and I said to Irving that before I went I should just give him my card and let him know what a mistake he had made. By and bye, when our cab arrived, we said good night to our casual acquaintances, and, taking Mr Jones aside, I handed him my card, whereupon he said "Oh, indeed!" in a very offensive manner, turned upon his heel, and walked away.

"Well," I said to my friends as we drove away, "that's the most impertinent fellow I think I ever met." Whereupon Billington and Irving went into fits of laughter, and confessed that they had warned Mr Jones that I was continually passing myself off as Toole, and he was to be quite prepared for my handing him a card and trying the imposition upon him.—Leeds and Yorkshire Mercury, Friday, Jan. 22d, 1904.

THEATRES AND TEMPERATURE.

Whatever may be said about the alleged "Decline of the Drama," there is one thing in connection with the stage upon which we may warmly—or at any rate cheerfully—congratulate ourselves, and that is the improvement that has taken place in the ventilation of our theatres. As new playhouses rise on every side they are found to be furnished with all the modern appliances for preserving purity of the air in the auditorium. In one way a very hot summer does much good in this respect. It is not sufficiently realised by the general public that it is not the heat, but the impurity of the atmosphere in a place of public entertainment which is so injurious. Many people will sit contented for three hours in a "stuffy" atmosphere, and attribute the malaise or headache which often follows to any other cause than the fact of their having been breathing vitiated and exhausted air overnight But when the weather is hot, ventilation is sought as a relief from actual high temperature, and a good system once established is continued permanently.

Each individual in an audience breathes out about 144 cubic feet of air per hour, and deteriorates at each respiration about 2 cubic feet of air, or 2,160 cubic feet each individual per hour. It was "authoritatively stated" at one time that the air within a building could not be changed more than six times in an hour without causing inconvenience; but this was placing an absurd limit on human ingenuity and invention. At the Vienna Opera House fresh air is supplied to an audience of over 3,000 at the minimum rate of 900 cubic feet per hour for each person, the air entering at a velocity of 1 foot per second, and the whole area of the openings admitting the fresh air to the auditorium being nearly 800 square feet. American and Continental authorities vary in their estimates from a minimum of 10 cubic feet to a maximum of 30 cubic feet as the supply needed per minute by each individual in the audience.

The only real difficulty in the way of ventilation is that of changing the air and yet not creating "draughts." What happened in many of the uncomfortable old-fashioned theatres which are now pulled down was this: between the acts, when many of the audience had left their seats and had repaired to the corridors or vestibule, there was a slight relief while the doors leading to the corridors were opened. For the comfort of the audience generally, these doors should have remained open during the whole performance; but, when the people occupying seats near the doors returned to their places, they felt a "draught," and naturally insisted on the doors being closed. Then the audience sweltered till the next interval.

The "natural" principle of ventilation, the plan of letting the powerful current of air caused by the gas light in the centre of the ceiling draw in the air at the doors, was, therefore, ineffective. The only proper method is the plenum, or mechanical principle, first tried in London, we believe, by the late Mr D'OYLY CARTE at the English Opera House. It was as simple as it was practical. The bad air was drawn out by a revolving fan in the roof, and the air from outside, heated in winter by passing over hot tubes, and cooled in summer by flowing in over blocks of ice, was let into the auditorium by oblong apertures, which could be opened or closed at will.

It is, of course, too much to expect of a theatrical manager, who is "building" a new theatre, to understand all the technical details of ventilation. That is the business of the architect; and, nowadays, all architects of reputation pay as much attention to ventilation of a new theatre as they do to the precautions against fire and the "latest modern improvements." The Apollo Theatre and the London Hippodrome are famous instances of enterprise and skill combined to secure a good atmosphere in the auditorium; and to judge from one's personal sensations there are many other modern places of amusement in London which are supplied with scientific apparatus admirably adapted to that purpose. Some of our theatrical managers are, indeed, almost too modest and reserved on this point of ventilation. The authorities at the Hippodrome print upon their programmes a full note explaining the ventilation system. The playgoing public requires any fact to be "drummed into" it by constant repetition, and there is no harm in "blowing one's own trumpet" when expense has been gone to in order to make one's patrons comfortable. It is difficult to convince some people that the atmosphere in a well-ventilated building can be made agreeable, even in the "dog days," and hundreds are kept away from the play in the hot weather by a merely imaginary and erroneous idea of the case.

It cannot be too often repeated that, after undergoing the process of purification, &c., the air in a modern theatre is positively better than that outside. It is air which has been subjected to treatment by which its temperature is lowered to an extent which more than compensates for the heat generated by the bodies of the audience. And these bodies, again, not being super-heated by the atmosphere, radiate less warmth.

The influence of "stuffiness" on the temper of audiences is very serious. We have heard it suggested that the more easily pleased character of the Parisian playgoing public is due to the fact that they are accustomed to long entr'actes, during which almost the whole of the audience adjourns to the foyer or to the neighbouring cafés. At any rate, after an hour or so spent in a crowded, "stuffy" theatre the senses become stupefied and the perceptions dulled. We cannot imagine the occupants of the Black Hole of Calcutta appreciating the cleverest play of PINERO or the most piquant modern comedy of HENRY ARTHUR JONES When we see, as we have recently seen, plays defying the torridity of the season, and running right through the hot weather, we may be certain that the theatres in which they were performed were delightfully cool as well as comfortable and luxurious. The ordinary lover of the drama, however, needs further enlightenment on this important matter, and we shall gladly insert any informative correspondence. The subject, like the auditoriums, cannot be too well "ventilated."

ELLISTON'S ADVENTURE.

Actors have always been ready in emergencies of difficulty or danger. The great actor-manager, Elliston, was once on his way to the Theatre Royal, Bath, to play Don Juan, for about the fiftieth time, when, passing down an obscure street, he was suddenly startled by indications of terror and distress, and discovered, on turning abruptly into a narrow court, the lower part of a house enveloped in flames. The occupiers had escaped unhurt, and most of them, miserably poor, were watching, either in stupid agony or with unavailing cries, the destruction of their crazy homes.

Mingling with the various appeals of surrounding sufferers, the most heart-rending were those of a middle-aged female, who, running from spot to spot, and threading the crowd without any intelligible purpose of action, exclaimed: "Poor Jamie! he's gone—he's gone!—no one can help poor, deft Jamie!" By the language and manner of the woman, it was soon clear some one remained unrescued. Elliston instantly pushed forward, and understood that, in an upper apartment, some helpless being was still imprisoned, whose awful fate was momentarily expected. A side-door of the house afforded still the possibility of ingress. Of this chance Elliston availed himself; he rushed up the staircase, followed fortunately by a bystander, emboldened by example, and found himself in a wretched attic, where, on a still more wretched pallet, lay extended a poor bed-ridden being, whose state of idiotcy seemed roused to a glimmering sense of some proximate danger, but who had neither power of utterance nor ability of motion.

"'Tis useless!" exclaimed the man who had followed Elliston into the house; "he cannot be saved! the stairs are already in flames!"

"He can—he shall!" was the reply; "be steady, and we can accomplish it."

Approaching the bed, Elliston raised the poor creature in his arms, and binding about him the tattered remnant of sheet and clothing, carried him to the head of the staircase. With difficulty he had passed to the first landing, where, forcing a side window, he presented his nearly rescued charge to the multitude. But the shrieks and struggles of the sufferer—the difficulty of making the crowd understand that they were to assist him from below, all, imperatively, the work of a few seconds—had nearly left them in one common ruin. At length, however, by the aid of his companion, all was accomplished. The living burden, lifted on the sill, was lowered by the fragile tackle, and fell, unhurt, amid the crowd below. The two liberators now effected their own escape, and within three minutes the whole interior was in flames.

Disentangling himself from the embraces of the women, Elliston now took to his heels and ran, reaching the theatre just in time to see a substitute Don Juan "dressed on the shortest notice," and ready to be served up in his place.

His welcome, as may be well supposed, was enthusiastic. Called upon to tell his own story, Elliston was quite in his element as Don Juan, for he had to make a speach; a faculty which, though in after-life he greatly improved, he by no means inconsiderably possessed at that period. The incident gave such additional attraction to this drama that it was scarcely out of the bills at any part of the season.

Elliston, who took the earliest opportunity of searching out the unhappy patient he had rescued, discovered, strangely enough, that he had originally been an actor, and frequently a fellow-labourer with the great Macklin. Indiscretion, and consequent want of employment, had brought him to a state of mental aberration and wretchedness. Elliston continued his kindness to him till he died.

TOURING REMINISCENCES.

BY AN ACTRESS OF EXPERIENCE.

DURING the production of a provincial pantomime of Cinderella, at the old Cardiff Theatre, and now burnt down, I believe, the following incident occurred:—

A grand idea had occurred to our artist, viz., to make one side of the scene-flats, &c., represent Winter, the other Summer. Very simple, of course, absurdly simple in theory, but at night the scenes proved awkward, the grooves obstinate, and, in brief, a whole army of men, I think, could not have done it well in the short time allowed. Needless to say, in these far-away days we had not too many on our staff.

So the scene stuck, of course. They had lowered a front cloth; someone said, "Go on, someone, and do something!"

In those days I used to rather rush at things. I promptly took the Dandini (I was the Prince), and bounded on the stage. The leader, Mr Elliston, was playing appropriate changing music—fairy music, of course. I said, impromptu—

Now, Mr Leader, please be steady,
The transformation scene is not quite ready,
So please you, let us try, though we're not big.
Will you oblige us? Play an Irish jig.

Of course he saw the position and he played, and we danced till we were well tired. Still they said "Not yet, keep on, keep it up." But we simply could not; we were breathless; we had to come off. The transformation scene had not yet been turned! But the idea was a good one, though not practicable.

IN the last act of Our Boys the old gentleman of the piece, Sir Geoffrey Champneys, has to exclaim, "What do I see? My sister, Clarissa Champneys, in a common lodging-house, cooking a fowl!" That's the text.

What he did say was this: "What do I see? My sister, Clarissa Champneys, in a common lodging-house, cooking a foo—a—ahem—I—I mean—kicking a fowl!"

A WELL-KNOWN actor once left his apartments in Hawick feeling well and strong, better and more buoyant than usual. He observed, "I never felt better." Arranging that the wife should follow on, he went out. She soon prepared to join him; when a few yards from home she met with Mrs Foulis, one of the company.

"Oh," said Mrs Foulis, "come back with me, Mrs D. I want to speak to you."

"No," the manageress answered, "I'm going to see Charles."

In vain the lady urged her to return; she was determined not to, so the painful truth had to be told her. Her husband had suddenly staggered and fallen, been taken to a chemist's, and there succumbed. Died of heart failure, and spoke no word to anyone. I will pass over the sad details. The widow was doubly bereaved; position gone, husband gone. She grieved greatly, her hair speedily lost its brilliant, pretty colour, and became snow-white. Poor lady! She decided to stay in a little rustic town where no one knew her, and be thoroughly quiet—a luxury to her—but, in my opinion, the very worst thing possible for her. Where she lived they had never heard of her husband, of Henry Irving, Barrett, Dillon, or any London celebrity, so that what I am about to tell seems almost incredible to some of us. Others believe in the return of the spirit.

One morning the landlady said to her, "Excuse me, ma'am, I see you have lost someone. Now, my daughter is a medium, and ever since you have been here a strange figure has constantly appeared to her. It's no one for us; the description is not familiar. We think it must be for you. Have you lost anyone who might have longed to see you?"

The widow, much astonished, answered, "What is the description?"

The landlady said, "A tall, robust man, of middle age; high forehead, with moustache and imperial. He walks thus" (turning the toes well out), "and he constantly caresses or strokes his chin, where there is a slight imperial."

There could be no mistake, the description was exact, as doubtless many who read this will know. I cannot say the landlady used the exact phrases I have quoted, but she expressed herself most clearly, and explained graphically.

She wished the widow to attend a séance and learn more, but the lady decided not to do so.

WHEN an actress of experience has to fall at rehearsal, it is usually imagined, unless there is something very special. But a novice, especially a pupil of a good man, will literally do everything at rehearsal, as at night.

We had a novice, a lady who came to us for practice. When she should fall she observed, "Would you prefer me to fall right, thus——" and, suiting the action to the work, she fell right.

The actors all rushed to help her up.

Again our gallant actors rushed to help her to her feet.

Again restored to her upright position, she said: "Or is a back fall more effective?" and promptly fell back.

The actors this time looked on, and the stage-manager observed: "When you've quite done playing at ninepins, Miss J., we'll go on."

WHILE touring Uncle Tom's Cabin, Mr Charles Hermann employed a great many coloured gentlemen, freed slaves and others.

It was their custom to "parade" the donkey first, with coloured attendant with huge red cap; the slaves followed on; the band played, and this advertisement was most successful—full houses the result.

It was in Middlesbrough that one of the coloured troupe wanted to be excused parade. His feet ached, he was tired, his boots pinched, &c.

"No nonsense, you must parade."

Well, in despair, poor Sambo happened to see a pair of nice velvet shoes, the property of one of the actors.

"How nice, how easy they'd be!" he thought. "Say, Mr Carpenter, he said to the stage carpenter, whose business lay solely in the carpentering, of course, "say," said he, "would you wear those slippers if you were me?"

The carpenter really took no notice — just acquiesced, "Ay, ay!"

Enough for Sambo; he put them on; he paraded in the mud; he replaced the shoes in the actor's dressing-place.

Night came. "Who," thundered ——, "who has had the dashed impudence to wear my shoes?"

"It's all right, massa, it's all right," said Sambo, "the stage carpenter said I might put 'em on."

WHILE playing a scene, a front one, Helen and Modus, in The Hunchback, the lady who represented Helen wore a very long train, which she manipulated well, and was very proud of it.

Now the Modus, who was an Irishman, had been a dancer, and prided himself, among other things, on pointing his toes elegantly and walking with perfect grace.

The scene opened. The lady entered—such a long skirt! Modus, who had followed Helen on, found that his feet were quite hidden by the lady's train. "Take yer train further off, ma'am," said he, sotto voce. "I'll not!" said Helen, and she did not.

When they were both off the stage—"Now ma'am," said he, "don't be hiding my feet again if, you please!"

"Absurd! My dress is more important than your feet. Who wants to see them? Nothing to do with your acting."

"I beg your pardon, ma'am," said he. "I beg your pardon. I act as much with me feet as I do with me face!"

ACTRESSES AND ANECDOTES.

The father of Miss Louisa Brunton, a popular actress of the "early eighties," had a peculiarly grim idea of humour. A friend of his, an amateur horticulturist, was proud of his fruit and liberal of it withal to the manager's family. He had long been subject to the nocturnal visitations of orchard robbers, and wishing to preserve his property, obtained a man-trap, and posted due notice of that event. Yet still the cunning thieves continued their depredations, without falling into the iron jaws of the gaping enemy. The old gentleman in his perplexity consulted the theatrical manager. Now it happened that a poor fellow, one of the attendants on the theatre, had by a fall broken his leg, and amputation at the county hospital took place. By means of a little bribery, at Mr Brunton's suggestion, the loan of the severed limb was obtained secretly, and late one evening deposited within the teeth of the trap; and in the morning, in the presence of certain gossips, removed therefrom and placed in the hands of the town crier, who, being well paid, and instructed in his part, took his extensive round of service, his bell in one hand, and carrying the leg in a box under his other arm, and with stentorian lungs, good emphasis, and some discretion, he gave the following notice, after the usual Oh yes!—Oh yes!

"The owner of the leg left last night in Mr John Brown's man-trap may have the same returned, on application to the crier, to whose charge it has been confided."

Such was the horror of the announcement and the general belief of the fact, that Mr John Brown's fruit trees remained unplundered for the future; and Mr Brunton received many thanks for his highly successful contrivance. It is to be hoped he also received many a fine basket of fruit.

Miss Smith, a well-known actress of the same period, early in her career found the leading Shakespearian female characters in possession of elderly and "established" actresses. One of these, on Miss Smith hinting she wished to play Capulet's daughter, replied in a tone of disdain, "What, Miss Smith! give up Juliet? and to a young girl like you? No, indeed. I have played Juliet to the satisfaction of every audience and manager on this circuit for these thirty years, and I should not think of resigning it to any one."

Mrs Mardyn, who afterwards became baroness, innocently caused an unfortunate quarrel between Lord and Lady Byron. Lord Byron was one of the leading members of the committee of management of Drury-lane, and had almost a voice potential in their literary arrangements, leaving the pecuniary matters to the other members. Mrs Mardyn learned that certain interests were at work to obtain for a rival actress the principal female part of a forthcoming drama, to defeat which intention, she called on his lordship, at his residence, to solicit his powerful interference, which he immediately promised as an act of justice to the dramatic author, as well as to the actress.

As she was about to depart a violent storm came on, which Mrs. Mardyn regretted, as the hour had nearly arrived when she ought to be at home preparing to go to her duty at the theatre, having to begin the comedy of the evening. His Lordship being aware of this, and his carriage being at the door, he offered it for Mrs Mardyn's use in her emergency, and she was driven home in it. This circumstance, with many additions (gross exaggerations), were related to Lady Byron by the woman, her confidant, whom the poet afterwards so justly reproached and so severely criticised in those well-remembered lines—

Born in a garret—in a kitchen bred;

Miss Foote, afterwards Countess of Harrington, had many jeux d'esprit written on her name. One ran:—

The graces strewed Love's flow'rets round,
When in a lucky minute,
Beauty the magic circle found
And placed her Foote within it.

Another was:—

"Ex pede Herculem!"
From the Ancients this maxim we readily quote,
You may know what a Hercules is by his foot;
But surely 'tis left for the Moderns to see
From the "Foote" of our times what a Venus should be.

Miss Chester, a beautiful but incompetent actress of the last century, made several attempts at emotional acting. While she was at York one evening, having to perform a serious scene of Lady Townley, in the comedy of The Provoked Husband, she was observed, between the fourth and fifth acts, in a rather retired part behind the wings, sobbing and moaning, and beating her bosom in a most unusual manner. One of the principal actors very kindly asked her the cause of the grief so painfully expressed; she replied, not in words, but motioned him to begone, and then sighed and moaned more enthusiastically and vociferously than before. The good-natured actor, really alarmed at the pretty woman's sorrow, entreated her to retire to her dressing-room and let the other ladies assist or console her; on which she suddenly suspended her tones of grief, and snappishly exclaimed, "Go along, sir; leave me. I am working up my feelings for the last scene!"

IN the King's Bench Division on Thursday, before Mr Justice Ridley, Mrs Ethel Dann brought an action against the Union of London and Smith's Bank, Limited to recover £40, which she said they had received for her use. The defendants denied liability. The plaintiff was the wife of Mr Thomas Dann. For some time before the present year she had been on terms of friendship with a Mr Wilson Cosser. She developed a taste for singing and was desirous of receiving lessons to finish her vocal training in Paris, and after some discussion with Mr Cosser on the subject he expressed his willingness to assist her. An arrangement was ultimately come to in April of this year that he should deposit £400 with the defendants to be paid to her in monthly instalments of £40. She then went to Paris with her husband and studied under M. Jean De Reszké, the April, May, and June instalments being paid. The instalment due in July was not paid, and the defendants gave notice that no further payments would be made, as Mr Cosser had withdrawn his authority. Judgment was given for the defendants.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the council, held last Tuesday, Helen Russell, Benson North, Hylton Warde, Nesta Sandford, and Stephen H. Langton were nominated as candidates for election as members of the Actors' Association. The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members. The secretary reported he had received from two members of the Association expressions of thanks for services rendered, one writer saying:—"I think all our profession should know how helpful it is to have the Council of the A. A. at the back of its members." Two late members of the A. A. were reinstated. The suggestion book was considered, and an entry made.

AT the Runcorn Petty Sessions, on Monday, Mr William Caddick, lessee of the Theatre Royal, Runcorn, applied for a renewal of his licence. Mr F. W. Knowles, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the lessee, and stated that the licence had been granted for fifteen consecutive years. Since the opening of the building there had been a great decrease of drunkenness in the town. The Bench decided to grant the licence. The decision was received with applause.

MR. STEAD AND THE THEATRE.

Mr W. T. Stead's threat of visiting the London theatres has evoked some amusing replies from correspondents with the Review of Reviews. It seems that when Mr Stead was editing the Pall Mall Gazette, nearly twenty years ago, Mr Bram Stoker came to him with a message from Sir Henry Irving, who was then at the zenith of his glory at the Lyceum. "He urged me," says Mr Stead, "to undertake a visitation of the theatres. I need hardly say this suggestion was not made from any desire that I should act as Inquisitor-General into the morals of the green-room. That subject was never mentioned. Sir Henry's point of view was that of an actor passionately devoted to the stage. He thought it was in my power to render a greater service to the British theatre than any living journalist. When I expressed my amazement at so incredible a statement, and pleaded my utter ignorance of the subject, Mr Stoker said it was precisely because I was a tyro—a grown-up tyro, innocent of all the tricks of the stage and the conventionalities of the profession—that he wanted so much to have my impressions. All dramatic critics who are experts in the craft see the play through the atmosphere of convention. They are accustomed, from long familiarity with the tradition and practice of the stage, to see certain emotions expressed in certain ways. There are mannerisms which grow up in the representation of the drama which escape their practised eye—precisely because it is practised and inured to what it has seen from childhood. What Sir Henry Irving wanted was a full-grown man with the pen of a ready writer and access to the public press who had never been to the theatre. The impressions of such an adult who brought the fresh eye of a child to look for the first time upon the mimic life of the stage, Sir Henry said, could hardly fail to give actors hints which might be of great value to them in the practice of their own profession. Hitherto he had failed to find any journalist of standing who had not been spoiled for his purpose by the habit of playgoing. When he heard that I had not seen a stage play, he sent, in the interest of his own profession, to beg me to allow the public to learn what were the impressions of an untrained eye and unsophisticated judgment when first confronted with the efforts made by players to hold the mirror up to Nature. I recall this conversation in order to prove to those members of the profession who seem to resent my proposed tour that the idea originated with the doyen of the stage, that it was pressed upon me primarily in the belief that it would be helpful to their profession, and that my inexperience of the theatre, so far from being a disqualification for my attempting this task, was then in Sir Henry's eyes the one supreme qualification that I possessed for achieving the end which he had in view. I hope, therefore, that they will acquit me of any presumption in venturing to try to carry out Sir Henry Irving's suggestion, even though I have wasted twenty years before moving in the matter, and I may now have lost the qualifications he then believed me to possess."

Mr F. R. BENSON writes:—"My gardener wisely remarked the other day that no man can learn to grow flowers, he must live among them and love them, and then perhaps it may come to him; this seems to me equally true in questions of art, both for critics and artists. I am lost in wonder that a clever man like yourself should have the temerity to write on a difficult subject of which he admits he knows nothing, and has cared less. Some of the questions you raise are pertinent and interesting, but the answer to them lies in work, and not in words. Those touching the morality of our profession seem to me non-pertinent, and lacking in that 'chivalry and devotional reverence for womanhood' which you yourself have always advocated. Under these circumstances, I do not see how my advice, criticism, or suggestions can be helpful."

Mr SYDNEY GRUNDY writes:—"Believing, as I do believe, that the temporary paralysis of the higher drama is largely due to the multitude and prolixity of its counsellors, it is with a feeling akin to dismay I read that you are about to add your eloquent voice to the distracting Babel. When a writer, gifted with an unlimited flow of language, and his own editor, announces that he proposes to devote the fifty-sixth year of his life to the discussion of a subject of which he confesses he knows nothing, those of us who have devoted a large part of our longer lives to its consideration may be forgiven if we—sigh.

"And what are you going to discuss? Whether the drama 'makes for righteousness?' The drama is as inevitable as the stars. Imagine a man saying, 'I know nothing whatever of astronomy; and inasmuch as from my youth I was always sent to bed at sundown, the only star I have ever seen is one which my pastors and masters called the evening star, and which I have since ascertained to be a planet named after a very naughty goddess indeed; but I propose to devote the fifty-sixth year of my life to the study of the heavens, with the special object of determining whether the stars in their courses "make for righteousness!" I shall report progress month by month, and inform the world in general, including the professional astronomers, how many good and how many wicked stars I have found.' Such an observer might well suspect Venus of winking at him.

"And what is 'righteousness?' Judging by your manifesto, you seem to think that it is chiefly concerned with sexual matters. Nobody is more familiar with the Nonconformist conscience than I am. It was my conscience once; and I had to fight with wild beasts at Ephesus before I could get rid of it. You also appear to have tried to divest yourself of it, but with scant success; for its spirit pervades your utterance. Now, it is sheer waste of time to regard the drama from the point of view of the Nonconformist conscience. It is a highly respectable conscience, admirable for its sincerity, even appalling sometimes in the cold-blooded cruelty of its propriety; but it makes the mistake of looking upon sexual relations as purely or impurely animal phenomena. I know it would deny this strenuously, but the fact remains; and as the drama is largely concerned with those relations, it is bound to be shocked. Righteousness is much more than an animal matter, and there are other and greater virtues than chastity. It is one of the privileges of the drama to hammer in this truth.

"If your scheme embraces an inquiry into the private conduct of actors and actresses, permit me to remark that such conduct, whatever it may be, is only incidental or accidental to the drama, and that any man who searches any body of men and women thrown into more or less intimate companionship—as, I presume, their Creator intended them to be, or why did He put the two sexes on one planet?—with only animalism in his mind, is pretty certain to find it. No moral census can do justice to the stage. We have no moral tests. Many a man and woman cast out—justly cast out—by virtue and society, have found an honest and more happy life upon the boards. Many may think this is an evil thing; some think it 'makes for righteousness.

"How can you tell what 'makes for righteousness?' Do the tides 'make for righteousness?' Yet they don't flow in the same direction for seven hours together. Where is righteousness? What are its bearings? What pilot knows them? What does it matter what you or anybody else thinks of this play or that? It takes all sorts of plays to make a drama. But of one thing we may be sure. Whatever has been from the beginning 'makes for righteousness'—or God would be the Devil. The Devil himself 'makes for righteousness,' and will get there before some of the philosophers. The drama has existed ever since the Garden of Eden.

"If I may turn critic for a moment, let me say this. A play that 'makes for righteousness,' and is a bad play, misses its mark.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

ONE of the most interesting events of the coming week in the music hall world will undoubtedly be the celebration on Monday of the eighty-fifth birthday of Mr Charles Morton, the veteran manager of the Palace. To hold such an onerous and responsible position at the advanced age of eighty-five says much for the soundness and vigour of Mr Morton's constitution. The Palace manager is a thorough believer in hard work and strict temperance in all things. His long life has been an extremely busy one. In the days of his youth holiday making was much more restricted than it is at the present time; and Mr Morton has never been long absent from business. Even now his annual holiday is only for about a week. His working day, too, begins at half-past ten, and he is on duty at the Palace until midnight. Amongst the managers of London's places of amusement Mr Morton's record is certainly unique. On Monday he will receive once more the hearty and sincere congratulations of his many friends both in and out of the profession.

IN the course of a recent interview Mr Morton stated that he paid the famous Sam Cowell £80 a week at the Canterbury. He added:—"What is more, I believe that if he were with us now he would be earning fully as much; his art was so adaptable. A man like Cowell would never grow old. I daresay all the old-stagers would be styled old-fashioned now, even E. W. Mackney, the first Negro minstrel. I paid Mackney as little as £6 a week, and when Weston offered him £12 I let him go. He lived to get his forties and fifties. Miss Russell (niece of Henry Russell), again, had her £10, and she had her £40 a week. I paid £40 a week to Augustus Braham (son of the great tenor) for three months—and I gave Pico, who was blind and played a mouth instrument he had invented himself, £100 a week. By the way, Pico and a Spanish troupe of minstrels, with Madame Mariette, were the only foreign turns which I can recall in the 'fifties.' We found all the talent at home."

MR E. W. MACKNEY, the veteran retired comic singer above alluded to, writes from Enfield in reference to his old and esteemed friend, Charles Morton's, career at the old Canterbury Hall. He says:—"I was engaged by him for a period of five years—the longest engagement I ever fulfilled during my life. For the first four years I had to appear twice in the evening, which amounted to six to eight representations, and sometimes, when Mr Sam Cowell was not able, or felt disinclined, to sing, had to take his two turns, so that I was the only comic entertainer during the whole evening. It was lucky that I had the gift of being able to amuse the public for such a number of years 'Good old Morton,' many happy returns of the day!"

SAM COWELL, to whom Mr Morton and Mr Mackney refer, died March 11, 1864, at Blandford, in Dorsetshire. He was only forty-four years of age. In his early days Cowell was a member of the company at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, where his songs drew crowds nightly to hear him. He was afterwards engaged at the London Adelphi, and subsequently appeared at the Princess's. He also took parts in grand opera with Sims Reeves and other stars of that day at Covent-garden Theatre under the management of Mr Alfred Bunn, and he had the honour of appearing before the late Queen Victoria and her Court at Windsor Castle. Later he gave concerts in all the principal towns of Great Britain and Ireland, Canada, and the United States.

SAM COWELL'S remarkable popularity as a singer had much to do with the success of the Canterbury as a place of amusement. He at first sang in a small room three or four nights in the week, and upon each occasion the apartment was crowded to excess to hear his comic ditties. Mr Charles Morton thereupon enlarged the hall, and later he again extended the premises to meet the demand for accommodation. The last months of Sam Cowell's life were passed in comparative poverty, a lingering illness preventing him following his profession. He was a member of the Siddons and Kemble families, and a nephew of Mr W. H. Murray, manager of the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh.

THE clever and popular comedian Mr Sam Mayo is to be married to-day. A special train will leave London-bridge at 11 40 a.m. to convey fifty guests to Brighton, where they will be met by fifty other guests at Christie's Hotel. Here the merry party will partake of the wedding breakfast, and the usual toasts will be duly honoured. We wish Mr Sam Mayo and his charming bride every happiness.

ALL the members of the Ten-Ichi Troupe of Japanese illusionists now appearing at the Alhambra speak English, with the exception of Mr Ten-Ichi himself. The speechmaker of the party—whose European clothes, by the way, look so dull and commonplace compared with the handsome silk and embroideries of his companions—was asked on Monday night whether the Japanese were going to take Port Arthur, his questioner being one of the gentlemen called on to the stage from the audience to assist in an experiment. The little man looked smilingly puzzled for a minute, and then replied, "Pardon, I do not know. I only attend to my own affairs." The Englishmen present agreed that the statement was characteristic of his race.

LITTLE TICH will commence an exclusive West-end engagement at the Tivoli on Monday next. At the same time Mr R. G. Knowles and Miss Queenie Leighton will make their appearance, the latter in a new scena, with special scenery, entitled On the Stage and Off. The programme will still retain the names of Ada Colley, Winifred Hare, Wilkie Bard, Dutch Daly, Mark Sheridan, May Henderson, the Brothers Bright, and others.

MISS QUEENIE LEIGHTON, who has quite recovered from her recent illness, has been engaged as principal boy in the pantomime at Drury-lane Theatre next Christmas.

AFTER more than two years' absence from the variety stage Miss Marie Dainton will make her first appearance at the Alhambra on Monday next in a series of imitations. Miss Dainton, although not in the original cast, played for many months with much success the part of Mrs Pineapple, in A Chinese Honeymoon, at the Strand Theatre. Previous to that she made a hit in Pot-Pourri, "revue" of 1899, produced at the Avenue Theatre on June 9 of that year, and in which the clever young actress introduced her imitations.

THE advent of Miss Winifred Hare on the music hall stage has caused no little comment, and her success is beyond question. The careful selection of good songs has been a great factor towards this, and in her ditty "Tizan, the Maid of Hindostan" she has a tuneful number in rather a novel strain. She will introduce it in her forthcoming pantomime engagement at Stoke Newington.

MISS CONSTANCE MOXON applied to the White-eyed Kaffir, ann asked to be allowed to imitate the famous comedian. Miss Moxon received a courteous permission from Chirgwin, and now the vivacious little lady will be delighting music hall patrons with her clever imitation of the "Kaffir of the White Eye."

WE regret to learn that Mrs Frank Egerton is lying dangerously ill at a private nursing home in the West end. Her daughter (Miniature Marie, and latterly Mina Alix), who was married last winter to Lieut. C. T. Smith, late 3rd (Prince of Wales's) Dragoon Guards, has been informed by a specialist that an operation will be performed shortly.

ANOTHER of the old school has joined the great majority in the person of Ted M'Natty, of the Levite Tandem Troupe. "Mac" had been ailing for some time, and on Saturday, July 30, at the Homeopathic Hospital, Birmingham, succumbed to that dread disease, cancer. Something like thirty-eight years ago he first appeared as a sketch artist (Cosnett and M'Natty), and for the following twelve years partnered Dan Kendall and Jack Fulford (now mine host in Newport, Mon.) respectively, while for the past twenty-five years he has been a member of the Levite Tandem Troupe (by-the-way, he was not only the inventor of The Tandem, but made all the properties connected with the act), himself acting the parts of dude and driver.

M'NATTY was well known throughout the profession, but, owing to the troupe not obtaining so many engagements of late, "Mac" had been in straitened circumstances. However, his brother and sister artistes came to his aid, and saved him from a pauper's grave. On the strength of a wire received from Mr Joe Elvin, who had nobly gone out of his way to guarantee the larger share, Mr Alec Hurley generously and spontaneously advanced the balance of the undertaker's account, and enabled the poor fellow to be laid to rest at Key Hill Cemetery, Birmingham. The funeral took place on Sunday last. Bob Vokes, Will Souls, J. Driscol, and Charles White represented the profession at the funeral, and among the floral tributes the most prominent of all was the one bearing the following appropriate sentiment:—"With deepest sympathy from his brother and sister artistes now appearing at the Empire Palace, Birmingham."

THE Gateshead Alhambra Theatre of Varieties Company, Limited (81 681), was registered on July 27, by Jordan and Son, Limited, 120, Chancery-lane, W.C., with a capital of £40 000 in £1 shares, the object being to acquire land in Gateshead, to erect and maintain a music hall or other place of entertainment, and to carry on the business of music hall and theatre proprietors and managers, public entertainers, licensed victuallers, &c. No initial public issue. The first directors (to number not less than five nor more than fifteen) are J. Brennan, C. Walker, J. Johnson, W. G. Coket, S. Sheriff, and M. S. Hammond. Qualification, £300. Remuneration as fixed by the company. Registered office: Hunter's-buildings, Sunderland-road East, Gateshead.

THE Northampton Palace of Varieties, under the energetic management of the proprietor, Mr Fred H. Anderson, is likely to become more popular than ever. During the short vacation the hall has been thoroughly renovated, and the original scheme of decoration improved and re-embellished. A cosy crush-room, chastely decorated, has been provided, together with veined marble steps and electric lights. Outside the façade has been brought more into character with the place as a music hall, and various other minor improvements have been carried out. Great credit is due to Mr Edwin Archer, of Northampton, for the able manner in which he has completed the work in so short a period. Mr Robert Burton, the acting-manager, commenced his duties here on August Bank Holiday, and has already proved himself a competent and courteous official, his managerial experiences fully qualifying him for this important post.

MR PHIL A. LENNON, resident-manager of the Empire, Bradford, was last week entertained to luncheon by his Worship the Mayor of Bradford (Alderman David Wade). Mr Lennon has been appointed manager at the Richmond Theatre, which is under the proprietorship of Mr George Dance. At Christmas it will be transformed into a variety house on the two-shows-a-night system.

THE Grand Palace of Varieties, Sheffield, thanks to the generous enterprise of the Macnaghten firm, the energetic management of the all-conquering Mr W. C. Burns, and the great improvements made in the district by the Corporation, is now fully recognised as one of the best-conducted and most comfortable places of amusement in the city. Mr Burns's novel competitions and contests are additional features every week to a well-arranged variety programme.

THE Walthamstow Palace, Limited, London, was registered on Aug. 2 for £800 five per cent. debentures, part of £10,000; amount previously issued, £9 200; holder: A. J. Bateman, of Ramsey, Hunts; charged on all the property, present and future, including the uncalled capital.

MR CHARLES G. REMBGES, the manager of the Middlesex, is at present in charge of the Empire, Middlesbrough, the managing-directors of the premier Tees-side house—Messrs Brill and Graydon—having thoughtfully placed Mr Rembges at Middlesbrough as locum tenens for Mr Johnny Thornborrow, whilst the latter takes a sea voyage to recruit his health after his recent illness. Mr Rembges has once more renewed the acquaintance of many friends on Tees-side.

MR J. W. CHAPPELL'S friends will be delighted to hear that he is now enjoying fairly good health at Great Yarmouth. The bracing air brings hosts of well-known people of the entertainment world to this famous East Coast resort, which can hardly be beaten for its health-giving powers. The beautiful summer has enhanced the charms of the place, and the season is one of the busiest on record.

MR FREDERICK HOBBS, who is touring with Mr Tom Morton's clever little "Yokels" company, swam a good second in the Visitors' Race at the Paignton Swimming Club sports this week. The first prize was carried off by Moist, the Birmingham champion.

MR CHARLES COBORN, the popular comedian, was much gratified with the numerous telegrams and letters of congratulation that he received last Thursday, on the occasion of his birthday. He is this week fulfilling his second engagement this season at the Derby Castle, Douglas, where he is repeating the great success he made at Whitsuntide.

MR GEO. LEYBOURNE the son of the famous George Leybourne, is the manager of the Alhambra Palace, Sandgate, where he will be pleased to welcome artistes.

MISS LELIA ROZE has thoroughly enjoyed her month's vacation at home, having had some splendid fishing, boating, and driving in the vicinity of Strangford Lough (near her residence). Miss Roze, who feels all the better for her rest, resumes work at the Grand, Hanley, on Monday next.

MR SAM MAYO has been presiding at a singing competition at the Alhambra, Brighton, with much success.

MISS MAGGIE DUGGAN has been out of the bill at the Palace, Attercliffe, since Tuesday through loss of voice.

MISS LILY MARNEY leaves town for the provinces this week, returning to Shepherd's-bush, where she commences the Stoll Tour, on Nov. 14.

MR J. ZEDORA, principal of the Flying Zedoras, and inventor and patentee of the human arrow feat, which was the chief attraction with the Barnum and Bailey show and numerous continental establishments, is about to introduce a big novelty in the form of a stage flying show in conjunction with the human arrow attraction. The reputation of the Flying Zedoras, both for originality and skill, is a sufficient guarantee of a sure success for their new act.

MARCELLINE, the popular clown at the London Hippodrome, has been chatting with the inevitable newspaper interviewer, and has imparted the information that he is a Spaniard by birth, and Marcelline is a corruption of his Christian name Marcellino. His father is a well-known Spanish architect. Fascinated by a circus he saw when he was a small boy, he apprenticed himself to an acrobat, who gave him his preliminary training. Since he was seventeen he has only been attached to four circuses, with which he has travelled over a great part of the world, and he is now able to speak seven languages.

MARCELLINE added:—"During my career I have noticed a great change in the taste of the British public. In the old days a circus clown entered the arena in a comical costume, and was content to say funny things to the ringmaster in the hope of arousing the laughter of the audience. The clown of to-day must either be a tumbler like myself, or he must be an animal trainer, having a performing pig or a dog or some other quadruped. Of course, it means less work, for in the old days, after I had done my turn, I had to put on uniform and help in the ring, holding hoops for some fair equestrienne to jump through, or ribbons over which she would gracefully spring.

"I CANNOT understand why people are so fond of writing letters to performers. Day after day I receive letters from persons I have never met, asking me all kinds of odd questions, and very often there are anonymous communications. Why do people waste so much time? I don't treasure all these letters. As a matter of fact, what I most treasure is a bouquet of roses which the sons of the Prince and Princess of Wales threw to me from the Royal box the other afternoon. This was, indeed, a pretty compliment."

THE shareholders of the Granville, Walham-green, will hold a meeting on Tuesday next. The report which has been issued states that "The result of the year's working is disappointing to the directors, the increase in the working expenses over those of the previous year being mainly in respect of salaries paid to artistes; and although the takings at the doors exceeded those of last year, they have not reached the figures anticipated." The gross receipts amounted to £15 352 10d., and the expenses to £13.621 14s., leaving £1,730 6s. 10d. Out of this there has to be provided debenture interest, income tax, depreciation, sinking fund, reserve for loss on defalcations, special expenses account, leaving a balance of £674 7s. 6d. to be carried forward.

THE 367th meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Harry Blake presiding. Mr Charles Kitts was elected a member of the committee. The secretary reported that fourteen new members had joined during the past week, making the total number enrolled since the commencement 10,409. Mrs Webb, of the Devonshire Hotel, Eastbourne, was appointed as agent in that town, also Mr Harrold, of the Suffolk Hotel, Lowestoft.

MR JESSE SPARROW, of the Camberwell Palace, has been appointed, in addition to his present duties, as general manager of the Granville, Walham-green, which position became vacant by the departure of Mr Arthur Yates to act as joint manager with Mr James Howell at the Tivoli.

THE marvellous performances of Caicedo, the wonderful wire-walker, are known all over the world. On Thursday last he received a wire from Bilbao, the Scarborough of Spain, to proceed to that fashionable watering place and open to day with his wonderful feats.

MR H. H. FEIBER, the European representative of Mr B. F. Keith, has secured passages for himself and family to sail in the Teutonic for America on the 14th of next month. He will return to this country in April or May of next year, in order to see various attractions and engage artistes for Mr Keith's seasons of 1905 and 1906. Since his arrival in England on May 1 Mr Feiber has travelled all over the provinces of Great Britain and the Continent in his search for "talent" to present before American audiences. He states that he has never known such a scarcity of novelties in his life. During his previous trips he experienced no difficulty in this direction, but in the last four months he has failed to find anything of any interest which he could book for Keith's international circuit of variety theatres. Mr Feiber informs us that he would much rather procure an artist at £100 or £200 a week than book one at from £15 to £20, because the latter can be picked up any day. In the States Mr Keith and other managers are now selecting people from the legitimate stage.

M. WITMARK AND SONS, whose palatial building in Shaftesbury-avenue is the rendezvous of musical comedy managers, concert singers, and music hall artists, have further added to their enormous catalogue by the purchase of the publications of the Rogers Brothers' Music Publishing House, the Herald-square Music House, and the entire catalogue of Cobb and Edwards, who have produced so many hits known in all countries. Cobb and Edwards have been engaged to write exclusively for the house of Witmark, and one of their latest numbers, "Good-bye, little girl, good-bye," is destined to be one of the popular crazes.

ANOTHER notable addition to the staff of writers exclusively engaged by the Witmarks is Mr Dave Reed, jun., whose popular march song, "The Leader of Company B," has been played, sung, and whistled in every corner of the civilised globe. Mr Reed has weighed in early with another hit, entitled "Listen to the big brass band," of which Miss Alexandra Dagmar has secured the exclusive music hall rights.

MISS RACHEL LOWE, who can truthfully be termed "the singer of novelty songs," is scoring with "The Lucky Duck," in which she uses her trained duck, Hoppy. Hoppy has taken very kindly to theatrical life, but has a decided aversion to green peas. As a vocalist, however, he adds not a little to the realistic rendition of the song.

THERE is possibly no singer on the music-hall stage who can judge of the merits of a chorus song better than Miss Lil Hawthorne, who is now on a successful starring tour in the provinces. Miss Hawthorne has wisely chosen a pretty number, entitled "Tessie," which she evidently thinks suits her requirements, as the publishers (M. Witmark and Sons) were delighted to receive a telegram from her saying, "Pleased to say Tessie a big winner."

MR DAVE CARTER, who has been winning golden opinions for his sweet singing with the Manhattan Quartet, not only in England but all over the Continent, has added another "song gem" to his collection in "You're the flower of my heart, sweet Adeline." This number will prove a fitting successor to "Just idle dreams," which Mr Carter so effectively rendered.

THE Brothers Edgar write:—"Will you be good enough to allow us space to recommend a most deserving case to the supporters of Mr Harry Jee's excellent Rapid Help system. Mr Abe Holt (formerly Mr and Mrs Will Brown and Abe Holt) is in most needy circumstances. Poor fellow, he is quite willing and anxious to work at anything, but quite unable, as he is suffering from consumption. The doctors at the hospital he is attending advise him to get 'plenty of good nourishing food,' but he is without the means to provide even ordinary sustenance for himself and wife. He will be grateful to receive any donations that may be sent to him. His address is 2, Melbourne-street, Higher Broughton, Manchester.'

DR. WALFORD BODIE has come to London again, and has appeared this week at the London and Collins's. Despite the warm weather and the fact that it is the week following a Bank Holiday both halls have been packed to the doors. Dr. Bodie has received numerous offers from London managers, and there is every probability that the wonder-worker will be seen several months every year in the metropolis. On Saturday he finished his engagement at the Palace, Dundee. There was a record attendance, hundreds being turned away, and money refused at 7·15 p.m.

DR. BODIE walks upon the stage, and addressing the audience in a quiet, conversational tone, makes a preliminary statement of some length concerning hypnotism and the treatment by electricity of certain maladies. He considers electricity to be not merely the coming motive power but the coming curative power. In his treatment of patients he uses a high voltage of electricity, and runs the risk of possible fatal results to himself. He does not have recourse to chloroform, but places his patients in an unconscious state by means of hypnotism. While in this condition they do not feel any inconvenience from the great volume of electricity which is passed through their frames. The Doctor made a strong point when he announced that he only invited those patients who have been discharged from the hospitals after having been given up as hopeless by the leading physicians and surgeons. If he had lived one hundred years ago and performed cures by the same means he would probably have been regarded as one having dealings with the powers of darkness. He impressed upon his audience that he did not claim to possess any supernatural power, but relied upon his superior knowledge of the uses of electricity.

ON the occasion of our visit to Collins's Dr. Bodie dealt with four cases. The first was that of a young girl who had been paralysed in the legs for twelve years. She had been treated at the London Hospital and discharged as a hopeless case. The doctor, after a brief examination of the patient, who was carried on to the stage, set his electric apparatus to work and the current was conveyed to the unconscious girl, who, as a result of the treatment, was able to walk off the stage. The last case was a lad whose legs were in irons, and who walked on with the aid of crutches. The doctor stated that the boy had been operated upon for paralysis at one of the hospitals, and this had caused a permanent injury to the leg, so that he would always walk lame. In such cases an operation was worse than useless. After the doctor's treatment the patient was able to limp off the stage without the use either of crutches or of leg-irons, and his father came forward and testified to the wonderful results as the doctor's skill after his son had been under hospital treatment for years.

DR. BODIE'S successful demonstrations of his skill were received with loud cheers, and he quickly silenced a medical critic in the stalls, his retorts being very much to the point. He concluded his performance by a most amusing exhibition of hypnotism. One young man was made to imagine he was Mr Joseph Chamberlain addressing an audience on the Fiscal Question, while another sang and danced in the most comical fashion. Altogether the doctor has created quite a sensation in Islington and Shoreditch. Outside the two halls crippled men, women, and children have assembled at an early hour in the morning, and waited patiently until noon, in the hope of obtaining an interview with the doctor. He will open on Monday next at the Hammersmith and Camberwell halls.

LAST week, as a result of a challenge for £50, Dr. Bodie entered the cages of the hyenas and wolves in the Zoo, Castle-street, Dundee, and succeeded in subduing the wild beasts by mesmerism. The doctor first paid attention to the pair of hyenas who showed their teeth in a most menacing manner. However, he quickly had them under control, and put them through a performance. He was equally successful with the wolves. The doctor was loudly applauded for his pluck. The challenge money was given him, and he at once handed it over to Mr Andrew Philip, the manager of the Zoo.

IN the Court of King's Bench, on Saturday, before Mr Justice Ridley, on the application of Mr Morton Smith, who appeared for the Tivoli, Manchester (Limited), an injunction was granted against a variety artist known as Dandy George, restraining him from performing at the Regent Theatre, Manchester, or any other place of entertainment within twenty miles of the Tivoli, until after June 24, 1905, without the consent of the Tivoli directors. Counsel explained that Mr Thomas Barrasford and Miss Daisy Davidson were joined as defendants in the first instance, and that Mr Barrasford was dismissed from the action on giving a certain undertaking, and that Miss Davidson had consented to judgment. Mr George had delivered no defence. Hence this formal application for judgment against him. No costs were asked for.

THE skeleton of the celebrated chimpanzee Consul has just been placed in the Museum of Comparative Anatomy in Paris.

PLACED in a conspicuous position in one of the carriages an order for £5 was lying ready on Saturday for any traveller on the Great Wheel at Earl's Court who took the trouble to pick it up. But it was not till 9 40 p.m. that the order was discovered on the settee of compartment A6. The lucky finder was Mr A. E. Carter, of 128, Sefton Park-road, Ashley Down, Bristol. Quite by chance, he said, he was passing by with his wife, and as he had enjoyed a trip on the wheel seven or eight years ago, he thought he would go round once more. Seeing a bit of paper on the seat, he took the trouble to unroll it and found that it was the coveted order. Another order for £5 will be hidden to-day.

MR CHARLES CLIFFORD, the refined humourist, vocalist, and solo harpist, is topping the bill at the Aquarium, Rothesay, his songs—written by himself—and his performance on the two harps—a fine large Erard and a small antique Irish one—eliciting loud applause. The sweet music which Mr Clifford discourses by means of that charming instrument the harp is always listened to with delight.

MR HENRI, of equilibristic and gymnastic fame, and Mrs Henri start on Monday on a three weeks' holiday in France, returning on Sept. 5 to open at the Rotunda, Dublin. Mr Henri is engaged on a Poole's tour, extending over nine months.

MR T. NELSON DOWNES AND MR ERNEST THORN have invented and are patenting in England, France, Germany, America, and Australia, an apparatus for "vanishing" a person instantaneously in full view of an audience, and without the use of cabinets, mirrors, traps in stage, back curtains, or any covering whatever.

AN interesting wrestling match between two amateurs took place at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday night. The contestants were A. Wrangham, of Brixton, and C. Kiefer, of Kennington, the referee being Mr Munro. A silver cup was offered to the winner of two falls out of three by Mr W. J. Grimes, one of the directors, and a consolation piece of plate for the loser, by Mr John Cramp, of Smithfield Market, the bouts to be under catch-as-catch-can rules. The Brixton man had the advantage in weight and height over his opponent, and a clean fall was gained by him in the quick time of 1min. 45sec. In the second round Kiefer got his man down, and a plucky struggle ensued, both showing pretty play; but at 3min. 45sec. victory was declared for the Brixtonian. The prizes were handed to the wrestlers by Mr Grimes.

THE return match between the teams selected by Mr Fred Miller (the Canterbury) and Mr Frank Glenister (London Pavilion) took place on Wednesday afternoon at Tufnell-park athletic ground. Canterbury won the toss, and, going in first, scored exactly 100, Messrs J. Cotton, F. Storey, and E. Ball accounting for 71 of these. For the London Pavilion Mr H. Yuill scored 114 not out, Messrs Arthur Wright, H. Giddes, F. Loveridge, and G. Gibbs also doing well. The grand total was 197.

MR J. J. DALLAS, who, with Miss Bessie Allayne, made such a hit with The Bazaar Girl, has been asked to do several more sketches, including a complete pantomime in forty minutes, at Christmas, for a London house. Miss Allayne is the lady who has been so successful in the provinces as San Toy.

A VERSIFIER who rejoices in the nom de plume of "Balfloder" has written the following acrostic to mark the birthday on Monday of Mr Charles Morton:—

C ustom, Sir, commands that I
H old forth in verse yet once again,
A s in the past I've oftimes done,
R egarding thee, the best of men.
L adies bless where men revere, and so
E ach will entwine their wish with mine,
S hown in the pray'r express'd below.

M ay Heav'n smile on thee to-day, and
O 'er thee cast its sheltring wing—

THE second annual outing of the staff of the Macnaghten Halls (London circuit) is fixed for to-morrow. They purpose a river trip, and leave Paddington for Windsor at 10 15. At Windsor they board the La Marguerite, taking dinner and tea on the water,

THE staff of the Alhambra, Leicester-square, had their annual outing on Sunday, when they journeyed to Guildford by road. At the White Lion in that pleasant town over sixty sat down to dinner, presided over by Mr Scott, the manager, who was ably supported by Mr Woodford, his assistant. The weather was all that could be desired, and the arrangements for an enjoyable day's outing were admirably supervised by Mr Roberts.

THE staff of the Euston Varieties journeyed on Sunday last to Margate, and, favoured by fine weather, a pleasant time was spent in that salubrious and popular resort. Boating and other amusements were freely indulged in, and the catering gave complete satisfaction. Mr Fred M'Avoy is away on a brief holiday, and in his absence Mr C. E. Wellman occupied the post of chairman.

THE staff of the Walthamstow Palace have arranged to have their first outing to-morrow, their destination being the Metropole Southend.

MR GEORGE GILBEY has just acquired two new songs from the pen of William Hargreaves. One, a very humorous ditty with rather fresh ideas of comedy, bears the title "Why should I?" the other deals with an individual who is never content and requires more than he is likely to get of this world's luxuries. The title is "Not till then."

MR HENRY WOODFORD, the secretary and assistant manager of the Alhambra, left London yesterday for a holiday, during which he will make Birchington his headquarters. On Thursday night he entertained some of his friends at supper, among those who enjoyed his hospitality being Mr Charles Wilson, Mr William Clarkson, Mr Richard Northcott, and Mr Henry Wieland.

MISS YOLANDE NOBLE commences a week's engagement on Monday next at the Alhambra, Leicester-square, and her sister, Miss Anne Albon opens at the Palace, Blackpool. Miss Noble desires through our columns to thank the many artists in the profession for their kind wishes on her recovery from a long and trying illness. The above is her first engagement since Christmas, when she appeared in pantomime.

MR W. H. MORGAN writes:—I notice in your last issue a statement to the effect that the song "White Little Girl," sung by Miss Winifred Hare at the Tivoli last week, was written specially for her. I should like to point out that "White Little Girl," was sung by Miss Dora Greve first, and that she has half-rights in this song.

MR FRANK WEEKS will celebrate the fifth anniversary of the South London on Friday next, when a number of extra attractions will be laid on.

MR HARRY LYONS, who hails from Birmingham, has been appointed manager of Collins's, and Mr Chas. Hector manager of the London. The last-mentioned entered upon his duties last Monday.

THE Goodfellows sailed for Australia on Friday, booked with Mr Harry Rickards by Pacey and Reeve.

MISS EDNA CRAGGE is scoring with her new songs, especially her latest, "Daddy Dear," by H. Leighton, and another by Andre Zaudeful called "One of us again," introducing some novel scenic effects.

MR SAM GATHING, the popular and capable manager of the Empire, Stratford, has lately been presented by his wife with twin daughters. The three ladies are going strong and well, and the proud papa is the recipient of many hearty congratulations from his numerous friends.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy, on the 5th inst., a sitting was held for the public examination of Oscar Lotinga, a music hall artiste, professionally known as Oscar Luck, and associated with the troupe known as the Six Brothers Luck. The debtor, who has been adjudged bankrupt, attributed his present position to loss in connection with a cinématograph exhibition with which he toured. It was reported by the assistant-receiver that no statement of affairs was filed, and the examination was accordingly adjourned over the long vacation. Mr H. E. Burgess appeared as assistant-receiver.

AT Westminster Coroner's Court, on the 5th inst, Mr Troutbeck resumed his inquiry with reference to the death of James Albert Lee, aged twenty-two years, a "super" employed at the London Hippodrome, who died in Charing-cross Hospital from the effects of a wound alleged to have been inflicted by Raphael Cicalini, an Italian, in Soho. Edward Thomas Duvanny, also a "super" at the Hippodrome, said that on Saturday night, after the performance, Lee, two other "supers" named Bernard and Driscoll, and witness went into a public-house. He and Driscoll left Lee and Bernard in the bar, and walked towards Soho. Subsequently there was a fight, in which several men took part. The deceased was standing close by when the fight began. Seeing a policeman in the distance witness moved off towards his home in New Compton-street. He saw Cicalini standing at a corner. Cicalini at once made towards him, and he struck at him in self-defence. Then he fell, and when he recovered himself he found Cicalini standing over him. He put his hand on his hip and found that his trousers were soaked with blood, and that he had been stabbed in two places—in the hip and in the stomach. He subsequently went to the hospital for treatment. After hearing other evidence as to the quarrel, the inquiry was adjourned until Aug. 29.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

CHELSEA PALACE

Arrangements for the amusement of the variety-going public are perfect at the handsome hall in the King's-road, where the most luxurious accommodation is combined with an entertainment the excellence of which is assured under the all-wise supervision of Mr Henri Gros, aided by the astute and genial Mr Edward Swanborough, whose capacity as a manager has been tested by many years of service in the variety world. A prominent item in the current week's varied and entertaining programme is the comic farce, Lucinda's Elopement, in which all the characters are enacted by the clever protean actor, Mr R. A. Roberts. Music hall frequenters in all parts of London and the provinces are familiar with this amusing and smartly worked interlude, which is much more than a quick-change entertainment, each character presented being a realistic and well-studied impersonation. Mr Roberts's portrait of the garrulous and slightly inebriated Shepherd's-bush boarding-house keeper, Mrs Twiddles, is an especially finished and humorous interpretation, perfect in every little detail; and the fair Lucinda and the four male characters are all admirably played by the gifted actor. As the author of the farce Mr Roberts is also responsible for some witty dialogue that evokes much merriment; and the wonderful rapidity with which he changes from one character to another create amazement and enthusiasm, numerous recalls rewarding him at the termination of his arduous performance. An amusing and well-played little comedy is also given by the Sisters Pine (Vesta and Minnie), a couple of hard-working and capable young ladies who inherit much of their popular parents' ability to entertain. It is entitled The Kitchen Rehearsal, and the sisters impersonate a slatternly "slavey" and a superior parlourmaid. Their master and mistress have gone to the theatre, and the domestics determine to have a performance on their own. They go through a portion of a mock melodrama in most humorous fashion, and their excerpt from an opera is also well rendered, a skilfully executed dance evoking loud applause. One of the sisters gives promise of becoming an excellent low comedienne, and both are pleasing vocalists and expert dancers, their attractive little sketch being cordially welcomed. Mr Bob Hutt, a comedian with an eccentric style, manages to extract some humour from his two songs "Make Haste!" and "Oh, Jerusalem!" and the favourite comic singer, Mr Charles Bignell, is loudly applauded for his couple of selections, "A little bit here and there" and "Too-rool-loo-ral-lay." Cross-talk of a wittier nature than is usually encountered from comedians of a similar persuasion is forthcoming from Messrs Williams and Brown, who also sing an amusing ditty and dance with skill; and Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, a refined and attractive vocalist and comedienne, sings with much point and charm the popular "Sammy" and another pleasing item. Bob and Jennie Leonard give their amusing "Barrister and Barmaid" duet to the evident enjoyment of all, and also contribute a pretty and well-executed song and dance, "Barney," the favourite and happily associated couple being loudly acclaimed at the conclusion of their turn. Mr Charles Stevens, a smart character comedian, sings "Music to the ear" and another item with decided success; Miss Mabel Thorne, a low comedy artiste, who was received with cordiality, has an amusing chorus song in "His face is the blackest thing about him," and also scores in a ditty in which she implores the notorious "Bill Bailey" to return home; and the really first-class entertainment is concluded by the clever gymnastic performance of the Lundgreens, who execute many difficult feats on the revolving ladder, the humorous remarks and antics of the male of the duo largely enhancing the success of a novel and smartly worked show.

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

A welcome is ever ready for favourites old and new at the pretty hall at the foot of Denmark-hill, and to Miss Marie Lloyd, who is at the head of Mr Jesse Sparrow's current bill, and has been the means of drawing overflowing houses, a specially warm reception is extended. A piquant song with the refrain "something on his mind," develops a series of odd results, the point of the joke which is concealed in the last line of each verse being intensified by the consummate art of the clever comedienne. From the popular "What, what, what!" Miss Lloyd, moved by an irresistible demonstration in the auditorium, proceeds to her latest character sketch of "The Coster's Christening," which consists mainly of the soliloquies of a fond mother on her return with her offspring from the baptismal font. Agitation over the ceremony, ecstasies of maternal pride, and indignation at the disappearance of the butter, which leads to a heated squabble with the landlady below, are in the best vein of low comedy, unimpaired by extravagance, and so artistically presented as to keep the house in laughter during the whole progress of the sketch. An old-time favourite is found in Mr James Fawn, who revives his droll song "This'll do," which is as powerful as ever in moving to mirth. Later he dilates philosophically on "Girl," and despite the severity of his strictures on the species, the fair sex are heard the louder in the hearty laughter that takes possession of the house. Popularity has already been won for the scena A Schoolgirl's Holiday, presented by Miss Gertie Gitana, who, while preserving her youthful grace and freshness, has advanced rapidly in her art. The spectacle of the young girl arrived home for the holidays, bursting with anticipatory glee at the frolic and fun in prospect, is a pretty one, and the songs and dances with which it is embellished prove the little lady to be an artist of wondrous versatility. Her songs include "Good-night, Sweetheart," and "My Queen," a coon ballad and characteristic dance, while the refrain "Mammy, are there any angels black like me?" is rich in pathos, and excites the audience to admiration expressed in long-sustained cheers. Another fair exponent of song and dance is found in Miss Venie Clements, who in "Last Night's Party," gives imitations of various contributors to the revels, ending with a dance of exceeding neatness. O'Connor and Brady have any number of ingenious contrivances to raise hilarity, which is plentifully evident in the course of their eccentric antics, the laughter being especially hearty when one of the comedians insists on singing "Sweet Violets" while his partner rends him limb from limb. The Lukushima Troupe of Japanese equilibrists provide a startling display, the sensational whirling of bowls of liquid at the ends of a rope, and the evolutions of the two small boys on the pole and on the feet of the skilful lady being marvellous. Some breathless moments are furnished by Vincent, who performs backward somersaults from tables placed upon each other, which, rising higher and higher, culminate in a height of about 20ft., his acrobatic prowess being abundantly cheered. Mr Charles Leighton, who is a skilful comedy pianist, is assisted in his eccentricities by a vivacious young lady; Mr Walter Wallis introduces a cheery policeman; and Miss Nina Gordon gives clever impersonations at the piano of Marguerite Cornille, Louie Freear, Gus Elen, Vesta Victoria, Connie Ediss, and Harry Lauder, the truth of each portrait being recognised by liberal applause. Mr Will Farrell, Miss Edith Sylvesto, the M'Kays, Mr Will Musgrave, Miss Ada Vernon, Miss Flo D'Orville, Dandy George with his intelligent dog; Goggin and Davis, Mr Billy Williams, and the Loma Trio on the trapeze are other items of a lengthy bill, and a sight that should not be missed is the scena of "Electra's Bower," given by Alma, Abdullah, and La Superbe, in which dances and aerial flights take place in a grove of myriad lights, the boughs of the trees being fitted with electric lamps, gorgeous in colour and skilfully arranged.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

A change of entertainment, consisting of an excellent variety bill, is this week warmly welcomed by the frequenters of this popular theatre. The principal attraction is Bugler Dunne. Bugler Dunne's conspicuous bravery in the South African War won for him the personal recognition and praise of her late Majesty Queen Victoria, who received him and presented him with a silver-mounted bugle, on which he gives various calls. He is introduced with a graphic description of his bravery at Colenso by the well-known actor, Harewood Claire, who recites the stirring military recitation, entitled "Britain's Heroes," with striking stage effects. Next on the programme is the capital turn of Francis and Frances, comedy sketch artistes, supported by Master Kaffir, in the funny comedy, entitled A Misunderstanding. Miss Queena Barnes, the charming serio, appears in her latest successes, and Miss Blanche Ellen is also well received. Mdlle. D'Alvera, operatic vocalist, delights all with her charming singing of "Old Madrid," and other favourite songs. The stirring military sketch entitled Defending the Flag has proved a strong attraction. This little drama is excellently acted throughout by Mr Harewood Claire, Mr George Conway, Miss Gertrude Egar, Bugler John F. Dunne, and Miss Edith Francis. Another particularly good turn is supplied by Dudley Hayes, vocal character actor, in his successful scena entitled An Artist's Model. He is assisted by Mdlle. Flossie, whose entertainment is enthusiastically applauded.

THE MARVELLOUS ELLIOTTS AND SAVONAS IN BLACKPOOL.

ARE THE TOP ITEM OF AN EXCELLENT PROGRAMME.

Week by week the programme at the Palace, Blackpool, grows stronger as the season waxes to its height. A glance at this week's bill will show that it is difficult out of the excellent variety to make a choice of top item. The Seven Savonas are given that position on the bill, and so let them have the honour. Blackpool knows them of old as really capital musical entertainers. To-day they are still "musical marvels." Some sensational effects are given and many novel instruments introduced. The Six Elliotts, too, are old favourites, and they come quite fresh with a big cycle riding act.—Gazette News, Blackpool, Aug. 5.

BODIE SUBDUES WILD BEASTS.

Dr. Bodie, who has been occupying the People's Palace, Nethergate, and demonstrating his powers as hypnotist, appeared before the public this afternoon in a new rôle. As a result of a challenge for £50, Dr. Bodie entered the cages of

DR. WALFORD BODIE,

AS HE APPEARED AFTER ENTERING THE DEN OF WOLVES AND HYENAS.

the hyenas and wolves in the Zoo, Castle-street. There was a large attendance present to witness the doctor's daring feat, and some doubts were expressed as to his success in subduing the ferocious beasts by mesmerism. The doctor first tackled the hyenas a pair of wild, snarling brutes—who showed their teeth when he attempted to enter their den. Undaunted, he succeeded and put the animals through several manœuvres. They appeared to be thoroughly under control. Dr. Bodie then entered the wolves' cage. They seemed to lend themselves more readily for hypnotic influence, and went through their performance as if he had been their trainer for a long time. The doctor was loudly cheered for his bravery in tackling the wild animals. The challenge money was given up to Dr. Bodie, who at once handed it over to Mr Andrew Philip, the young manager of the Zoo, as a mark of his appreciation of his showmanship.—Dundee Telegraph, Aug 6

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

On Saturday evening a promenade concert was given in the Central Hall. The engagement of the Union Jack Ladies' Orchestra was a successful one. The selections and solos were most efficiently rendered, and Miss Lilian Watson, under whose direction the band is, and the fair conductress, Miss Rose Schoenthal, are deserving of commendation for their united efforts. Mr Claude Dyer possesses a good voice, and his interpretation of "The Jolly Sailor" and other items was excellent. The oboe solo "English Airs," by Miss Alice Einhauser, and the song "Carmena," by Miss Nancy Packman, met with a favourable reception. Miss Maud Philips scored with her violin solo, "Tarentelle," whilst a piccolo solo, "Piccaroon," by Miss B. Mitton, was applauded. The humorous element was not neglected, and the songs of Mr Ernest Jose, in which he accompanied himself, met with approval. Special praise should be accorded Miss F. Schoenthal for her brilliant execution of "The Lost Chord" as a cornet solo. The reception accorded this young lady was very flattering.

CHIRGWIN and Tom Lloyd have arranged a swimming match for £10 a-side. The course is from Portsmouth to Ryde, and the event comes off to-day.

A COPY OF "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the PUBLISHER, 49, Wellington-street, Strand.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

There is an exceedingly attractive list of entertainers at the Hackney Empire this week, and the performance has met with the full approval of those who have had the privilege of witnessing it. The items that together form a variety entertainment should be as judiciously blended as the ingredients of a salad; and care should be taken that no flavouring, so to speak, is too pronounced. The predominance once given to the comic singer in a variety programme is no longer the fashion, and this at one time all-important artist now contributes only a modest share towards the evening's amusement. Amongst the interesting turns at the Hackney Empire this week is that of the couple known as Boyd and Gilfain, whose merits as speciality artistes are generously acknowledged. The lady appears in the rôle of a smart barmaid, a character that may possibly be unknown to a future generation; and the gentleman represents a flippant customer. This lady of the bar is an excellent vocalist, and sings a ditty concerning "A few of the Johnnies I meet." These include representatives of various nationalities, the distinctive dialects being cleverly imitated. The couple also embody familiar characters from drama, comedy opera, &c. Some fun is, of course, extracted from the specimen of sensational melodrama, and the operatic selections are listened to with delight. Mr Fred Harcourt is described as "the modern magician," and after witnessing his performance no one will be inclined to term this flattering title an exaggerated one. Mr Harcourt performs some wonderful tricks very neatly, and proves himself quite a master in the art of conjuring. Amongst his wonderful achievements is that of making a ball pass up and down a plank at his will while he himself is standing some distance from the spheroid. He also produces billiard balls in extraordinary fashion, introduces a trick with canaries that puzzles his audience greatly, and he also shows his skill as a manipulator of cards. Altogether, it is a magic show that elicits equal wonder and admiration. Another turn that arouses considerable interest is the performance given by Max Renard's dogs. One of these is a fox-terrier, who displays remarkable intelligence, and performs some startling tricks. Some larger dogs evoke applause by their remarkable jumping, and the grouping of the canine performers is a novel feature of the show. The artist known as Alexander excels as a trick cyclist. His feats include the difficult one of mounting some steps on his machine and then descending them, and using only the larger wheel of a cycle, jumping from the top of the steps on to a table. His skill is acknowledged by liberal applause. Miss Lilian Warren's songs are accompanied by pictorial illustrations. "I'll be with you when the roses bloom again" are the parting words of a soldier to his sweetheart, but, alas, a bullet lays him low and he never returns to the waiting maid. Miss Warren also sings "Pictures no artist can paint," and her turn is greatly appreciated. Miss Florrie Gallimore scores with a Geisha ditty, and the sentiments expressed in "It's the poor that help the poor" meet with the full approval of Hackneyites. Mr Martin Conway is successful with a comic sailor's song and also with the ditty "She's a lady." Miss Lilian Lowe for her admirable rendering of "The song that reached my heart" meets with a most flattering reception, being recalled several times. Mr Fred Karno's troupe are appearing in the funny sketch entitled The Mumming Birds, and their efforts to amuse the audience are crowned with success. With Mr John Christie as acting-manager and Mr Kennedy Johnson as his assistant there is no lack of supervision in front of the house. A word of praise is also due to the orchestra so ably conducted by Mr Walter Johnson.

BATTERSEA PALACE.

Ingenious methods of attracting the public are employed by Mr E. E. Giles, the able general manager of the Battersea Palace, who leaves undone nothing that could contribute to the prosperity of the hall. His latest scheme is the introduction of the co-operative system, whereby patrons of the establishment are enabled to participate in the profits. Photographs are taken gratis of the first 2,000 applicants for admission at each house, a number of which are reproduced on the Cinématograph-sheet during the performance. A prize of 5s. is presented to each individual in the audience who recognises his picture; the person who first receives the 5s. three times gets a gold medal value £5; and he or she who gains the greatest number of awards will be entitled to participate in the first profits of the undertaking to the guaranteed extent of £50. Great interest is being taken in the scheme by the youths and maidens of Battersea, some £25 having already been allotted. The programme proper for the current week is contributed to by Mr Walter Munroe, who has a special place in the affections of dwellers in Battersea. From the outset of his long career Mr Munroe has been fain to present the stage Irishman in a favourable light, and by emphasising his patriotism and loyalty to show that Moonlighters and Fenians were by no means representative of the nation. In his song of "The smile of an Irishman" he makes Pat the possessor of all the virtues, and as the lyric is fitted with a melodious refrain and the words are fully in keeping with popular sentiment, the item becomes an immediate success. Mr Munroe is equally felicitous in "Is your mother in, Molly Malone?" in the tuneful chorus of which the assistance of the audience is generously granted. An attractive item of the bill is the scena entitled Missie Daisy, which Miss May Belfort presents in conjunction with a quartet of "coons," who precede the arrival of the charming comedienne with a song and dance. Miss Belfort, who impersonates the heroine of the scena, is beloved of the darkies, and at their earnest entreaty sings "When Shakespeare comes to town" and a pretty ballad of a daisy, garlands of that simple flower being effectively entwined about her dress. The ballad is a tuneful one, and is well sung by Miss Belfort, who is cordially applauded. Little Cliff, a juvenile comedian with broad ideas of fun, puts plenty of vitality into his song "Don't 'e look like father?" which secures considerable laughter, while not a little humour is imported into his dance in the blue uniform of an American drum-major, the dance also being invested with novelty and skill. Sword exercise, Indian clubs, and the boxing ball form part of the performance of Clark's Nippers, but the most entertaining part of their show is the bout with the gloves which takes place between two of the boys, and which includes some smart exchanges as well as an abundance of real humour on the part of "Willie," about whom there seems to be something of the boxer and a good deal of the comedian, his efforts being by no means lost on an appreciative house. Miss Lily Marney pleasantly puts the case of a man with a pair of wooden legs to whom she says in song "Turn up your nose," in token of contempt for the derision which his appearance excites. Later she makes a comical appearance as a "Spanish Onion from Drury-lane," her dress being plentifully decorated with that pungent vegetable, to the great amusement of the audience, who demonstrate a thorough relish for the song and the eccentricities of the singer, whose powerful voice gives every effect to the words. Condon and Preston rely on their wheeze about "Broadstairs" with which to elicit broad grins, which are also lavished upon their duet of "Hi-tiddley-um-te-ay," with which they conclude. Mr Will Farrell on the night of our visit gave but one specimen of his talent in "Making it hot for me," and the contributions of Miss Leah Laurie and Mr Edgar Granville were enjoyed to the full. The orchestra acquits itself excellently under the direction of Mr W. Hinkinson, one selection consisting of no less exacting a piece than the overture to Flotow's opera Martha.

MR. B. F. KEITH'S ENTERPRISES.

CHAT WITH MR. H. H. FEIBER.

Mr H. H. Feiber, the European representative of Keith's famous American entertainment firm, first became connected with that house some eleven years ago. Since that time he has been paying a regular annual visit to England, spending from six to nine months here searching for talent. "When I first came over here," says Mr Feiber, "Koster and Bial's were the greatest importers of acts in America, and at that time they were engaging from fifteen to twenty acts per season, giving the artists engagements of from eight to ten weeks. I immediately began to book a large number of artists, and I can safely say that I have sent more performers to America during the past seven years than were ever sent there by any other manager or company. At each of my trips I have taken on from fifty to seventy. Of course, these have not been all English acts, some having been found on the Continent. England has not by any means been the greatest producer of novelties in vaudeville, and I may here tell you that I have sent more novelties from America to England than from England to America. Some English managers do not encourage local artists to put originality into their efforts, and I think it is a pity that such a condition of affairs exists."

Mr Keith has two theatres in Boston, Mass., one in New York, two in Philadelphia, and one each in Providence, Pawtucket, and Pittsburg. In addition, he has just bought the Prospect Theatre, Cleveland, and is now building a new house in Buffalo. All the establishments mentioned are variety houses, with the exception of the Pawtucket Theatre, in which high-class dramas and musical comedies are presented. In a letter received by Mr Feiber this week from Mr Keith, the latter states that next year he will probably be running fifteen theatres. He also has an interest in a couple of theatres in Baltimore and Pittsburg, in addition to which he does all the booking arrangements of two houses in New York and one in Brooklyn belonging to Mr Percy G. Williams. Last year Mr Keith opened the Chestnut-street Theatre in Philadelphia. This place has been estimated to cost one million dollars, and with the one possible exception of the Grand Opera House in Paris Mr Feiber claims it is the finest vaudeville theatre in the world. "No manager," says Mr Feiber, "looks more after the comfort of the ladies and children than Mr Keith, and he is the only proprietor in the music hall business who employs a man to travel for eight months every year searching for new turns. 75 per cent of the American artists who visit this country come on spec. Now, the reason why I do not stay here all the year round is that I consider it necessary to go back to the States and compare what is being done there with what is being done in this country. It also helps to refresh my mind and give me opportunities to study the American audiences. An artist may be appearing with great success at the Empire, Leicester-square, yet the same person might be a failure at the Alhambra opposite. It is the same with American houses—you must study each audience. In Boston, Providence, and Philadelphia the playgoers prefer a much higher class of entertainment than is cared for in New York. In the former places we have what is called a 'kid-glove audience,' whose ideas are far more elevated than those held in the capital of the States. Let me tell you something else. Our prices of admission range from 4s. to 1s., and we engage the biggest attractions in the way of music hall talent. Our patrons do not pay one penny beyond the price of their seats. Programmes are provided free of charge, you pay nothing for leaving your hat or overcoat in the cloakroom, in the summer time iced water is passed round the audience, also free of charge, and the use of stationery and telephone is likewise gratis. Any attendant or employee caught accepting a tip would be instantly dismissed. How different that is from the state of things allowed to go on in your London theatres! A visitor to our houses may enter at noon if he likes and may remain until the curtain falls at 10·30 p.m. There is absolutely no restriction upon the time he may pass in the house or upon his occupancy of any unoccupied seat that he may take on entering. Once inside, he is entitled to take any seat in the part of the theatre to which he has been admitted. He may retain his seat at his pleasure, or, seeing another which he prefers, may move to that and remain as long as he wishes."

Of Mr Benjamin Franklin Keith, the proprietor of these places of entertainment, it may be said that he has had a remarkably successful business career. He started by exhibiting a midget baby weighing one and a-half pounds. In 1886 he evolved the continuous performance idea—a scheme that brought forth predictions of disaster from rival managers. Mr Keith put it into practical operation on July 6, 1886, and it was immediately crowned with a success that has not since departed. In the fall of that year he secured the Bijou Theatre, Boston, and two years later opened the Gaiety Opera House in Providence, which later on he presented to his general manager, Mr E. F. Albee. Little by little other theatres came under Mr Keith's control until at the present time he stands in a strong and unique position in theatrical circles in the United States.

MR R. G. KNOWLES will return to the Oxford on Monday with a budget of quaint new stories and funny songs. He is assured of a very hearty welcome.

THE clever Dunedin Troupe left Southampton on Friday afternoon for South America, and is expected to open at Buenos Ayres about Sept. 5. They return at Christmas to fulfil their London engagements.

MR FRED TRUSSELL, the popular acting-manager of the London Hippodrome, starts on what we hope will prove a very pleasant sea trip to-day. He leaves London per boat for Plymouth, thence to Falmouth, where he will break the journey for a few days. He afterwards sets sail for Dublin, and returns to his multitudinous duties at the Hippodrome on Sept. 5.

"TWO RUNAWAY GIRLS."

Sketch, in One Scene, by Brien M'Cullough. Played for the First Time at the Grand, Clapham-junction, on Monday, Aug. 8.

Captain Lollipop ..... MR C. F. COLLINGS
John Quex ..... MR BRIEN M'CULLOUGH
General Scorcher ..... MR ADAM ALEXANDER
Hopp Potts ..... MR JOHNSTONE GOULD
Maud May ..... MRS BENNETT
Sarah Sludge ..... MISS NELLIE NELSON

A plentiful supply of fun may always be looked for in Mr Brien M'Cullough's sketches, but his latest effort is given over entirely to comedy of such a kind as to be readily grasped by a popular audience. It has had the desired effect this week at Clapham-junction, where the audiences of the pretty Grand hall have abandoned themselves to unceasing merriment during the whole progress of the furiously farcical incidents, culminating in a burlesque boxing match, which have taken place in the courtyard of a country inn. It is in this unromantic spot that refuge is sought by Maud May and her maid, Sarah Sludge, who have disguised themselves in male attire, the maid appearing as a young officer and the mistress as his servant. Maud having fallen in love with an unknown Romeo at a fancy ball, has run away from her uncle, General Scorcher, in order to avoid a marriage with her cousin, Captain Lollipop, who himself prefers an equally mysterious Juliet. The General is anxious to force on the marriage of his niece and nephew in view of the fact that the former's fortune will revert to an asylum for idiots if she is not wed before she comes of age, and as Maud is within four days of that period, the General is hot upon the scent of his ward. He presses into his service the landlord of the inn, a retired champion of the prize ring, who speedily penetrates the disguise of the two girls in spite of their having taken the names of Captain Lollipop and John Quex, which were on a card found in the pocket of the tunic. Mine Host indicates to the General the two figures sitting at the table, but the places of the girls have been taken by the real Captain and his man, John Quex, who also have exchanged personalities for the time being, and the wrathful General, who is very short-sighted, thinking he is talking to the masquerading runaways, heaps reproaches upon the Captain and his man. Learning that his name has been taken by an impostor, Captain Lollipop compels Quex to maintain the family honour by challenging the pretended officer to a duel. Two gigantic pistols are produced, which go off with a terrific noise, but without effect, and Quex, growing bolder, offers to fight with boxing-gloves any one who chooses to come forward. This challenge is too much for the landlord, who eagerly produces the mittens and soon floors the unscientific Quex. John at length, by some unaccountable means, manages to give his formidable opponent a knock-out blow, and, as Maud recognises in Captain Lollipop her real lover, a felicitous ending is secured. The members of Mr Brien M'Cullough's company appear to advantage in their various rôles, Mr M'Cullough himself having in John Quex a character that enables him to employ his peculiar form of humour to the utmost extent. He cuts a grotesque figure when, divested of hat and tunic, he faces the burly "bruiser" and receives his first impressions of the "noble art." The duel scene is also made the most of, the success being shared by Miss Nellie Nelson, who looks smart in the regimentals assumed by Sarah Sludge and brims over with vivacity throughout. To Mrs Bennett is allotted the part of the runaway miss who masquerades as the groom, a costume in which she looks particularly captivating, while her acting retains the grace and charm which has so often been bestowed upon characters somewhat removed from the present. Mr Adam Alexander has the genuine manner of a brusque military officer as General Scorcher; Mr C. F. Collings makes a buoyant and vigorous personage of Captain Lollipop, posing as the manservant; and Mr Johnstone Gould, made up realistically as the retired prize-fighter, acts with admirable restraint, but none the less effectively. A pretty set has been painted by Mr Francis H. Bull, and the uniforms, by John Hyman and Co., are well adapted to the requirements of the characters.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

The theatre of varieties in the Broadway, Stratford, one of the first of the many luxurious and perfectly appointed Empires under the control of the enterprising and successful Moss and Stoll syndicate, commands all the patronage it undoubtedly deserves. The programme submitted twice nightly under the supervision of the able and experienced manager, Mr Sam Gething, is always of the very best, and that provided for the current week is no exception to the rule. An important item is the aquatic farce, Larks in the Lake, for which Mr Fred Ginnett and his company of comedians are responsible. Much amusing fooling is indulged in by the clever crowd of pantomimists in the opening scene, but when the huge canvas receptacle that covers the stage is filled with water the fun becomes fast and furious. Boats are overturned and their occupants immersed; an inflated policeman jumps into the lake; and the antics generally of the company cause the greatest hilarity. The "ducking" of the performers must be as refreshing to them this weather as it is to the audience, who are loud in their approbation of this novel and well-managed show. Peppo's monkeys execute some most difficult and amusing tricks, walking the pole, turning somersaults, and taking part in a Risley act with their clever trainer. One of these wonderfully intelligent simians does all the feats usually performed by a gymnast on a flying trapeze with the sureness and ease of a human being, and the entire exhibition is one of remarkable skill and attractiveness. The Fleury Trio, Parisian dancers, submit a novel Terpsichorean act, a sensational waltz and galop, a pretty and ingeniously managed butterfly dance, and many other movements being executed with decided cleverness by this expert and much-appreciated trio. Wonderful somersaults are an outstanding feature of the comedy acrobatic show given by Heely and Meely, who include many original devices for the creation of mirth in their much-applauded act; and Juno Salmo, "the golden Mephisto," a contortionist of marvellous powers, has a striking stage setting which adds to the attractiveness of a unique and impressive turn. Mr John E. Coyle, a comedian with a humorous style and much funny patter, sings a comic effusion "Why didn't you come before?" to the accompaniment of loud laughter, his stay being all too short; and the audience evinced their appreciation of the vocalism of Miss Lillie Langtry in such decided fashion that she was compelled to sing three songs. The vivacious and smart comedienne's many pertinent remarks concerning "Our Bazaar" evoked much merriment, and her description of her many and varied adventures on "Hampstead Heath" and also at "Alexandra Park" afforded abundant amusement to her auditors. A warm welcome was extended to Mr Fred Russell and his incorrigible Coster Joe, who have just lately returned to London after a long and entirely successful tour round the world. The clever and always entertaining ventriloquist has come back with plenty of new business, and his conversation with his popular little figure concerning the photo. of his wife and daughter was punctuated with the heartiest laughter; the serenade of Joe to his "donah" Sue also being much appreciated. "An Artist's Model," a series of beautiful living tableaux given by Mdlle. Diane De Fontenoy, was an artistic and pleasing item, the concluding impersonation of Queen Alexandra in her Coronation robe calling forth the loudest of plaudits, and the many other poses also being greatly admired. Others appearing in the varied and attractive programme are Leonard and Francis, eccentric acrobats; and the Four Milons in an acrobatic act.

"SIMON LEE" IN COURT.

In the Wolverhampton Police court on Wednesday a summons was heard against Philip Mollett and Tom Richards for permitting a stage play to be acted in an unlicensed building.

Mr H. U. H. Thorne, who prosecuted, said that on the 23rd of last month two members of the police force went to the local People's Palace of Varieties, and there witnessed a stage play consisting of eight scenes, nine characters, and occupying about twenty-five minutes.

Sergeant David Hayes, who came into the witness-box armed with a notebook, said the play he saw was called Simon Lee. He went on to describe the main features of the play.

"The first scene," said he, "represented a public house called the Golden Lion. There were two characters in it." The second scene was a church "There was a bellringer, and he was drunk," said the sergeant, meditatively turning over the leaves of his notebook.

"In act three we saw Simon Lee, his wife, the bell-ringer, with a cottage on the estate," went on the critic in uniform.

Mr Thorne—Were there other characters?

The Sergeant—Yes; there were lawyers, parsons, drunkards, and a convict cell.

Mr Haslam, who defended, observed that probably the convict cell was used for the lawyers He proceeded to ask Sergeant Hayes something more about the play, and the sergeant said:—"Well, there was an old man, who had got a daughter; and Simon Lee was a poacher, and—"

Mr Haslam—Oh, never mind about that. How long did the sketch last?—About twenty-five minutes.

Did the curtain ever come down?—No.

Did you pay to go in?—No. I saw persons paying. Why didn't you pay?

The Stipendiary—He is privileged.

Mr Haslam—Do you visit the Empire?—I have been.

Have you seen similar things played there?—Probably.

The Empire is a music hall?—Yes.

Is not Simon Lee described in the programme as a sketch?—Yes.

Have you ever seen the Iron Mask?—No.

Have you ever seen Humanity?—No, I am not much of a theatre-goer.

The Stipendiary—Was there any conversation between these people?

The Sergeant—Yes; the old man had got a pistol and he shot a couple of bellringers. Simon Lee also had a pistol, and he shot several.

Police-constable Evans corroborated, and, in reply to Mr Haslam, said he did not know the difference between a stage play and a sketch.

Tom Richards, one of the defendants, went into the box, and looked somewhat embarrassed when Mr Haslam asked him if he were a famous actor.

He replied that he had been on the stage for twenty years, and during the last two years he had played the low comedy part throughout the country in Simon Lee.

"A man in his time plays many parts," remarked a lawyer reflectively.

Mr Tom Richards proceeded to give his definition as to what was a stage play, and what was a sketch. He said a sketch ought not to occupy more than thirty minutes, and the curtain ought not to be lowered. If the curtain were lowered once the sketch would be turned into a two-act drama. A sketch need not be submitted to the Lord Chamberlain. Their presentation of Simon Lee was boiled down from the original drama, which took about two hours to play.

The Stipendiary—I have seen plays which only took about half-an-hour, and sometimes they have been better than the longer ones. This play might have been boiled down and retained all the good points, or may be all the bad ones, of the original Simon Lee.

Asked to define the difference between a stage play and a sketch, the witness ingeniously replied that a stage play consisted of "acts," and a sketch of scenes. He cited Humanity and The Fighting Parson as illustrations of sketches.

The Stipendiary said he had never had a similar case before him since he had sat in the district. In his judgment the sketch was a stage play within the meaning of the Act. He imposed a fine of 20s. and costs.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving, March 3d, 1898.

At Bath on Tuesday, Mr Ernest Kopp celebrated the completion of his fifty years of service as clarinet player in the local orchestras, when two benefit concerts were accorded to the veteran musician, at each of which he gave a solo, which was loudly encored. At the evening concert he made his "maiden" speech, thanking the Bath public for their kindness throughout his musical career and also for their attendance at his jubilee benefit. Mr Kopp, who is now in the "seventies," performs his duties daily with unceasing regularity and vigour.

Messrs Lee and Arden's al fresco enterprises at Dunoon, Ayr, Prestwich, Troon, and Ardrossan have proved so successful that they will include all the principal holiday resorts in the West of Scotland in their next season, and will also extend their field of operations to the east.

The many professionals who have stayed at Mrs Prowting's, at 31, Sutton-street, Birmingham, will be pleased to hear that that lady has recovered from her severe illness, and will be glad to meet her old friends once more.

Advertisers and Subscribers who are moving about, and who have their Copy of "The Era" sent direct from this Office, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, are requested to forward the Addresses for their Papers not later than the Tuesday in each Week.

LONDON HIPPODROME OUTING.

Ever since the opening of the London Hippodrome it has been the custom of the various sections of workers to take an annual holiday, and, in addition, to have what is generally conceded to be "a great one-day holiday on the top of it" in order to prepare for the hard work before them during the ensuing extra busy season. Each department, including head office, stage, and front of house, has its own method. So numerous are the employees all told that it would be an impossible feat to cater for them in one feeding. Mr Fred Trussell, the acting-manager, set himself no small task when he undertook to convey his crowd to the Isle of Wight on Sunday. The party, numbering about sixty, assembled at Victoria Station at 8 40 a.m., and started cheerily off in three saloon carriages for Portsmouth Town. Some elegant vehicles then conveyed them to the Esplanade Hotel. Here a first-rate luncheon was in readiness, and was done full justice to. Everybody having satisfied "the inner man," and excellent photographs of the party having been taken by Mr H. Flack, of Cranbourn-street, a move was made for the steamboat which was to convey all to Ryde.

That resort reached, coaches were requisitioned to explore the beauties of Brading, a most delightful and historically interesting village in the heart of the Island. Leaving the pier gates at Ryde at two o'clock, the coaches proceeded by way of St. John's-park and High-park, through Whitefield Woods. Here opportunity was given of seeing the village stocks, the whipping post, and the bull ring. To this latter, fixed in the middle of the street, bulls were fastened, and during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries bull baiting by dogs was indulged in as the Sunday afternoon sport and pastime of the people. The old church was also well worth inspection, as being a monument of pure Saxon architecture. In this village are the remains of a number of beautiful Roman villas and baths which have recently been unearthed, and which attract visitors from all parts of the world. There are three inns in the village: The Bugle, the Red Lion, and the Wheatsheaf, where arrangements had been made for tea or other refreshments. The return journey was by way of Nunwell, the country seat for many generations of the Oglander family, thence by Greenlane and Swanmore to Ryde Pier.

The sports at Brading, organised by Mr Arthur Higgett, staff superintendent, included a 150 yards running match, won from scratch by Higgett, Davis, with 12 yards start, being second. The long jump was won by T. Wootton. For the veterans' 120 yards walking race, J. Groombridge was first, and C. Goodger, second.

At 4·35 the happy party returned to Ryde and went viâ boat to the Esplanade Hotel, Southsea, ready to enjoy a delightful dinner, of which we append the

After the repast Mr Fred Trussell rose and proposed the toast of "The King and Queen," which was received with unbounded enthusiasm. The second toast, proposed also by Mr Trussell, was that of "Mr H. E. Moss, Mr Frank Allen, and the Directors of Moss' Empires, Limited." Mr Trussell said: I am sure we all regret that our worthy and respected chiefs, Mr Moss and Mr Frank Allen, are unable to be with us. They are away from town. But they have sent us hearty wishes, which I am sure we all greatly appreciate. If it were not for the "guv'nors'" generosity we should not be here in this happy party, and we thank them from the bottom of our hearts, one and all, not only for what we have received on the present occasion, but for all we have received prior as dependents. After touching on the virtues and excellence of his army of staff officers, he expressed himself in affectionate terms to them for their loyalty and conscientious work, not only in the firm's interests, but in his own. He had a special reference to make, that, in the absence of Mr Frank Allen, the general manager of Moss' Empires, Limited, he was pleased to see the head office represented by Mr William Armstrong. Mr Joseph Collard, whose material assistance had greatly helped the whole outing; Mr Harry C. Wild, the worthy treasurer of the Hippodrome, upon whom fell somewhat laborious work in organising and superintending, together with Mr Arthur C. Hicks, were also complimented by Mr Trussell.

A word should be said of the pretty table decoration, viz., showers of ruby roses and chains of smilax; also of the catering, excellently arranged and supplied by Mr C. H. Schmidt on board the trains, going and returning. Mr H. Carter's band discoursed sweet music during luncheon and dinner. The company consisted of Messrs Harry Wild, treasurer; A. C. Hicks, assistant-treasurer; C. Richards, manager box-office; R Weaver, assistant-manager box-office; H. W. Garrick, Press manager; E. Faulkner, V. Stephan, H. Swingler, D. Thompson, A. Higgett, Farrant, Peace, Earle, Wootton, Bonn, Seymour, O'Dea, Fitzgerald, Simpkins, M'Grath, Tizzard, Davis, Groombridge, Millichap; Mesdames Edith and Emily Darvill, Swindon, Ollett, Spindelow, Freeborn, Kearley, Murrell, D. M'Cracken, Bradley, and L. Bradley. Others included Messrs Coghlan, Goodyer, Burke, Green, Fair, Abrahams, Hexter, Colvile. Of the invited guests were Mr William Armstrong, F. Elliott, Clarence Corri, A. T. Williams, H. W. Hawkins, Alf Hughes, Marceline, Joseph Collard, C. H. Schmidt, H. Flack, Windham Guise, and Cecil Morton York. The whole contingent, safe and sound, arrived at Victoria thoroughly happy and comfortable at 10 35, having intensely enjoyed a most pleasant outing.

HACKNEY EMPIRE STAFF OUTING.

The third annual outing of the staff of the Hackney Empire took place on Sunday last, and proved in every way a great success. The general arrangements were admirably carried out by the following:—Chairman and treasurer, Mr J. Christie; acting-manager, vice-chairman, and secretary, Mr Kennedy Johnson (assistant-manager); committee, Mr H. Katterns, Mr G. Turner, Mr F. O. Esau, Mr W. Wiltshire, Mr R. Crawley, and Mrs Etherington. The party, forming quite a large assembly, were conveyed by most comfortable four-horse brakes, supplied by Mr S. Montague, of Cambridge-road. Mr Montague, accompanied by Mrs Montague, personally conducted the excursion, and had with him in his private trap, drawn by a couple of cream-coloured ponies, Mr and Mrs

HACKNEY EMPIRE STAFF OUTING (1904).

John Christie. The destination was the One Bell Hotel, Hatfield, where at half past one o'clock, an excellent dinner was served. The excursionists greatly enjoyed the drive from Hackney to Hatfield, which was through Dalston, Ball's-pond, Highbury, Holloway-road, and on under Highgate-archway through Finchley, along the great North road, through Barnet and Hadley. Hatfield was reached without a single mishap having occurred, and all were unanimous in praise of the splendid ride.

At the dinner the chairman was Mr John Christie, the duties of vice-chairman being undertaken by Mr Kennedy Johnson. Among those supporting the chairman on the occasion was Mr Walter Johnson, musical conductor at the Hackney Empire.

Full justice having been done to an excellent dinner,

Mr Christie (the Chairman) proposed the first toast on the list, that of "The King."

The toast was loyally received.

Mr Christie next proposed the health of the managing-director of the Hackney and Shepherd's-bush Empire Palaces, Limited, Mr Oswald Stoll. He referred to Mr Stoll's wonderful energy, and remarked that, in the matter of new halls, he was always looking round for new worlds to conquer. It certainly was a remarkable testimony, not only to Mr Stoll's energy, but his business foresight and aptitude, that every fresh hall he opened was a pronounced success. Mr Stoll deserved the success with which his efforts were attended. So far as Mr Stoll's visits to the Empire—near the Hackney Town Hall—were concerned, they were few and far between, but as to those employed at the Hackney Empire they would be glad to see him there at more frequent intervals, for they all knew that he could not fail to be satisfied with the way in which all details were carried out. However, Mr Stoll had shown his appreciation of the way in which they performed their duties by encouraging them by a donation to the fund for that pleasant outing. He asked them all to drink to the health and prosperity of Mr Oswald Stoll.

The toast was received with much enthusiasm.

Mr H. Katterns next proposed the toast, "The Management." The management of the Hackney Empire was represented on that occasion by Mr John Christie, Mr Oswald Stoll's acting-manager, who was their worthy chairman, and Mr Kennedy Johnson, the gentleman who was acting as vice-chairman, and who was Mr Christie's able assistant-manager. With regard to Mr Christie, he was sure they would all bear him out that he was one who could be most accurately described as "a good guv'nor." He interfered with none of them unless he was obliged, but somehow or the other they all seemed to feel that Mr Christie expected them to do their duty, and they did it accordingly. So far as Mr Kennedy Johnson was concerned, he had been in his present position as assistant-manager just over twelve months. He had proved himself a good colleague among the members of the staff, and speaking for himself he hoped to see that gentleman among them on the occasion of many more anniversaries.

Mr Christie, in acknowledging the toast, said it was simply due from him to say that he much appreciated the remarks of Mr Katterns in regard to himself. So far as he was personally concerned, he was only too pleased to assist the staff in any way in his power. He would show his good intentions towards them by at once hurrying on to propose the toast which stood in his name, which was, "The Staff—Males and Females." He was glad, as acting-manager, to be favoured with such an excellent staff. They all worked well together, and everything went smoothly and amicably. In looking round on that occasion he could see many who had been with him since the Hackney Empire first opened. That was a most satisfactory state of things, and he could assure all the staff that so long as duty was performed in a satisfactory way there was nothing to prevent them remaining as long as they chose to do so.

Mr Kennedy Johnson, in acknowledging the toast, said it was most satisfactory to know that the manager appreciated the staff. and it might be a fact equally well worth recording that the staff appreciated their manager. He thought the best hope he could express was—may the same state of things long continue.

Mr R Crawley proposed "The Donors and Visitors," and said he ventured to think it was one of the most important proposals on the list, because, speaking in reference to the donors, were it not for the assistance which they, as a staff, got from outside, they would not be able to enjoy such a successful outing as they were doing on that occasion. He hoped that next year they would have even a grander outing. Referring to those who had very kindly come to their assistance, he must mention their managing-director, Mr Oswald Stoll, who had sent them a very handsome donation. Then there was Mr Stewart, of the Hackney Furnishing Company, who had, with his usual kindness and liberality, come to their aid, and there were several others who had been very kind. Their outing would, of course, continue to be an annual event, and he looked forward to their meeting together many times under the chairmanship of Mr John Christie, supported by his able lieutenant, Mr Kennedy Johnson.

The concluding toast was that of "The Press," which was responded to by Mr Swain, who, in referring to Mr Christie, classed him among the ideal managers—those who, by example, by proper treatment of those around them, and by causing one and all to work well together, "managed" in the best sense of that word, so that those who were under their direction scarcely knew that they were being influenced in the due performance of their duties.

"The Era" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

SYDNEY, July 5.—Sanford's American Players made their first Australian appearance at the Lyceum Theatre on the 2nd inst., and produced a pronouncedly melodramatic play called The Power of Gold, which proved attractive to lovers of the sensational. Mr Walter Sanford is Dr. Zambra, of Seringapatam, and dresses picturesquely and acts in effective style. Miss Laura Wall is a handsome Lady Brandon Miss Rosa Conroy does capital work as Meg Judson Mr F. T. Henderson, Mr George Kurkel, Mr Griffith Wray, and Mr Jean De Lacy (a fine bully of a warder), and Miss Adelaide Boothby have congenial parts. The play is well scened, the snow pictures being particularly well worked. Mr Allan Hamilton has charge of the business aspect of the venture, and the Sydney playgoers will find The Power of Gold a palatable bill of fare.

"A Country Girl" is drawing well at Her Majesty's, but on the 9th Mr J. C. Williamson will produce a new opera with a New Zealand venue. The book is by Arthur Adams and J. C. Williamson, and the music by Alfred Hill. The title is Tapu, and Maories are engaged to sing their own songs, dance their own dances, and perform their own rites. Mr Leon Caron will conduct, and the preparations, on a large scale, are being carried out under the eye of Mr Williamson himself.

"The Price of Peace," acted by Mr Bland Holt's complete company, exhausts all that goes to make a fine performance, and, despite the keen competition, the astute actor-manager keeps things going without the aid of matinées. On the 9th Mr Holt will stage The Union Jack.

"Cousin Kate," which owes everything to Miss Florence Hamer's vivid portrayal of the name part, is now followed at the Criterion by Cousin Joe, a new name for A Rough Diamond, by Buckstone. Margery is acted by Miss Rose Musgrove in a lively and artistic style. A novelty here is the playing, in the orchestra, of an entr'acte xylophone solo by Mr Ralph Weekes, which earns a nightly encore.

Colonel D'Orsay Ogden was benefitted on Saturday and Monday nights at the Queen's Hall, the Dickens Dramatic Society playing a version of Oliver Twist, with the veteran bénéficiaire in the part of Fagin—a powerful impersonation.

The Tivoli had a most attractive "turn" added to its programme on the 2nd. This was supplied by the Levinos (Dolph and Susie), whose reception was cordial and enthusiastic. Cheers were heard at the close of their attractive sketch, Hypnotising a Wife, in which they each played two parts. Dan Burke, and Misses Moller and Teller, the talented Eussems, Maud Beatty, the Angelos, Jones Brothers, and Ernest Sullivan are all in the bill.

Mr Harry Rickards, ever to the front in enterprise and generosity, took over all the artists left stranded by Mr Tom Nairn's sudden departure, and they are now performing in Adelaide.

Miss Roxy Barton, the handsome young leading lady, left on Saturday by the Macedonia, to try her fortune in London. She goes laden with the good wishes of all who admire earnest merit.

Miss Ada Hatchwell, the elocutionist and comedienne, has been long in hospital, but her recovery is to be signalised by a performance towards which a long list of prominent artistes will contribute.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for The Era by Messrs Hughes and Young, patent agents, 55 and 56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C, who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters.

7,166. Floors, Patentee, T. Charteris, 38, Parliament-street, London, and J. B. Dunn, 11, Belgrave-place, Edinburgh. Elastic or spring floors for dancing halls, theatres, &c., are constructed of boards nailed to strutted joists, which are laid on steel bands stretched over adjustable studs screwed into blocks embedded in concrete.

15,406 William Clode and Francis Rogers, 10, Grove-road, Sparkhill, Birmingham. An improved portable hat hook for attaching to the back of seats in theatres, concert halls, and the like places.

16,228. Henry Shepley Booth, 6, Bank-street, Manchester. Improvements in aerial machines.

At the Palace, Glasgow, this week, the Matweef-Hugoston Troupe of Russian singers, dancers, and acrobats top the bill, and have a flattering reception, and the sketch by Billy Howard and Katherine Harris, entitled The Adventures of a Happy Tramp, is well received. Joe Almasio, the jumping juggler, provides a capital turn, and has to reappear. The rest of the company are Edward Clode, baritone vocalist; Geo. Schindler, musical speciality; Alma Grey, comedienne; Harry Edson and his canine friend "Doc;" Larry Lewis, comedian; and Marie Gibson, ballad vocalist.

On Wednesday, at Clerkenwell Police-court, Geo. Strugnell, eighteen, a vanguard, of Bowling-green-lane; Peter O'Farrell, eighteen, a baker, of Thanet-street, Euston-road; and Samuel Rex, eighteen, a theatrical armourer, of White Lion-street, Clerkenwell, were charged on remand with assaulting George Frankland, attendant, at Sadler's Wells Theatre. The complainant said the previous evening he refused to admit the defendants to the theatre, when they threatened him. Afterwards Strugnell struck him a heavy blow behind the ear. He also received a blow on the right hand with a belt. Rex rushed up and kicked him in the stomach. They ran off, but the complainant followed and caught Strugnell, while Mr Simpson detained Rex. The evidence against Farrell was that he incited his companions to attack the complainant by shouting, "Belts off, boys!" Mr d'Eyncourt sent Farrell to six weeks and the other two prisoners to a month's imprisonment, with hard labour.

At the Spa Theatre, Whitby, Mr Frank Wilson's company, in The Marriage of Kitty, occupied the boards on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and scored a distinct success. Mr Frank Wilson as Sir Reginald Belsize, Bart., cleverly portrayed the rôle, and received the frequent approval of the audience; as John Travers Mr Sydney Orton was distinctly successful; whilst Mr J. F. Leighton as Norbury represented the part with much credit. Mr Royston Keith, jun., as Hampton was excellent, and Miss Kate Harwood ably impersonated the part of Madame De Semiano. Miss Averil May scored as Rosalie; whilst Miss Vera Fordyce as Katherine Silverton gave a pleasing embodiment, and was throughout accorded a very hearty reception.

Mr Herbert Shelley had the unique experience this week of appearing at the Empress, Brixton, in friendly rivalry to his successful version of East Lynne, played by Mr Henry Dundas at the opposite theatre.

Mr Editor.—Sir,—Your correspondent for Worcester, reporting on the performance of His Majesty's Guests, on July 30th, stated that the company was the same as appeared in Worcester last year. The part of Lady Maud was played by my successor this year. Yours faithfully, Cora Duncan. 28, Barrington-road, Brixton, S.W., Aug. 11, 1904.

Mr Editor.—Sir,—In this week's issue of The Era, Miss Nellie Wallace is credited with the "top" of the bill at the Palace, Blackpool. The honour of that exalted position belongs to the marvellous Elliotts and Savonas.—Yours faithfully, J. B. Elliott. Palace, Theatre, Blackpool, Aug. 8.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Another attempt to abolish Edgware Fair has been made, and, like all previous efforts of the abolitionists, has met with signal failure. The fair was held according to the ancient custom on the Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday in the first week in August. The pleasure fair is very dear to the hearts of the people of Edgware. The question is not to be narrowed down to the mere assessment of compensation to the local authority, the Parish Council of Edgware. The people have rights in the matter, and the showmen using the fair have rights. The mere valuation of the land on which the fair is held, and the division of that value between the owners of the fair field and the local authorities, however equitably made, will leave the principal parties in the dispute without justice and unsatisfied—the people of Edgware and the show people. Twenty years ago the owners of the property on which the fair field is situated offered the Parish Council a site for a public hall and £350 in cash if the inhabitants of Edgware would surrender their fair rights. The offer was refused in public meeting, after full discussion. Negotiations for a settlement of the question were again opened recently, a larger offer being made, subject to the fair being abolished by mutual petition of the local authorities and the owners of the fair field. The secret of this anxiety on the part of the owners is that the property is scheduled for railway extension. It is hardly credible, but yet it is true, that whilst the question was in dispute between the local authority and the owners, an effort was made to prevent the showmen entering the fair ground. Mr Britton Pettigrove, acting for his mother, Mrs Jane Pettigrove, roundabout owner, tendered the usual ground rent, which was refused, and the entrance gate locked by order of the owners. This was the interesting position—the gate closed, the shows waiting, the organisers ready to pay the usual rent. At this moment the people of Edgware took the matter vigorously in hand; three men of Edgware asserted the right of the people to have and to hold the fair, by forcing the staple of the lock and throwing open the gate, and the shows entered, built up, and the fair began. The next stage was an application in the High Court of Chancery for an injunction against the Pettigroves holding the fair. This motion was adjourned until the trial of the action for trespass—a win for the showmen—and the fair was held to the end. We ask our readers to note the gross injustice of this attempt to prevent showmen holding the fair. The owners admit that the parish of Edgware has fair rights, and in order to abolish those rights offer compensation in property and money. Whilst these matters are in dispute the fair time comes along, and the showmen are denied the lawful exercise of their business at Edgware Fair. The local showmen are served with writs threatening all manner of penalties and actions in Chancery, and what for? Why, for doing that the law allows, and as yet has refused to abolish—the holding of the ancient fair at Edgware. Some time ago an effort was made to abolish the fair under the Fairs Abolition Act, but the then Home Secretary refused the petition; yet now the owners think they can on their own will and motion do that which the Home Office would not sanction. We are glad to see that the people of Edgware are fully alive to the danger before them, and are taking all necessary steps to defend their fair rights and franchise. We also venture to think that the trade societies of the itinerant showpeople will take every care that the business interests of their members are properly defended and safeguarded.

A public meeting of the inhabitants of Edgware and Little Stanmore was held on the 4th inst. in the Girls' Schoolroom to consider the position with regard to the attempt to abolish the fair. The notice, which was signed by Messrs G. R. Mann and C. H Wainwright (District Councillors), stated that legal proceedings had already been taken for the purpose of abolishing the fair, and it was most desirable that the rights of the parishioners should be protected. There was a large attendance, the number being over 100 and it was a most representative meeting. Dr. FINDLATER presided, and there were also present Messrs Mann, Wainwright, Allpress, Fox, Pollard, W. A. Tootell, F. Tootell (clerk to the Parish Council), Cribb, Thorndick, Stonebridge, Turner, Cardo, Highams, Hardiman, Cheeld, Sears, Colling, Tyler, &c.

Mr F. TOOTELL read the correspondence which which had passed between the Parish Council and Messrs Foyer and Hordern, solicitors to the trustees of Mr Richard Heming, deceased, the owners of the land. In one of these communications the solicitors said:—"You are aware that our clients, the trustees of the will of Richard Heming, Esq., deceased, are the owners of the land upon part of which Edgware Fair is held, and they are considering what steps they should take with a view to applying to have it abolished, being of opinion that the fair has become largely, if not entirely, obsolete; that it no longer carries out the objects for which it was known, and that with the increase of means of access to Edgware from London and its northern suburbs, the existence of such a fair will give rise to largely-increased annoyance and disturbance while it is being held. It must be borne in mind that the right (if any) to hold the fair is limited to a small part only of the present field, and that only three days in the year are occupied by the fair. Moreover, we are satisfied that the value of the fair, either to its owners or the residents, is largely over-estimated. Our clients, however, are willing to meet the inhabitants, and will be prepared to convey a site for a fire-engine house or other like public purpose to the proper authority, upon the following terms—(a) The fair to be first abolished by proper authority, and within three years from a date a short time hence; (b) the site to be the piece of ground enclosed by iron hurdles south of Ivy Cottage and north of the fair field, subject to the tenancy which will be determined as soon as a definite decision is arrived at; (c) the application of the owners to be supported by a joint petition of the Rural District Council and the Parish Council (the expenses of which our clients will bear); (d) a formal memorandum of terms to be entered into embodying the above and any other proper terms." Subsequent to this a joint meeting of the parish councils was held, when the following resolution was passed:—"That while strongly protesting against the statement that part only of the field is used for the fair, and that the same is obsolete or a nuisance to the inhabitants, this meeting of the parish councils of Edgware and Little Stanmore unanimously refuses the offer of Messrs Foyer and Hordern, on behalf of Richard Heming."

Mr TOOTELL added that the correspondence seemed to admit a liability, and the Council had been fully alive to what they considered were the rights of the public. As was well known, the inhabitants had asserted their authority, with the result that writs were flying about.

A letter addressed to Mr Mann by Mr I F. Jacobs, solicitor, was then read. This stated that his clients, Mrs Pettigrove and Mr B. Pettigrove, had been served with writs, and he thought Edgware should do all in their power to assist them, both financially and otherwise.

Mr WAINWRIGHT moved the following resolution:—"That this meeting of the inhabitants of the parishes of Edgware and Little Stanmore most strongly protest against the arbitrary and illegal action of the representatives of Messrs Heming's trustees and their attempt to abolish the holding of Edgware Fair and the rights of the public thereto, which have existed from time immemorial; and they hereby resolve to take all possible means in their power to protect their ancient rights and privileges."

Mr MANN said that the matter would come before the High Court on the following morning, and the District Council had engaged a solicitor to appear, with counsel, to oppose the application of the owners for an injunction. They felt that if the injunction was granted the rights of the public would be lost. About twenty years ago the owners made an offer of £350 and a field in Deans-brook-lane, which was refused; and since that time the value of the land on which the fair was held had gone up considerably. They felt that their rights ought not to be taken away without reasonable compensation.

Mr R. CARDO supported all that Mr Mann had said, saying that his father had been deputed to interview the trustees when the matter cropped up about twenty-one years ago. They were then offered a piece of ground in Deansbrook-lane, but it was pointed out that the site was in the parish of Hendon, and was swampy in the winter. They were then offered £350 and another piece of ground if they would give up their right to the holding of Edgware Fair.

Mr TOOTELL said there was no doubt that Edgware would have got the land and the sum of money had not Mr Hussey, the representative of the owners, died just as the negotiations came to a head. The piece of land was that on the ballast path, which was now advertised for sale. It was about three-quarters of an acre.

Mr MANN expressed sympathy with Mr Fox, the tenant, and said that they all knew that the step taken on Wednesday was not done on his initiative.

The resolution was carried unanimously, and the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman. A copy of the resolution was handed to Mr Jacobs to strengthen the position of his clients.

The application for an injunction was made in the High Court on the 5th inst., but the motion was adjourned pending trial. The following is the text of a telegram we have received:—

Edgware Fair. Motion for injunction adjourned pending trial, which is a win for the Pettigroves.

We take the above report from The Hendon and Finchley Times.

The rights of the showmen are safe in the good hands of Mr Watson Wright, of Leicester.

The Strathallan games at the Bridge of Allan took place within sight of the Wallace Memorial and the field of Bannockburn. Here we had Chipperfield's French menagerie, Mrs Johnson and Sons' variety circus, Sahib Leo's Egyptian Hall, James Lavin's School of Arms, Alf Haydn's second sight, Cyclops and May's athletes, and Horatio's giant horse; the Boswell Families, in their palmistry delineations; Mr John Wilmot and Sons' Royal Caledonian hunters; Mr Wattie Wilmot's prize swings, shooting saloons, &c.; Chipperfield's cinématograph exhibition, F. Wilson's African jungle, Taylor's varieties, R. Chipperfield's fisheries, and other amusements by Messrs Wilson, Taylor, Seaton, and Hawkes.

Stratford-on-Avon Fair will be held on Oct. 12. Proprietors of shows, galloping horses, &c., should take note of this popular fair. A second one is held on Oct. 21.

The friends of Mr Pearce Butler, circus manager and ringmaster, will be pleased to hear he has won his action against Mr H. E. Brammall for breach of contract. Council was engaged on both sides, and the judge awarded Mr Butler £50 in lieu of two weeks' salary for his miniature circus. A great deal of interest was manifested in the case by members of the profession, as it was purely a verbal contract.

Mr E. H. Bostock, whose connection with the Scottish Zoo and Hippodrome terminated on Saturday, commenced business while only a lad. Eight years ago a lease of the buildings, then known as the Olympia, in New City-road, was taken, and on April 1, 1897, the Scottish Zoo was formally opened. During these years Mr Bostock has deservedly earned great popularity, and his sorrow in leaving Glasgow is softened by the many expressions of sympathy he has received. He has at present a big show touring in South Africa, another in France, and a third is in England, while he also owns the Norwich Hippodrome.

INFORMATION relating to Shows and Fairs, suitable for this column, should be addressed to THE EDITOR, "The Showman World."

THE DUBLIN EMPIRE TEAM.

The Dublin Empire tug-of-war team, who were again successful in winning The Era Shield at the Theatrical and Music Hall Sports this year, by the kindness of their popular managing-director, Adam S. Findlater, Esq., J.P., M.A., were entertained last Sunday at his residence, Primrose Hill, Kingstown, co. Dublin, to a lunch, followed by bowling on the green and shooting, &c. The sports were heartily enjoyed by the whole of the team. The gold medals were also presented by Mrs A. S. PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

SHREWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. C. Dornton.—Mr Harry Foxwell's company has played Shadows of a Great City here this week. Mr Howell Travis as Tom Cooper was a talented and powerful hero; Mr Arthur Bassett as the gentlemanly villain merited high praise; Mr Chas. Oliver acquitted himself creditably in the rôle of detective; Mr Newton Pearce had plenty of scope for low comedy as Jim Farren and he worked hard and successfully; Mr Harry Foxwell was an amusing Abe Nathans, and various other male parts were in competent hands. Miss Sheila Walsh had plenty of trying work to do in the dual rôle of Annie and Nellie Standish, and in the latter character she was graceful and effective. Miss Nellie Gray acted with credit the part of Mrs Higgins; and Miss Mollie Monaghan was an amusing and spirited Biddy Roonan. One of the special attractions of the play was a striking mechanical change in act two to Rock of Hell Gate and View of Brooklyn Bridge at Night.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—After a long spell of melodrama the announcement of the successful burlesque, A Little Coquette, for this week drew an excellent house on the Monday. Miss Lizzie Payne invests the title-rôle with the needful vivacity, and displays adequate ability not only in her acting, but also in her singing and dancing. A sprightly and handsome hero is Miss Flo Warner as Robin Adair, her musical numbers being artistically rendered. Mr E. H. Bertram's acting and singing as Captain Narcissus lends excellent support to the above-mentioned ladies. Miss Nellie Butt pleasingly depicts Charlie Crowquille; Mr Forsyth Bruce again submits his powerful and unctuously funny delineation of the miserly Gabriel Grabbe; Simon Scrapps is quaintly acted by Mr George Hestor; and a clever widow is Mr J. W. Groves as Ann Teeke. Messrs Joe Bell (Peter Pipeclay) and J. Clarence (Tommy Sharpshoot) are amusing. The combined efforts of Messrs Bruce, Hestor, Groves, Bell, and Clarence keep the ball of fun rolling continuously. A word of praise is due to Mr J. L. Headlam's Peter Longpull. The chorus is animated and tuneful, and together with the augmented orchestra is under the able bâton of Mr E. C. Brierley.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—Bella and Bijou are favourite society entertainers, and their performance on Monday was received as on past occasions with every demonstration of approval. Phillips and Terry in their latest success, The Revolt of Man; or, One Hundred Years Ago, are exceedingly smart; Rezene and Robini in a trapeze act score heavily; amusement is caused by the droll turn submitted by C. F. Best; loud applause is meted out to Master George Young, the blind boy musician; the comicalities of Silent Tait are diverting; Josh Dixon is a popular comedian; and the Two Graces are charming duettists and dancers. Frank Lynne, comedian, completes a good bill.

SEASIDE PAVILION.—Proprietors, the South Shields Corporation.—Mr W. Catlin still continues to draw crowds by his excellent pierrot entertainments. The programme embraces all the latest songs, dances, and sketches, and the company engaged for their interpretation is in every respect capable. Mr Charley Arnett is a laughable comedian, and he affords an excellent butt for merriment. The dances are cleverly arranged, and they are capitally treated by the troupe.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; General Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—Another excellent attraction is provided this week, Mr Arnold Bell's company, in Ben-my-Chree, occupying the boards. The opening performance was witnessed by a large audience. Mr Arnold Bell gives a forcible reading of Dan Mylrea. Mr Dane Clark is very conspicuous in his capital rendering of Gilchrist. Mr Joe Bardsley gives a good account of Hominy Beg, and Mr William Reid is lively and clever as Davy Fayle. Miss Frances Campbell is much applauded for her pathetic delineation of Mona. Miss Violet Campbell is sprightly and charming as Kitty. Mr Frank C. Dobson's rendering of Thorkell Mylrea well befits the part, while Mr Arthur Rainer is excellent in the small rôle of Ewan Mylrea. Mr Cuthbert Imrie gives a powerful portrayal of Governor Harcourt. Miss Ida Bastow's singing of "Mona" and "Come Back to Erin" is greatly applauded. The whole is mounted and staged in a creditable manner.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—When London Sleeps is again being represented here by Mr Lester Collingwood's company. Mr Franklyn Graham well earns the execrations of the audience for his artistic impersonation of Captain Rodney Haynes. Miss Maude Hastings is all that can be desired as Queenie Carruthers. Bob Jones and his better-half are capitally acted by Mr F. E. Thomas and Miss Bella Power. Miss Mary Brammer submits an exceptionally clever rendering of Hilda Carode. Mr W. H. S. Sams makes a manly and vigorous David Engleheart. As the Hon. Bertie Broomhead Mr Frank Eden is very successful, as is Mr E. C. Edwards as Fuller. The remaining characters are in capable hands, and the piece is well mounted.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs T. Barrasford, F. Willmot, and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—The programme submited here this week includes the Barra Troupe, who give an excellent musical turn; Kioto is a smart equilibrist; Mr Gus Harris, comedian; Martine and Son, song illustrators; Miss Ethel Loftus, mimic; the Arleys, comedy cyclists and acrobats; the Sisters Brenton, vocalists and dancers; and Dan Kennedy give agreeable turns.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—That stirring military play, The Indian Mutiny, is here again, and seems to have lost none of its popularity. Mr Fred Emery's Lieut. Manley is vigorously done; Mr W. S. Tindall's Major Ingleby is played in true soldierly manner; the Ensign Blake of Mr G. Birch and Captain Manley of Mr H. G. Brandon are likewise good impersonations; Mr Villiers Stanley's Nebu Singh is cleverly acted; and the rôle of Ra Goonga by Mr J. S. Shedden is full of robust dignity. Mr Johnny M'Elroy's Terry O'Brien is made very humorous; and Miss Maud Digby's Ghuz Nah is a very stately and effective performance.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—An attractive bill is topped by those warm favourites, Austin and Cowan, vocal speciality artistes, and also here are Archie Glen, a clever boy comic; Ernesto, an unusually smart juggler; the Olmar Troupe, acrobats and pirouette tumblers; Harry Wenburn, a popular comic; Hughes and Elliott, vocalists and sand dancers; Payne's Bio-cope, and the Four Ramlos, in their comedy triple bar act.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—A highly attractive programme is provided this week. The star turn is Captain Gerard with his performing lions. Mdlle. Florence on the rolling globe does several startling feats; the Gees in their Musical Smiths sketch are thoroughly appreciated; and the Brothers Leon in a weight-lifting turn are deserving of praise. Geo. Bernard is a capital descriptive vocalist; the Les Voces contribute some excellent songs; Primavesi juggles cleverly; and the Boxing Midgets is a turn of much excellence.

STOURBRIDGE.

Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr Harry Wys' variety company is engaged for the week, and several entertaining turns are given. The programme includes Wys' comic pantomime company, Alf Tavron, swell comedian and dancer; Bertha Francis, coon dancer; the Oriental Jugglers, Ada Londerg, serio; Arthur Leybourne, comedian; Zalvar, comedy gymnast; George Mayo, elastic grotesque; Dora Denmark, comedienne; Del A. Vals, and Gibbons Biotableaux and Bioscope.

SWANSEA.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—Sunday, played by Mr Louis Calvert's capable company, has been the attraction at this house during the week. The lion's share falls to Miss Nita Faydon, Sunday, and Mr J. Edward Pearce, Colonel Brinthorpe, and their portrayals are certainly excellent; Messrs Charles B. Vaughan, Ernest A. Douglas, Frederick Powell, John H. Manley, T. Norman Walters, Whitford Kane, F. Harrison, Miss Elizabeth Watson, and Miss Olive Adair are all admirably placed.

New Star.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—Mr Herbert Fuller and company are engaged here this week, and on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday was staged the racing drama Fiends of London. On Thursday and Friday another drama, Passion of Life, was played.

New Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—The programme presented here includes May Edouin and Fred Edwards in the playlet, A Bachelor's Dream; James Stewart, the tramp at the piano; Miss Florence Esdaile, a charming vocalist; the Tribune Trio, in their grotesque eccentricity, The Cheerful Idiot; the American Bioscope; the Stavordale Quintet of clever musicians; Tennyson and Wallis, comedians; Chas. Austin, eccentric comedian; and the Werner Amoros Troupe of pantomimists, jugglers, and comedians, in their sketch An Artist's Studio.

SWINDON.

Queen's Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners; Acting-Manager, Mr W. B. Astin.—Following on a successful holiday week the new management has served up for its patrons a decidedly popular attraction, viz, A Trip to Chinatown, brought up to date and capitally played by Mr Leslie Norman's company under that gentleman's personal direction. This highly amusing piece has the advantage of neat staging and pretty dresses, and is ably conducted by Mr Augustus T. M'Innes. In the leading part of Welland Strong Mr Charles Seguin is simply irresistible throughout, and of Miss Harriett Fawn's charming society widow, Mrs Guyer, it would be difficult to speak too highly. The many musical numbers allotted to these talented artistes, especially "The Tramp Cake-walk," are received with outbursts of applause, and deservedly redemanded. Mr Jerrold Manville makes the most of the part of Ben Gay; Mr Leslie Norman is well placed as Rashleigh Gay, and Mr Oswald Grey is seen to advantage as Saxon Blood. Miss Florrie M'Innes as Tiny Gay and Miss Winifred Davies as Isabel Dame prove themselves pleasing exponents of their respective parts, while Miss Dorothy Vicott as Flirt dances nicely. The quaint antics of Mr Alfred Donohoe as Jones add much fun to the last act. The Canadian Belles delight the audiences with their pretty dances, particularly one to the setting of the song "Bedelia." Other parts are in good hands.

TYNEMOUTH.

Palace and Winter Gardens.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Graham; Assistant-Manager and Musical-Director, Herr Arnold Blomé.—Asra, juggler, who does some clever and unique feats, is here; and the Boston Twins, comedians, are enthusiastically received; R. Bagnell proves himself an entertainer of ability; and the Royal Court Orchestra is as popular as ever; Dillon Shallard, baritone; and Roy, banjoist, also contribute to the programme. Some interesting pictures are shown on the Biograph.

VENTNOR (I.O.W.).

Grand Pavilion.—Three Little Maids was presented here for one night by Mr Charles Macdona's company. On Monday Mr Lawrence Brough and company appeared in The Lady of Ostend. Dick Whortles was well embodied by Mr Harry Hampson. Mr Percy Marshall made a jovial Joseph Carbury. Nothing but great praise can be given to Mr Lawrence Brough for his artistic acting of the Frenchman, Le Baron De Longueville. Mr Edmund Gurney made a decided success of Toby Krockitt, the prize fighter, looking the character to the life. Miss Kate Milford was a charming Dorothy Whortles; Miss Connie Shillingford made the most of the Lady of Ostend; Miss Margaret Anthony played delightfully as Millie Grace; and Mr Harold M'May was a capital butler, causing roars of laughter.

Town Hall.—Joseph Poole's Myriorama amused large audiences during holiday week, the performances being much enjoyed.

WALLSEND.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Wallsend Theatre Company; Manager, Mr Tony Richardson.—Messrs Pearson and G. English's company in A Sister's Atonement is the attraction here. Mr Alfred G. Fry gives a manly impersonation of Brian O'Connor, and Captain Thornton has a capable exponent in Mr Fred Ingleby; Mr Bert H. Pearson as Larry O'Mally and Mr G. G. English as Jerry Rooney cause considerable amusement, and receive some valuable assistance from Miss Connie Arden, who capably fills the rôle of Moll Rooney. As Kathleen O'Connor Miss Cissie Aldworth is excellent, and Alice Oliver makes a pleasing Ethel Saunders.

WALSALL.

Her Majesty's Theatre, Limited.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—This week Miss Daisy De Roy and Mdlle Lucretia's musical comedy burlesque company is here in An English Belle. Mdlle. Lucretia as Jack Tremant is exceedingly good; the title-rôle is charmingly portrayed by Miss Daisy De Roy; Mr Bert Albert Rutley is well placed as the King Rajah of Cameo; Miss Hilda De Grey scores as Princess Paulina; Miss Essie Perrin is successful as Zelika; Mr Will Letters capably sustains the rôle of Sunny Jim; and Mr Fred Alberto is effective in the part of Squire Hardacre.

Grand Theatre, Limited.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Mr George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company is here this week with Judy; or, The Fatal Hand. The title-rôle is ably impersonated by Miss Florrie Groves; Grip is made the most of by Mr George Kirk; Mr Carlton Wallace is a capital Duburg; and Mr William Vane is good as Sterling. Jim, the coster, in the hands of Mr Conn Allister is prominent; Polly, the coster, Miss Mary Neil portrays to the life; and Miss Muriel Thompson is well suited in the part of Blake.

WEDNESBURY.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr W. J. Cranston.—Mr Augustus Geo. Lytton's company, in A Hidden Crime, is here this week. Mr A. F. Lovett's Jack Harrington is very successful, and Mr Charles Frome as Henry Adair is loudly applauded. As Cecil Newton Mr F. H Neville is seen to advantage; Mr Harry Ray does excellent work in the character of Tom Dacre; Miss Jessie Lyons gives a characteristic portrayal of Mrs Brander; as Kitty Rayner Miss Bessie Frank is well worthy of mention; and Miss Marguerite Romney makes an interesting Marie Ferrara.

WAKEFIELD.

Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr Frederick Thorne's company is here this week with Little Miss Nobody. Mr Percy Clifton gives a clever and amusing impersonation as Christopher Potter; Mr Dennis Drew scores as Guy Cheviot; Mr H. E. Gardner puts in some good work as Dandy Triplet; Mr Percy Barrow is admirable as Gussie Stilton; Miss Mabel Archdall submits a charming rendering in the title-rôle; Miss Dorothy Maxwell is well suited as Violet; Miss Mabel Dent makes a vivacious Maggie; the parts of the Sisters Triplet are smartly presented by Misses Maud Lindo, Clara Vanini, and Dora Detu. Quite successful also are Mr James J Jordon (Jock Jamieson), Mr Willie Hartill (the Earl of Cripplegate), and Miss Molly Tremaine as Lady Stilton.

WALTHAMSTOW.

Palace.—Managing Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—An artistic rendering of the overture to Flotow's once popular Martha opens the programme here this week, Mr H Petersen bringing his orchestral forces well up to the mark. Cribb and Cribb are responsible for several minutes' hearty laughter with smart patter singing and dancing; a versatile ventriloquist is Edmunda, who manages his puppets with dexterity, and causes them to sing in many voices; and Mr Will Dalton is a quaint comic singer, and his "dame" impersonation is very mirth-provoking. Princess Pauline makes a brilliant appearance; and Leslie and Herbert are received with roars of laughter in a comedy duologue. One of the best turns of the week is Mr Wm. Gourlay, whose song, "The scarecrow," is remarkably clever. In the mimic melodrama, in which the artist impersonates three characters, Mr Gourlay proves himself a burlesque actor of the highest order, and his dancing is very good. Loud and prolonged cheers welcome the appearance of Miss Kate Carney and her troupe of East-end aristocrats. The popular coster delineator sings some of her most catching ditties, and her rendering of "'Liza Johnson" fairly brings down the house. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope maintains its hold on public estimation by a series of clever pictures.

WARRINGTON.

Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Miss Marie Dagmar and company are reappearing here this week in A Life's Revenge. The play has again been warmly received. Miss Dagmar again wins high encomiums for her faithful portrayal of Princess Ivyala, and Mr Fred C. Somerfield scores well as Prince Strogoroff.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Tom Drum and Kitty Major head the bill here this week, and have scored well in their several duets and original patter. Hilton and Hilton supply an amusing bar act, and the St Johns are applauded for their refined musical act. The Brothers Lavelle are truly quaint comedy acrobats, and Lily Sharp, comedienne; and T. B. Fayme, comedian, complete a capital programme.

WEST BROMWICH.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr J. P. Moore.—At War with Women is here under the auspices of Mr Frank Bateman and his talented company. We must select for especial praise Miss Lizzie Montague, a well-known local favourite, who improves steadily. She is ably supported by Messrs Clinton Baddeley and Edward Ouston, who both do excellent work. Mr Arthur Balmoral and Mr Fisher Smith play well, and Messrs Hammond and Wood are both characteristic. Of the ladies Miss Marion Warren and Miss Louise Cavanah are worthy of special notice. The comic element is ably supplied by Miss Mabel Leigh and Mr Shaun Glenville.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

Grand.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Fred Conneaux.—J. Gar Kiddie's company—at all times welcome here—is playing for six nights, in A Chinese Idyl. His Excellency the Viceroy is endowed with good healthy humour at the hands of Mr Fred Lawson. Mr Dawson Dewick also contributes to the fun of the piece as Tang-a-lang. The numbers allotted to the rôle of Lieutenant West are ably rendered by Mr F. H. Dundas. Princess Stephanie is well fitted to Miss Emmie Milsted, and Pitti Pat is played in taking style by Miss Mabel Mainwaring.

Palace.—Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—The programme submitted for this the second week under the new proprietorship has been favourably received by well-filled houses. Les Francios, Continental acrobats, give a performance that is neat and clever; Abel and Welsh are exceedingly funny and remarkably clever in their acrobatic contortions and grotesque eccentricities; Gwennie Hasto renders a taking song and dances gracefully; popular ballads are well rendered by Harry Drew, a first-class basso; an "extra turn" is provided by the Aschers, who in a sketch, The Swell and the Serio, introduce song, dance, and repartee; and Barney Stuart, in his up-to-date creation, "Impersonalia," is clever and interesting, his ventriloquial imitations being exceptionally good. Other turns submitted are by Sisters Lunelle, soubrettes and dancers, and Charles Johnson, coloured coon vocalist.

WINDSOR.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Governing Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry E Rickitt.—A Tempter of Women, by Mr Clifford Rean, and played by his company, has been most successful in gaining the approval and applause of good audiences. It is a well-written, skilfully-worked-out comedy-drama, and is most ably presented by a strong all-round company. In the hands of Miss Nesta Sandford Kate, Countess of Gunislake, is a most dignified, refined, and yet pathetic character, marked also by ease and grace. Miss Nelly Murray's Rhoda Sleath is an admirable conception of a warm-hearted gipsy, who sacrifices her life for the kidnapped child, heir to the Earldom of Gunislake. Miss Lilly Lloyd as Polly Phillipino's daughter is also an excellent impersonation. Mr Clifford Rean's delineation of Horatio Buskin is a clever performance, his quaint make-up, imposing attitudes, grandiloquent deliverance of apt Shakesperean quotations, and dry humour proving him to be an actor of real ability. Mr Forbes Murray is good as Reeves Delemere, the gentlemanly but unscrupulous scoundrel. Benjamin Isaacs is skilfully treated by Mr David Phillips; and Mr Harry Housden as Bill Sleath presents a typical melodramatic villain. Mr Fred Dore is admirable in the part of Duke Allthere Phillipino, proprietor of the menagerie. As Jerry Blythe Mr Fred Ramsden is highly entertaining. The manly, robust, and natural Harold Vaughan of Mr Sydney T. Pease is one of the best impersonations in the cast.

WORCESTER.

New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; General Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—That remarkably sensational melodrama The Worst Woman in London had a cordial welcome last Monday evening, when it was produced here for the first time by Mr Walter Melville's excellent company. There was an unusually good house, considering the time of year. The numerous exciting episodes in the play created a great impression, and the fine way in which the piece was mounted evoked much praise. The title-rôle was cleverly assumed by Miss Constance Medwyn, who was ably supported by Mr Edwin J. Collins as the unfortunate hero and Miss Lilian Ross as Ruth, his sweetheart. Miss Helena Rigby was capital as the maid Matilda, and other notable characters were well portrayed by Mr P. Barry-Lewers (Vincent Lyle), Mr Cass (Fred Thornborough), Mr J. Jackson (George Wilton), and Mr H. Maxwell Payne (James Milford).

WHITEHAVEN.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Clark.—Miss Dorothy Oswald's company is appearing here this week in the ever-popular play East Lynne. As Archibald Carlyle Mr Herbert Barrs is exceptionally good, and the rôle of Levison is capitally played by Mr Pasco Bioletti. Mr G. Beel is well cast as Lord Mountsevern, and Mr Wallace Curnoch scores as Richard Hare. Mr George Harvie is amusing as Police-Constable Jorkins, and Miss Maggie Stewart renders some good songs in her character of Joyce. Miss Emma Rainbow makes the best of her part of Cornelia, and Miss Tilly Stewart is pleasing as Barbara Hare. Little Ruby is good as Willie, and as Lady Isabel Miss Dorothy Oswald is excellent.

WIGAN.

Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—The Osmond Tearle Shakespearian and classical repertory company, under the personal direction of Mr Robert J. Montague, has during the week presented a number of Shakespearian plays and David Garrick. The company is a remarkably strong one, and is headed by the charming and accomplished Shakespearian actress Miss Carrie Baillie and the admirable young tragedian Mr Alex. Marsh. These are efficiently supported by Messrs John Burton, Wm. Lorne, Cyril Gryer, George Osmond Tearle, Godfrey Tearle, Malcolm Tearle, J. J. Gallier, R. S. Innes, Miss Fannie Chamberlain, Mrs Lorne, Miss Kathleen Magee, and others.

Grand Theatre and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—At the Hippodrome the Jake Almo Troupe give a capital comic bar act; and Tom and Marie Motramo also create much amusement in their musical comedy act. Professor M'Cann's Irish terriers and leaping dogs are highly trained, and perform many clever and amusing tricks. Beaty and Blanche, duettists and top-boot dancers; Keith and Merson, acrobatic comedians; the Four Estrellas, gymnasts; and Percy Curry, comedian, are all well received. Fox and Melville, song illustrators; Percy Maye, lady impersonator; and Tessie Vandean, burlesque actress, are likewise popular.

WORKINGTON.

Queen's Opera House.—Lessee, Mr Coates F. Porter.—There was a capital audience on Monday night when Mr Gus C. Livesey produced with excellent effect The Crimson Club. In the title-role Mr Livesey gave a spirited rendering; Mr L. Thompson was powerful as the villain; Mr P. Shaw as Reginald convulsed his auditors; Mr Lionel Thompson was good as Selby. Miss Elsie Mesnard was capital as Muriel and also Miss Cousens as Sophonisba; Miss Lily Day as Esther; and Miss Alice H. Livesey as Julia. The piece was artistically mounted.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr Helsby Wright.—The Red Signal drew a good house on Monday night. Mr Sydney Vereker was humorous as Sammy. Mr C. V. Sandford was manly as the hero. Sir Otto was capably sustained by Mr G. Langdon. Mr F. T. Tracy was forcible as Sorrell; and Mr H. Walton was satisfactory as Culver. Miss Rosa Lehmann was piquant and sympathetic as May, and Florence was ably portrayed by Miss Norah Caronne.

WREXHAM.

Empire Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr Herbert Nicholls.—This week the company includes Mexican Mac, a sharpshooter; Mr Dan Noble, comedian; the Sisters Volbecque, duettists and dancers; Mr Harry Osmond, a musical comedian; Miss Marie Yorke, burlesque artiste; and Mons. Hollias, handcuff manipulator.

YORK.

Royal.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—The Face at the Window is being well received here. Mr E Hoggan-Armadale repeats his vivid portrayal of Le Loup, meeting with great success. He is a character actor of undoubted power. As the detective Mr E W. Dunscombe does extremely well, and Mr Alfred Richards as Lucien Cortier is manly and effective. The comedy element is in the safe hands of Mr B. Anderson and Miss Lizzie Chambers. Miss Marie Florence is particularly clever as Marie.

Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—The attractions this week are Mr W. W. Selkirk's juvenile company, in All Scotch; Terry and Lambert, in a smart sketch; Larola is a clever juggler; George Reeves is a comedian of more than average excellence; and the Brothers Brookes, Ryde and Beeman, Miss Bessie M'Lachlan, and Miss Rose Cabini complete the list.

"POEMS."

By R. Henderson Bland.
London: Gay and Bird.

This modest little volume of short poems is by a young member of the theatrical profession of whose stage career an account appeared under "Players of the Period" in The Era of March 12 last. Mr Bland was first engaged by Mr Beerbohm Tree to "walk on" at Her Majesty's Theatre in Mr Sydney Grundy's play The Silver Key, produced in July, 1897. Later he appeared in The Three Musketeers on tour, under the management of Mr Ben Greet, and he was subsequently engaged by Mrs Bandmann Palmer for a round of parts in her répertoire of well-known plays. Rejoining Mr Tree he appeared as Sir Evelyn Wise, the English Ambassador, in The Eternal City, and finished the season by playing Ralph Osborne, in The Man Who Was. He has since been engaged by Mr Lewis Waller. Mr Bland is also devoted to literature; and the poems in the volume under notice prove that he can write graceful and melodious verse. The longest poem is entitled "Waves Shoreward Roll," which tells the story of two lovers who meet by the "sad sea waves."

> At nightfall 'twas the lovers wont to sail
> The deep, and feel the luxury of still
> And utter loneliness that gave their love
> A richer setting. Seen where moonbeams lit
> Full shadows of the rocks a boat too frail
> To live an hour upon a troublous sea.

While the youth lies asleep in the frail boat a storm arises, and he is drowned.

> From casement high that opened on the sea
> The gaze of her whose love was beautiful
> Did search for hope and found there none at all.
> The sea threw back its burden on the beach—
> The burden of a form too fair to grace
> Its wild, relentless, never satiate maw.

Mr Bland's muse often expresses itself in the form of sonnets, of which there are several admirable specimens. The volume, which contains a portrait of the author, is dedicated to "The Immortal Three, glorious in genius, youth and beauty, Shelley, Keats, and Byron." We may conclude by quoting the poem—the last in the book—entitled "Life and Death," which is prefaced by the words "Yet a little sleep, a little slumber—a little folding of the hands to sleep.—Proverbs V., 6"

> A little blindness when 'tis needed most;
> A little kindness in a troublous time;
> A little waiting at a way-side post;
> A little lie when truth were half a crime.
> A little anger that we should have quelled;
> A little bitterness that writes its tale;
> A little word unsaid—too long withheld;
> A little courage when we nearly fail.
> A little meeting of the lips in love;
> A little sorrow, and an hour to weep;
> A little holding of the hands of friends;
> A little folding of the hands to sleep.

"The Era" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.
